By the end of the first half of the year, 8,176 accidents had occurred in the state in which motor vehicles figured, whereas the number for the same period of 1923 was 6,433, the gain amounting to 1,743. Fatal accidents increased from 77 in the first six months of 1923 to 123 in the first half of this year, the average being nearly one death a day due to an automobile accident.

The total number of motor vehicle accidents in the state in June, this year, was 1952, four less than in June, 1923. New Haven, New London and Meriden are the three cities getting part of the credit for this decrease. Comparing the record of the same month for both years, New Haven reduced its record from 209 to 201; New London from 63 to 23 and Meriden from 44 to 39. Hartford increased from 235 to 240, Waterbury from 86 to 118; Bridgeport from 131 to 139 and New Britain, from 57 to 76.

New Haven, Bridgeport and New Britain had two fatal accidents each during the past month and Hartford, Waterbury, New London and Meriden, one each. There were 23 fatal accidents throughout the state in a month—an increase of four over June, 1923—but motor vehicle registrations have increased about 20 per cent this year.

DECLINE IN INDUSTRIAL EMPLOYMENT IN STATE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, July 13.—Industrial employment in Connecticut showed a decline during June, according to the United States employment service of the department of labor in a report on its latest survey of labor conditions throughout the country.

While practically all plants are running, a number of textile mills and machine plants are working on a part time basis and the thread and velvet industries are operating on a four-day-a-week schedule. The surplus workers are unable to secure employment in other lines.

Building activities, the report states, provide employment for a great many craftsmen, and the tobacco industry is employing a large number of farm labors, with the supply about equal to the demand at the present time.

In New Haven a surplus of labor exists. Nearly all plants are operating, but a great many are working on part-time schedules. The surplus of workers in the metal industry at West Haven are unable to find employment in other lines. Building operations employ many tradesmen, with the local supply equal to the demand. A shortage of farm labor is reported.

All textile plants in Norwich are reported in operation with the exception of one cotton mill, whose shutdown affects about 500 workers, and it is further reported that a surplus of workers exists in that city who are unable to find employment in other lines. A large number of houses and an addition to a hospital are under construction, which affords employment to the majority of local building tradesmen.

In New London nearly all plants are running, but there has been a noticeable slackening in the textile mills, machine shops and foundries. Building activities continue and local craftsmen are well employed, it is reported.

SERMON ON SIN OF ANGER BY FATHER GUERRIERO

The 9 o'clock mass at St. Patrick's church every Sunday is for the children of the parish, who fill the galleries, adults crowding the auditory. Addressing the congregation at that mass Sunday, Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero gave a practical instruction upon the sin of anger.

It was the fifth Sunday after Pentecost, the epistle read being I. Peter III, 8-15. The gospel was Matthew v. 20-24, in which the Saviour so severely condemned the sin of anger. The preacher recommended patience, whenever one is moved to wrath, pointing out the manner in which a Christian should forbear showing revenge or rancor, rather waiting to speak or to act, and then with mildness, when provoked or annoyed. All the passages of Scripture quoted were testimony to God's desire that men receive slights and affronts and injustice without committing the sin of becoming angry.

Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who read the low mass, had the assistance of Father Guerriero in giving Holy Communion.

SENDS $50 CHECK FOR FIREMEN'S PENSION FUND

Chief Howard L. Stanton of the Norwich police department has received the following letter from Daniel Polsky, treasurer of the Yantic Grain & Products company:

Dear Sir: Inclosed herewith please find check for $50 which you will kindly place in the Norwich Firemen's pension fund.

We wish to take this occasion to express our sincere appreciation for the prompt response and excellent work in the extinguishing of the fire in our elevator building on Wednesday evening, July 9th.

We wish especially to commend the care and consideration with which the property was handled and left in.

We are proud of the Norwich fire department and take great pleasure in expressing our appreciation.

ELECTRIC MOTOR BUS RUN BY CENTRAL VERMONT

The new electric motor bus promised to patrons of the Central Vermont Railroad company last spring for summer passenger travel, is now making one round trip each week day between Palmer, Mass., and New London, a distance of 120 miles.

The first trip was made Friday, leaving Palmer to arrive in Willimantic at 8.30 a. m., leaving for New London at 8.37 a. m. The bus attracted considerable attention all along the line. It is about two-thirds the size of the ordinary passenger coach, with electric storage batteries in the forward end, seats 24 persons and has a limited space for baggage. The bus is in charge of Motorman Hinchen and Conductor James Riley.

ACTING POSTMISTRESS AT CENTRAL VILLAGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, July 12.—Mary Angeline Tracy has been appointed acting postmistress at Central Village, Conn., pending confirmation of her regular appointment by the next United States senate, it was announced here today by Postmaster General New.

Outing Club at Beach Pond.

LEGION HELPING MANY WITH BONUS APPLICATIONS

There was a good attendance at the special meeting of Robert O. Fletcher Post No. 4, American Legion held Friday night in the legion rooms on Main street. Commander Herman A. Bruckner was in the chair and considerable business was transacted.

A letter of appreciation from Senator George P. McLean was read and ordered placed in the minutes of the meeting. Chairman Webster Copp of the legion compensation committee reported that 37 ex-service men and women had appeared before the committee and had been assisted in filling out their application blanks for the bonus.

The sign committee was instructed to procure the official American Legion electric street sign for the rooms and Comrade Harry House reported a number of cases where ex-service men confined to their homes were anxious to receive aid from the legion in matters of compensation for injuries and filling out their bonus blanks. Cases where assistance was needed for disabled service men living in Norwich were also mentioned and the relief committee notified.

It was also voted that a message of condolence be sent to President and Mrs. Coolidge.

Plans for the Volture installation and initiation in New London were talked of and a number of members signified their intentions of joining the order in the Whaling City.

REAR ADMIRAL FRANK ARMS BUYS PEQUOT PROPERTY

Thorncroft, on Glenwood avenue, New London, the residence of the late Col. and Mrs. Eugene T. Kirkland, which the latter willed to her two sisters, Misses Amelia and Anna Stephens of the Pequot, had been sold to Rear Admiral and Mrs. Frank Arms of Hampton Roads, Va., son and daughter-in-law, respectively of Mrs. Frank A. Arms of Neptune park and brother and sister-in-law of Guy T. Arms of Waterford. Admiral Arms is a paymaster in the United States navy and at present stationed in the south.

He will bring his wife and 7-year old daughter north late next fall, following his retirement from the service in December.

Thorncroft is one of the most attractive residences in the Pequot section.

Nuns Spend Busy Summer

The ten Sisters of Mercy from St. Patrick's convent, Perkins avenue, and the eight Sisters from St. Mary's convent, Hickory street, Norwich, are among the two hundred and four nuns of the Mercy Order of the diocese, who have been making their annual retreat at Mt. St. Joseph's Academy, Hamilton Heights, Hartford. The retreat, the preacher for which is Rev. John J. Laherty, S. J., professor at Regis High school, Eighty-fourth street, New York, began last week Wednesday, and closed Friday morning. Immediately following the retreat summer school began for the teaching sisters, to last until the second week in August. Rev. William M. Stinson, S. J., of Boston college will have charge of the lectures during the summer school.

The two convents in Norwich are closed during July, while the teachers are on retreat, or at summer schools, or taking special college courses.

REV. WM. A. KEEFE A PRIEST FOR TWENTY-ONE YEARS

It became known to a very few in his parish Saturday that July 12th was the twenty-first anniversary of the ordination to the priesthood of Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church on Central avenue. Rev. Father Keefe, who is a native of Waterbury, completed his theological studies at the celebrated University of Louvain, Belgium, and was ordained there.

His work in Norwich it too well known to require comment. During the World war, for the Backus Hospital drive, in every line of community, educational or charitable endeavor, Father Keefe has always been to the fore, with voice, pen and purse.

As the epitaph of Sir Christopher Wren reads in St. Paul's Cathedral "If you seek his monument, look about you." Any citizen seeking a demonstration of Father Keefe's splendid work in Norwich has but to look at the magnificent new memorial church edifice, which since its erection has almost completely changed the appearance of the entire section where it is located.

A private mass of thanksgiving Saturday was Father Keefe's only way of marking the anniversary so important in his life; but he will have the congratulations and sincere good wishes of many within and outside his parish, who recognize him as such a powerful force for good in the community.

SUPT. F. LEON HUTCHINS HAS SERIOUS OPERATION

Word was received from Rochester, Minn., on Saturday evening that Supt. F. Leon Hutchins of the Backus hospital had had a most difficult and serious operation performed by Dr. W. J. Mayor at St. Mary's hospital. His condition was said to be as good as can be expected.

Taken to Troy.

Officers from Troy, N. Y., came here Friday morning and took from the Norwich jail, Morris Handelman, who is wanted in Troy for jumping bail. He was held here for the Troy authorities after he had been discharged in the city on the charge of theft of $6,000 in diamonds, from the Bliss jewelry store in November, 1920.

NORWICH TOWN

The annual cradle roll party of the First Congregational church was held Friday afternoon from 3.30 to 5.30 on the church lawn, with an attendance of 42, including eight mothers who accompanied the smaller children. The youngest infant present was one year old, other children's ages ranging from one to eight years, which was the limit. A portion of the lawn near the old well was spaced off to resemble a pavilion, a Maypole being set in the center, from which long streamers of pink and white crepe paper were suspended. Here the children played kindergarten games under the supervision of their leader, Miss Marion L. Bailey, assisted by her sister, Miss Lucile D. Bailey. Miss Rose Durr, Miss Grace Wheeler, and Miss Bessie Whaley assisted the Misses Bailey in serving ice cream, cakes and animal crackers.

At the close of the afternoon the opening of the mite boxes took place. This yearly event affords much pleasure for the small children. It was somewhat belated this year due to the prevalence of illness in the community.

NEW LONDON CREW ON SUB THAT SINKS YACHT

The United States submarine S-29 undergoing standardization trials at Provincetown Saturday, rammed and sank the 70-foot sailing yacht Minaci from Marblehead. The owner of the yacht and his crew of seven were rescued. The S-29 was undamaged, and reported no injuries. The yacht foundered in 80 feet of water.

The submarine was one of five at Provincetown for standardization trials. Aboard the undersea boat at the time of the crash were a party of inspection and survey from the navy in addition to the civilian trial crew from New London.

Twins at Windham High School.

POETRY

THE BEWILDERED GUEST.

I was not asked if I should like to come
I have not seen my host here since I came.
Or had a word of welcome in his name
Some say that we shall never see him and some
That we shall see him elsewhere, and then know
Why we are bid. How long I am to stay
I have not the least notion. None they say,
Was ever told when he should come or go.
But every now and then there bursts
The song and mirth a lamentable noise
A sound of shrieks and sobs that strikes our joys
Dumb in our breasts; and then someone is gone.
They say we'll meet him. None knows how or when.
We know we shall not meet him here again.

—William Dean Howells.

UBEWILDERED.

John 14: 27.

"Not as the world gives" dost Thou give O Master,
Lord of my life and Saviour of my soul!
For peace the world gives when the sea is smiling,
But Thine comes when the stormy billows roll.

"Not as the world gives," when the sun is shining,
And all of life is one glad, happy song
But Thy peaced wells in hearts that walk in darkness,
When life is bitter and the way is long

Thy blessed wondrous peace, O Christ my Saviour,
Steady it keeps our hearts in hours of pain;
"Not as the world gives," but as Thou dost measure,
We look into Thy face and lose to gain!

AMERICAN AMBASSADOR TO MEXICO TO RESIGN HIS POST

Charles B. Warren, in Making the Announcement, Declares He Consedered His Mission Complete, With Good Understanding Now Existing Between Mexico and the United States.

Mexico City, July 14.—(By The A. P.)—Charles B. Warren, the American ambassador to Mexico, has issued a statement announcing his intention to resign from his post. The ambassador's statement follows:

"I am returning to the United States to resign as ambassador, as the task I came to help is concluded. My mission really commenced last year when I came to Mexico as head of the American mission to negotiate a basis for the resumption of diplomatic relations, after which general and special claims conventions were signed.

"Of course there will be no surprise at my resignation because it was understood that I came to arrive at a basis for a good understanding between Mexico and the United States, and not to serve as ambassador when that task was completed. I feel that the work is done and that the agencies created to adjust the claims of citizens of both countries will succeed in their part of the work.

"I will leave July 22 resigning the ambassadorship after conferences with President Coolidge and Secretary of State Hughes. I leave knowing that the present relations between Mexico and the United States are friendly and cordial, both peoples desiring justice in their relations."

TO ARREST BATHERS IN ROSELAND LAKE

Hartford, July 14.—Superintendent Robert T. Hurley directed Sergeant Fields, of the Danielson state police barracks today, to make arrests tomorrow of bathers in Roseland lake, Woodstock, for violation of an order of the state department of health. Defiant, more owners of land fronting on the lake, took legal counsel and prepared for a stiff test case battle arising out of today's arrests.

The action followed a conference with State Health Commissioner Stanley H. Osborne. It brings to a head a question which has been agitating a large area in the northeastern corner of the state since the health department on May 5, notified interested property owners of the prohibitory bathing order. About half dozen bathers will be arrested, if that many can be found in the water, and brought before a Woodstock justice court.

The arrests, however, will be merely an incident in the proceedings. But they are necessary to get into court for adjudication a fine point of law raised by Attorney General Healy in an opinion given to the state health commissioner July 2, as to whether the policy of the state in protecting its public health can by statute so restrict the use of private property as to justify such action by the health department.

DIRIGIBLE SHENANDOAH IS MAKING A TEST FLIGHT

Lakehurst, N. J., July 14.—With ideal flying conditions prevailing, the United States navy dirigible Shenandoah shortly after 7 o'clock tonight was taken from its hangar and half an hour later was swinging from the mooring mast where the ship was given a test.

Satisfied with the dirigible's conduct there, Commander Zachary Landsdowne gave orders for an engine test. Released from the mast, the ship proceeded toward Sandy Hook. It is not expected back at the air station before 3 o'clock tomorrow morning and in the meantime will fly over the coast line between Barnegat bay and Sandy Hook.

STATUS OF CONTROVERSY IN RHODE ISLAND SENATE

Providence, R. I., July 14.—Governor William S. Flynn today postponed from tomorrow until July 22 a meeting of the citizens' committee which has been endeavoring to find a way to settle the controversy that has tied up the state senate. This action was taken at the request of Chairman Thomas F. I. McDonnell, of the committee, who explained that further time was desired to prepare a statement of the public's view for the republican and democratic senators.

The republican senators who left the state after the setting off of gases in the senate chamber several weeks ago are still at Rutland, Mass., where they are staying in a body. Meantime the democratic minority in the senate, headed by Lieutenant-Governor Felix A. Toupin, meets from day to day and adjourns the sessions without action for lack of a quorum.

ARMY WORLD FLIERS HAVE ARRIVED IN PARIS

Paris, July 14.—(By the A. P.)—The United States army fliers who are circling the globe swept over Paris this afternoon and landed safely at Le Bourget airdrome, nineteen days behind their original schedule, but with a gain of twelve days to their credit since they left Tokio.

The pilot of the three planes and their assistants were in fine health in spite of weeks of heavy strain, but they were tired, and almost overcome by the enthusiasm of their reception.

Six men in all under command of Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, have come over the long air trail, from the Pacific coast of the American continent to their present resting place, a distance of nearly 18,000 miles in something less than four months. They will not remain here long, but will proceed to London, and from there, flying by way of the Orkney Islands, Iceland and Greenland, Labrador and Quebec, will go speeding back to the homeland.

Lieutenant Smith, Lieutenant Leigh Wade and Lieutenant Eric Nelson, the pilots, with their mechanicians, Lieutenant Leslie Arnold, Sergeant A. M. Ogden and Lieutenant John Harding, Jr., set forth from Vienna early this morning for Paris, and a mighty shout went up from the airdrome, when with a French aerial escort in perfect alignment they sailed over Le Bourget at 4.45 p. m., and continued onward to circle the Arc de Triomphe and the tomb of the unknown soldier.

Then wheeling back from above Paris, they planed down to the aviation field ten minutes later. So great were the crowds to welcome them that the small force of guards was overwhelmed, and soon the field was black with people to greet the Americans as they landed. The "Chicago" with Lieutenant Smith, in the lead, followed closely by he planes of Wade and Nelson.

The army aviators have been in the air 60 hours altogether since leaving Los Angeles, and they found on the average that only about one day in six is good for flying.

DIED WHILE DESCENDING THE STERS OF CHURCH

Sensational Advance In the Price of Wheat

Chicago, July 14—Predictions that the wheat crop this season in Canada would be less than half of the yield in 1923 had much to do with a sensational advance of prices today on the Chicago board of trade. Maximum gains of five cents a bushel were registered, with values shaded only a trifle at the finish.

Excitement among traders in the Chicago wheat pit attained a high pitch after word was sent out that 50 per cent damage from the Canadian drought had been forecast by a recognized expert on crop conditions. R. O. Cromwell, representing one of the largest grain houses here, made the statement.

The ensuing scramble to buy was one of the liveliest that has been witnessed in Chicago for a long while, notwithstanding a flood of sales to realize profits. Notice meanwhile that Kansas City had received upwards of 1,000 cars of new wheat today, more than double the amount of a year ago, was without the least apparent influence as a check on the advance of prices.

Speculative Buying.

Kansas City, July 14.—Sensational reports of poor condition of the Canadian wheat crop together with growing fear that the United States will produce a small corn crop this year stimulated excited speculative buying of both grains for future delivery here today and the markets closed in a turmoil with advances for the day of 4 to 5 cents a bushel.

ROBINSON EXPELLED FROM CHEVY CHASE COUNTRY CLUB

Washington, July 14.—Senator Robinson of Arkansas, was expelled today from the fashionable Chevy Chase country club as a result of an exchange between him and Doctor James F. Mitchell, prominent surgeon, on the links three weeks ago.

The action, which was taken by the board of governors, was announced tonight and followed an inquiry into charges that the senator had struck down the surgeon during an argument over the golf etiquettes. None of the principals appeared before the board but instead presented statements.

The affair occurred at the thirteenth tee as Senator Robinson, in a foursome with Senators Walsh of Montana Kendrick of Wyoming, and Jones of New Mexico, met another golf party comprising Doctor Mitchell, Col. Edward Clifford, former assistant secretary of the treasury, and his son. Discussing was said tohave arisen over the question of the speed with which the parties were proceeding on the links ending in a fistic exchange.

Washington, July 14. — President Coolidge will be notified formally of his nomination as the republican presidential candidate at ceremonies to be held here Thursday evening, August 14, in Continental Memorial hall.

Final arrangements were completed today for the notification ceremonies, which were set originally for July 24 but were postponed after the death of the president's son, Calvin Jr. Invitations to the ceremonies will be sent out tomorrow from the headquarters of the reparation national committee to republican governors of states, republican members of congress, and republican leaders.

The notification committee as selected at the Cleveland convention will be headed by Frank W. Mondell, the permanent chairman of the convention, who will make the notification address.

DAVIS IN CONFERENCE WITH PARTY LEADERS

New York, July 4.—John W. Davis, democratic nominee, for president, spent today conferring with party leaders from various states preparatory to writing his address of acceptance which will formally open his campaign and reveal the tactics he will follow.

It was learned that the notification ceremony would be held in Clarksburg, W. Va., the nominee's birthpiace, and probably in the house where he spent his boyhood. The date is likely to be about July 28.

Mr. Davis will finish conferences with advisers and democratic chiefs by Friday, and then will escape to a small isolated island off the Maine coast to frame his rallying call for the campaign.

COL. JAMES GEDDES FILES BOND AS SHERIFF

New Haven, Conn., July 14.—Colonel James Geddes, new sheriff for New Haven county, today filed his bond amounting to $10,000 but because of other duties which engaged his attention he found it impossible to take the oath of office.

Commenting on the reports that he would make several changes in the personnel of the county's staff, Colonel Geddes said:

"Public service requires that the machinery of the county go on uninterruptedly until I have made a survey."

This was taken to mean that the new sheriff will make on changes until he has had an opportunity to make a thorough study of his new office.

BRAZILIAN TROOPS ARE BOMBARDING SAO PAULO

Buenos Aires, July 14.—(By The A. P.)—Advices received here this evening are to the effect that the federal forces in Brazil are continuing their bombardment of Sao Paulo, though the shelling is not doing much damage within the city. Some shells have fallen within half a mile of the American consulate, which is located in the business center of the city.

The rebel artillery is reported to have been strengthened through the defection of portions of the federal artillery sent from Santos, which have joined the rebels.

American residents of Sao Paulo are reported to be safe, but anxious.

Chieftain Elected By Tammany Hall

Judge W. Olvany of the Court of General Sessions to Succeed the Late Charles F. Murphy.

New York, July 14.—Judge W. Olvany, of the court of general sessions was today elected chieftain of Tammany Hall as successor to the late Charles F. Murphy.

The executive committee of the organization, which unanimously voted for Judge Olvany, also passed a resolution endorsing the democratic national ticket and pledging its "undivided and loyal support" to the candidates, John W. Davis and Governor Charles W. Bryan, of Nebraska. The committee further expressed its approval of the "progressive and forward looking platform" adopted by the democratic national convention.

The vote for Judge Olvany, before it was made unanimous by the 68men and women representatives of 23 districts, was reported to have been 22 2-3 to 1-3 for Martin G. ("Marty") McCue.

"The call is too strong to resist," Judge Olvany told the executive committee of Tammany hall, after he had been escorted to the Fourteenth street wigwam by two veterans of the organization—a man and a woman, both gray haired. Surrogate James A. Foley had been elected grand chief last man, immediately after Murphy's death; had accepted and then, on the advice of physicians, had declined the post.

"In a few days I shall resign from the bench and undertake to carry on the work so capably, unselfishly and successfully performer by Charles F. Murphy for more than 22 years," Judge Olvany's statement continued. "Our first great public duty will be to roll up a great vote for our national ticket.

The election of Judge Olvany, a former district leader of Tammany, was a compromise between an active leader, upon whom the district chieftains insisted, and a man from the ranks, as advocated by those who caused Surrogate Foley's election in May. That it also was a compromise between the forces of Governor Alfer E. Smith, who appointed Judge Olvany to the bench, and the forces of Mayor John F. Hylan and W. R. Hearst was seen in this paragraph of the new chieftain's acceptance speech.

Mayor Hylan has stood faithfully for the principles he advocated in the last municipal campaign, in which he received an extraordinary vote of public confidence. We should fully support him in carrying out these principles.

Judge Olvany has been active in the affairs of the organization for many years. He is 47 years old.

Born almost within the shadow of Governor Smith's home in the lower East Side, June 20, 1876, the eighteenth birthday of the Tammany chieftain whom he succeeds, Judge Olvany's life has been closely interwoven with that of Governor Smith.

Judge Olvany was educated in the public schools of Greenwich Village where he has lived since he was six months old. He was graduated from New York University in 1896, and in the same year was admitted to the state bar and to practice in federal courts. Soon after he entered the corporation counsel's office.

His debut in politics was made in 195 as an alderman from the fifth district. For two and one-half years Judge Olvany was first deputy commissioner of the fire department under Mayor Gaynor, acting as trial commissioner.

Governor Smith as sheriff of New York county appointed Judge Olvany counsel in the sheriff's office, a post he occupied until appointed general sessions judge by Governor Smith last January.

Judge Olvany was married in 1911 to Miss Agnes Halpin of Scarboro, N. Y. They have one son, George W. Olvany, Jr., 11 years old. His mother, Mrs. Harriet Olvany, is living. His father, James J. Olvany, died a few months ago.

He is a member of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, the democratic county committee, New York County Lawyers' association, Elks, New York Athletic club, Delta Chi fraternity, Friendly Sons of St. Patrick and other organizations.

INTER-ALLIED PARLEY ON DAWES' REPORT WEDNESDAY

Envoys of Various Nations Are to Assemble in London For the Purpose of Putting the Report on Reparations Into Effect—An Atmosphere of Optimism Prevails—Great Britain, France Italy, Belgium and Japan Will Each be Represented by Several Delegates— Ambassador Kellogg Will be the Sole Representative of the United States.

London, July 14 (By the A. P.)—The inter-allied conference which will assemble in the foreign office Wednesday morning for the purpose of putting the Dawes' report on reparations into effect, will open in a decided atmosphere of optimism.

When the tentative arrangements for the meeting were concluded between Premiers MacDonald and Herriot at Paris last Thursday, the French premier characterized the occasion as the best day for the entente since the armistice was signed, and today competent American and British observers declared they hoped that within a fortnight the deliberations would be productive of an arrangement which will end once and for all time the quarrels and misunderstandings that have been continuous among the nations of Europe since the hostilities of the great war ended and the allied powers began their struggles to get war compensation out of Germany.

The unoffical participation of the United States through the experts who worked in Paris for two months this year to produce the recommendations now universally known as the Dawes' report, has given new hope to the allies and Germany alike.

On Wednesday Mr. MacDonald, M Herriot, M. Theunis, the Belgian premier, and other allied plenipotentiaries, together with Ambassador Kellogg as the official representative of the United States empowered to act in behalf of American interests, will gather in the foreign office to give political effect to the business-like economic findings of General Dawes and his colleagues.

Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Japan, will each be represented by several delegates.

Ambassador Kellogg will be the only accredited representative of the United States; but throughout the deliberations Colonel James A. Logan, Jr., who has followed the complexities of the reparations problem from the beginning, will sit beside the ambassador as his official adviser, four other Americans, two from the embassy and two of Colonel Logan's assistants, will be included in the conference secretariat.

The fact that the experts committee had been appointed and that Americans were present as members of the committee has undoubtedly contributed to the possibility of beginning afresh friendly or any rare more friendly relations between Great Britain and France, Prime Minister MacDonald declared in the house of commons today.

Mr. MacDonald remarked that the experts committee was inherited by the present government and then added that there was no doubt in his mind of the beneficent effect of the committee's work.

The prime minister said that he had gathered from conversations in Paris with Premier Herriot of France and others that if any Americans were appointed to the reparation commission to safeguard the creditors of the pounds sterling 40,000,000 loan to Germany, France would undoubtedly insist that the extra appointee to the commission should have his purpose confined to safeguarding creditors of the loan, although he would be allowed to speak and to vote.

Mr. MacDonald said with reference to the alternative proposal about arbitration whereby the American voting member of the reparation commission would cast the deciding ballot in the event of failure to get an unanimous decision of the commission, that it was just put down as another possibility because the house must remember the exact significance of a reparation agent. He was referring to the use of the American member of the commission as a general reparation agent in the event that it were not decided that he should look after the interest of the investors in the German loan.

A MOTHER ARRESTED FOR WEST HAVEN RUM RUNNING

New Haven, July 14.—Another arrest, the twelfth to be made since the raid on alleged rum runners at the Welch Coal Company docks in West Haven early Saturday morning, was reported today. John Goff, of 30 Main street, West Haven, was taken into custody charged with participating in the alleged bribery in connection with the capture of eight men and three automobiles at the water front. Goff is employed as a watchman at the Richards Lumber company plant.

The arrest was made at the same time that Officer Charles Leece of the West Haven police force was taken and the West Haven police have been keeping it a secret. The arrest became known today, however, when Attorney Charles J. Martin, in court, made a plea for a reduction in bail for his client, Michael Barberria, of West Haven, one of the twelve under arrest and alleged to be connected with the bribery conspiracy.

All of the cases when they came up in court today were put over until Friday. Some of the defendants are still in jail in default of bonds.

Chief Harry Tuttle of the West Haven police force and Prosecuting Attorney William L. Hadden, had a long conference with State's Attorney A. A. Alling today, presumably in connection with the case, but they would make no statement after the session.

POLICEMAN SUSPENDED ON CHARGE OF INTOXICATION

Waterbury, Conn., July 14.—Patrolman Edward Ferry of the police department was last night suspended by Deputy Superintendent of Police Edward J. Mullings on the charges of intoxication and conduct unbecoming an officer. According to the testimony presented to the deputy superintendent's office, the patrolman drove a car up North Main street while under the influence of liquor, struck another machine, owned and operated by Donald Rinaldi of Middlebury and drove away.

Rinaldi with Francis Bower of South Britain and Irwin Cassidy of Waterbury followed Patrolman Ferry and encountered him about two miles further. When Rinaldi asked him for an explanation as to why he drove away, it is said that the patrolman, jumped out of his car, showed his badge and struck Rinaldi in the face. He also took Rinaldi's license away. Ferry was brought to headquarters by a lieutenant and sergeant of police.

COUNTERFEIT FEDERAL RESERVE NOTES IN ANSONIA

Ansonia, July 4.—Three counterfeit federal reserve notes, said to have been passed Saturday night on owners of small stores, were presented at the Ansonia National bank this morning. One of the fake notes also showed up in a bank in Derby and it is believed numbers are still in circulation here.

The federal authorities were notified. The counterfeits are a photographic reproduction of a genuine federal reserve note with a portrait of Jackson on the face. All the notes presented at th Ansonia National bank bar the same number A43703126A.

PUBLIC INVITED TO VISIT NIANTIC CAMP FRIDAY

Niantic, July 14.—Brigadier General Morris B. Payne, commanding the brigade of Connecticut National Guard in camp here today issued a general invitation to the people of the state to attend the manoeuvres and review of the brigade on the camp grounds Friday. In the afternoon also Gov. Templeton with his staff will be present to review the guardsmen.

COURT UPHOLDS INDICTMENT OF HARRY F. SINCLAIR

Washington, July 14.—Six of the ten counts in the indictment of Harry F. Sinclair for contempt of the senate were sustained today in the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

Justice Hoehling ruled out questions asked of Sinclair about the alleged contribution of Sinclair Consolidated stock to Will H. Hays or some one representing the republican national committee, and transfer of funds from the National Park bank of New York to the National Metropolitan bank of Washington, as not pertinent. He also made the same decision on the final count which charged Sinclair with refusing to answer any questions.

Sinclair was given 20 days to plead again. In sewewance the case Justice Hoehling ruled various precedents and followins the federal rule in such questions decided the issue of the authority of congress should be resolved against the defendant and in favor of the existence of the power to compel pertinent testimony in aid of the exercise of its legislative function but excluding self incrimination.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SUIT DISMISSED BY COURT

Boston, July 4.—Judge Lowell in United States district court today dismissed for lack of jurisdiction bills brought by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Taylor of New York seeking to enjoin the Christian Science board of directors from hearing complaints against the petitioners which affected their standing as members of the Christian Science mother church.

A temporary restraining order was granted several weeks ago against the board of directors but Judge Lowell denied the application of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor for a temporary injunction. In dismissing the suits the judge said that the plaintiffs would have to show that the case involved $3,000 or more if the federal court was to have jurisdiction.

"I do not think there is any basis here for my jurisdiction," the judge said. "It is a thing which, of course, is of very great sentimental value and possibly practical value, but it is not of pecuniary value and my jurisdiction depends on pecuniary value."

HELD FOR COMPLICITY IN INVESTMENT SWINDLES

Chicago, July 14.—William N. Sheridan, Jr., resident manager of the Chicago office of George F. Redmond and company, of Boston, which failed several months ago, was held for removal to Boston today under an indictment charging complicity in alleged investment swindles.

Sheridan is a member of the real estate firm of Cullerton and Sheridan which he joined after the Redmond company went into bankruptcy and has been somewhat prominent in social circles. He came here three years ago from Boston, where he was associated in business with his father.

He also is charged with having failed to deliver securities which he is alleged to have sold on his own responsibility.

MRS. ISABELLA STEWART GARDNER SUFFERS RELAPSE

Boston, July 14.—Mrs. Isabella Stewart Gardner, known to social circles an dsponsors of the arts as "Mrs. Jack Gardner," was critically ill today, friends said. At her Italian palace in the Fens, where she has one of the finest art galleries in the world, Mrs. Gardner was said to have suffered a relapse over the week end in an illness due to the effects of continued hot weather. A paralytic stroke a year ago had left her in a weakened condition.

WILLIMANTIC

Sam Diamond, 19, former newsboy of New York city, now one of the many tourists traveling about the United States on a bicycle, has been a visitor in this city. Sam called at the police station at the week end and asked to be put up in a cell room for a sleep. The names of various states and provinces in Canada were placarded on the bicycle. Diamond earned funds by playing a mandolin. In the south he claimed that he had been nicknamed The Wandernig Minstrel. His story, if true, is not without pathos. Told by a physician in January, 1922, that he had tuberculosis and that he could live but a few months, young Diamond started to bike and ride in the open air and his simple remedy has apparently saved him. He is quite robust and has added 40 pounds to his weight. Diamond carried a book which contained the signatures of hundreds of mayors.

In the police court Monday morning John Taylor of this city was charged with operating a motor vehicle without a driver's license. He pleaded guilty, admitting that he had driven without a license since last April, but that he always had someone with him who did possess one. The case is the outcome of an accident on Jillson hill early Saturday evening, when Taylor's car struck one owned by Jacob Mandel of this city. A fine of $16.15 was imposed and paid.

Fred Luzvick, charged with assault on his wife, mother-in-law and sister-in-law, Saturday night, July 5, was before the court Monday morning. The case was again continued until Wednesday to await developments in the condition of the sister-in-law, Miss Doll Marcoux, who is said to be in a critical condition. The same bond of $5,000 was continued, but has not yet been furnished.

The west shore of Lake Wangumbaug, South Coventry, is rapidly developing into a summer colony for lyceum and vaudeville artists. City Health Officer Dr. W. P. S. Keating is to take up the case of Stanley Stygar of lower Main street, near the Horseshog bridge, who complained to the police that rubbish and garbage had been dumped on his land and that the odor was unbearable and a menace to health.

Automobile drivers should become cognizant of the fact that, when driving along Main or any of the business streets in this city, heed should be paid to the blowing of the new fire sirens installed on Main street. One siren is at Lincoln square and the other at Bank street. They were being tested Monday afternoon and it was noticed that the raucous call of warning made an impression on several motorists. That is as it should be. The sound of the sirens is to be taken as a command to drive directly to one side of the road and hold the car to a standstill.

HOW TO GET THIN

French Specialist Tells How to Lose Excess Fat Without Exercises, Habit Forming Drugs or Worthless Creams.

"If you are 10 to 100 pounds overweight you can easily and safely lose all that fat," says a French specialist. "For years I suffered with high blood pressure and heart trouble due to fifty pounds of excess fat. I was weak, short of breath and 'all in.' I could not find any clothes to fit me, and I was thoroughly disgusted with life until I found out about SAN-GRI-NA, a marvelous discovery. I know that a great many fat men and women are going through these same troubles to-day. And, for their benefit, I am glad to explain what I did to reduce and how they can easily and gradually lose a few pounds each week without any danger. Go to any good drug store and get a package of SAN-GRI-NA —(remember the name, and do not accept anything else, as nothing like this has ever before been offered to the American public).

"SAN-GRI-NA, the formula of a French physician, has been used in Europe in private practice, where enormous prices have been paid for it. Simply take two tablets before each meal and watch your fat disappear. Once you have started to take SAN-GRI-NA, you should feel greater pep and energy. No more tired feeling. SAN-GRI-NA is guaranteed absolutely harmless, and positive to relieve you or your money is refunded. Remember that is all I did to get rid of 50 pounds of unhealthy, ugly rolls of fat. I have not regained one pound since I stopped using SAN-GRI-NA. I look and feel years younger, and can sincerely recommend it to any fat man or woman."

"All Hands" Say Mueller's Spaghetti In Place of Potatoes

You can't expect to have soft, white hands if you peel potatoes every day—nothing else you do makes them so red, rough and unsightly.

Serve Mueller's Spaghetti instead of potatoes and save your hands. Save time, too; it takes 35 to 40 minutes to peel and cook potatoes, and Mueller's cooks in 9 minutes.

More Economical, and Quick and Easy to Prepare

Mueller's is a much more economical food than potatoes in every way. There are bad potatoes in every basket; you cut away 15% when you peel them, and they are 62% water. Mueller's is 100% food value without waste.

And Mueller's is just as easy to prepare as potatoes. Serve it the same way; with butter, with sauces, with meat gravies, with sauerkraut.

Instead of creamed potatoes, serve Mueller's Elbow Macaroni prepared the same way. In place of potatoes au gratin, use any one of the Mueller Foods; instead of fried potatoes, fry Mueller's Egg Noodles. No matter how you prepare it "the better taste" makes Mueller's so appetizing and delicious that it is a welcome and delightful change from potatoes.

If you want novel, elaborate dishes, send for our new Recipe Book, containing 43 unusual and delightful recipes. Address C. F. Mueller Co., Jersey City, N. J.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

PALACE REVIEW

Between Friends, which was shown at the Palace theatre yesterday and will continue until Wednesday is one of those photoplays that one would enjoy seeing a second time. The action starts with the first flash and continues until the end without a break. The unexpected, constantly occurring holds the attention and stamps this production as different.

The cast is exceptionally selected. Lou Dellegen as Drene, the sculptor whose wife deserts him, leaving a broken, half-mad man to battle life alone does some of the best work of his career in this production. Anna Q. Nilsson as the wife who runs away and later repents and takes the long journey from which there is no return adds new gems to her long string of successes.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday

After an absence of several years, the most popular film star in the world, Rudolph Valentino, recent winner of another nationwide popularity contest, is to be seen the last half of this week at the Palace theatre. He is co-starring in A Society Sensation with Carmel Myers. Also My Man with Patsy Ruth Miller and Dustin Farnum.

BREED THEATRE

The great interest the motion picture Some Wild Oats has attracted at the Breed theatre, where it is now showing is unusual for motion pictures. All records of attendance have been broken at the women shows. Crowds of mothers and daughters can be seen in line; same holds for the fathers and sons. It is an unusual opportunity for the parents to get this subject before their children in a very impressive manner.

The story of Some Wild Oats is of a young lad who had never been guided, but learned the miserable results of unclean living at the first moments he struck the big city. He is in love with a girl of the country and is in constant fear of the inevitable results if he carried out his promise to marry her. Another lad comes from the country to the city and is anxious to have his fling before he enters the navy. He sets out to fulfill his desires, but what happens to him is a surprise for the spectator.

The subject of Some Wild Oats teaches a lesson of a lifetime in two hours. It relieves the parents of embarrassment in explaining to their children this subject, which they have longed to do since infancy. It is a subject that will be taught in the schools throughout the country eventually, but the parents that have neglected to seriously consider the subject of social diseases and the origin of life with their children can now be relieved of the embarrassment by either taking or sending them to see this picture. Today's matinee will be for women only and the evening show, which will be the last showing of Wild Oats' in this city, will be for men only.

BROADWAY THEATRE

Never before have the crowds besieged the Broadway in such numbers as the past Sunday and Monday according to the management. Centered about the lives of young men and women of the present, Daughters of Today is a drama of the fastest set in a big city, their speedy existence pictured by thrills, tragedy, comedy and youth's love of pleasure. To be sure, the pitcurization of their actions cannot be taken as generally true of all young life today, except to show the greater demand for freedom, especially so with young girls, and the complete breaking away from old habits and customs. Pathos is cleverly put across by the heroine, played by Edna Murphy, as the little country girl who goes to the university in the great city in quest of knowledge. The hero is Ralph Graves who marries the girl he wishes and the heroine is saved from dishonor in the nick of time, after a thrilling scene in which Philo McCullough, the designing, rich student who endeavors to harm the country girl, is killed. As "a slice of life," so-called by its sponsors, Daughters of Today, is in truth a real portrayal, with an influence of betterment, of modern young folks. This masterpiece will remain through Wednesday. Other entertaining subjects include an Andy Gump Comedy and new Kinograms.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Catastrophes never come alone. Monday afternoon up on Davis park, Venus—or it is generally supposed that is the goddess she represents—fainted. Just fell over backwards like any ordinary mortal. In falling she broke off an arm and was otherwise damaged. Persons sitting on benches around the park and on verandas of homes in the vicinity were astounded as the bronze figure that was the central piece in a pretty fountain arrangement crashed over backwards without any warning. No one was in the vicinity of the fountain when this unseemly occurrence took place.

Venus never uttered a murmur nor gave other warning of the impending tragedy. She just crashed. Immediately someone conjectured, no plausible reason being at first apparent, that she had seen some rival in a one-piece bathing suit. They do try them on some times in the vacation season without thinking to pull down the shades. But that theory was immediately rejected, because this particular Venus is known to have been very near sighted for years and years; otherwise she would have fainted long since—and about every other night and some afternoon for the park is a great place for petting parties.

It was finally decided that the lady succumbed to a heat attack—a sort of sunstroke. It was recalled by one observer that she appeared to be listing slightly backwards Sunday at church time. The afternoon's thunder storm may have revived her a bit and the cool of the evening refreshed her sufficiently to go partly through another day, but over she went flat on her back, shortly after Monday noon—to the surprise of all who saw her.

A board of specialists decided late in the afternoon that Venus had broken under the relentless grilling of years of New England weather, with its cold winters and torrid summers. The figure, a gift to the borough, cannot well be allowed to remain a wreck and borough officials were quick to give attention Monday afternoon to the problem of restoring it, or replacing it with another figure.

As many as 4,000 executives and employes of the United States Finishing company are to assemble at Sterling Friday for what will be the greatest event of the kind that town has seen. Special trains will be run from Providence and from Norwich. It is understood that all the plants of the big corporation will be represented at Friday's outing in Sterling, where the concern operates the chief industry of the town.

Sterling is making ready for the influx of guests and their bands and every facility for having a splendid outing. The first of the visitors are expected to arrive by 9 a. m. and the full force of them will be on hand by the noon hour. A parade will be a feature of the day. On the Sterling baseball field a program of sports and athletic events will be carried out. Special arrangements have been made for catering to the big crowd which will be representative of the cities in which the United States Finishing company does business. The people of the town of Sterling are greatly interested in the affair and will do their utmost to make the welcome of the visitors a cordial one.

Sterling is in one of the very attractive corners of Windham county and the visitors there will find it an ideal place for such an outing as is planned for Friday.

The body of Charles Edward Wyle Ray, 15, drowned in Quadic pond Sunday afternoon, is at the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy here. The youth lost his life while in bathing, and it is believed suffered a heart attack. The body was located and recovered by State Officers Keith and Comstock, of the Danielson barracks, they diving into about twelve feet of water until the body was located and then grappling for it until it was finally brought to the surface.

It is understood that the drowned youth was bathing with a companion named Roberts when he began to show signs of weakening. The Roberts boy was assisting him toward the shore when Ray said that he could get along all right. The Roberts boy temporarily released his hold on Ray, who soon after weakened and went down in spite of every effort of his companion to save him.

The drowning was a great shock to the parents of young Ray, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ray, former residents of Brooklyn. It was the first Sunday he had ever been away from home alone. In June he was graduated as an honor pupil from a Brooklyn school, and at the graduation exercises an essay he read relative to a trip he had taken with his parents to California was favorably commented upon.

Tragedy seems to shadow the Ray family. Mrs. Ray was so badly mutilated by an axe in the hands of the madman, Lipponen, when he ran amuck in West Brooklyn several years ago, killing or dangerously wounding several people, that her life was despaired of for weeks. Her daughter died of the terrible wounds that Lipponen inflicted upon her when he unexpectedly entered the Ray home with the intention of killing both the women. Before leaving the Ray place Lipponen set the barn afire and it burned to the ground, with its contents. The Ray place was the last the Lipponen visited before driving off on a side road ending his own life by hanging, after having killed four persons and badly wounding others.

Business in the matrimonial market in this town has hit into a decided slump. It does not appear that this is due to any unexpected change in custom. It does not appear that swains and damsels have changed in their attitude toward matrimony. As to inclination, the enthusiasm appears to be as great as ever. But business is bad. Practical young men and women have seen too many love boats wrecked on the rocks of adversity in good times to be willing to take a chance in such a period as this. That's the chief reason for their not going in for marriage in greater numbers just now, though happy couples are being united with all proper ceremony from time to time. On the whole, however, the number of marriage promises to be much less than in normal years. Perhaps the fall season, with its prospect of better times, will help retrieve the year's record as to the establishment of new marriage bonds.

In connection with the development of the property for a new business purpose to which it is to be devoted, M. Goldwater has had an old dwelling on Main street, opposite the Evans block, moved back and will remodel it and do other construction work. When completed the property will be greatly improved in appearance. The work will be completed within a few weeks. The property was formerly the Darbie homstead and the house upon it one of the last dwellings reminiscent of the early period in Danielson's history.

Rambler roses are now at the height of their glory in Danielson and the surrounding country and at some homes are very beautiful.

The fact that there was no session of the town court Monday indicated that Killingly experienced a peaceful week end.

Painters will go over the wood work on the central fire station on Academy street in connection with the repairs that have been under way on the structure this season.

Mrs. Fannie Chapman of Winter street will have the members of the aptist Ladies' Aid society at her home for a meeting, Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. J. E. McCarthy of Moosup was a visitor in Danielson Monday.

Descendants of those who sleep in Old Trinity churchyard on Church street, Brooklyn, are to be sought out in connection with a plan to improve the condition and appearance of this historic burial place.

To the east of Danielson and over the state line in Rhode Island, thunder storms caused considerable damage Sunday afternoon.

In approximately 48 hours after it left San Francisco by aero mail a letter addressed to a resident on the rural route out of the Danielson post office had been received here and delivered.

The borough's streets are now as a whole, in about the best condition for many years. They have received careful attention from the selectmen this season and the results are very pleasing.

Rev. F. T. Ledwith, M. S., who has been resting here for a time, is to be assigned to Kennebunkport, Me., during August.

Attention of motorists is called by the police to the regulation requiring parked cars to be within 12 inches of the curbing. This rule is being regularly violated in Danielson.

A work train crew of the New Haven road continues to be engaged here this week. The grade of the main line through Danielson has been raised, the change in some places being as much as 19 inches.

New telephone directories have been distributed in the Danielson division of the S. N. E. Telephone company, this being the semi-annual issue. All new installations and changes in numbers since the last issue are shown.

A field of 16 acres of potatoes on W. S. Brown's Shepard Hill farm near Wauregan is doing splendidly and promises a remarkable yield in the late summer and early fall. Every care has been taken with this field to insure a large crop.

Mrs. James R. Walsh and daughter are visiting relatives in Providence for a few days.

Continued favorable reports on health conditions in Danielson were noted Monday, when there was a promise that the quarantine on a few homes will be raised since the last of this week or the first of next.

Howard Withey, member of the postal force at the Danielson office, is having his annual vacation. With Mrs. Withey he will visit in Burlington, Vt.

Crows and woodchucks are already falling victims of the guns of Danielson Rod and Gun club members who are engaged in competition to stamp out vermin in territory described.

PUTNAM

In the presence of relatives and intimate friends, at St. Mary's church at 6 o'clock, Monday morning, Raoul Beausoleil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beausoleil, of the north end, was united in marriage with Miss Alma Gagne, daughter of Mrs. Marie Gagne, of Mill street. The nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. Adrian Dykmans. The witnesses were Henry Beausoleil, the bridegroom's father, and Philias Basinet. Following the church ceremony, breakfast was served to relatives at the home of the bridegroom's parents. Many gifts were received. During the day Mr. and Mrs. Beausoleil left for a trip through Canada. Upon their return they will make their home with the bride's mother.

News of the death in East Killing-ly, Saturday, of Benjamin Franklin Chaffee was received in Putnam, on Monday, with surprise and regret. He had been a resident of Putnam for nearly half a century and had many friends here to whom his death was a shock as it was not known that he was ill.

Mr. Chaffee was born in Putnam, in the Sawyer district, Dec. 31, 1845, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chaffee. After finishing his education in the schools of Putnam he became an apprentice and worked in Worcester for three years, learning the machinist trade. Most of his life, however, was spent in the shoe shops of Putnam and in Webster and other Massachusetts cities, but during the time he worked in other places he maintained his home on South Main street, Putnam.

For many years Mr. Chaffee was a town constable and he also served for years as a supernumerary on the Putnam police force. Mr. Chaffee was twice married, his second wife, who survives, was Harriett Smith, whom he married in 1884. About eight years ago, after Mr. Chaffee had retired from active work, they moved to East Killingly but Mr. Chaffee kept up his acquaintanceship in Putnam by frequent visits here.

A full Masonic funeral for Louis A. Perry, of School street, who died last Friday night at St. Vincent's hospital, Worcester, was held from the Masonic temple, Grove street, Monday afternoon, in charge of Worshipful master of Quinebaug lodge, Edward S. Duffy. Members of the order acted as bearers and burial was in Grove street cemetery.

Mr. Perry was born just over the Rhode Island line but most of his life had been spent in Putnam where for many years he was a roll top coverer for the Putnam Manufacturing company. He was born May 5, 1868, son of David J. and Julia Perry. The family removed to Connecticut when he was a small boy and virtually his whole life had been spent in this section, as for a time he lived in Woodstock, Union and other places close by.

September 20th, 1897, Mr. Perry married Miss Edna I. King. Four children were born to them, Edward of Whitinsville, Hazel and Alice of Putnam and Mildred of Hartford who, with the widow, survive. He also leaves two brothers, Edwin of Worcester, George of Worcester, and two sisters, Mrs. Fred Edwards and Mrs. William Holder.

The Masons was the only organization to which Mr. Perry belonged. Since he left the mill he had been traveling representative of different concerns and thereby gained a wide acquaintance in the cities which he visited.

Attempting a too long swim from the mainland to an island in Quadic pond, in the town of Thompson, Sunday afternoon, and in spite of the efforts of his companion to get him to the shore which they had almost reached, Robert Ray, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ray, of East Putnam, lost his life by drowning. The body was not recovered until some hours later after the state police from the Danielson barracks had arrived and taken charge of the search. After being viewed by Medical Examiner Dr. R. C. Paine of Thompson, the body was removed to an undertaking room in Danielson.

The Ray family has only lived in East Putnam about two months, coming from Brooklyn.

There was a short Monday morning session of the city court, when two cases of intoxication were disposed of. A case of motor vehicle law violation, down on the docket, was postponed.

The following have been named as a committee by the Congregational church to secure a permanent pastor and to find supplies until a permanent pastor is secured: Ray C. Bosworth, chairman; Miss S. Elizabeth Clarke, W. J. Bartlett, Mrs. Annie Child and L. C. Jenkins.

Putnam lawyers, members of the State Bar association, have received notice that the annual summer luncheon of the association is to be held at The Griswold, Eastern Point, Groton, Wednesday, July 23d, at 2 o'clock. This luncheon is free to mmebers. Those desiring to go early will have an opportunity to play golf and go in bathing. A number of Putnam lawyers are planning to attend.

Putnam has received from the town of Pomfret a check for $5,592.50. This is for the tuition of Pomfret pupils attending Putnam High school. Each pupil from out of town pays the town $100 for the year's tuition, Putnam thereby receiving a substantial sum from pupils in the towns of Pomfret and Woodstock. There is a total of about 75 out of town pupils in the schools of the town.

Considering that many children in the town of Thompson have a considerable distance to travel to school, the list of those neither absent nor late during the last school year is noteworthy. The list includes the following:

Mechanicsville: David Kelly and Mamase Petrides of Miss Stenstrom's room; Charles Blake and Loretta Rakuza fo Miss Riley's room. These pupils have received certificates from the Connecticut state board of education.

JEWETT CITY

The item regarding the number of twins in Willimantic High school three, brings to mind the number in Jewett City schools. One year not long ago there was one pair of twins in each room of the eight grades in Riverside grammar school. Last year in this school were Irene and Louise Vadneau, Paul and William Ambot, Kittie and Gracie Ryc, Rosie and Antoinell Marinelia, Joseph and Josephine Malek and in St. Mary's convent school, Amy and Helen Osga. Other twins outside of school are Robert and William Potts, Madeline and Marguerite Gill, Alvina and Diana Pepin, Earl and Esther Gray Mary and Stephen Foley. Another pair of Osga twins died in 1922, and one of the twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wilusis died this year. Last year as a part of the public school graduating exercises there was a twin dance, four pairs of twins taking part.

The people who attended the Meth-odist picnic Saturday had a much more enjoyable time than the year before. Members of the church who owned automobiles carried the older people who were present, and a truck was hired to carry the younger set, swings and the ice cream to the Pachaug fairgrounds, where the picnic was held. A baseball game was the first feature of the afternoon. The team captained by Henry Webster won by a large score over the team captained by Charles Saunders.

This was followed by the younger people going down to the lake back of the fairgrounds for a swim. Upon their reutrn sandwiches and cake were served by the women of the committee. The ice cream and lemonade were served by Frank Mell and Irving Thornton.

In the evening a number of the young people who attended the picnic in the afternoon motored to Beach Pond for a moonlight swim, returning about ten o'clock (D. S. T.)

Mrs. F. P. Prendergast and daughter Frances of Pittsburgh, Pa., are visiting Mrs. P. B. Driscoll.

Supt. F. H. Clement is in town for a few days and will return later to Hampden Beach, N. H., where A. H. Clement has also returned.

Mrs. J. A. Hourigan and daughters, Mrs. Francis Driscoll, with Josephine and Elizabeth Hourigan and Miss Amelia Morancy returned Monday after two weeks' stay at Groton Long Point.

Miss Barbara Whitford has returned to her home in Warren, R. I., after a visit with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Whitford.

Mrs. E. F. Burleson accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Richard Meyer to their home in New Britain Sunday for a visit.

George Harper and William Harley, of Luneneburg, Mass., were guests Sunday at James McClenagans and accompanied him on a trip to Westerly.

The officers of the Epworth league of the Methodist church installed by the pastor: President, Bessie McClenagage; first vice president, David Carter; second vice president, Beatrice Read; third vice president, W. C. Carter; fourth vice president, Mrs. Dora Johnson; secretary, Harold A. Mell; treasurer, Everett Thornton; pianist, Arlene B. Burdick.

CHESTNUT HILL

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Dimon, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Gurley and Richard Dimon motored to Southington Sunday and visited Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Reynolds and family.

Mrs. G. T. Chappell, Mrs. W. D. Duvoll, Miss Grace Littlefield and Misses Mary and Elinor Chappell were Norwich visitors Thursday.

The showers of Sunday were very acceptable as the gardens and crops were greatly in need of rain. Haying is well under way, many farmers having finished securing the hay crop.

OUR ELECTRIC RATES.

No doubt the people of Norwich are pleased at the announcement that a new rate for electricity is to go into effect shortly. The new rate in this instance means a reduction of two cents a kilowatt hour for the first two classifications among the consumers, and by it there will be effected in behalf of the consumers a saving of about $50,000 for the users of electricity.

Conditions in the department are such as to warrant this reduction and yet it must appear a bit strange to those who have been doing some thinking about our gas and electric plant of late that steps haven't been taken to a still further reduction of two cents a kilowatt hour, or four cents a kilowatt hour in all.

Under the proposition which has been made to the city by the Eastern Connecticut Power company it has been shown how the city, through the purchase of electrical current, can save at least $55,000. That is that it costs the city that much more to produce its own current over and above what it could be purchased for. Just why isn't it good business to make this purchase and save this $55,000? Why isn't it desirable to cut the cost of operation to the point where another two cents can be lopped off the price per kilowatt hour?

It is not claimed that the power company would furnish us with an inferior grade of electricity, but it is in a position to produce it at a lower figure than can be done at the municipal plant and to sell it to us at a figure that makes it a good business proposition to buy.

According to the gas and electrical commissioners' statement the reduction that has been planned will amount to about $50,000. Inasmuch as the saving by the acceptance of the power company's offer would amount to $55,000 at least, that chance to serve the people at a still lower figure and to put the little consumers down to eight cents a kilowatt hour cannot be totally disregarded. There is no reason why Norwich should be paying a higher rate for electricity than surrounding communities when the price can be reduced and practically no limit will be placed on the amount that can be obtained. Our electric rates have been too high and they will continue to be too high under the coming reduction.

THE INDIVIDUAL WANTED.

In an interview in Chicago, Senator Borah gave expression to some of his views concerning the action of the party conventions. He didn't undertake to tell what the election result was going to be, but he disclosed certain evidences of that independence which has characterized the senator from Idaho during his career in the senate.

In his opinion the campaign is going to be more of an individual than a party campaign and he says "If the people find a candidate in whose honesty, courage and constructive ability they believe, they will elect him. They want relief from crushing tax burdens; they want the mad, riotous waste and extravagance and corruption at their capital stopped. They know that our economic life, our railroads, transportation, coal and power problems calls for courage and constructive leadership, and the man who wins this fight will convince the people that he can do the job—that he knows how and has the ability and courage to do it."

Did it come to your mind as you read this statement that such a man is Calvin Coolidge? Did it appeal to you that Senator Borah had hit upon the very things which President Coolidge has been standing for and is standing for, and that he has fully demonstrated his ability and courage to get them?

Senator Borah mentioned no names, but he didn't need to. There has been no stronger advocate for relief from crushing tax burdens than Calvin Coolidge. There has been no more insistent demand made for economy and more economy in public expenditures than has come from the president. He has stood for both in connection with legislation and in setting forth his policies to his departmental heads. He has displayed the courage that is called for and it is to the great credit of the administration that so much progress has been made in this direction.

By the manner in which he has stood for national welfare and the way in which he has insisted upon other solutions there's no escaping the conviction that Calvin Coolidge is not only the man who knows how but the one who will put that know how to the best possible use.

Senator Borah mentioned no names, but by his characterization he might just as well have said that Coolidge was the man who measured up to the demands of the people.

A NEEDED IMPROVEMENT.

Those who have had anything to do with the patent office understand the handicaps which have existed there in the past and the long time that has been required to have business connected with the office go through its usual course. The patent office has been suffering from an inadequate force due in no small degree to the salaries paid. Some relief was provided for at the last session of congress and increased pay was voted in order to hold those experienced employes of the department and to attract others.

The patent office has been the training school for many private industries. After years of experience in that particular kind of work many employes are sought by big corporations which can and do pay large salaries. The opportunities are attractive and they are accepted, with the result that the patent office has been experiencing this come and go of employes in a way to affect its efficiency and to interfere with a rapid and accurate handling of its business.

The better salaries should serve as an inducement to remain with the office but there are apparently other ways in which the office can be brought to a higher degree of efficiency in the opinion of Secretary Work of the department of the interior, of which department the patent office is part. When he seeks the naming of a committee representing the American Bar association and the patent bar associations of the country to make a complete study of the patent office and submit recommendations for changes in the methods that will permit a quicker handling of the business and correspondence, he is unquestionably dealing with a matter which needs attention, and his plan should produce results that will meet the situation.

It is always pointed out in connection with the patent office that this is one of the government bureaus that is making money. If it can make money while not keeping up with the demands upon it the opportunity for better service, even though it may mean no greater profit, cannot be disregarded. Secretary Work in directing his efforts toward needed improvement.

STOPPING AT CROSSINGS.

Up to now the state that has required autoists to come to a stop before crossing railroad tracks at grade grossings has been North Carolina. And that state has freely admitted that the effect has been beneficial. It may be aware of the fact that there are some violations of the law but there are also evidences of enforcement. Upon the latter of course the value of the law depends.

After suffering from the many grade crossing accidents Arkansas has been so impressed with the North Carolina example that it has adopted a law drafted along the same lines. All auto drivers are required to come to a stop not nearer than ten feet and not further away than fifty feet of the railroad grade or pay the penalty fixed for the violation.

This law is based upon the assumption that if an automobile comes to a stop within that distance there will be overcome the danger of a collision with a train, or of being struck by a locomotive. By stopping the car it is placed under that control that is too often lacking at the time of crossing fatalities. There will be less inducement to take a chance of racing with the train and there will be time for sober reflection as to the consequences of inviting a crash. It also permits of a chance to comply with the important warning to look and listen.

Arkansas has imposed an important requirement upon auto drivers. Its next big job is to see that it is complied with.

THE WORLD FLIERS.

Once again the American aviators on a flight around the world, are nearing the point from which they will take off for another series of ocean hops. They have made excellent progress in crossing Europe thus far and two more hops will place them at the northern end of Scotland from which place they will put on their pontoons and head for America by way of Iceland, Greenland and Labrador. They probably exceed the speed of birds in traveling from the hot regions of southern Asia to the cold climate of Greenland's icy mountains, and have unquestionably covered the worst part of their journey. Already they have more than half completed the circuit of the globe in the air and with the crossing of the Atlantic effected they will be on what may be regarded as the home stretch with no serious obstacles in the way of the successful conclusion of their hazardous undertaking.

Aside from the skill of the men at the wheel the excellent care which is being given to the machines, with the occasional changing of engines, has had an important bearing upon the achievement of the aviators thus far. They have not been free from accidents and injuries, and there is plenty of time for more of them, but as each day brings them nearer to the goal they are better prepared to meet the situation. Not only the country but the world waits to applaud their success.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is well to take good notice that there is a right and a left side to flashing beacons.

THE FICKLE SEX

"I guess I'll have to telephone out home and see which one licked," mused the restless man at luncheon. "I had to leave this morning before the fight was over and I haven't been able to attend to business at all!" One robin was a portly sort of gentleman and his wind didn't last and the other was slim, vicious and determined! They were battling to the death on our back lawn and a perfectly placid young Miss Robin stood a couple of yards away watching the fray. She seemed but mildly interested knowing that the trees were full of gentleman robins and there was no cause for her to worry.

"The fighters would squeal and beat one another till both sank down motionless and breathless and then up and at it again. It was positively certain that there would be one bird less on the premises very shortly. What got me was the total unconcern of the feminine member of the sketch!"

"Women always are unconcerned when their admirers quarrel over 'em!" declared the cynical man. "If there is anything a woman loves it is a good thick fight and she becomes perfectly impersonal about the contestants during the affair.

"It would save a terrible amount of bother if all such contests were settled in the ring, so to say, instead of being plastered over the conventional doodads," continued the cynical man.

"Why, at every dinner party if you look carefully you can see some beauteous creature slowly waving her feather fan, smiling sweetly and listening to John say he thinks Coolidge is going to win, while George yawns and says we ought to do things over here the way they do them in England. What waste of time for them to attempt to impress her with their superior brains. A woman gauges a man's intellect about five minutes after she has met him and he might as well save his breath.

"While John and George are uttering profound untruths about politics, books, jazz, movies and artichokes she has spied some handsome stranger across the room and became real well acquainted through the eye language, so that when she gets too tired of the two she brushes them aside and floats away with the man who hasn't been talking and who therefore possesses a piquant attraction to her fickle mind.

"Look at the labor a man is put to when he falls in love with a girl. Left to himself, a man would be an unshaven, grimy, unbrushed, sloppy, comfortable individual, at peace with the world and with time to enjoy life, but when there is a girl and a rival the poor chap has to agonize with razors, haberdashers, dry cleaners, barbers, manicures, necktie artists, shoe geniuses, the latest in socks, the most ultra in collars, the superlative in hair tonics, lalcums, and such.

"He is nervous and irritable all the time for fear he has let something slip and if he meets a rival wearing a tie that beats his he considers that all is lost and tries to decide between a gun and cold poison.

"And mostly the girl who has stirred up all this rumpus is so concerned about her own personal appearance that she doesn't know whether he has worn the same tie for the last six times or not. And probably marries some hypnotic individual who refuses to use a whiskbroom on his apparel, wears his hair long and abhors colored borders on his hankies.

"I tell you that if it were the custom for two potential rivals for a lady's hand to step out into the alley and exercise their fists right at the start it would do things up brown, save an immense amount of time and work out just as well as the present artful system."

"What happened?" asked the cynic when the first man returned, grinning.

"You win," admitted the restless man. "My wife says that while the two birds were beating out each other's lives by the raspberry bushes up flew a handsome third robin, chirped twice at the lady and after she had chirped back they flew away together without one backward look at the desperate fighters!"—Exchange.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

AKYAB

"Since the planes of the American world-flyers are equipped with pontoons throughout their flight over China, Indo-China, Siam and Burma, one is prepared to learn that water is a prominent feature at the stopping places in those countries" says a bulletin from Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Saigon is in a delta on a broad river; Bangkok, because of its numerous waterways is known as 'the Venice of the Orient,' and Rangoon with its river and canals is almost as deserving of that title. These cities, however, have become railway centers as well; it is at Akyab second stopping place for the American fivers in Burma, that water holds undisputed sway.

"Akyab, a little more than half way up the west coast of Burma, facing India across the Bay of Bengal, has become a considerable port and trading center in recent years, but it is served entirely by natural waterways. From a superficial glance at the map one would assume it to be on the mainland. But this low, flat coast of Burma is cut up by a network of tidal creeks and bayous; and by virtue of these Akyab really lies on an island.

"When one learns that Akyab owes its importance to the fact that the British, after gaining control of the region in 1826, moved the capital to Akyab from its 'unhealthy location' 50 miles up stream, he may look upon the town as 'healthy' by implication. Unfortunately the assumption is hardly merited, but the community is much better off in this respect than half a century ago when, like the Guavaquil of those days, it had the unsavory reputation of being a 'white man's grave.'

"Akyab's harbor is formed by the wide estuary of the Kalad— river, protected from the sea by islands. Large ocean vessels may enter over the bar with ease at high water, and with the aid of pilots at other times. A bevy of river steamers plies up and down the Kaladan and along the many tidal creeks, sharing the channels with numerous sampans.

"The derivation of the name, Akyab, is unknown; but the Arakanians have a name for the place in their own tongue that means 'where the war started.' Rangoon means in Burmese, strangely enough, 'end of war.' So these two leading ports of Burma may be considered the country's marital alpha and omega—the Burmese Concord and Yorktown.

"Akyab, like Rangoon, has had a large influx of immigrants from India and of the somewhat different peoples of northern Burma. The energy of the newcomers shows a strong contrast to the laziness of the natives, and the latter are being elbowed out of the artisan and shop-keeping classes.

"Inland from Akyab are productive petroleum wells. A few miles to the south is a group of some of the most striking mud volcanoes known to exist. From their regular cones, some forty feet high, they eject mud, stones and gases, but no lava or ashes as do true volcanoes."

CHILD TRAINING

BABY TALK

By Florence Bascom-Phillips

The half intelligible "baby talk" little Buddy learned sounded cute to his mother. She taught it to him, herself, with such speeches as the following:

"Does muzzer's 'ittle snooky-ookums want a d'ink of wawa?" "Does him love him's muzzy? Sure him do. B'ess his 'ittle heart." "Baby see ze titty tat." "Him wants a nice eggie to eat, don't him? Yes him do."

When he began to talk he combined a lisp of his own with the erraneous pronunciation and construction which he had been taught, and it sounded so irresistibly cute that no effort was made at home to correct it. Later, however, when he entered school, it ceased to be cute and became a problem. When he was seven or eight years old I taught him. He could read as rapidly as the usual beginner, but there was scarcely an intelligible word to be heard. I tried in vain to teach him to speak plainly, and when I left the school he still habitually lapsed into his baby lisp and pronounced it's words and chose his constructions irresponsive of any rules ever written.

How unnecessary for a child to start his school life so handicapped! It was Buddy's sister Edith, a bright little thing with a clear voice and distinct enunciation, who had explained the matter to me. The members of the family were then beginning to realize the harm that had been done but were too indolent to make more than spasmodic efforts to correct it. Edith was less than a year old when Buddy was born, and since then had spent most of her time with her grandmother so she had escaped her brother's predicament.

All parents are not educated, and few are capable of using the best English, but all can and should use the most correct English they know especially in speaking to their children. The truthfulness of the old adage, "First impressions are lasting," is proven in nothing more than in speech.

I remember a classmate of mine who could not overcome the occasional use of such colloquialisms as "yourn" and "hisin," even after finishing her normal course. Her parents were very ignorant. I even catch myself saying 'ain't," from home usage, though my parents knew better. Let us have "good English weeks."

Ralston, Farmer, Teacher, Lawyer

Samuel M. Ralston was born on a farm in Tuscarawas county, Ohio. His father did butchering as a side line and young Sam was "the butcher's boy" who peddled the meat.

The boy mowed 125 acres of timothy hay, received $10, was allowed to buy books with it, but when he read too late by candle light he was ordered to bed because he "had to get up early to do the chores."

Ralston was eight when his parents moved to Owen county, Ohio, and the panic of 1873 forced him then 16 to teach school in winter in order to get an education in summer. The county superintendent of schools witnessed his physical prowess during a ball game and hired him because the school needed someone to handle the unruly boys, and later reprimanded a girl. Her father had the teacher arrested, Ralston pleaded his own case and immediately was acquitted, then decided to be a lawyer.

Continuing to teach, he helped his father build a coal mine, attended normal school at Valparaiso and Danville and after seven years of effort was graduated from the Danville school at 27.

A friend at Spencer trusted him for board and Ralston read law in a law office, where he slept at night. Admitted to the bar at 29, he went through a blizzard to Frankfort and offered to work for a law firm two years for just enough to pay board, room and washing, was turned down and had to spend his last cent to get back home. He started for the Pacific coast, found an opening in Lebanon, Ind., and stayed there.

He entered politics, the law business came with a rush and he was married at 32. Two years later he ran for state senator, and was defeated. Eight years afterward he lost the race for secretary of state, and again two years later. In 1913 he was elected governor on the democratic ticket.

He moved his law practice to Indianapolis. In 1922, he was elected United States senator and this year was considered as a candidate for the democratic nomination for president.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Richard F. Grant, the new president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, is a resident of Cleveland, where he has large business interests intimately connected with the industrial and financial concerns founded by the late Senator Marcus A. Hanna. He was born in Minnesota, forty-five years ago, and at the age of twenty obtained his Ph. B. degree at Yale. Two years later he completed the course at the Yale law school and entered upon the practice of his profession. In 1909 he became general counsel for M. A. Hanna & Co., and a year ago was made vice-president of that corporation. He is also president of a number of mining, financial and industrial corporations, with headquarters in Cleveland. During the war Mr. Grant served by appointment of President Wilson as a member of the national war finance committee of the American Red Cross.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Hermit, The Thrush

Did I tell you about Little Jack Rabbit and Great Blue Heron in the last story, little reader? Oh, yes, so I did. Now that I have placed my Memory cap on my head, I remember. Isn't it lucky I have a wonderful cap like that? Well, I guess yes indeedy.

But what did the bunny boy do after he had found the big sky fisherman bird's nest in the Swamp? Well, he hopped back, along the edge of the Shady Forest until, all of a sudden, he heard a sweet song,—the sweetest song of all the bird chorus. It wasn't the least bit like the rollicking song of bobby Bobolink's that rings across the Sunny Meadow when Mr. Merry Sun is shining from the sky. No indeed, the music that came from the dim depths of the Shady Forest was very, very different. It was like a hymn of praise.

At once the little rabbit stopped to listen, when, all of sudden, a little cinnamon-brown bird, about seven and one half inches in length, lighted on the top of the Old Fence. Lifting his tail, he gave a low "Chuck" to call his mate. As the little rabbit peeped through the bushes, he noticed that the tail feathers were of a lighter brown color and that the breast and throat at the sides were covered with wedge-shaped spots running into stripes.

"How do you know me?" asked the little bird.

"Because Professor Crow read from his Wisdom Book the other morning that the Hermit Thrush is the only Thrush who has a tail brighter than his back," proudly answered Little Jack Rabbit.

"What else did he say about me?" asked the Hermit, after a pause during which he had listened to an answering song from his mate in the Shady Forest.

"He told us that you build your nest on the ground."

"He's a wise old bird," replied Hermit. "I only hope he won't find it and eat our eggs. That would drive little Mrs. Thrush nearly crazy."

"Your nest is built of moss, coarse roots," again proudly answered the bunny boy. I guess he was glad he had learned his lesson so well at school.

"Dear, dear, but you're a knowing little rabbit," admitted Hermit, the Thrush, as soon as he had answered his mate with a sweet song. "What else do you remember?"

"Wait a minute," answered the bunny boy, scratching his left ear with his right hind leg. "Oh, yes, now I know. "Mrs. Thrush lays four or five eggs; sometimes they are a pale green; sometimes a light blue color."

"Are you at the head of your class?" asked Hermit, the Thrush, with a twinkle in his eye. I guess he admitted the bunny boy's learning. I'm sure I do.

"Not all the time," laughed the little rabbit as he hopped back to Lady Love, his pretty rabbit mother, in the dear Old Bramble Patch.

Stories That Recall Others

How He Got in Bad

Rail ing to the city from a trip about the state ... stopped a piece of driving on the part of the "more gentle sex" that almost caused him to release the grip on the steering wheel of his automobile and close his eyes. A short time later the same woman driver crashed a small sedan from the road and the occupants narrowly escaped serious injury.

The other passenger in Mr. D's car happened to have police power and the two decided to "step 'er up" to the woman driver and warn her to be more careful in her driving.

The big car fairly ate up the road to the other machine and both occupants leaned out and "bawled the driver out" to their hearts' content.

The next day Mr. D seemed rather downcast and the other passenger who happened to be a next door neighbor asked him what the trouble was.

"Remember that woman driver we bawled out yesterday?" Mr. D asked. "Sure," was the reply.

"Well, I'm in dutch. She was my stenographer," replied Mr. D. Aesop said 1000 years ago, "He who laughs last laughs best."

POETRY

THE OLD RIVER.

When night drops down over field and town,
At the end of the weary day,
I sit and dream of a rippling stream—
Ah, many a mile away.
I sit and dream of a rippling stream,
Of the ebb and the quiet flow;
Of the reeds in ranks by the wave-washed banks
And lilies that bud and blow.

From her mud-built nest in a cranny pressed
The swallow swoops to the tide;
A swerve—a dart—and with joyous heart
She shakes the spray from her side.
The red sun shines through the needled pines,
And low! on the watery floor
A path of red for fairy's tread
Lies stretched to the farther shore.

The swimmers cry as they climb on high
To the rock of the silver sands,
Till one by one, in the setting sun,
They poise with their outstretched hands.
They poise—they leap from the rocky steep
Where the evening air blows cool,
And the bright flash as the brown arms splash
In the depths of the quiet pool.

Though now, mayhap, in the river's lap
There grow but the waving reeds,
And the water's flow through the hills, I know,
Is lost in the tangled weeds;
Yet, when night drops down over field and town,
At the end of the weary day,
I dream and dream of the rippling stream—
Ah, years upon years away.

—Horatio Winslow.

ON THE SEA.

It keeps eternal whisperings around
Desolate shores, and with its mighty swell
Gluts twice ten thousand caverns, till the spell
Of Hecate leaves them their old shadowy sound.
Often 'tis in such gentle temper found
That scarcely will the very smallest shell
Be moved for days from whence it sometime fell.
When last the winds of heaven were unbound.
Oh ye! who have your eyeballs vexed and tired,
Feast them upon the wideness of the sea;
Oh ye! whose ears are dinned with uproar rude,
Or fed too much with cloying melody—
Sit ye near some old cavern's mouth, and brood
Until ye start, as if the sea-nymphs quired!

—John Keats.

The late Marie Corelli on being asked why she never married, said: "There is no need, for I have three pets at home which answer the same purpose as a husband—a dog which growls every morning, a parrot which swears all the afternoon, and a cat which comes home late at night."

Three hundred and fifty senators of a high school at Tacoma, Wash., adopted the lavender sweet pea as their class flower a few months ago and pledged they would each plant twenty feet of lavender sweet peas. That would make, they calculated, about two miles of sweet peas and would supply enough blossoms to decorate the stage when they were graduated this June.

A new record was set in the exports of American safety razors and blades during April. Shipments of these articles during that month, according to the department of commerce, amounted to 45 per cent of the exports of them during the whole of 1923. The exports of razors totaled 54,538 dozen, while blades to the number of 1,277,413 dozen were shipped abroad. England was the largest buyer of both razors and blades, taking 34,151 dozen of the former and 846,817 dozen of the latter.

Catching swordfish off the Nova Scotia coast has developed from a sport into an important industry within the last few years. There is a big demand for these huge fish in the United States as well as in Canada, and the National Fish Company, of Halifax, and other Acadian companies use all their vessels in this trade exclusively at certain seasons of the year. The quantity handled is indicated by the fact that from 200,000 to 300,000 pounds are landed at the Boston fish pier every day in the season, and so popular is it for food that it has fetched as high as 75 cents a pound early in the season. The flesh is similar to halibut.

OBITUARY

Everett M. Pingree

After an operation on Tuesday of last week at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, which was followed several days later by a relapse, the life of Everett M. Pingree, 25, of 13 North B street, Taftville, came to a close at 10.15 o'clock Monday morning at the Willimantic hospital.

Born in Woonsocket, R. I., October 17, 1898, the son of Albert E., and Gertrude Smith Pingree, he came to Taftville with his parents when 2 years of age and that village had been his home ever since. His early education was received in the Wequonnoc school and he afterwards graduated from the Norwich Free Academy.

During the World war Mr. Pingree enlisted in the United States navy and went aboard the U. S. S. South Carolina, making several trips overseas on that battleship, doing convoy duty. Upon receiving an honorable discharge from the service Mr. Pingree returned to Taftville and for a number of years had been employed in the No. 3 weaving department of the Ponemah company.

On January 4, 1239, in Taftville he was united in marriage with Miss Elsie M. Kinder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kinder, the service taking place at the home of the bride, Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis officiating.

Mr. Pingree was a member of Somerset lodge, No. 24, F. and A. M., of Norwich, of Nemrod Grotto, M. O. V. P. E. R., a member of the Taftville Congregational church and a member of the standing committee of the church.

Mr. Pingree was a young man of kindly and likeable qualities and his many friends will learn of his death with profound sorrow. As ready to assist a friend in need, as he was when his country called for volunteers, Mr. Pingree endeared himself to all who knew him. To those left to mourn the loss of a loved one the sympathy of many friends is extended.

Surviving Mr. Pingree besides his parents and wife, are one daughter, Betty Eileen Pingree, aged 6 weeks; four brothers, Harold M., of Goodyear; Raymond A., of Saylesville, R. I., and Lester and Leonard Pingree at home; also uncles and aunts.

Mrs. Anna Belle Gilnack

Mrs. Anna Belle Gilnack, 73, died at Westerly, R. I., Friday. Mrs. Gilnack lived on Elm street, Rockville, Conn., and was the widow of Dr. Fred Gilnack of that city. Burial will be in the family plot in Buckingham cemetery, Rockville.

FUNERAL

Timothy Clifford.

Funeral services for Timothy Clifford were held Monday morning at 8.30 o'clock at the undertaking parlors of Cummings and Bing, 322 Main street, followed by requiem mass in St. Patrick's church at 9 with Rev. Myles P. Galvin celebrant. Prof. Frank L. Farrell presided at the organ and Mrs. Farrell as a waiting hymn sang Beautiful Land On High. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

Burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery where Rev. Michael H. May read a committal service. The bearers were Thomas Kearney, Edward Carey, John Tracy, George Patteson, Michael and Timothy Clifford.

PARK BOARD APPOINTS LIFE GUARD FOR MOHEGAN PARK LAKE

The board of park commissioners which consists of Henry F. Parker, William A. Norton, Henry D. Johnson, John M. Lee, Harry M. Land and James C. Macpherson, took a decided step forward at their regular monthly meeting held on Monday, when they decided to station a life guard at the lake in Mohegan park, as a measure of protection for those who visit the park to enjoy the bathing privileges which it affords.

For years the lake in Mohegan park has been a popular place for old and young, and is regarded as an ideal spot for those who enjoy fresh water bathing in preference to a dip in the sea. It appeals particularly to the younger boys as it offers excellent opportunities for learning to swim, with a reasonable degree of safety, and it is due to the fact that the number of boys that frequent the swimming beach is increasing each year, that the board decided to take the precautionary measure of putting a life guard in charge of the swimming activities.

In connection with the appointment of a life guard at the lake it was deemed advisable to regulate the hours of bathing, so that there would be supervision at all times. The hours decided upon are from 9.30 a. m. to 12 noon and from 2 p. m. to 7 p. m., during which time the life guard be on duty. The regulation regarding suitable bathing costume, which has been in effect since the establishment of the bathing beach at the park, will be rigidly enforced in the future and no person will be permitted to go in bathing unless properly attired.

The board has appointed George T. Mullen of Norwich Town as life guard and he will begin his work immediately. Mr. Mullen is well qualified for the position as he was engaged as life guard for several seasons at Lake Compounce, Bristol, Conn. He is a student at Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vt., and is actively interested in college athletics. The board feels that in Mr. Mullen it has a capable and efficient official who will do all that is possible to safeguard the lives of those who visit the park to enjoy the bathing privileges which it offers.

Mohegan park is being used more and more each year by the people of Norwich and vicinity and now that buses are running to the park, bringing passengers right into the center of activities at the lake shore, it is felt that many more women and children will be enabled to enjoy the beauties and pleasures of that unrivaled recreational ground. In the last year or two, the park has become a favorite spot for church and Sunday school picnics, both for local organizations and those of nearby places, and the board of park commissioners, together with the superintendent, endeavor to cooperate in every way with the various organizations who desire to use the park for recreational purposes. All that is necessary to secure the privilege for the use of the park is to communicate with the park superintendent and arrange for a date, so that there will be no conflict.

It may be stated for the benefit of those who may desire to visit the park that the present schedule for the buses provides for transportation on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, and for Thursday afternoon during the half holiday period for the stores. On Thursday afternoon the buses will leave the bus terminal on Main street, near the post office at 1 p. m., daylight time and every half hour thereafter until 7.30 p. m. On Saturdays at 12 noon and every half hour thereafter until 7.30 p. m. And on Sundays and holidays at 11 a. m. and every half hour thereafter until 7.30 p. m. This schedule provides for frequent trips and should make it easy for those who want to enjoy an outing in Mohegan park to do so, by making use of the buses on those days that they are scheduled to run.

Superintendent Frederick W. Krohn entered upon his duties as park superintendent July 1st, and is taking hold of the work in a manner that is pleasing to the board of park commissioners, who feel that under his supervision the many interests of the park will be looked after carefully and efficiently.

PREPARING CITY DOCK FOR BOAT SERVICE

Plans have been completed by C. B. Willard of Groton to restore to this city a daily summer boat service to Ocean Beach which he will begin Thursday morning with the steamer Myra. The landing place here will be at the city dock at the foot of Rose place, where repairs are being made to put it into shape for use. Wednesday Mr. Willard will conduct a guest-trip, for which Mayor Waters and other prominent citizens have been invited, leaving here at about 9.30 a. m., which will be the leaving time for the regular schedule. The run to the beach will be made in two hours, with a stop at Groton. The schedule for the return is to leave the beach at 6 p. m., reaching Norwich again at 8 p. m. L. M. Crandall has been placed in charge of the Norwich arrangements and Sellas Spa will be the headquarters for information about the boat's trips.

The steamer Myra, which Mr. Willard will use on the line, is a 65-foot boat with passenger accommodations for 100 or over, a boat which he has been using from Ocean Beach for trips out into the sound.

CHILEAN LIGHTWEIGHT KNOCKS OUT ROCKY KANSAS IN ELEVENTH ROUND

New York, July 14.—Luis Vicentini of Chile, knocked out Rocky Kansas, Buffalo lightweight, in the eleventh round of a scheduled 15-round match at the Queensboro A. C., tonight. The end came in a sensational finish, in which the Chilean rallied to the highest peak of his pugilistic career and stopped one of the most rugged lightweights in the ring.

The knockout blows, a series of rights and lefts which staggered the Buffalo boy and forced him to wilt to the rosined floor, came at an unexpected time as Vicentini had, the round previous ,measured his length on the canvass when one of Kansas' wild rights caught Vicentini flush on the jaw. The end came after two minutes and 16 seconds of fighting in the 11th round.

Up to the point of the knockout, the fight had assumed a distinct Kansas tinge. The Buffalo lad had the better of the match and was apparently well on the road to victory.

The eleventh round opened sitong. Vicentini coming back wonderfully well after his trip to the floor in the tenth round. He rushed Rocky to the ropes and pounded the American with a fusillade of blows. Kansas crouched. His hands to his head to protect him from the fury of the Chilean's storm of blows. But Vicentini, scenting victory, bore in and knocked Kansas down with a well measured right. The Buffalo lad was as surprised as the shocked crowd. He took one count and was up but Vicentini was on top of him and fired away at the groggy Kansas from long range. Kansas finally sinking to the floor, at count of nine he attempted to rise, got up to his feet, but before Vicentini could hound across the ring to him he reeled around and sank into a heap in front of the timekeeper's stand.

Kansas had survived the ordeal perfectly up to this count. He was unmarked and apparently full of confidence as he answered the bell for the 11th round. But in that brief two minutes and 16 seconds of fighting, Vicentini meted out a terrific dose of punishment that started the crimson flowing from Kansas' nose, and blackened both eyes. Vicentini emerged from the bout unmarked.

The crowd applauded Vicentini at the termination of the match for his wonderful gameness. On the floor for a brief count in the tenth, he came back stronger than at any time of the fizing in the 11th round

Louy Paluso of Salt Lake City, Utah, Jack Dempsey's lightweight protege, and Joie Silvers, Brooklyn lightweight, fought a clean, hard and extremely fast six-round draw. This was the best bout of the preliminary card

Tony Palmer of New York scored a technical knockout over Joe Ritchie of Newark, N. J., in the fourth round of a scheduled four-round encounter. The end came after two minutes and 16 seconds of fighting in the last round, the referee stopping the match to save Ritchie from further punishment.

BOXING FANS TO ATTEND DONOHUE BANQUET TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 14.—A small band of local friends of Thomas E. Donohue, the new boxing head, which will number about twenty, will depart from this city early Tuesday afternoon for Meriden to attend the testimonial dinner that is to be given Tommy Donohue at the Hotel Matis. Boxers and their managers, officials connected with the cauliflower industry, referees and intimate friends of Donohue will stream in from all sections of the state to attend the testimonial dinner.

Police Captain Charles E. Pinney and George Howe, manager for the New Haven Dairy plant of this city, who are on the committee of arrangements, report a good advance sale of tickets allotted to this section of the state. The success of the dinner is assured and a suitable present, which will be kept a secret for the present and which will be presented to Connecticut's new boxing head at the dinner by the toastmaster, who has not been selected as yet, will all go toward showing Chairman Donohue of the state athletic commission that what he has done in the way of promoting the boxing game in this state has not been unnoticed. Tuesday, July 17, will be a red letter day in the annals of those in any way connected with the boxing game in this state, and Hotel Matis, Meriden, will be the scene of prominent men who will flock to the Silver City for the big occasion.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Fordham Star, New York Giants

On a hit to the outfield, a runner attempts on the throw-in from second.

How should the catcher cover home plate on the throw-in from the outfield?

The catcher should always try to be right up on the plate in order to prevent the runner from sliding in and touching the front of the plate before he can tag him and the catcher should always take the throw-in, if the throw-in reaches him on the bounce in a squatting position so as to lose no time in tagging the runner.

AMERICAN AND FRENCH PLAYERS ARE LEADING NATIONS IN OLYMPIC TENNIS

Paris, July 14 (By the A. P.)—Of the sixteen nations which entered their maximum quota of four players each in the men's Olympic singles tennis championship competition, only the United States and France had their full quartets left in the running tonight at the end o fthe second day's play.

Miss Lillian Scharman of Brooklyn was beaten in the singles by the young panish girl, Senorita Alvarez, 6-2, 6-0. Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup, and Miss Eleanor Goss, who were pitted against the British pair, Miss Kathleen McKane and Mrs. Phyllis Covell, met with a similar fate in the doubles.

But the American big four in the men's singles and doubles came through without a casualty. The program committee gave Vincent Richards a holiday, as he already had attained a place in the third round of the singles, the other three Americans, R. Norris Williams, Watson M. Washburn, and Francis T. Hunter had a comparatively easy time in disposing of their opponents.

Hunter tomorrow finds himself pitted against the hard-hitting Belgian champion, J. Washer. Richards will meet M. Sleem of India, and Miss Helen Wills, the American woman champion, will make her Parisian debut with Mrs. Satterthwaite of England as her opponent. Williams meanwhile will be playing against Macenauer of Czechoslovakia, and Washburn will meet Van Lennep, of Holland.

The four Frenchmen, who have reached the third round in the singles —Henri Cochet, Jean Borotra, Rene La Coste and M. Cousin—all have done so with comparative ease, with the exception of Borotra, who had a battle on his hands today when he met Louis Torralva, the champion of Chile.

All the sets of the match, went to deuce, Borotra winning with scores of 9-7, 6-5, 7-5.

The doubles matches of the day brought out some dull tennis and some good tennis. The match which the Alonso brothers of Spain won in straight sets over Kingscote and Wheatley of Great Britain was one of the good ones. Manuel Alonso and Richards are likely to meet in the fourth found of the singles.

Williams and Washburn quickly and neatly disposed of the Hungarian doubles team Kirchmeyer and Goncz, 6-1, 6-0, 6-0.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, playing for her native country, Norway, had no jrouble in getting rid of her first opponent, Mme. Vaussaud of France, 6-2, 6-2. Mrs. Mallory will next play Mme. Bauman of Holland, and if she again is successful will meet the winner of the Helen Wills-Mrs. Satterthwaite match, which is is considered is more than likely to be Miss Wills.

FIELD AT LONGWOOD IS NOT IMPOSING THIS YEAR

Boston, July 14.—Longwood's historic singles tennis tournament for the eighth of a series of silver bowls which have been won by the country's most famous players was launched for the 23d time today at the club's courts at Chestnut Hill, but the calibre of the field was not up to the standard of past years.

Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, noted chop-stroke artist, made his annual appearance and advanced with ease to the third round along with five other seeded players. S. Howard Voshell of Brooklyn was defaulted, as was Zenzo Shimizu of New York, but Hugh Kelleher of New York, a ranking player, will appear tomorrow for a forenoon contest with Arthur Ingraham, Jr., Massachusetts junior champion.

Today's matches reduced the field of 80 entrants to 33 players. The seeded players who advanced—Johnson, Lawrence B. Rice and N. W. Niles of Boston; Jerome Lang, New York; Fritz Mercur, Harrisburg, Pa., and Gerald Emerson, New York—all left their opponents setless with the exception of Mercur, who had a hot second round struggle with E. H. Whitney, former Harvard star. A surprising development of the day was the elimination of Sidney L. Beals, Longwood veteran, by the 16 year old national boys' champion, Henry L. Johnson, Jr., of Waban. Starting with the third round matches on Tuesday, play will be at best three out of five sets. The New England sectional doubles will be started tomorrow.

NEW LONDON CITY HALL TEAM ON WAR PATH

New London, July 14.—The City Hall team after a week of preliminary practice will inaugurate its baseball season this week when either the Lions or the Rotary club will be their opponents. This team is the fourth of its kind to enter a team into the so called "Old Man's league in the city The practice which has been held at Caulkins Park, ended this evening and the City Hall employees will now embark upon an adventurous trip about the city's ball parks. After a successful journey about the baseball parks in the city, of which the team members agree that it will be, the City Hall team will then invade the Rose City teams. The Lions club, Rotary club and Battery B teams will be singled out for a drubbing.

The personnel of the City Hall team is as follows: Manager Waters, of the Water and Sewer department. And the next man we have with us is the team captain which is none other than Howard Ives a former well known resident of Norwich and now doing surveying for the city. Ives will play first base. R. Ruddy will catch, Capwell will pitch, Peters 2b, R. Ruddy 3b, Joe Barry of Bulkeley ss, W. Ruddy lf, Rice cf, Ed Gammon rf.

Attention, Masked Marvels!

To Masked Marvels:

About three weeks ago we played your team and were beaten fairly and we are willing to give you any credit due you and have no alibi to offer. Why you choose to play with masks on no one knew and to this day no one knows? But one thing was certain and that was that there were some good men wearing those masks, which was quite the contrary to what we expected, and we did not put on the field the team that has cleaned up everything in the Twilight league, as we expected a farce instead of a real honest-to-goodness beating, which we received. Although at the time we paid no attention to it, it has in reality proved a black eye to us and we wonder now if the Masked Marvels would dare to don their masks again and give us an opportunity to wipe out this defeat.

Of course, if you are afraid to try it again, we will let it drop, but if you are the real sports that we think you are we feel sure that you will give us another game, say Friday night, July 18.

You can wear masks, robes or even carry guns if you care to, but if you really are game let us know in some way if you are willing to give us a return game and I promise that the hooded wonders shall receive the most unmerciful beating that a baseball team ever had handed to them. Bring Dynamite, Arsenic and the rest of your dreaded diseases and explosives along, the more the better.

We will play you for fun, money or marbles. If you have any real red blood in your veins this had ought to stir it up. So, remember, Masked Marvels, we are waiting. Let Friday be the day and the Duwell field the place, or if you want to name your own terms, but by no means do not try to sidetrack us as we are out to get you.

Yours for another chance.
JAMES HOLLAND.
Manager of East Ends.

GRAND CIRCUIT OPENS AT TOLEDO WITH FAST RACES

Toledo, Ohio, July 14.—After trailing fourth in the Maumee stake, 2.03 class trot, the feature event of the opening of the Grand Circuit meeting at Fort Maumee track here, Favonian, driven by Fred Edman, of Memphis, Tenn., came from behind and won the next two heats and the race. Czar Worthy, the favorite, won the first heat and placed in the second and third.

Bessie McKlyo with Sep Palin up, was the class of the opening event, the 2.12 pace, winning in straight heats with Valley Day running a good second all the way. Minia Dillon easily captured the first division of the 2.18 trot in straight heats. Peter Cantrell copped the second division in a like manner.

TILDEN RETAINS TITLE AS CLAY COURT CHAMP

St. Louis, July 14.—(By The A. P.) —William T. Tilden, 2nd, of Philadelphia, world's premier tennis player, retained his national clay court title by easily defeating Harvey Snodgrass, of Los Angeles in the fourteenth annual championship at Triple A. club, here late today in straight sets 6-2, 6-1, 6-1. Robert and Howard Kinsey, of San Francisco, defending their national clay court tennis doubles title, defeated William T. Tilden and A. L. Wiener, of Philadelphia, late today in straight sets in the final matches of the fourteenth annual tournament here. The score was 6-4, 7-5, 6-2.

EARL SMITH IS SOLD BY BRAVES TO PIRATES

Cincinnati, July 14.—Earl Smith, catcher of the Boston Nationals, will report to Pittsburgh tomorrow, E. L. Riley, secretary of the club, said today in confirming the deal which sent Smith to the Pirates. Riley said that Pittsburgh being shorthanded in the receiving department needed Smith and while the Braves were well fortified in this department there was no reason why he should not be sold. The deal was a cash transaction and involved no other player. The price, Mr. Riley refused to give.

Dusty League Meeting Tonight.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 14.—The meeting of the Industrial league managers which was to have taken place this evening at the Y. M. C. A. was deferred over until Tuesday evening at 7.30. The meeting scheduled for this evening could not take place due to the absence of two of the team managers.

Tuesday's meeting will be a busy one and will be the first since the circuit got under way this season. The recent forfeited game to the Robert Gair crime by the Connecticut Power team, which had only four men on the field, will not probably be permitted to go down on the records as a win for the Gair team. GET-RICH-QUICK HOOCH MAKER IN NEW LONDON GOES TO JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 14—Elisha Stanfield is an ambitious sort of fellow. He has been so prosperous that he has a bank account of some size. But he sought to add to his earthly possessions quickly and without hard labor. He procured a still and made use of it to produce the sort of booze known as "hooch" and as "white mule." Then his patronage became so great that neighbors began to talk about the business Stanfield was doing and to wonder how he managed to escape police attention. They didn't wonder a long time, for it got to the police that Stanfield was doing a liquor business. Sergeant John C. Cavanaugh ordered Policemen Hill and McCaskey to watch the place and told them to report to him. They did as they were ordered, with the result that the following night a raid was made and the evidence of the crooked work of Stanfield was revealed. Stanfield is a chef at the beach and is earning for the labor he expends there more money than he ever before earned. He wanted more and while he was at work preparing for the appetite of man, his still was at work and he was preparing for the thirst of those he did not feed and who wanted what he could make. Minnie Kerson is alleged to have been associated with Elisha and she was arrested this afternoon, to answer in the police court tomorrow. Today, Stanfield was convicted of having liquor for sale at 451 Main street, the place which Minnie Kerson is now alleged to maintain. He was accused by Sergeant Cavanaugh and Bill Williams. The latter was found at the Stanfield place when the police raided it. He opened up just like a trap door and told all he knew about the place and the business carried on there when he had a chance to do so as a witness in court. Sergeant Cavanaugh told of finding all the implements to make whiskey in a shed in the yard of the house and Elisha admitted that the implements were his property. He said he used them only to make his own hooch and denied that he sold any liquor. As several bottles with more or less of the stuff that has killed others were found in the place, Stanfield is married and has a wife, he says in New York, from whom he is separated, as he has not seen her since last February. Judge Prince found Elisha guilty as accused and fined him $400, also ordered that he should serve time in jail that will keep him there till the 15th of October next. Elisha has a bank account, but even that cannot get him away from jail.

Automobilists appeared in court to answer for their indiscretions in speeding and parking. Thomas Connors, of Summer street, was fined $25 for speeding past intersecting streets. His pace was declared by Patrolman Babcock to be 35 miles an hour along Ocean avenue and he struck even a hotter pace when he got into Jefferson avenue where he bowled along at a 48-mile clip. Babcock could follow him because he was on a motorcycle. Connors did not deny that he was speeding.

Thomas Occhilini was fined $5 for failing to reduce his speed when he was passing intersecting streets. Officer Babcock nabbed him, too.

Samuel F. Johnson was fined $5 for parking a car four feet away from the sidewalk at Ocean Beach. So many persons have been fined for this violation of the parking ordinance it is astonishing that still others are caught offending every day.

Fred W. Bailey of Pearl street, was fined for driving his car on the left of other cars and crowding Nathan Santer into the gutter. Each man insisted that he was right, but the court found Bailey guilty. That cost him $13.70.

The will of Rear Admiral Oscar F. Stanton, U. S. N., retired, was admitted to probate this afternoon at a hearing for that purpose in the probate court. The document was drawn May 24, 1923, and was witnessed by Benjamin L. Armstrong, William Belcher and Beretha A. Farrows.

The will bequeaths the personal effects of the testator, including furniture, books, pictures, and all articles of personal use and wear and for use in housekeeping, to testator's daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Stanton Burrell, of New London, to be disposed by the heir at her discretion. Three-quarters of the entire estate is bequeathed to Mrs. Burrell and that the remaining one-fourth is bequeathed to Mrs. Burrell, in trust, the income to be paid in quarterly payments to the testator's grandson, Stanley Latham, of New London. Until such time as he attains his 40th birthday, when the principal shall be paid over to the heir. Should the heir die before reaching the age of 40, the principal will go to the kin of the heir.

Representative Howard A. Edgcomb of Groton and Mrs. Florence U. Ferguson of East Providence, were married this afternoon at East Providence, the ceremony being performed by Rev. LeRoy Wood, of East Providence. Mr. and Mrs. Edgcomb are now on a wedding trip by automobile to the Adirondacks. Upon their return they will reside at 20 Latham street.

The Argonne pool room on Golden street, was raided this afternoon by Sergeant Nelson Smith for the place has long been reputed to be a gambling resort. The proprietor, Martin Dardis, was arrested, charged with conducting gambling. Fred Bosworth James Parkman and Henry Gavitt were taken into custody charged with gambling. Dardis was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $150 for his appearance in police court tomorrow morning. Bosworth, Parkman and Gavitt each furnished a bond of $50 for their court appearance. The license of Dardis to operate a pool room was suspended by Captain Charles A. Pinney and [illegible] revoked if convictions are established against Dardis tomorrow.

The pool room has been complained of for some time as being a place where gambling was promoted and only a few days ago Dardis was cautioned against permitting gambling there. This afternoon when Sergeant Smith visited the place he found a card game in progress and with money on the table. The players and proprietors were taken into custody without further delay. Some of the players declared that the money was to be expended for the purchase of cigars while others explained that the money was in view for the purchase of "chocolate and milk."

Alfred Lunn of Ansonia, Mrs. Allen R. Lambdin and infant daughter, of Glenwood avenue, Mrs. Lena De Rocco, Westerly, Daniel Hayes, Bank street, Mrs. John McInnis, Montauk avenue, and John Spaulding of Archer court, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

Isadors Diamond reported to the police this forenoon that two calves' livers that had been suspended from a hook in the Soltz company's abattoir, John street, Saturday night, had been stolen. A fortnight ago James Brigham, Waterford, reported the theft of calves' liver from the same slaughter house.

An automobile owned by Dennis Patterson, 36 Tilley street and operated by Xenophen Patterson, of the same address, was stripped of its equipment at Oakdale this morning, the plunder taken being a new spare tire, spotlight, tail light, motor meter, cover top and quantity of tools. Patterson reported the theft to the New London police later in the day. The machine was being operated through Oakdale during the early morning hours when the engine stalled. Patterson could not start the engine, so he went to a farmhouse to obtain another car to tow the disabled machine to a garage. When Patterson returned to his car he discovered that the thief had removed everything of importance from the automobile.

Henry Luft, of Poquonnoc, complained to the police this morning that he had been robbed of $23. Luft declared that he had been directed to a rooming house in the vicinity of the police station the night before and that although he was the sole occupant of the room, when he awoke he discovered that his money and watch were missing. A colored resident of the place soon returned the watch to Luft, but the money was not forthcoming, so Luft made known his loss to the police. Luft does not remember the place he was directed to, but the police suspect inmates of a negro dive of perpetrating the robbery.

The Atlantic City police today notified the New London police that seven passenger automobile, bearing Connecticut markers, O-2680, and registration in the name of Frank R. Moore, Schoolhouse lane, this city, was in possession of the former authorities for investigation and requesting the New London police to supply to the Atlantic City police any information that they might possess. An investigation by the local police revealed that Moore recently purchased a second hand car and still owes $350 on the purchase price. He also borrowed $200 from Miss Lucy Connors, an aged resident of Hill street, to enable him to open a garage at Groton. After the garage had been open about a week, Moore and his car suddenly disappeared.

In the Groton town court this morning George Tomlinson, 97 Baker avenue, Groton, was presented on the charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He pleaded not guilty, but in view of the conclusive evidence to substantiate the charge Judge Cornelius C. Costello imposed a fine of $100 and costs.

Tomlinson was operating a Dodge touring car on the Poquonoc road last Thursday night when the car crashed against a Ford sedan, owned and operated by Max Weiner, of Hartford. Tomlinson's car was overturned and a passenger, Miss Ida Rosen, who was thrown out, was forced to receive medical attention. State Policeman Henry Albright of the Groton barracks investigated the accident and determined that Tomlinson had been drinking. The officer also caused Tomlinson to go before Dr. F. W. Hewes for the purpose of obtaining an affidavit from the physician that Tomlinson was under the influence of liquor and the physician provided the affidavit.

Francis McManus, of New London, arrested several days ago on a charge of reckless driving in the borough and who failed to appear when the case was originally assigned for trial, was fined $25 and costs, the latter amounting to $16.

Harry Hirsch, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hirsch, 202 Ocean avenue, who has been a patient at Home Memorial hospital several days, was able to leave the hospital today.

Another rum-runner was captured in the Sound this morning, when the speedy launch, Admiral Schley, owned by George H. Handson, 320 Drexel avenue, Atlantic City, was detected plying through Long Island sound with 700 cases of Scotch whiskey. The craft and her crew, who gave their names and addresses as Charles Carlson, 44 East 58th street; John Anderson, 414 East 85th street; and John Olson, 419 East 87th street, New York, were brought into port and later were taken to New York.

The Schley, a craft capable of making about 35 miles an hour, was sighted coming from the vicinity of the rum-laden craft off Montauk Point by the New York patrol launch Gallilee. When the Schley was off Bartlett's Reef lightship the Gallilee caused the Atlantic City craft to be halted and when the latter boat was boarded the load of whiskey was discovered.

The capture of the Schley is the first to take place in local waters in three weeks.

An automobile operated by Lee Reagan, 310 Montauk avenue, and a machine owned and operated by Battista Bottinelli, 22 Reed street, were in collision this afternoon on Bank street. Neither car was damaged to any extent. When Reagan demanded that Bottinelli display his operator's license, Bottinelli refused. Reagan then lodged complaint against Bottinelli with the result that the latter will be in the police court tomorrow morning.

An automobile, the owner of which is not known to the police, but which bore Connecticut registration 18-509, struck and slightly damaged a machine owned and driven by Charles Moore, Walden avenue, at Ocean Beach this evening. Because the owner of the colliding car did not stop to ascertain the extent of the damage occasioned, Moore requested the arrest of the owner on a charge of violation of the automobile law in evading responsibility.

An automobile, owned and driven by Everett Lyon, Golden Spur, and with Mrs. Lyon and their child as occupants, and a machine, owned by Mrs. Louis Herrup, Hartford, and driven by Isaac Myers, 40 Whiting lane, West Hartford, were in collision at the corner of Jefferson avenue and Broad streets, this evening. Both cars were damaged. The little child of Mr. and Mrs. Lyon was injured, but not seriously, it is believed, and was taken to the private hospital, where it will be a day or two before it is definitely determined whether the child has been seriously hurt. The accident, which occurred but a few feet over the city line, was investigated by State Policeman Fred Caron of the Groton barracks.

The council meeting this evening was the shortest yet held by that body. It was of about 15 minutes duration and most of that time was occupied in reading the minutes of the meeting a week ago. There was some objection raised to the practice of bathers at the beach who use the public recreation room on days when there are comparatively few people at the shore as a room in which they can undress and dress and then go into the water. They thus save the cost of a bath house and by having a guard at the entrance they can escape the publicity of changing their clothing.

Employes of the city in the municipal building are to have a picnic some time in August, not yet decided upon and the city council has accepted an invitation to attend. It is understood the affair is to be a clambake.

Merchants ho have made a practice of marking off a section of the street in front of their places of business within the confines of which the merchants would put a stop to parking of automobiles must discontinue that practice as it is not permissable under the laws of the state. The autoists still have some rights in the public highways that cannot be taken away from them except by statute. Merchants who have marked off sections of the street have done so without any right and the autoists will test their right to park where they can, if such parking is not in conflict with any ordinance.

MYSTIC

The Visiting Nurse association of Mystic is planning a loan exhibit of antique treasures in Columbus hall. This exhibit will contain many articles of interest, for many Mystic people have fine collections of antiques which have come down to them from preceding generations.

Daniel C. Ivers is having his house on High street renovated and painted.

Mystic friends of Captain Charles P. Maxson and family are thinking of them today, July 15th, in Portland, Oregon, where Miss Dorothy Maxson is to sponsor the launching today of the Southern Pacific Steamship Company's new craft, the "Bienville." As Captain Maxson is the senior captain of the Southern Pacific fleet captains, he is to have the command of the new steamship.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sutcliffe and child of Cloversville, N. Y., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Clarke.

Mrs. Marion O. Pomeroy has returned from a visit in Springfield, Mass.

Miss Mary E. Holmes, professor of Chemistry at Connecticut college, and her sister, Miss Evelyn Holmes, of New London, were guests of relatives here over Sunday.

NOANK

Noank lost to the Poquonoc team, Sunday afternoon, 8 to 5. Noank did not score until the seventh and eighth innings, and in the last inning made a great rally, getting three runs. Thompson pitched a good game, getting 14 strikeouts and allowed four hits. Taylor pitched well for his team. It was good game and about 200 attended.

Noank ball team lost both weekend games, Saturday at Potter Hill, with the score 12 to 5, it was 4 to 1 in favor of Noank up to the sixth inning. Then Noank threw the ball around and five runs were scored. Chappell pitched a fine game, getting 16 strikeouts and allowing six hits. More practice is what the team needs. The trip was made by truck. McQuarrie umpired the game.

J. Forest Hammond has gone to Boston on a business trip.

Jack Steele is lobstering for a few days with Capt. Leon Sistare.

Wallace Cook has entered the employ of the Bank Square garage.

Monday night the fire engine gave a test at Groton Long Point. A large crowd turned out. The tryout was a success. It was in charge of Foreman Wallace Cook.

The swordfish fleet reports the catches small. Foggy weather has been quite a setback. Some of the boats report a catch of three or four, while others have taken none. It also has been a very backward season for lobstermen. One man states that the largest catch this year was 90 pounds which was comparably small when compared with other years.

Grover Eldred, who is having a new boat built, has named it Reliable.

S. J. Chesbro is having repairs made to his lobster car at the town dock.

Miss Irma Dougherty who has been seriously ill for several weeks, is now on the road to recovery and is able to be about.

THIS BRIGHT BABY GIRL

Brought Joy to Home. Mrs. Price's Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scottdale, Pa.—"I never felt like working, and when I would try to do any work standing on my feet, I would just drag around all day long. At times I would have terrible pains and would be in bed three or four days. I was in this condition about a year when I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the papers. I had heard different women say it was good for women's troubles, and my aunt thought it would help me as it had helped her. So I took the Vegetable Compound and it brought things right, and I was in good shape before I became a mother again. I believe it helps at birth, too, as with both my other babies I suffered a great deal more than with this one. I thank you a thousand times for the good your medicine has done me."—Mrs. ROBERT PRICE, Scottdale, via Lockhaven, Pa.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, 98 out of every 100 report they were benefited by its use.

Here's the Latest—Cod Liver Oil In Tasteless Tablets

No more will weak, thin, unfortunate children cry in protest when the nasty, fishy-tasting, horrible-smelling cod liver oil is brought out.

Medical science progresses rapidly, and now you can get at your druggist's real, genuine cod liver oil in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the run-down and skinny grown-ups, who ought to take cod liver oil, because it really is the greatest vitamine food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Of course, doctors have been prescribing cod liver oil in tablets under another name for several years, but it is only of late that one can walk into a drug store and get a box of these flesh-producing tablets just as easy as a bottle of magnesia.

Thin, run-down, anaemic men, women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, and if you don't gain 5 pounds in 30 days just get your money back.

One woman gained fifteen pounds in five weeks, according to her own doctor—another ten pounds in three weeks. A very sickly child, aged nine, twelve pounds in seven months, and now plays with other children and has a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets. Lee & Osgood Co., or any good druggist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders. Only sixty cents for 60 tablets.

WESTERLY

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, at the home of Miss Emma Crandall, on Elm street for Mrs. J. Irving Maxson, who died at her home on High street. The service was conducted by Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church, of which Mrs. Maxson was a member. In attendance were relatives and friends, including a member from Plainfield, N. J., where Mrs. Maxson resided before coming to Westerly. Burial was in River Bend cemetery, the bearers being John S. Clark, Herbert W. Swinney, George H. Lanphear and William L. Duke.

The annual meeting of the Watch Hill Fire district was held at Watch Hill Monday. Inasmuch as the Watch Hill fire district park commissioners had not obtained final figures for the improvement plans to the retaining walls in Little Narragansett Bay and the adjacent property, no estimate could be given on which to base a tax rate for 1925. A vote was passed to hold an adjourned meeting, Saturday morning, August 16th at 10.30 o'clock when definite figures will be available.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Moderator, Judge John W. Sweeney; clerk, Reginald E. Peck; treasurer, Horace T. Burdick; health officer, Dr. John Champlin; chief fire engineer, George W. Hoxie; first deputy fire engineer, Joseph Dussault; second deputy, Reginald E. Peck; treasurer, Horace T. P. York; collector of taxes, George W. Hoxie; tax assessors, Everett H. Nash, Louis Leone and Reginald E. Peck; member of park commission for five years, Col. A. E. Dick.

Daniel F. Larkin and Mrs. Edward A. Newall reported for the park commission, which has several plans under way for the improvement of the property along Bay street and Little Narragansett bay. Mrs. Newall exhibited architects' drawings of proposed changes and urged that a sufficiently large tax be levied to insure adequate funds for building a new wall along the edge of the bay and making other improvements.

A resolution drawn up by Moderator Sweeney, expressing the district's regret at the death of William H. Andrews, a member of the park commission, was accepted by the voters. Judge Sweeney was empowered to prepare such a resolution at the annual meeting a year ago.

The treasurer's report showed a cash balance of $2,603.98 on hand July 1. Expenses for the past year totaled $5,510.72.

Col. A. E. Dick was chosen to succeed Dudley Phelps as a member of the park commission after Henry L. Burdick had read a letter from Mr. Phelps in which he declined to serve longer because of the fact that he seldom visits Watch Hill and is not closely in touch with its needs. Walter H. Nash declined to serve as clerk another year and Reginald E. Peck was unanimously elected to fill the office.

The family of Harry Darlington Jr., arrived in Westerly this (Tuesday) morning from Pittsburgh en route to Watch Hill to make their home for the summer at the cottage occupied by them last year, "Meadowcrest," Wapan Road. An express car load of Darlington automobiles arrived at the Westerly station Monday to be delivered to Watch Hill.

Mrs. Robert H. Farnham of Westerly is visiting the family of Mrs. J. Eugene Littlefield, at Block Island.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank I. Payne have returned from a visit with their daughter, Margaret at the Hoffman Girl Scout camp, in Kingston.

Traffic officer Fred T. Mitchell of the Westerly police force, was the man on the spot in Dixon House Square Monday morning about nine o'clock when the Ford truck of J. Pomelex of Newport, loaded with furniture and bound for New York, caught fire. The officer with the assistance of others soon had water and a fire extinguisher dispersed at the blaze and the flames were subdued without the necessity of calling the fire department. The truck was not too badly damaged to proceed to its destination.

It was with difficulty that reporters could hear much Monday of the activities of the Westerly police department. Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown of the Westerly police force was suffering a bad case of laryngitis and could barely speak out loud. However someone is reported to have overheard him say that he had got some "stuff" for it and hoped to be better tomorrow.

An eastbound freight train with a long string of cars became stalled west of the Westerly railroad station. A hot box developed on a loaded gondola coal car and it was necessary to break the train and "kick" the disabled rolling stock on to a freight siding before the freight train could proceed eastward.

Judge William A. Wilcox and Clerk A. G. Martin of the West Side held a session of town court for Stonington Monday morning in Borough hall. James Thompson had been arrested at 1 o'clock Monday morning by Patrolman Robert McWilliams of Mystic on complaint of Prosecuting Attorney George R. McKenna of Pawcatuck. He pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication and was fined $1 and costs of $11.71 amounting to $12.71, which was paid.

Myron E. Wilcox after passing two weeks vacation with his parents, Judge and Mrs. William A. Wilcox returned Sunday night to his duties with the Western Electric company, Atlantic City, N. J.

D. Burrows Spaulding of Stonington Borough was in Westerly Monday afternoon.

The yards and yards of bunting and flags used to decorate public buildings and places of business in honor of the Annual Encampment, Rhode Island Department United Spanish War Veterans were gradually removed Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lena and Miss Janet Stillman, Dr. and Mrs. S. H. Farnahan were visitors Sunday at Camp Hoffman, Girl Scouts, where they visited Misses Zilla and Frances Farnham and Miss Betty Lena.

Miss Ann Elizabeth Carr was a visitor at Watchaug pond, Charleston, R. I., Sunday.

Hiram Barber left Westerly Monday morning for Lynn, Mass., where he is to enter for an engineer's training course with the General Electric company.

Sunday fishermen reported better than average success in both salt water and fresh water off Watch Hill point, the mackerel, which have been running in good numbers for the past week or ten days, were token and following the rain perch and other fresh water fish bit well.

Sunday evening the west bound federal express stopped at the Westerly station on the east bound track, the crossover being made on account of a slow freight ahead on the regular free.

Justice may be blind, but there is no question as to the blindness of the man who goes to law feeling certain that he will get justice.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

New York, July 14.—Extensive readjustment of speculative accounts imparted an irregular trend to today's active stock market, which was featured by the buoyance of a number of industrial specialties. Forty two new 1924 high records were established during the session, 13 by public utility stocks and 14 by railroad shares.

Standard industrials showed a tendency to pause after the extensive advance of the last two months. United States Steel opened unchanged at 101, advanced to 101 1-2 and then dropped back a point. American Can closed nearly a point lower at 115 3-4 and Baldwin and Studebaker showed small fractional losses at 116 1-4 and 37 1-4, respectively. Changes in the railroad group were mixed with some good gains being recorded by the eastern carriers. New Haven and "Nickel Plate" attained new peak prices at 25 5-8 and 100 1-4, respectively, and closed slightly below their top prices for net gains of more than one point. Chesapeake and Ohio, the three Eire issues and Pittsbugh and West Virginia sold at their best quotations of the year.

Unconfirmed rumors questioning the safety of the $2 Sinclair dividend brought very heavy selling into that stock and forced it down nearly 3 points to a record low price of 16. Other oils declined in sympathy, but in most cases the net losses were limited to fractions. Unfavorable dividend rumors also were held responsible for the weakness of Stewart Warner which broke more than four points to 58 3-4. Revival of activity in Penn Seaboard Steel was based on reports of an improved financial condition.

United States Cast Iron Pipe was the individual strong spot, touching a record high for all time at 101 7-8 as against a low of 20 last year. Phillips-Jones added 10 points to its 35 points gain of last week in further reflection of its resourceufll soft collar patent suit. Strength of International Harvester, which closed 3 5-8 points higher at 92 3-8, was based on speculative expectations of larger profits likely to result from agricultural prosperity in Western states. Buying of International paper which closed more than 3 points higher at 54 5-8 was based on reports of extensive water power development by that company.

Gas shares led the advance in public utilities, among those to attain new highs being consolidated Gas, Columbia Gas and Standard Gas and Electric. S. S. Kresge broke more than 15 points on one sale. Sinclair preferred dropped 6 1-4 points to 81 and United Fruit closed more than four points lower at 201.

Call money held at 2 per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

Further withdrawal of British balances from local banks resulted in another sharp advance in demand sterling, which sold as high as $4.38 1-2. Francs were active despite the observance in Paris of the French national holiday, the local quotation showing a gain of 13 points at 5.28 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, July 14. — Reactionary tendencies predominated in today's bond market, which was featured by further liquidation of Brazilian issues following the more serious reports regarding the Sao Paulo revolution. Several semi-speculative rails liens improved but selling was general in other sections of the list. Uneasiness of the Brazilian bondholders was intensified by reports of desperate character of the fighting in Sao Paulo and the decison of the rebels to extend their operations. Brazil republic 8s were forced down 4 points and losses ranging from 2 to 3 1-2 points were suffered by Sao Paulo 8s, Rio De Janeiro 8s and Brazil Central Railway 7s.

Establishment of a record low price by Sinclair Oil stock based on unfavorable dividend rumors, adversely affected the company's 7 per cent. bonds, which declined more than a point. Other issues which declined 1 to 1 1-2 points included Dutch East Indies 6s, Rio Grande De Sol 8s and Western Union 6 1-2s.

Buoyancy of the Eire railroad stock issues induced accumulation of the company's bonds, the general 4s advancing about a point. New Haven and Louisville & Nashville mortgages also registered substantial improvement.

CURB MARKET

New York, July 14.—Broad and active buying ushered in the new week in the curb market but reactionary tendencies developed in the late trading following the heavy selling of the oil shares based on announcement of cuts of eastern gasoline prices. Prairie oil and gas broke 3 points to 205 but net losses in most of the other active oils were held to fractions. Increased activity in Lago Petroleum was based on merger rumors.

A twenty point jump in National Tea to 245 was the feature of the industrial group. Dubilier radio crossed 45 to a record high and Durant Motors made further recovery, by climbing nearly two points to 22. Silica Gel Ctfs were active, touching 27 and then dropping back to 25, up 1. Public Utility issues showed mixed changes.

Erratic fluctuations took place in the mingin group but Canario and most of the other copper stocks held firm in anticipation of improved trade reports.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, July 14.—Big buying hoisted wheat 5c. a bushel in value today, and smashed all high price records for the season. Drought working havoc to the Canadian crop was the chief cause assigned. High price records were also broken in the corn market. Wheat closed strong at 4 1-4 to 4 7-8c. Net advance, September 1.23 to 1.23 1-4 and December 1.25 3-4 to 1.26 with corn 1-2c. to 1-4c up, oats showing 3-4c. to 1 1-8c. Grain, and provisions unchanged to 37c. higher.

Broad demand for wheat was in evidence from the outset, and especially so on the part of foreigners. In addition to future delivery purchases, it was estimated that Europeans took 2,000,000 bushels today for immediate shipment to Europe, the largest amount in some time. According to an accepted authority, the dearth of rain in Canada is the worst in twenty years, and he wired today that the crop in three prairie provinces would apparently be only half of last year's total. It was this report which was largely responsible for the principal buying rush here, and for this sustained strength of the market as the day came to an end.

Heavy profit-taking sales failed to bring about in the wheat market any reaction of more than a temporary character; the fact that prices at Winnipeg advanced even faster than here was taken as significant, particularly as the forecast indicated that no rain was looked for soon. Dry weather complaints were also received from North Dakota and there was news of rust in Minnesota.

Scarcity of offerings forced steep upturns in nearby deliveries of corn. Distant months were also given home strength by relatively low temperatures and wet weather. Oats followed. Provisions responded to the grain bulge. Lard made new top record prices, despite immense arrivals of hogs here.

AUTOMOBILE DRIVERS PAY TO CITY COURT TREASURY

In the city court Monday morning there were a number of cases, many of them being violators of the traffic laws, especially those who had been brought into court for failure to go to the right of the flashing beacon at the junction of Market and Water streets.

Two men charged with intoxication appeared, one being fined $14.50 the other $20.75 which he was unable to pay and was sent to jail for about 21 days.

Harry Repp, charged with reckless driving had his case continued for two weeks under bonds of $1,000. Repp, who comes from Buffalo, N. Y., struck and knocked down Herbert Clark on West Thames street, inflicting injuries which resulted in Clark being sent to the hospital.

Anthony Boucher, charged with failure to give the right of way to another automobile, was fined $25 and costs amounting to $37.50. He was driving the Durant car that struck the Golden Rule Grocery truck, Saturday, at Harland's corner.

Fidel Williams, charged with breach of the peace and wilful destruction of property, was discharged.

Charles Jaysick, charged with failure to obey the traffic officer was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $13.50. He failed to heed the signal of Traffic Officer Myron Morgan, Sunday, and was struck by the trolley which had been signalled to come ahead.

George Bedard, charged with operating an auto after his license had been suspended, was fined $100 and costs. He appealed through his attorney, to the court of common pleas. Bonds of $150 were furnished.

Eight autoists paid for failure to go to the right of the flashing beacon on Water street, bringing the number to 20 who have been fined for this offense.

Judge Libby read the law to the offenders which informed them that they must follow the directions given on the signal. The penalty for failure to do so is a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $50. Thus far Judge Libby has been lenient with offenders but he gave warning that he would not continue to be lenient.

The case of two prominent Greeneville business men who were in a fight Saturday night, was continued until today (Tuesday).

Joseph Varisky of Hartford and Fred Sarabasevich of 73 High street paid $15 for their fight of Saturday at the home of John Kovalenko. Both claimed they were still good friends and the court nolled the charge of breach of the peace against each, upon payment of $15, which covered the doctor's fee of $10 and the costs of court.

PROMISING OUTLOOK FOR NEW ENGLAND APPLES

According to reports from the farmers, conditions up to July 1 were much more favorable to apples than average and 13 per cent. better than last year for New England as a whole. In per cent. of a normal outlook July 1 the figure are: Maine 88; New Hampshire 88; Vermont 87; Massachusetts 82 ;Rhode Island 84; Connecticut 82; New England 85.2. Earlier varieties are reported better than later ones.

Peaches are a good crop in Connecticut and Rhode Island but light in Massachusetts with practically none in New Hampshire.

Three persons were instantly killed by a fast New York Central train at a crossing three miles west of Butler, Ind., when their automobile was driven on the tracks in the path of the train.

Julia Hoyt Files Divorce Suit

Julia Hoyt, nee Julia Robbins, famous New York society beauty, former leading woman for William Faversham in revival of "The Squaw Man," and movie actress, Mrs. Hoyt has just filed suit in Paris to divorce Lydig Hoyt, New York clubman, to whom she was married in 1914, when she was only 17 years of age. After many triumphs in society, amateur theatricals, Mrs. Hoyt went on the professional stage three years ago.

From Los Angeles to Bangor

Swift's Premium Brand, with its reputation for uniform goodness, is of long standing. It has behind it more than thirty years of leadership in scientific curing and smoking.

As early as 1889, Swift & Company's products had received highest awards at international expositions. One of the four medals awarded at the Paris Exposition of 1889 was for Premium smoked meats, and another was for "Silverleaf" Brand Pure Lard.

Premium Hams and Bacon were acknowledged the best then. They are better today. Laboratory control, constant, steady experiments, more careful selection, and painstaking care assure you of better meat with unfailing regularity.

The pre-eminent position of Swift's Premium Hams and Bacon is indicative of the development of the packing industry—to which Swift & Company has contributed no small part in carrying to the table of the millions "More Meat and Better Meat."

This service is performed at a profit from all sources averaging only a fraction of a cent per pound.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Building operations in Norwich continue to make favorable progress as the summer advances. At the state hospital at Brewster's Neck the three new buildings that are being erected by the H. Wales Lines Co. of Meriden are well along, the brickwork having reached the second story on one of the buildings, while the steelwork is being done on the others. Like progress has been made on other buildings in other parts of the city and contractors reported Monday that there was no prospect of any slackening of the building trade before the extreme cold weather sets in the first of December.

At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton six building permits were issued during the past week. Four of these permits are for new dwelling houses, all to be located within the city, two on the West Side and two in the Greeneville section of the city. The other two permits are for a garage and an addition to a present building.

The valuation as placed by owners of the new buildings is approximately $15,000, which brings the total for the month to nearly $50,000 in new building. With new buildings continually being erected there is every indication that this year will show a marked increase over other previous years. There has been little change in the price of building materials during the past six months, but this seems to have little effect on the building trade.

To Frank B. Harrington, to erect a frame garage at 25 Eighth street. The garage will be 16 by 10 feet, with cement foundation and wood frame. The sides will be in novelty siding and the roof will be covered in composition paper.

Andy Laakso of Plainfield has been awarded the contract to erect a two-family house on Golden street for Anthony Izbicki. The house will be a two-story frame building 26x44 feet, with a stone and cement foundation and brick underpinning. There will be two porches, one in front 7x26 feet, and one in the rear 6x26 feet. The exterior finish will be in shingles and clapboards and the interior will be finished in hardwood and plaster.

To W. H. Covey, to erect a frame dwelling house on Maple street. The house will be of frame construction, with stone foundation. The exterior will be finished in clapboards or shingles and the interior will be of hardwood and plaster. There will be a veranda on the building.

To Louise Zelenski, to add a piazza to the present house on Central avenue. The veranda will be 15x5 feet and of frame construction.

To Harry Hurmoruch, to erect a two-story house on Peck street. The house will be of frame construction with a stone foundation and brick underpinning and will be 19x32 feet. The exterior finish will be in clapboards with wood shingled roof. The interior will be finished in hardwood and plaster.

Charles J. Baldwin has been awarded the contract to build a frame bungalow on Convent avenue for Mrs. Mary Sullivan. The bungalow will be 24x28 feet and will contain six rooms and bath. The exterior finish will be in shingles with a roof covered with slate-surfaced shingles. The interior will be finished in hardwood trim and floors and the walls will be plastered.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 20 sales of real estate as compared to 12 sales for the corresponding week in 1923. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $66,310 and $31,775.

There were six sales of real estate in New London during the past week, twice the number for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans were $28,315 and $89,600.

STATE BUILDING SITUATION

In a week in the building line marked by small totals in the amount of new building, new permits were issued in the larger centers for the week to the number of 304, for buildings costing $861,505, comparing with 308 permits in the like week of 1923, for buildings costing $1,183,160, and 235 in the same week of 1922, for building costing $525,387.

NEW LONDON

The permit has been issued for a store and a garage for R. L. and S. E. Strout to be erected on Connecticut avenue. The store will be 40x35 feet, and the garage 20x45 feet. Both buildings will be of stone construction.

Guiseppe Gargano has started a house at 494 Vauxhall street. The proposed dwelling will be 29x35 feet, of stone and frame construction, arranged for one family. The cost will be about $4,000.

The contract has been awarded to H. R. Douglass & Son, State street, for an addition to the dwelling of Mrs. Richard Mansfield, 802 Ocean avenue. The addition will be of frame construction, 12x30 feet, one story high. It will provide a new living room and bath. There will be new plumbing and electric wiring and an open fireplace.

H. B. Prentice, 141 Mohegan avenue, has the frame up for a cottage on Coleman street, for B. C. Crandall. The dwelling will be arranged for eight rooms and will have all modern conveniences.

The dwelling being erected on Ocean avenue for Thomas E. Troland, is being plastered. Thomas Occhialini, Chelsea street, has the sub-contract for the Mason work.

One of the three houses which H. R. Griswold is building on Ledyard street has been plastered. The second is ready to plaster and the third is being raised.

William Redden, 361 Bank street, is making extensive alterations to the stores in his building at the above address. There are two stores which will have new fronts with plate glass and copper store fronts and interior improvements.

Applications for Building Permits

F. W. Woolworth Co., store building, 94-100 State street. $100,000.

William Redden, alterations, 361 Bank street $500.

Number of permits issued for the week, 10; estimated cost of building, $115,900.

Quaker Hill

The sub-contract for the plumbing for the dwelling being erected by Oliver Woodworth, Pearl street, for A. J. Huggard, Montville, at Quaker Hill, has been awarded to C. A. Smith, 510 Main street. Eaton & Chase, Norwich, have the sub-contract for the the electric wiring.

Montville

The contract has been awarded to H. B. Prentice, 141 Mohegan avenue for a cottage at Montville for Mr. Mather. The house will be 26x30 feet, with the usual improvements. It will be arranged for six rooms.

Fisher's Island

John B. Leary, Coleman street, is making extensive alterations at Fort Wright. Several of the camp buildings are being remodeled. Screens are being installed and other improvements provided.

Waterford

F. M. Lamphear, Groton street, has the contract for a cottage on the Niantic river in Waterford for Mr. Cottrell. The dwelling will contain five rooms and will be of frame construction. There will be an open fireplace, modern plumbing and other conveniences. The frame has been raised.

MACHINE PRINTERS ON PICNIC AT WA WOG

The machine printers of the United States Finishing Co. held their first summer outing Saturday at Wa Wog camp. With their invited guests they left the city by automobiles at 9.30 in the morning and were met at the camp by President T. Wachenfeld, Jr., of the Wa Wog camps, and his retinue of able assistants. Mr. Wachenfeld and Samuel Smiley, foreman of the printers and chairman of the picnic committee, outlined a programme for the day which kept every man in a happy frame of mind. The ideal place situated on the edge of the lake gave the men the choice of swimming, fishing or boating.

Swimming matches, single and double canoe races, rowboat races and under water endurance tests were pulled off which created a great deal of fun and amusement for the picnickers.

At one p. m. the ringing of the small dinner bell with the big noise assembled the picnickers at the Wa Wog hotel which is also situated on the edge of the lake. The large dining room was artistically decorated with yellow and blue streamers—and the tables were bountifully laden with a fine chicken dinner. The following menu was served: Wa Wog clam chowder, roast milk fed chicken, mashed potato, boiled onions, boiled beets, olives, French bread, coffee, Wa Wog pie.

The feature of the afternoon was a baseball game by two picked teams of the printers captained by S. Smiley and W. Means, which resulted in a score of 14 to 11 in favor of W. Means team, the batteries were Nelson Disco and Philips for the winners, and Tennant and Parkhurst for the losers. Mr. Wachenfeld umpired the game. After the baseball game a sack race of 100 yards as won by Mr. Smiley. Three legged race by Nelson and E. Philips. After a tug of war which was won by Louis Brinkman and three hearties the program came to an end and the picnickers returned to their homes during the early part of the evening.

The outing committee was as follows: Samuel E. Smiley, Wm. R. Means, Wm. Murdock, John Peterson, Chas. Ahlberg, G. A. Turner.

EX-SERVICE MEN ARE MAKING BONUS APPLICATIONS

Over 100 ex-service men have applied to the committee of the American Legion, which meets on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights for the purpose of assisting them in filling out the necessary blanks for their adjusted compensation.

The committee met in the legion rooms Monday night from 7 until 9 o'clock when about 25 ex-service men were assisted in filling out the blanks to mail to Washington.

The work is being done without charge for every ex-service man or woman, whether a member of the American Legion or not being a part of the policy the legion is carrying out at the request of the government to save mistakes in making out blanks which are lengthy and require accurate answers to all questions.

AUTOMOBILE TRIP TO CANADA AND MAINE

A party of local young women is midway in an automobile trip of two weeks that will include Canada, Maine and the White Mountains. Those in the party are Miss Margaret Murphy, cashier and bookkeeper of the Prudential Insurance Co., Miss Mary Kane of the firm of Kane & Mason at Hilltop, Montville, Miss Helen E. Murphy, R. N., of the public health department of the United Workers, and her cousin, Miss Mary Burns of Saybrook. Their itinerary includes Montreal, Quebec, Portland, Bar Harbor, Old Orchard and points along the Maine coast and in the White Mountains. They left here July 7.

Growers of hollyhocks are especially proud of their blossoms this season and judging by the first blooms, dahlia fanciers will have the right to exult over their fine flowers also.

JURORS SELECTED TO SERVE AT SESSIONS OF SUPERIOR COURT

The annual selection of jurors who can be summoned for sessions of the superior court in this county was made here Monday afternoon by the three jury commissioners who met at 4 o'clock at the office of the superior court clerk, Judge George E. Parsons. The commissioners went over the list of names which had been submitted by the selectmen of the twenty-one towns in the county, each list containing double the number of names of jurors that would be selected.

The three commissioners, Arthur E. Story of this city, Almarin T. Hale of New London, and Judge Parsons, made up the lists of jurors as follows:

WATCHED NORWICH ELKS IN BIG BOSTON PARADE

Some amusement was afforded just after the rain at Gloucester street and Commonwealth avenue when the hayseed carpetbaggers from Norwich, Conn., made little carpets ripping open the bags and placed them on the pavement so the ladies would not get their feet wet.

"I feel like Sir Walter Raleigh," one of the Norwich men said after he had followed one rather austere and indignant woman up the avenue, trying to get her to walk on the carpet. The indignation was only temporary and the lady herself had to smile at his antics.

The former Norwich woman writes: "Thousands crowded the walks and when the downpour began, many left for their homes; but we were anxious to see our home delegation, so we remained, though drenched.

When the Norwich boys marched past, there were at least two to root for them—Mrs. James P. Donnelly, of Watreburry, who, with James P., Jr., and Eugene Franklin is visiting in Boston, and Mrs. B. Franklin Stone, (Elizabeth Patton) of Boston.

The Norwich Elks recognized the rooters and shook hands even though they were in line. We are sorry the Norwich boys didn't win the watch that was given—for I am sure they deserved first prize!

NORTHFIELD CLUB HAD PICNIC AT UNCASVILLE

Members of the New London Northfield club enjoyed a basket picnic Saturday afternoon at the home of Miss Nellie J. Starr in Uncasville. Miss Starr and her mother proved most delightful hostesses and shared with those present their wealth of roses and other beautiful flowers. Mrs. Dwight C. Stone of Stonington gave a most interesting account of the commencement exercises which she attended at Northfield seminary, East Northfield, Mass., last month. Among the guests present were Rev. John Hunter Stearns and family of Palmertown, whose daughter, Miss Margarette O Stearns, was president of the junior class at the seminary at the time of her death a few months ago. Another daughter, Miss Jane Cree Stearns, and Miss Alice Palmer of Preston, both seniors, were also guests. Others present from this section were Miss Maude E. Allen, Norwich, president of the club; Mrs. Richard M. Harding, Norwich; Miss Blanche V. Smith, Franklin, and Miss Jennie G. Perkins, Gales Ferry.

The next meeting of the club will be held in September.

WITHDRAWAL IN SUIT AGAINST TROLLEY CO.

Notice of withdrawal has been filed with the clerk of the superior court in the suit of Nollia Patenaude against the Connecticut Co. and others.

The plaintiff claimed that while riding in the automobile of Frank Hampson of Sprague about 10 o'clock on July 3, 1923, near the junction of Hunter's avenue, a trolley car of the Connecticut Co., collided with the auto. As a result of the negligence of both parties she claimed that she was thrown out of the auto and was laid up for some time, besides receiving other injuries. She claimed $5,000 as a result of her injuries sustained from the collision.

ATTORNEY T. M. SHIELDS RETURNING FROM EUROPE

Attorney and Mrs. Thomas M. Shields and family, who sailed from Marseilles 14 days ago, are expected to reach Boston Thursday on the steamship President Harrison. Mrs. Shields, with her four sons, has been spending the winter and spring at San Remo, Italy, in the interest of her health and Mr. Shields joined her there in June. They have been touring in Europe before leaving for home.

CAUGHT RECORD BASS WEIGHING 6 1-4 POUNDS

Frank Faulkner and Daniel Fowler of Mohegan spent Sunday bass fishing at a nearby pond, returning with a catch of four bass weighing 15 pounds. The largest, caught by Mr. Faulkner, weighed six and a quarter pounds, a record-breaker for that locality. They also caught a fine string of 10 pickerel.

Moosup Picnic at Park

The Plainfield Union Baptist church, of Moosup had a picnic Saturday, at Mohegan Park, Norwich. Pember's truck left the church at nine o'clock carrying the picnickers. Lunch was served on the grounds at noon. Games, boating and bathing provided an enjoyable day for the visitors.

WRITES OF CATASTROPHE RECENTLY IN LORAIN, OHIO

Charles G. Rose, who, with Mrs. Rose is a native of Hanover, now residing in Lorain, Ohio, wrote recently to relatives in this vicinity describing the situation in Lorain after the tornado. He says, first of all will say we are all well and unhurt. No loss on what property we have but trees. We were out of the path of the worst of the tornado. My wife and I were standing in the sleeping porch watching the trees go by, not thinking that the north end of the town was destroyed. But in a few minutes ambulances and trucks and all forms of conveyances were coming to the hospital, then we knew there was some calamity.

Howard went to the telegraph office to answer your wire and got it in all right, but they told him there were about 600 ahead of him, so no doubt the telegram was delayed. From 14th Street north the city is practically ruined, and the old business part of Lorain is wiped out, the estimated loss is $3,000,000. At the State theatre about 200 were caught by the collapse of the building and were killed or badly injured. The wrecking crew are finding bodies yet in the ruins. Yesterday July 1, two small girls were rescued alive from there, and one entirely unhurt had been in a corner for nearly three days. On the East Side the rescuers are just getting to them, and no doubt many will be found dead, as one street there was in the worst of the storm and no wrecking has been done yet. The city is under martial law in spite of the statement in the papers that this is not so. You must have a pass to go anywhere and then sometimes it's no good. All persons are warned to be on their own premises by 8 p. m. There are about 1,500 soldiers from different state troops here, all of Elyria's police force and a lot from Cleveland, O.

All street car service is stalled, and no electric lights, although now some parts of the city have been connected up again. Soldiers at all road crossing leading into Lorain and all machines turned back unless they had a pass or some urgent reason for coming. In other words no sightseers or curiosity-hunters allowed.

There have been lots of freak stunts played by the storm. One man said an auto flew by the second story window of their house but the house was not damaged. Half of the automobiles in town are a total wreck; look as if they had been mauled by a big hammer, they were piled up on top of one another. The whole situation is beyond belief unless you could see it. We were very fortunate to be on 21st street.

CORONER'S FINDING CLEARS TAFTVILLE MAN IN COURT

In the city court Monday morning Judge Arthur F. Libby nolled the case against Narcisse Lamothe of Taftville, who had been charged with reckless driving and passing a standing trolley car on June 4, when the machine he was driving struck Charles H. Stapleton, 68, of 20 Washington street, who died at the Norwich state hospital on June 26.

Judge Libby directed that a nolle be entered upon receiving the finding of Coroner J. J. Desmond, which was as follows:

That said Charles H. Stapleton died in said town of Norwich on the 26th day of June, 1924, from injuries received by him when he was struck by an automobile operated by Narcisse Lamothe of Taftville, Conn., at Greeneville in said town of Norwich, on June 4, 1924.

On June 4, 1924, late in the afternoon, said Charles H. Stapleton was riding on the front seat of an electric open passenger car, on his way to work. Four other men, passengers, were sitting o nthe same seat, as the car approached the stopping place opposite the factory of the Norwich Belt Manufacturing Co., on North Main street. Mr. Stapleton notified the motorman that he was to get off the car, and then stood up as if to leave the car. The car was still in motion, and the motorman warned Mr. Stapleton to remain on the car until it came to a stop, telling him that he should do this, as so many automobiles were passing. Mr. Stapleton, however, upheld that he did not care for the autos that they must look out for him, and then without waiting until the car stopped, he stepped out onto the running board of the car and thence onto the street, and stepped directly against the automobile driven by said Narcisse Lamothe, which was going at a moderate rate of speed northerly, in the same direction as the trolley car.

As Stapleton walked against the automobile he was struck by the forward part of its left rear fender, which struck his dinner can, and himself, and thereby sustained injuries from which he subsequently died.

It seems evident from the testimony of the several witnesses to this accident, that said Narcisse Lamothe is in no wise to blame for it, he was passing the trolley car while it was moving, and at a safe distance from it, travelling at a moderate rate of speed, and looking forward, there was nothing to indicate to him that Mr. Stapleton or any other of the trolley car passengers, might leave the car before it reached its stopping place, and but for the accident Lamothe's automobile ould have passed the trolley car before the latter reached the stopping place.

Mr. Lamothe stopped his car immediately after the accident.

I am satisfied and find: That the death of said Charles H. Stapleton was not caused by a criminal act, omission or negligence of any other person or persons.

Charges Against Lamothe Nolled

The two charges against Narcisse Lamothe, going by a trolley while the trolley was discharging passengers, and reckless driving were nolled by Judge Arthur F Libby in city court Monday morning upon recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Lee Roy Robbins, after the announcement of Coroner Desmond's finding.

CHILD'S LEG BROKEN ON STREET IN GROTON

Joseph Raymond, Jr., three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Raymond of Orange, N. J., who are visiting Mrs Raymond's mother, Mrs. James Emery at 45 Thames street, Groton, sustained a fracture of the right leg and bruises on the hip and shoulder Saturday when he was struck in front of the Emery home by an automobile driven by Desmond Murphy of Norwich.

The child was taken to the residence of Dr. F. W. Hewes, who ordered him to be taken to the hospital in New London where an X-ray showed that the right leg of the child had been broken.

The family was to have departed to their home in New Jersey Sunday, but the accident interrupted their plans. The owner of the car that struck the child has promised to make suitable compensation for the injuries.

TO STRIP REPARATIONS OF SENTIMENT AND POLITICS

Inter-Allied Conference is to Convene at 11 A. M. Today in the British Foreign Office, London—Ambassador Kellogg Shares Optimism Evidenced by the Continental Statesmen—Believes There is No Alternative to the Dawes Plan.

London, July 15 (By the A. P.)—The all-important inter-allied conference for making effective the Dawes plan for German reparations will open in the British foreign office at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, with Premiers MacDonald and Herriot at the head of the table and the plenipotentiaries of the minor allied powers interested in obtaining war compensation seated around the board. The United States will be represented by Frank B. Kellogg, the American ambassador, as official observer, and in him and the views of the participation of his government the chief interest and concern of the delegates may safely be said to center.

The Belgian, Italian and Belgian delegations arrived this afternoon. Hopeful that the meeting will be successful in stripping the reparations problem of sentiment and politics and putting it on the cold, hard economic foundations which the experts headed by General Dawes and Sir Reginald McKenna had recommended.

Ambassador Kellogg and British observers share the general optimism which the continental statesmen have brought to England, but the American observers see a successful termination of the meeting only by strict adherence to the efforts to enforce the Dawes proposals.

Mr. Kellogg said this afternoon that he was hopeful about the London conference because there was no alternative to the Dawes reparation plan if it went into the discard, and, if it did, there was no hope of ever settling the problem. For this reason the American observer will enter the conference with the idea of doing everything to the forefront in the deliberations possible to keep the expert report. His instructions from Washington regarding the extent of American participation are very broad.

Whenever the attitude of the United States on any phase of the reparations problem is asked, Mr. Kellogg will give the fullest information. On points involving American interest Mr. Kellogg will volunteer to state his government's position. It is the ambassador's opinion that a complete agreement can be reached and the purpose of the conference achieved within a few days, if the delegates will adopt a few sweeping resolutions that will advance the experts' economic program to a point where the new German bank of issue can be established and the foreign loan necessary for this subscribed, and the various committees under the Dawes scheme can begin their work.

Ambassador Kellogg does not expect the United States to be a signatory to the protocol embodying the results of the conference decisions.

The opening day of the conference will be devoted to the welcoming ceremonies and organization. After Premier MacDonald's address, the presiding officer of the conference, presumably Mr. MacDonald, will be elected. Whether the conference will divide into committees is a question for the delegates to decide, but the British view is that all the sessions will be more or less plenary; if the entire body can keep together there will be less opportunity for the deliberations being sidetracked to issues which are not connected with the Dawes report.

Mr. Kellogg has had a number of conversations with Colonel James A. Logan, Jr., and Owen D. Young regarding the conference, and has also discussed the subject with Mr. Macdonald, so that the British prime minister knows exactly what limitations there are to American participation.

Having pinned its faith to the Dawes report as the only instrument available for the rehabilitation of Europe, and its economic restoration, France shares the eagerness of the other allies to ascertain the exact character of American participation in this latest effort to rescue the world from chaos. The utmost importance therefore is bound to attach to every utterance of the American ambassador and his colleagues.

ADDRESSED AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF BANKING

Baltimore, Md., July 15.—The politics of business rather than the business of politics was visualized today as the great governing factor in present day civilization, by Glenn Frank, editor of The Century, in an address at the twenty-second annual convention of the American Institute of Banking here today.

Likening the gathering to the recent democratic national convention, Mr. Frank said he was more impressed with the common sense proceedings that dominated business men's conventions.

Mr. Frank declared that we are living in a business civilization and what is done in business, dominates politics. In this new system he pictured the banker as the central figure. We have gotten away, he said, from the attitude that the banker is merely a sort of shylock, interested only in lending money.

Clarence R. Chaney of Minneapolis, president of the institute, in his annual address, declared that the organization had become "the greatest organization in American business, in which the employer and employe stand on an equal footing and share the benefits."

"The Greatest obligations which our organization has today," he added, "is in the American Bankers' Association campaign of public education. This is a movement through which it is hoped that every person in this country may be given a proper conception of what a bank is and how to secure its service."

In welcoming the delegates, Gov. Albert C. Richie told them that he "would like to see a government which trusts you, instead of one which constantly seems to doubt you, with ceaseless investigations, audits and reports."

INCREASE IN TAXABLE EARNINGS OF CORPORATIONS

Hartford, July 15.—The total taxable earnings of Connecticut corporations exclusive of public utilities corporations, was $137,131,732.91 during the past calendar year, an increase of $41,253,866.14 over 1922 earnings, it was shown by a certification of taxable incomes of corporations made to the state treasurer today by tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett.

The taxes due the state on these earnings amount to $2,542,625.66, plus a minimum tax of $10 on incomes of $500 or less and penalties imposed for failure to file returns on the date due amounting to $35,080, making a total of $2,577,715.66. This is an increase of $823,697.10 over the amount paid in 1923 and is the largest tax corporation have been required to pay since 1917.

The number of corporations having taxable incomes in excess of $500, was 1,918. There were 3,208 corporations having taxable incomes of less than $500, or which sustained losses during 1923. Returns were filed by 1,024 corporations which did not operate during the year and consequently were not taxable. Corporations which were required to pay penalties for failure to file returns on the date due number 606. There are 183 corporations which have not yet reported, and are now subject to a $200 penalty. A total of 6,936 corporations is listed in the department.

TO SEEK CLOSURE OF RITZ CARLTON HOTEL

New York, July 15.—Assistant United States Attorney Lyman H. Ward announced tonight he will seek an injunction to close for one year the Ritz Carlton hotel, a world famous establishment, under the padlocking provisions of the federal prohibition laws. His office is now preparing papers asking this relief on the ground that this hostelry is a "common nuisance."

Mr. Ward said that the decision to proceed in this manner followed a conference with the federal prohibition authorities who last Friday night raided the roof garden of the hotel. At that time, in the presence of 400 guests, many of them leaders in the worlds of art, finance and society, 75 quarts of liquor were seized and six waiters arrested. The prosecutor commented that he saw no reason why "the poor man's saloon in Third avenue should be closed and not the rich man's place."

At the hotel tonight it was denied that liquor had been sold by any one connected with the management.

DECISION CONCERNING LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

Hartford, July 15.—Attorney General Frank E. Healy has advised Insurance Commissioner Howard P. Dunham, in a requested official opinion that under the reciprocity law with New York state, New York life insurance companies are only entitled to such refund of taxes already paid to this state as Connecticut insurance companies can legally claim under the provisions of the statutes of that state. In allowing the deductions for overpayment of these taxes, the attorney general advised that all companies should be treated alike and such deductions should be made from current tax bills of the insurance department.

BANQUET GIVEN TO THOS. DONOHUE, NEW LONDON

Meriden, July 15.—Officials of the state athletic commission, boxers, newspapermen, referees and others connected with the boxing game in Connecticut attended a banquet this evening at a local hotel in honor of Thomas Donahue, of New London, chairman of the state athletic commission. Donahue was presented with a leather traveling bag and praised for the work he has done in the past for boxing in this state. Moxey King, of New Haven, who is succeeded as chairman by Donahue was given a gold watch and chain by his fellow members of the commission.

Gasoline Price Cut Reaches New England

Tank Wagon Price Has Been Cut One Cent, to 19 Cents a Gallon.

New York, July 15.—Gasoline price reductions, initiated recently in some of the eastern, southern and mid-western states, spread to New York and New England today when the Standard Oil company of New York cut its tank wagon price throughout this territory one cent, to 19 cents a gallon. The reduction was met by the Gulf Refining company, Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation, the Texas company, Jenney Manufacturing company and other competitors.

REPUBLICANS TO BUILD UP SMOOTH PARTY MACHINE

Washington, July 15.—Having deferred opening of the active national campaign until August 14, republican leaders declared today they planned to use the intervening month in building up a smoothly running party machine.

The framework of the party organization as turned over by John T. Adams, the retiring national chairman, and added to by William M. Butler, the new national chairman, is to be strengthened and rounded out under present plans. Additional headquarters are to be opened; any existing factional differences will be eliminated so far as possible, and the whole situation brought to a point where the campaign can be energetically put under way immediately. President Coolidge sounds the keynote at his notification ceremonies here Aug. 14.

The plans for the intervening month of work will be discussed by Mr. Coolidge with Chairman Butler before the end of the week. New York headquarters, when opened will be in general charge of Charles D. Hilles, national committeeman for that state.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR TRIAL OF LEOPOLD AND LOEB

Chicago, July 15.—Requests for seat reservations to the trial of Nathan Leopold and Richard A. Loeb, charged with the murder of Robert Franks, have been go numerous from newspapers and press associations that Chief Justice J. R. Caverly today announced arrangements to be in effect during the trial.

The trial is to begin on Aug. 4. One seat will be assigned to all Chicago papers and news agencies near the jury box. Papers outside of Chicago and special writers will be given another section.

Flashlight photographs cannot be taken in the room while the trial is in progress but will be permitted during the recesses.

About 200 seats will be available for spectators and when these are filled all other spectators will be barred. Extra deputies and firemen will be provided.

DECREASE IN WHOLESALE PRICES DURING JUNE

Washington, July 15. — Wholesale prices throughout the United States showed a general decrease in June, the department of labor announced today. The figures were based on a survey of 404 commodities, and the decreases applied particularly to building materials, farm products, and metals with smaller decreases shown in other commodities except cloth and clothing.

Increases in wholesale prices, of butter, eggs and flour were offset by decreases in fresh meats and sugar, resulting in a slight general decrease in the entire group. The index number for all commodities for June was 144.6 against 146.9 for the preceding month.

NEGROES TO FIGURE IN PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN

Chicago, July 15.—As a result of negro migration to the north, the negroes of the United States will have a bigger hand in the presidential campaign this year than ever before, Col. R. C. Simmons, nephew of Booker T. Washington, and national director of the republican campaign among colored voters, declared today.

"The negro voters in Indiana number 63,000, Illinois 127,000, Ohio 87,000, Michigan 75,000, Iowa 30,000, and Pennsylvania 210,000," Colonel Simmons said.

The boat, will have a speed of 18 knots an hour and will carry two one-pound guns. She will be commanded by Capt. Frank Wright.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Cyril Maude.

London, July 15 (By the A. P.).—Winifred Emery, the actress, who in private life was Mrs. Cyril Maude, died this evening at Bexhill, Sussex. She had been ill for a long time, and last December her husband, who was starring at the Gaiety theatre, New York, was called to St. Moritz, Switzerland, on account of her serious condition.

Sir William S. Gilbert, England's most renowned librettist, and collaborator with Sir Arthur Sullivan in the famous operas, sacrificed his life on May 29, 1911, in an attempt to save Winifred Emery from drowning in a lake on his estate at Harrow. Sir William, who was 75 years of age, and a number of others were bathing at the time and Miss Emery got beyond her depth. Sir William went to her aid and the violent effort he put forth brought on syncope and heart failure.

Miss Emery was born in Manchester in 1862 and was married to Cyril Maude in 1888. She began her stage career at the age of 8 and made two trips to the United States and Canada with Henry Irving and his company. She had played at all the principal theatres in London.

American Fliers Have Busy Day in Paris

Paris, July 15 (By the A. P.)—The American round-the-world-fliers' day of rest in Paris today was the busiest day off they have had since they took off from American soil, they said this evening after a round of activities almost as arduous as one of the more difficult laps of their globe-encircling journey.

In the morning they made a call on the under-secretariat of aviation. Then they laid a wreath on the unknown soldier's tomb. Luncheon with General Pershing could not be a long session because they had to be received at the city hall and then call upon the president of the republic.

At their hotel they signed an indefinite number of postcards and photographs and then wound up their day of repose with a magnificent dinner given in their honor by Laurent Eynac, under-secretary of aviation, at the Inter-Allied club.

"Apart from all that," said Flight Commander Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith with a tired smile at the end of the ordeal, 'the day was comparatively quiet."

He added seriously: "We have been greatly impressed in Paris not only by the cordial welcome we received, which was far beyond anything we anticipated, but by the deep and genuine interest shown in the technical objects of our world tour. Even the president of the republic who gave us one of the most gracious greetings anyone could imagine, wanted to know all about the practical results of our flight."

The date of the landing of the aviators on American shores now depends on the arrival of supplies in Greenland. Owing to the sky-high prices demanded by Scandinavian shipowners to transfer gasoline to the icy continent, it was necessary to change plans and charter a British vessel for a special trip.

The present plan of the Americans is to take off from Lebourget between 10 and 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. Depending on the weather reports from the English channel.

PUTNAM MAN CAUSED CLOSE OF BROKERAGE

Hartford, July 15.—Complaint by George F. Lockwood, who gave his address as Putnam, Conn., to Attorney General Carl Sherman, of New York, has resulted in closing up the business of a New York stock brokerage company which is alleged to have defrauded him of stock which he held in the Independence Lead company.

This company, operating under the name Allen S. Schang and company, and three other similar companies in New York city, have been enjoined from selling securities under injunctions obtained by Attorney General Sherman from the New York supreme court. The other companies have been doing business under the names: Charles H. Greenhaus, stock broker, No. 68 William street; American Security Transfer company, No. 140 Cedar street, and the Radio Securities and Finance corporation, No. 42 Broadway.

It was said in Putnam tonight that George F. Lockwood does not live there, but makes his home near Danielson.

TEST FLIGHT MADE BY PASSENGER AIRPLANE

Chicago, July 15.—An airplane carrying eight persons and equipped with reclining chairs for six passengers, with a table arranged between the chairs, arrived today from Detroit in a test voyage, after a cruise of three hours and five minutes.

The plane, owned by M. H. Stout, left Detroit at 7.12 a. m., and landed at Maywood at 10.15 o'clock. It will return to Detroit at 3 p. m.

The six passengers aboard included two women, while the crew consisted of a pilot and a mechanician. The women were Mrs. Stout and Miss Jane Summins of Chicago.

The plane is all metal, with 2,350 pounds useful capacity for oil, gas, and other equipment, and measures 58 feet from tip to tip.

It has toilet facilities and windows on all sides. Doors that can be sealed are between the pilot's seat and the passengers' compartment, which is so arranged as to be almost soundproof.

The airplane party ate breakfast in Detroit, will have lunch in Chicago, and hopes to return in time for dinner in Detroit.

TO PROTECT FOREIGN INTERESTS IN BRAZIL

Washington, July 15.—American embassy officials in Rio De Janeiro, have forwarded without approval requests from Consul Herndon W. Goforth, at Santos, for the dispatch to that port of American naval craft to protect foreign lives and property during the revolutionary outbreak.

The embassy officials explained to the state department that it was not deemed necessary at present to have naval vessels in the vicinity of Santos and information reaching the embassy from Santos was to the effect that foreign life and property was being given adequate protection.

"FOUL BORE" OF GUN CAUSED EXPLOSIONS ON MISSISSIPPI

Naval Court of Inquiry Finds That Insufficient Air Pressure Was Used in Cleaning Bore of Big Gun on the Battleship Mississippi—Casualties Were Increased by Unofficial Observers Crowding Exit Passageways — Court Made No Recommendations, Report Being Confined to Findings of Fact.

Washington, July 15.—The turret explosion aboard the battleship Mississippi, off the California coast last June 12, in which 44 men and three officers were killed resulted from insufficient air pressure in clearing the bore of the big gun, according to the findings of the naval court of inquiry.

The fire in the upper handling room, the court said in its findings announced today, was "caused by the safety doors not being entirely closed," and casualties were increased by the presence of unofficial observers "who crowded the passageways making exits more difficult."

The court made no recommendations, its report being confined sorely to finding o ffacts. Secretary Wilbur and his technical staff have taken the document under study to determine whether there should be further action in connection with failure to comply with regulations requiring that safety doors in turrets be closed during firing operations and also with regard to the presence of unauthorized persons in the turret.

"The casualty in question occurred during the firing of the eighth salvo," says the summary of the report issued by the department. "Prior to that time, namely upon the completion of the load for the third salvo, the left gun of No. 3 turret fired prematurely while the firing circuit was open and while the gun was in loading position. As the plug was closed no damage was done.

"As described by eye-witnesses, the main casualty occurred as follows: The seventh salvo had been fired, guns returned to loading position, and plug opened. There appeared to be some trouble with air pressure, although not very clear just what, except that the gun captain was heard to make some remarks about the air pressure; the turret captain picked up a wrench and stated he would fix it. The shell was rammed home, four bags of powder placed on the spanner-tray, and rammed into the gun, rammer withdrawn whereupon there emerged from the breech of the gun a small greyish ball of smoke and flame followed by a large flash of flame. Flame and gases immediately filled the gun compartment, passed through the safety doors above the shell table to the other two gun compartments and through the peep doors to the turret officers' booth. Deaths occurred as the result of asphyxiation.

"The court was of the opinion that the premature firing of the left gun on the third salvo was due to 'foul bore' consequent to insufficient air pressure and guns not being properly cleaned of gas before loading.

"The court was of the opinion that the same cause resulted in the main casualty; the gun being fired into the wind probably made the expulsion of gases more difficult; that the number of casualties was increased by the presence of unofficial observers who crowded the passageways making exits more difficult; that the damage casualties on the left and center guns probably resulted by the failure to keep the safety doors over the shell table closed; that the fire in the upper handling room was caused by the safety doors not being entirely closed."

DAVIS UNDECIDED ABOUT CONDUCT OF CAMPAIGN

New York, July 15.—When John W. Davis, democratic nominee for president, stepped into his motor car today for the 30 mile drive to his country home at Locust Valley, he was apparently nearer a decision as to the selection of a national chairman or the direction of the main and subsidiary campaigns for the campaign than yesterday morning, when, refreshed by a week end of rest, he returned to the city to tackle this first problem of his contest for the presidency.

Days of discussion with party leaders had failed to bring about a decision at any rate a selection that would meet with acceptance. Mr. Davis himself had asked whether he favored a new national chairman and a campaign manager or combining the two offices, and replied that even on that point he was not ready to express himself.

Samuel C. Roper, of New York; Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, the present national chairman; Norman E. Mack, who has been New York's national committeeman for 24 years, having just been elected for his seventh term; George White, of Ohio, who directed the Cox campaign; Clem Shaver of West Virginia and Norman H. Davis, a former under-secretary of state, joined Mr. Davis before luncheon and spent most of the day with him.

FOREST FIRES UNABATED IN PACIFIC COAST STATES

San Francisco, July 15.—Forest fires continued unabated today in the Pacific coast states, with the exception of Oregon, and in British Columbia. In California the fires were confined for the most part to the national forests and thousands of acres of timber land were reported to have been burned.

In British Columbia four members of the Doukhorbor colony have been missing since yesterday in the vicinity of Porcupine Creek, where a forest fire has been raging.

Fifteen fires were reported from Central Washington in the Wenatchee and Chelan national forests.

The fire situation in California is said by forest officials to be the worst in many years.

HEAVY DAMAGE CAUSED BY FLOODS IN KALGAN, CHINA

Washington, July 15.—Damage to foreign properties in Kalgan, China, estimated at $1,000,000, were reported today in consular advices to the state department, as a result of flood waters which destroyed practically the entire section of the city on the south bank of the waterway there.

The loss of life, however, was not great, although the railway bridge and hundreds of houses were completely destroyed.

Advices from Peking at the same time expressed fear lest the dikes protecting the city of Tientsin would not hold against the onrush of waters and perhaps precipitate a flood condition worse than that of 1917.

25 HARTFORD FIREMEN OVERCOME BY GAS FUMES

Hartford, Conn., July 15.—Twenty-five firemen were overcome by gas fumes at a warehouse fire in the center of this city at noon today. The fire gutted the warehouse of Clapp & Treat, hardware dealers, on Market street, causing damage of over $50,000, and for a long time threatening the entire block, in which are located Long's hotel and the Hartford Courant office. All members of Squad A, the prime fire fighters of the department, were overcome by the fumes.

ORIENTALS FROM HAWAII NOT TO BE EXCLUDED

Washington, July 15.—Immigration of Orientals from Hawaii into the United States will not be affected by the new immigration act, Secretary Davis held today.

Labor department officials, interpreting the terms of the new act, said that the 100,000 Japanese now legally in the Hawaiian Islands are restrained from coming to continental United States under the terms of the immigration act of 1917, and their status is in no way affected by the new act.

The statement of policy was made after the secretary had received an opinion from Frederick G Risley, solicitor of the department, that the provisions of the new act did not cover any but foreign countries.

Secretary Davis added, however, that aliens coming to the United States from Hawaii are subject to the restrictions of the general immigration act of 1917, and that Chinese are subject as well to the Chinese exclusion law.

"As a result of these requirements of law," he said, "all aliens coming from Hawaii to the United States must must be inspected and meet all the requirements of the immigration laws except the new act."

WEAVING MILLS TO BEGIN INCREASED PRODUCTION

Worcester, Mass., July 15.—The local office of the Wickwire-Spencer Steel corporation annaunced today that its weaving mills in Blue Island, Ills., Mount Wolf, Pa., Clinton, Mass., and this city are to begin immediately an increased production and that the skilled help in the plants will be returned to full time in cases where they have been working on short time. The increased operations in the weaving mills will also mean an increase of employment in the wire producing plants in Palmer, Mass., and Spencer, Mass. The mills affected by the increased operation employ about 3,000 hands under normal conditions.

COMMISSION HOUSES HAVE BEEN BUYING N. H. SHARES

New York, July 15.—Accumulation of New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad shares, which has engaged the attention of the financial district for many weeks, was given added interest today in estimates by leading commission houses of the quiet absorption. One firm which has been picking up the stock since it was below 20 calculated that at least 200,000 shares had been gathered in without concentrated buying.

COAL PRICES WENT UP, GASOLINE PRICES DOWN

Boston, July 15.—Coal prices went up and gasoline prices down in this city today. The boost in anthracite prices was 35 cents a ton to $15.75 for egg and stove sizes. The principal oil companies announced price reductions in gasoline ranging from 1 to 1 1-2 cents a gallon, making the retail prices from 21 to 21 1-2 cents.

ADVERTISING CONVENTION TO MEET NEXT IN HOUSTON, TEX.

London, July 15.—(By The A. P.)—The international advertising convention will meet at Houston, Texas, in 1925. This city was the unanimous choice of the delegates in session here today.

The Rev. Oren Vanloon, pastor of the Community church at Berkley, a suburb of Detroit, was brought to his home Monday from the Battle Creek hospital, where he was taken after he collapsed on the street there last Friday.

WOULD HAVE LABOR FINANCE THE LA FOLLETTE CAMPAIGN

Washington, July 15.—Financial support for the La Follette-for-president movement was sought today from thirty or more national labor organizations in an appeal sent out by officials of the conference for progressive political action which endorsed the Wisconsin senators independent candidacy at its Cleveland convention.

Each group was urged to make an immediate contribution, to be used in defraying preliminary campaign expenses, and to aid in the solicitation later of funds from individuals in their organizations.

The appeal was made by William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, and Arthur E. Holder, chairman and secretary, respectively, of the conference. They said that detailed plans for raising an adequate campaign fund, chiefly by small contributions from those in the working class, would be laid before the conference's national committee and perfect campaign plans.

Funds obtained by the conference organization will be used in carrying its fight for La Follette into all sections of the country. They also will be made available for use by Representative John M. Nelson of Wisconsin, campaign manager for La Follette, who has established headquarters in Chicago.

REGISTERED LETTERS OPENED BY ROBBERS

Hamburg, Germany, July 15.—Three hundred and fifty-six registered letters destined for Germany today were opened on board the steamer Belgenland by robbers who for some time have made the trans-Atlantic mails, especially letters destined for Germany and Austria, unsafe. Of the Belgenland's consignment of registered letters, twenty-eight were stolen and 328 had their contents filched.

Investigation has shown that the mail robbers have many helpers among members of the ship's crews. During recent months even unregistered letters destined for Germany and Austria have often been opened, apparently in the belief that single dollars have been enclosed for the benefit of suffering relatives in central Europe.

GUILTY OF THE ILLEGAL POSSESSION OF LIQUOR

Bangor, Me., July 15.—On presentation of evidence by federal and county officers that 490 quarts of liquor, mostly brandy and rum labeled "Santiago de Cuba brand," and hundreds of empty cans and bottles had been found about his village farm, James E. Clark of East Eddington was adjudged guilty of the illegal possession of the liquor in the municipal court here today and fined $250 and sentenced to three months in jail. He appealed and gave $500 bond. Clark's farmhouse was formerly well known as "Meadowbrook Inn," a popular resort for vacationists.

ORDERS TO SUSPEND RECRUITING FOR ARMY

Washington, July 15.—Orders were issued by the war department today for the indefinite suspension of all recruiting, final reports of the strength of the army on June 30, 1924, showing it to be at the full authorized strength of 118,750. Adjutant General Davis announced that enlistments for some time to come would be confined to re-enlistment of men with substantial records of service.

OPERATION RESUMED BY HOLYOKE COTTON MILLS

Holyoke, Mass., July 15.—The Lyman mills, cotton goods manufacturers, employing 1,100 hands, resumed operations today after a ten days' shutdown. For the present the mills will operate on a schedule of three days a week.

MAY LIBEL SCHOONER FOR SMUGGLING NARCOTICS

New York, July 15.—Federal authorities tonight considered libelling the Italia-America liner Duilio, after $400,000 narcotics raid at her pier early today and the arrest of nine of her crew.

Arturo Gaeta, ship's plumber, confessed he had smuggled in the contraband, authorities reported. Gaeta's arrest was alleged to have caused him to confess also that he had smuggled to this country, on a fruitless mission of salesmanship, a stolen Michael Angelo for the return of which the Italian government and offered $100,000 reward.

Gaeta was held in $15,000 bail. The Duilio's captain and seven of his chief officers, who were arrested but disclaimed all knowledge of the narcotics that had been secreted about the passengers' quarters, were held in $1,500 bail each. Edward Barnes, assistant solicitor of the legal division, customs department, announced that owners of the Duilio would be obliged to post a $6,000 bond before their ship would be permitted to sail for Naples Saturday.

The raid, participated in by 100 narcotics and customs agents, was spectacular. Two of their number had been working for months on the case. Yesterday, they said, they trailed a "go-between" to a Broadway cabaret, posed before him as "dopes," and learned that the Duilio had just brought in a huge supply of narcotics for distribution throughout American cities.

Maintaining the part the agents sought out Gaeta. The plumber scurried about the passenger quarters for a few moments, lifting rugs, overturning chairs and digging into the clothes chests, and, according to the agents, accumulated before their eyes 600 packages of narcotics. The sale prices was $110,000.

The signal for the raid was given and 100 armed agents swarmed aboard.

The plumber is alleged to have confessed that he smuggled the narcotics, for an American "dope ring."

In the midst of Gaeta's confession about the narcotics he is alleged offhandedly to have disclosed that he knew the whereabouts of the Michael Angelo, which he said was stolen from a cathedral in northern Italy eight years ago.

The painting, done on wood and in four sections, he said, had been in possession of Pappi Andrew Conduitti in Genoa. Conduitti entrusted two of the sections to Gaeto to be smuggled into the United States and sold at $500 apiece. He had brought them here on the Duilio's last trip, he related, but failed to make a sale so returned the masterpieces to Conduitti in Genoa.

MYSTERY OF UNIFORM OF NAVAL OFFICER SOLVED

New Haven, July 15.—Discovery today that O. H. M. Pino, a naval officer stationed at New London, reported to the police July 10 that an automobile belonging to him had been stolen in this city, probably solves the mystery surrounding the finding of the uniform of a naval officer in the woods near Maltby Lakes yesterday, about 100 feet off the Derby turnpike.

In the car at the time of its disappearance was a uniform belonging to the officer. The uniform that was found yesterday bore the inscription "Pino U. S. Langley." It is believed to have been the property of the officer and to have been thrown from the machine by the thieves that stole the machine.

A STATE POLICEMAN INDEFINITELY SUSPENDED

Middletown, Conn., July 15.—Indefinite suspension of State Police Officer Edward Sullivan of New Haven, attached to the Centerbrook and also the Groton barracks as one of the flying motorcycle squad, was announced by Superintendent of State Police Hurley today. No information was given for the action.

WILLIMANTIC

An optimistic survey of the business situation in Willimantic is something for which everyone has been anxiously waiting. A. E. Greene, prominent Rotarian and chamber of commerce man connected with The Geyer company in this city has prepared one exclusively for The Norwich Bulletin as printed below:

A mid-summer survey of the business situation in Willimantic does not reveal very much color, but it does unfold many encouraging features. The industrial activity is about the same as it was at the beginning of the last quarter. The mills and factories, with one or two exceptions, are still running on short time schedules. However, there has not been any further curtailing to speo of and it is the general opinion that the bottom has been reached. It is confidently hoped that at the close of the vacation season there will be a decided improvement in the volume of orders for goods manufactured in this vicinity.

The backward spring caused merchants to hesitate in placing orders for new materials, but with the advent of summer weather the need of replenishing their shelves becomes apparent. In fact, the merchants of Willimantic are inclined to be quite optimistic over the prospects for fall business. It seems to be the opinion of some of the leading merchants that the political convention had much to do with the general slowing-up of business. Now nominations have been made by both political parties and the assurance given of having a strong executive in the White House during the presidential term, in any event and this has removed much of the uncertainty that prevailed. The insistent demand for tax reduction and the genuine effort toward that end being made, not only nationally but by state and town officials as well, is one of the encouraging indications of business revival, since more funds will be available for industry.

Building has not gone forward with the vigor many looked for at this season of the year. Of course, there are some of the smaller types of building, such as garages and minor additions under construction at all times. However, there are not so many dwellings under construction as there were at this time last year, although ground is being broken for an important business building and the structural steel for the new theatre has arrived and rapid work is going forward on the construction. There is considerable construction work underway in adjacent towns in this class of employment, consequently there is apparently no considerable amount of idleness in the building trades. The condition of bank deposits and the demand for assistance from welfare organizations is one of the best criterions of the business situation, generall speaking. These institutions, together with the transportation companies and the telegraph and telephone organizations can give one a good conception of the commercial activity in any locality. A survey of these institutions would indicate that there is a considerable amount of business being done for the so-called dull season of the year. A steady improvement is hopefully looked for at an early date.

That Captain Frank P. Fenton of this city, minority leader in the house of representatives, would be popular in political circles as a candidate for governor is proven by a shower of communications which he has been receiving during the past few days requesting him not to turn down the nomination if it is accorded him. The messages were received by telegrams, letters, cards and telephone. In many instances financial support has been offered along with moral backing and in all of the cases Mr. Fenton is petitioned to announce publicly his consent to enter the field of candidates. Captain Fenton was a delegate to the national democratic convention held in New York.

The public open air concert given by the B. P. O. E. band, Charles N. C. Wheeler, director, at Elks park Tuesday evening was largely attended. The weather conditions were ideal. The program included: Stars and Stripes Forever, Sousa; overture, Morning, Noon and Night, Suppe; trombone solo; overture, Princess of India, King; Andalusian Serenade, Bonnell; selection, Prince of Pilsen, Ludus; caprice, Woodland Glade, Meloso; overture, Iron Count, King; march, Attorney General, King; Star Spangled Banner.

Telephone directories of the summer issues were being distributed Tuesday by the Southern New England Telephone company. 3,500 of that number are for Willimantic subscribers, 550 for the Stafford Springs exchange and 225 went to the Lebanon exchange.

Bathing at Lake Wangumbaug, South Coventry continues to attract hundreds during the warm weather. A new diving launch has been placed at the head of the lake.

Henry Rioux and Miss Jeanette Menard, both of this city, were married Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock in St Mary's church, Rev. E. A. Mathieu solemnized the marriage, also sang the nuptial high mass. The witnesses were Diodore Delage, uncle and Mrs. Talmire Monast, mother of the bride.

MISS ODELLA MARCOUX DIES FROM INJURIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, July 15.—Miss Odella Marcoux, 39, died at her home, 55 Ives street, at 1.30 o'clock Tuesday morning from injuries sustained in a brutal assault on her by her brother-in-law, Fred Lusvick, late Saturday night, July 5. Mrs. Mary Marcoux, Mrs. Mary Marcoux, mother of the deceased and Mrs. Ida Lusvick were assaulted at the same time. The mother-in-law received three fractured ribs and Mrs. Lusvick was cut about the head. Both have since recovered.

From the time of the assault, when she was thrown down a flight of stairs the condition of Miss Marcoux has been considered serious, she having sustained a dislocated right shoulder, a fractured elbow and internal injuries. The wound on her head later proved to be a fractured skull and the woman developed paralysis. Her condition became worse Thursday.

Lusvick was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace in police court Monday July 7, and as he did not seem to understand the situation, a plea of not guilty was entered for him. The case was continued to await developments in the condition of Miss Marcoux, the accused being under bonds of $5,000. It is expected that he will now be charged with manslaughter.

Miss Marcoux was born in Windsor Mills, Canada, the daughter of John and Mary Dion Marcoux. She had resided in this city for the past 13 years, and lived with her mother at 59 Ives street. She leaves besides her mother, seven sisters and three brothers, Mrs. Henry Bonneville of New Bedford, Mass., Mrs. Eugene Bonneville of Montville, Mrs. James Bolger of Montville, Mrs. Merton Miller of Norwich, Mrs. Philip Racine of Weedon, Canada, Mrs. Howard Browne and Mrs. Fred Lusvick of Willimantic, Joseph Marcoux of Montville, John and Peter Marcoux of this city.

County Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson and Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason performed an autopsy on the body of Miss Marcoux at the Hurteau-Bosse undertaking rooms Tuesday night and will hold an inquest Wednesday.

WILLIMANTIC THREATENED WITH WATER SHORTAGE

Willimantic is threatened with a water shortage, it was brought out by Supt. of Water Works Henderson S. Moulton, at the July meeting of the common council held Monday night. Acting Mayor George W. Hicks presiding. Supt. Moulton pointed out that the recent drought had sadly affected the pumping station pond from where the city's supply of water is secured. In case of an emergency he suggested that the city prepare to purchase water. In case of such necessity, the water committee was authorized to buy water from Storrs pond, in Westford, which is controlled by Gardner Hall. In years past water has been purchased in Westford from E. H. Hall and E. A. Buck. Corporation Counsel Thomas J. Kelly rendered his decision in regard to the paying of a salary to the Acting mayor. His report set forth that Acting Mayor Hickey, who as president of the board succeeded to the mayorality upon the death of Mayor Hormisdas Dion, April 27 last, remains a member of the board of aldermen, therefore cannot receive compensation. After regret had been expressed by both republican and democratic councilmen concerning this state of affairs Councilor Kelly's opinion was accepted. City Treasurer James S. Donohue, Jr., read the minutes and the reports of the street department, police department, fire department and fire marshal. Resolutions were introduced and acted upon in the following order: For 100 foot extension on the water main on Lebanon avenue, by Alderman Jackson, referred to the water committee with power; for the purchase of a tapping machine and appropriation of $700 for that purpose, by Alderman Buck, referred to the water committee; for installation of a fire hydrant, corner of South and Bayne streets, by Alderman Laramee, adopted; for the investigation of sanitary conditions at the sewer outlet in the Natchaug river, by Alderman Lee, referred to the sewer committee; for the repainting of the city court chambers and the purchase of 12 new chairs for the court room, by Alderman Lee, adopted; for the inspection of the water supply and plant and appropriation of $150 for the work, by Alderman Buck; adopted; for the acceptance of Graystone street as a city street, adopted; for the installation of an electric light on Valley street extension adopted; for the changing of a position of a street light on Jackson street near Bolivia street, by Alderman Lee, adopted. The report of the survey of Main street and a recommendation by the street committee for its adoption as a city street was adopted. The application of Lee G. Piche for appointed as supernumerary officer of the police department was read, Mr. Piche was unanimously endorsed by the board.

Preliminary steps were taken for remedying present traffic conditions in the city by the adoption of a resolution calling for a joint survey of the condition by the police committee and officials of the police department. The finance committee was given power to act on a resolution to cut the salary of the assistant city clerk from $25 to $18 per week. The present incumbent Miss May Cheney has tended

WESTERLY

The bi-monthly session of Westerly probate court was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the probate court room, Westerly town hall. Probate Court Judge Edward M. Burke in a short session disposed of business as follows:

Estate of William H. Pendleton. First and final account of Washington Trust company as executor was received, allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate of Joseph White Wilshire. Petition of Joseph Wilshire of Cincinnati for appointment as executor of the estate in Rhode Island of minor children. Joseph Wilshire was appointed with bond and surety. Frank W. Coy was named as appraiser.

A bearish market in watermelons was created in Westerly Tuesday night and all because of the tariff legislation of the Westerly town council. In the space of one hour before closing of Mohican market the melon stock had been so watered that it fell off 26 points. D. Jacobonits and partner of Springfield, Mass., came to Westerly, Tuesday with a truckload of watermelons and began to dispose of their wares without first obtaining the necessary permit required by the recently enacted itinerant vendors act of the Westerly town council. Police Officer Robert Kessel observed the men dispose of forty to the Mohican market and then he gathered the vendors in about 4 o'clock. An hour later they were presented before Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., on a charge of peddling without a license. They were found guilty and each was fined $20 and costs, which totaled $41.20. Not having this amount they communicated with Paul Munsel, of the Mohican, who purchased eighty more; thus the town's claims were liquidated and a bearish market was created in the watermelon corner of the back room.

This is to be a "regular" summer in Westerly, that is, the summer is not going by as it did last year but is to have at least one three-ring circus. And the circus is to be in Westerly, not Pawcatuck, which is understood to be on the circus black list because the fees have been raised. A brand new circus lot, never having been used before for that purpose is to be tried out. It is on the Potter Hill road, two big lots of Simon P. Nichols. The circus is that of James Patterson and known as the Gentry-Patterson circus which travels on a 15-car circus train. The circus has been playing in Ohio and New York state and the newspaper comments dwell especially on the high-class program. Police committee permission has been obtained and the Westerly town council will issue the necessary license. Today the circus is playing at Sag Harbor to be followed by Patchogue and Bayshore, L. I. The circus comes to Westerly from Essex and will leave here for Norwalk.

At the parsonage of Grace Methodist Episcopal church Monday evening, Clara Josephine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bennett of Potter Hill, was united in marriage with Albert Ryan Bailey, also of Potter Hill. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Marvin S. Stocking, pastor of the Methodist church, the double ring service being used. Only relatives of the bride and groom were present.

The gown of the bride was of white flat crepe trimmed with Chantilly lace with hat to match. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Ethel R. Bennett, sister of the bride, wore white canton crepe with hat to match and carried pink roses. The groom had his brother, Edward Bailey of New London, as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey left soon after the ceremony on a trip to New York. They will also visit with the bride's brother, Clarence H. Bennet of Holyoke, Mass.

Yachtsmen who took part in the annual Block Island race of the New York Athletic club returned to New York Sunday with a story that indicated the contest was the best and the most exciting in the history of yachting in the Winged Foot organization. Not only were records smashed, but two boats of the sailing division ran aground, one piling up on the rocks at the entrance of West harbor, Block Island, and is a total loss. The other ran aground on a sandbar, and after being hung up for several hours managed to get free and finally cross the finish line.

J. H. Duys Jr.'s Zingara, a 46-foot sloop, was the craft that ran on the rocks and finally was smashed to pieces by the waves. The accident happened early Sunday morning.

Fortunately, life guards were patrolling the neighboring waters. They came to the rescue of Captain Duys and his crew. All were saved, but it was found impossible to get the yacht off the rocks. The craft was badly pounded by the waves, and on the following day was found to be a complete wreck. She was not insured, although the craft probably was worth $10,000.

Interest is taken in Westerly and Watch Hill in the yacht Zingara's fate for it was this yacht that came in on Watch Hill point last summer, as the sailing craft was returning in the thick fog to New York when it participated in the year ago Block Island race of the New York Athletic club. The coastguard men from the Watch Hill station went out to the yacht and towed it around Watch Hill point, and it cleared soon after. At that time a government flying boat was lost in the fog and the coast guardsmen assisted it to leave the bathing beach, off which it passed the night, on the following morning.

The third in the series of band concerts in Wilcox park by the Westerly band, C. O. Gavitt, director, is scheduled for Thursday night at 8 o'clock. Following is the program for the concert which was postponed from a week ago Thursday night because of the rainstorm that afternoon:

M. L. Kaiser of Woodside, N. Y., has arrived at Shelter Harbor, Quonochontaug, R. I.

Mary Lenihan of Providence is the guest for a week of the family of Joseph W. Delaney.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Higgins of Manchester motored to Pawcatuck and were guests of relatives over the week-end.

At a general meeting of St. Michael's Girl Scouts Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the parish hall, final plans were made for attending camp, and the period for making application for camp was closed. About 35 girls have signified their intention of attending Camp Merritt at Gales Ferry from August 2 to Aug. 9.

The Girl Scouts participated in the parade Sunday in connection with the unveiling of the Hiker memorial in the park. The bugle and drum corps, under the direction of Alfred Rose, which elicited so much favorable comment on Memorial day appeared on Sunday.

Taking the Nation by Storm—

One-Shot Lubrication System

WHEN you come in to see the 1925 Cleveland Six—you are going to find something real to look at!

A totally new car, of course. Longer, stronger, handsomer, and more powerful—a beauty in every sense of the word!

But that isn't all. You are going to see the biggest convenience feature ever offered the motorist—a patented lubrication system that does away with the greasy, grimy task of oiling and greasing the car by hand!

Takes 2 Seconds

You will never know what convenience means until you see the One-Shot Lubrication System. Think of driving a car on which you never use a grease gun or oil can—on which squeaks and rattles and prematurely worn parts are literally unknown.

A plunger projects through the floor board. When you step on it, 23 vital parts of the car are lubricated simultaneously.

No wonder the 1925 Cleveland Six is taking the nation by storm! It's the easiest car in the world to take care of—and, in addition, it offers qualities of performance, beauty, stamina and economy never before available in any car of moderate price!

Mileage Motor

You would never believe that a motor so smooth and silent could be so powerful. Speed? More than you ever want to use! Acceleration? From 5 to 25 m. p. h. in less than 7 seconds! Hills? No car built will ever pass you!

Balloon Tires

Comfort, too! The comfort that only genuine, supersize balloon tires can provide. All models come equipped with them at no extra cost. And if you prefer

4-Wheel Brakes

See the 1925 Cleveland Six! Ride in it! We repeat—get behind the wheel and get a thrill.

OSCAR F. CHAPMAN, MYSTIC, SUICIDES BY SHOOTING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Mystic, July 15.—Oscar Floyd Chapman, 34, was found dead among the bushes back of his garage Tuesday morning about 10 o'clock. It is thought that he took his own life about 7 o'clock Monday evening, because that was the time at which he disappeared from home, and someone heard a shot about that time, but no particular attention was paid to it. His gun was found by his side. His home was located on the ledge above Water street, not far from the railroad track but well above it, and while search was made for him Monday night after his disappearance it was not until morning that he was found. It is said that Charles Beauchamp found the body.

Mr. Chapman was a man of temperate habits, but is said to have appeared very nervous of late. He was the son of Reuben Chapman of Mason's Island, by whom he is survived. He also leaves his wife, Gertrude L. Chapman, and a son, Lloyd Tyler Chapman, a brother, Archie Chapman, and four sisters, Mrs. Lydia Swest of Noank, Mrs. Samuel Main and Mrs. Benjamin Park of Mystic and Mrs. Joseph Dodo of Poquonnoc Bridge.

An inquest was held by Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sale of Residence Property.

John A. Moran, the real estate broker, sold for Miss Katherine E. Lyon on Tuesday the residence property on the junction of Pine, West Main and Maple streets. It is an eight-room house with all modern conveniences and four acres of choice land. The purchaser is J. E. Elliott of Danielson who will make the place his home.

Popular Excursion to New York Next Sunday

A special excursion from this city and New London to New York and return will be run by the New Haven Railroad next Sunday, July 20th at a most attractive reduced fare for the round trip.

The schedule for the special train has been arranged to allow a full day in New York and many local groups are forming special parties to visit Coney Island or take a night sailing trip or go to the ball game or enjoy themselves in any one of the hundred different ways in New York City.

The special excursion train will leave Norwich Station at 6:30 a. m. and then run to New York, Grand Central Terminal, direct without stop arriving at 1.05 a. m.; on the return trip the excursion special will leave Grand Central Terminal at 6:30 p. m. eastern standard time and make a non-stop run to New London, arriving at 9:30 p. m. and reaching Norwich at 10.05, p. m.

Tickets for the excursion are now on sale at the station ticket office and it will be a case of "first come first served" in view of the fact that the number of tickets will be limited to the seating capacity of the special train.

Broadway Theatre.

Pert Kelton, that distinguished stage star, is one of the features. She is called "Miss Versatility" and rightly so. She is ably assisted by a company of two.

Out of the channels of the ordinary come Sinde Dale and Dixie De-Lane in a classic in song and dance.

The photoplay is Untamed Youth with Derelys Perdue, Ralph Lewis, Lloyd Hughes and all star cast, from the play, Born of the Cyclone, by G. Marion Burton.

Double Attraction at the Breed

Another double feature program is booked for the patrons of the Breed theatre, today and Thursday. The main attraction is the incomparable Annette Kellerman, whose diving skill is world renowned, gives a fascinating portrayal of the island maid in Venus of the South Seas. Here is a picture that will delight all theatregoers, with its vivid views of tropical life, its startling under-sea scenes and its daring performances beneath the water.

A fantastic story is woven against a most unusual background. Dramatic scenes of fighting, of frolicing, of love-making at the bottom of the ocean, give one a glimpse of a world different from our every day planet.

If you like novelty combined with action and artistry, be sure to see Venus of the South Seas.

The second feature is William Russell's first comedy drama, Times Have Changed, produced by William Fox and pronounced an uproarious success, opens today for the first exhibition.

Times Have Changed is an entertaining feature which presents the serious side of life humorously. Its attitude speaks the popular phrase, "It is to laugh." Mabel Julienne Scott and Allene Ray support Russell.

Palace Theatre

Your last chance to see the picture that has been acclaimed by the theatregoers of Norwich and vicinity, Between Friends with an all star cast including Lou Tellegen, Alice Calhoun, Anna Q. Nilsson and Norman Kerry, as the most wonderful picture they have ever made. Be sure to see it your last chance today.

Three days starting tomorrow My Man by George Randolph Chester with Patsy Ruth Miller, Dustin Farnum and an all star cast. The bone ruthless caveman of the city, whose iron hand was felt in every home, rode roughshod in his wooing until tamed by the spirited girl he loved. A drama of high finance and society. On the same program special added attraction Rudolph Valentino and Carmel Myers in A Society Sensation at last—after months and months of waiting—another Valentino picture with Rudolph in 100 per cent form as the greatest and most dazzling of all lovers Valentino as of old in a masterful, romantic role. Also Latest Pathe Review and Palace supreme orchestra. It's real entertainment don't miss it.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A forest fire that burned over a large area in the town of Glocester, R. I., just over the line from East Killingly, broke out afresh Tuesday and during the afternoon was sweeping over valuable forest land in such threatening manner as to arouse the fears of all interested persons that it would do further extensive damage before being brought under control. Late in the afternoon it was stated that the flames were eating their way toward woodland owned by Byron M. Lewis and endangering 500 cords of wood that has been cut there.

The rain of Sunday checked the fire, but it evidently has been smouldering since that time, and by Tuesday had gained another start and set out to do further heavy damage. A large force of fire fighters was engaged in the work of trying to control the fire late Tuesday afternoon and into the evening hours.

Though definite figures are not yet available, and in the order of things cannot be, in view of the fact that the town's financial year does not end until July 31, it may be stated at this time that the prospects are for a financial report that will be pleasing to the voters.

Of special interest is the fact that $27,500 in personal notes have been retired recently by paying. The budget provided for the retirement of $25,000 of such notes, but the town officials have been able to pay $2,500 more than that, leaving very few such obligations of the town outstanding.

Good collections of taxes helped making the favorable showing possible. The property tax collections have been heavy and revenue from personal taxes is about $1,200 in excess of what has been anticipated. The financial year will come to a close with a good balance in the treasury, probably in excess of $20,000, and it now appears that the town has sufficient funds on hand to maintain itself until October.

Tuesday afternoon at his home in East Killingly funeral services for Benjamin Franklin Chaffee were conducted by Rev. W. D. Hetherington, pastor of the Union Baptist church here. Burial was in Grove street cemetery at Putnam. The bearers were six grand-nephews of Mr. Chaffee—Carlton Smith, Ralph Smith, Willis Smith, Stephen Smith, Fred Smith and Russell Hammond. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

All tuition due the town of Killingly on account of pupils from other towns studying in this town's schools has been paid and amounts in the aggregate to $4,660, which is in excess of the amount that it was expected would be derived from that source this year. The towns from which the tuition comes are Brooklyn, Pomfret, Canterbury, Foster, Sterling, and Voluntown, Brooklyn paying the heaviest proportion.

Tomorrow (Thursday) the members of McGregor Woman's Relief corps will have their annual outing with their guests, the members of McGregor post, G. A. R., and Col. Edward Anderson camp, Sons of Veterans, and members of their families. The gathering will be at Wildwood park. The Relief corps will serve a lunch at the noon hour. No special program for the day has been outlined, but there will be a variety of activities, all of an interesting nature.

Many Danielson people attended the Sells-Floto circus at Putnam Tuesday, and it was remarked generally that it was a good show.

Unfortunate was the incident in which a cat and her kittens were mutilated by a mowing machine engaged in cutting through heavy grass where the operator of the machine could not see them, in a field near North street. The same sort of an accident happened in a field east of Danielson Monday when a mowing machine cut the legs off a young crane and injured another one slightly.

Along the main highway through Elmville gas connections for about every dwelling are being made, an evidence that residents there are appreciative of the new service to be made available for them.

For overstaying the 60-minute parking limit in the business section, the owner of a Masschusetts car had his machine tagged Tuesday, the first one to receive such attention in several days. The rule on time limit is being strictly enforced.

So far as could be learned from authorities in Woodstock, up to a late hour Tuesday evening no arrests for bathing in Roseland Lake had been made by the state police.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Cole are occupying their cottage at Groton Long Point. They have as guests Mrs. Joslin and her granddaughter, Miss Frances Cutler of Oak Hill.

George W. Webster of Boston, was in the city, Tuesday. Mr. Webster was for many years a resident of Putnam while a mail clerk on a train passing through this city.

Everett Barbour of New Britain was presented before Justice Percy Tourtellotte at North Grosvenordale, Monday evening, and was fined $25 and costs after being found guilty of reckless driving. He appealed. State Policeman Merrill Keith, testified that the defendant was driving his car from 4 to 40 miles an hour past the intersection of roads at West Thompson. The defendant admitted to travelling at 30 and another witness estimated his speed at 25 miles an hour.

Miss Sue Vinton of Uxbridge, Mass., is the guest of Miss Ellen Wheelock, of Church street.

Warren Arnold of Providence, long a resident of Putnam, is in the city calling on friends. He has not been in Putnam for some years.

Friends of Benpamin F. Chaffee, who died in East Killingly, Saturday, attended the funeral service at his home Tuesday afternoon. Burial was in Grove street cemetery, Putnam.

Tuesday from 6 a. m. to 11 p. m. was Circus Day all day in Putnam. While not a holiday, literally it was in effect. The city was swelled in numbers by at least a tenth of its normal population by the circus people alone. The show carried 900 and the followers make up the other hundred. But notwithstanding the unusual numbers in the city, the excitement engendered by the presence of the big Sells Floto show, there was no disorder. Extra police were on duty but they had little do do and not an arrest was was made.

The big parade passed through the streets on time. Those who have seen the Barnum and Ringling shows recently say that Sells Floto is not second to them but on par. Certainly the parade was a show in itself. There were 15 elephants, several cages of lions and tigers, bears, camels and monkeys and even a hippopotamus, a veritable zoo for country boys and girls who have no opportunity to visit a city park.

The big tent of the Sells Floto holds 9,000 people, but it was not completely filled at either the afternoon or evening performance. When it is known that Putnam is a center of about 20,000 people it seems that the big show is playing an unusually small town for its size in stopping off here.

Local business conditions influenced the attendance mark and it is known that some stayed away on account of the smallpox scare. The show came, made a good impression and gave two excellent entertainments. Its agents were businesslike and pleasant men to meet.

Of the hundreds who attended the circus there were none more appreciative than the children from the county home, who were the guests of the Putnam Rotary club. Three trucks were needed to bring the youngsters from the Sawyer district to the city and they arrived early, singing as they passed through the city. Peanuts and lemonade were in abundance but some of the youngsters were too excited to think of eating or drinking. It was their first circus and no one is so old as to forget what a first circus meant to him.

The children entered the big top early and spent nearly an hour watching, investigating and admiring the animals, of which the show carries many cages and a large variety.

Trolley car service along the local line was a bit disturbed from its usual smooth operation Tuesday because of the big parade by a circus through Putnam's streets, this during the late forenoon.

East Killingly is looking forward to its annual Old Home day celebration, which will come on an unannounced date in August.

Miss Ethel Tillinghast is at Northfield, from which place Miss Grace Spalding has returned after a stay of a week.

Miss Gertrude Stone of Academy street was a visitor with friends in Providence Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Wolfe, Leslie Murray and Miss Madeline Cronin have been recent visitors in Norwich.

T. J. Aylward and Miss Helen E. Aylward visited in Providence Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Stone of Providence have been visiting relatives in Danielson.

A highway danger spot is in Cottage street, between Furnace and Water, due to the fact that the trolley track on the south side of the street is left with bare ties, making dangerous conditions for driving if automobiles have to pass at that point.

There are 60 names on the Killingly list of electors who will be eligible for jury service for one year from Sept. 1. in the superior court for Windham county.

A PLEA TO MEN

Please keep your hair

By Edna Wallace Hopper

You men admire luxuriant hair, thick and lustrous, healthy, clean. And so do we, dear sirs. Then, why will you, through sheer neglect, let your hair disappear.

E. Wallace Hopper Photo 1923

My hair is finer than 40 years ago, It grows thicker every year. I have never known falling hair or dandruff, and never a touch of gray. Just because I searched the world for the best hair helps men know. And I had them combined in a tonic and cleanser which I call Hair Youth. From time to time each better help discovered has been added to it.

I believe the experts I consult know all that is known about hair. I know they supply me their utmost. Certainly no factors ever discovered have brought finer hair than mine.

Now I offer you, as I offer women, this supreme help for the hair. It is concentrated. You apply it with an eyedropper directly to the scalp. There it combats the hardened oil and dandruff which so stifle the hair roots. It tones and stimulates. Then hair thrives just as flowers thrive in a well-kept garden.

I know that here I place at your command the greatest hair help in existence. Not some fallacious theory, not some ordinary tonic, but the best that science has discovered, so far as I can find.

All druggists and toilet counters supply my Hair Youth under guarantee. The first package brings you help you seek, or I will pay the cost. The cost is 50 cents and $1 with eyedropper. Let me urge you to try it. We women—all of us—love to see heavy, healthy hair. And I have found the way.

I will send you a bottle to try without cost if you mail this coupon to me.

KNOWLTON GIFT TO ASHFORD A $120,000 BUILDING

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, July 15.—The community and town house being erected in Warrenville in the town of Ashford by Charles C. Knowlton of Brooklyn, N. Y., as a memorial to his forbears is nearly completed. In a few weeks the beautiful building will be ready to be turned over to the town. Workmen are finishing the interior and but little more remains to be done.

There is no other building in the county to compare with this memorial building. It will cost at least $120,000 when completed and is absolutely freproof.

The building, which is of generous size, is built of round stone and cement. The walls are 20 inches thick, the roof of copper. The building contains a large heating apparatus and electric lighting plant in the basement. On the first floor is the town clerk's office in which is a large steel vault. On the opposite side of the reception room is a kitchen. The rest of the floor is devoted to a large hall with stage. The floor in this hall is of inlaid wood as is the large hall above it. In the first floor hall is a stage to be used in giving entertainments, while in the hall above as there is no stage, the whole floor space may be devoted to dancing.

The selectmen's room is on the second floor; also lavatories and bath. The stairways are all iron and the interior is of cement. Very little wood has been used in the construction. The grounds in front of the building have been graded and will be sown to grass.

The location of the building is 12 to 15 miles from a railroad. How the location impressed one of the New York workmen is evidenced by his statement that "this is a Fifth avenue building in the wilderness."

To a New Yorker, who gets homesick ten miles from Broadway, Warrenville may appear a "wilderness." To Charles Clarke Knowlton, himself a New Yorker for over half a century, it is his boyhood home and the home of his forefathers. Mr. Knowlton was born in Ashford, September 22, 1844 and obtained his education in the public schools there. To afford him the advantages of advanced schooling the family moved to Rockville and remained there three years.

Mr. Knowlton's father was John W. Knowlton and he is descended from General Knowlton to whom the state erected a monument as a commander. In the fall of 1863 Mr. Knowlton went to New York to work in a silk sales office. The following year he went to Boston in the same line of business. In 1863 he again went to New York as selling agent for G. A. Hammond, silk manufacturer and five years later the firm of Hammond, Knowlton was established with a silk mill in Putnam. A few years ago this concern was merged with the Hemingway silk manufacturing concern and is now a branch of the H. K. H. Silk company with two mills in Putnam, another in Watertown, this state, and others in New York state.

Mr. Knowlton, although 79, is still active in the business. He has for years maintained a summer home on Knowlton hill in the town of Ashford and spends considerable time there. Occasionally he visits Putnam and is well known here.

PLAINFIELD

Alcede Fournier, employed at the Lawton mills, was slightly injured on Monday morning, when a box which he was lifting fell on his chest. Mr. Fournier has been confined to his bed but will be around in a few days.

Mr. Bateson, Albert Mathew and Alvin White went on a fishing trip to Preston City Monday evening. In the few hours they were out they caught a very good mess of fish.

Walter Hill, of the Plainfield baseball team is laid up, as a result of a slight injury received in the baseball game at Moosup, Sunday.

Many of the parishioners of St. John's church were pleased at the announcement in The Bulletin Monday of Rev. William A. Keefe's twenty-first anniversary in the priesthood. Father Keefe was pastor at the church in Plainfield for a number of years. He was sent by the bishop of Hartford to start a new church in Plainfield. During his stay he made a great many friends among the townspeople. He left Plainfield, which he always called his home, in 1920, and went to St. Mary's parish, Norwich, where he has accomplished great results. While in Plainfield Father Keefe was an ardent war worker and great inspiration to the soldiers of his parish. With the cooperation of his parishioners, he virtually put Plainfield on the map many times for patriotism and welfare work.

William Delaney, an employe in the carding department of the Lawton Mills, is working on an invention that reduces work on a combing machine considerably. He stated Tuesday that his invention would be on the market in two weeks. About ten years ago Mr. Delaney invented a cleaning system on the combers which is in use today.

The state police were busy in Plainfield Monday evening on the state road watching for speeders, lights, etc.

The children of the Sunday school of St. John's church were delighted Monday when Rev. R. P. Morrissey, pastor of the church, announced that the outing this year would be to Rocky Point. He also told them that they would have a clambake. The Sunday school teachers will cooperate with the pastor to make a joyous outing for the children.

It is expected that the trip to the shore will be made in trucks. It was decided by Father Morrissey to have the annual outing next Monday.

Rev. R. P. Morrissey, Daniel Connell and Agustus Coffey motored to Providence on a business trip Monday.

It has been rumored about the village that Dr. A. A. Chase, Health Commissioner of the town of Plainfield will vaccinate the mill spinners of the Lawton Mills Corp. in spite of the objections of the employes.

A committee appointed by the union to investigate the statutes in regards to vaccination reported that it was not compulsory.

There seems to be no reason why they should not co-operate with the Health officials. In other rooms there have been very few employes who have stopped working on account of any results of vaccination. It seems as though the workers in the milling department were frightened by the stories that were told as soon as the word went about that vaccination would be performed on the people of the village. Some of the children in the Lawton nursery were vaccinated without any objection from most of the parents.

There was a meeting of the mule Spinners' Union Monday evening and they will probably overlook the idea of not wanting to stop a few days, should it be necessary, and prevent an epidemic.

The whole town was in darkness Sunday evening as a result of a light storm Sunday afternoon. There were no lights between 7 and 10:30. A throng of movie fans were disappointed because of the necessity of postponing the picture. Many of the old timers recalled when there were no street lights in Plainfield. It was a good thing the moon was out, or the night would have been miserable.

Nearly all the garage owners in Plainfield are adding to their string. Pretty soon there will be more garages than houses in Plainfield.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

J. J. McBain is cutting the hay on Harry Clark's farm.

Mr. and Mrs. George Slater are entertaining a friend from Woonsocket.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hall and Gertrude Hall were entertained at dinner Wednesday at the home of Mrs. William Holland in Putnam. The event was in honor of the twenty-second anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hall's marriage.

The showers Sunday proved a most welcome break in a drouth which has prevailed here as elsewhere for several weeks. It is hoped that the rain is not too late to help vegetation, which was suffering from lack of water.

Mrs. Edward Brown, of Killingly Center, was a recent visitor at Charles Young's.

Mrs. Jacob Spaulding and son, Marshall, are visiting relatives in Weston, Mass.

BOLTON

A meeting of subscribers for a perspective electric light company for Bolton was held at Bolton Hall Friday evening. A committee consisting of Charles F. Sumner, Samuel M. Alvord, I. White Sumner, Louis H. Levey, and J. W. Phelps was chosen to organize the Bolton Electric Light Co.

The plans are to have the line come from Manchester Green toward Bolton Notch as far as the New England Hotel, then on the cross road westward and south through Bolton Center as far as Louis H. Levey's summer home.

There was no service at the Congregational church Sunday as the pastor Rev. F. C. Taylor and Mrs. Taylor are visiting relatives in Westboro, Mass.

Forty-five members of Manchester Grange came to Bolton last Tuesday evening and provided the literary program at the meeting of Bolton Grange. The program consisted of vocal and instrumental music, recitations and two sketches. At the close of the meeting ice cream and cake were served.

A largely attended dance was held in Bolton Hall Saturday evening. A four-piece orchestra provided music. Lewis E. Beebe of Manchester prompted for the square dances.

Edwin Lawton, Jr., who has been ill, and under the care of a graduate nurse, is improving.

Miss Margaret H. Daly is taking a five weeks' course at the summer school at Yale University, New Haven.

Elmer J. Finley, Jr., has returned from the Manchester Memorial hospital, where he underwent a surgical operation and is recuperating at the family summer home Shady Nook.

Bolton relatives have received cards announcing the marriage of Miss Grace Virginia Pomeroy Hendricks of New York and Simsbury and George W. Patterson, Jr., recently.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Pinney were Mr. and Mrs. Moland Lord of De Sota, Florida and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wind of East Hartford.

Rev. William J. McGurk of Waterbury was a recent guest of his brother, B. L. McGurk.

Miss Elizabeth Grogan of Hartford is spending sometime with Mr. and Mrs. B. L. McGurk at their summer home at the Center.

A party of eleven relatives and friends from New York are spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Carlevaro.

Farmers, market gardeners and fruit raisers will be equally thankful for the rain Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Legate of Hartford were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. William Elmer J. Finley at their summer home, Shady Nook.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Goodall of Indianapolis are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Levey.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Loomis, W. B. Loomis, Robert C. Loomis and son, of Westfield, have been visiting Mrs. William H. Loomis.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Couch, with their niece, and her husband of Hockanum were guests of Mrs. Rose Dutton recently.

MOHEGAN

Mr. Lindsey of Vermont called on Mr. and Mrs. Strickland recently.

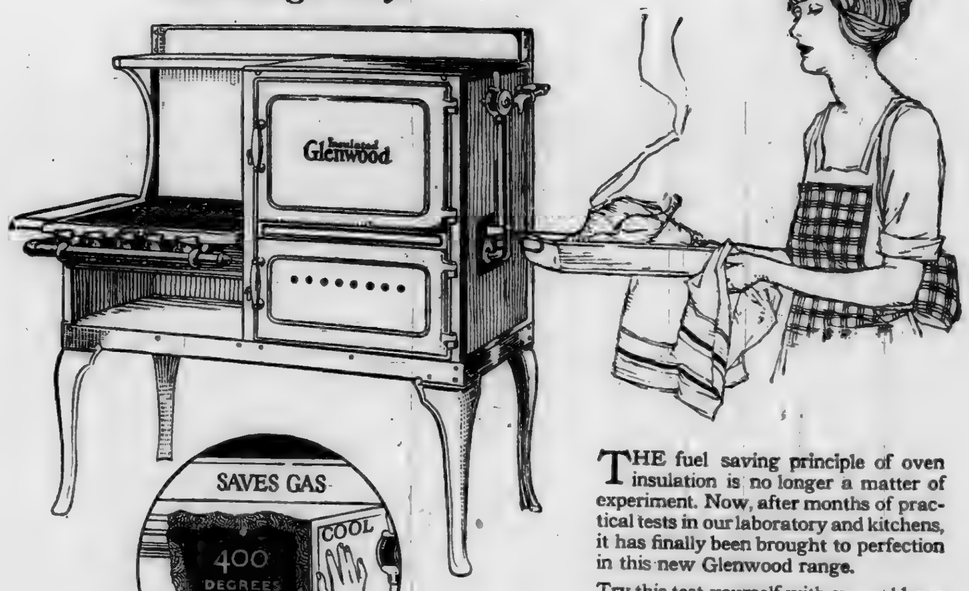
Mr. and Mrs. Anson Dolbeare of Boston motored here the first of the week and are guests at the Matthews home. While here Mr. and Mrs. Dolbeare, Mrs. Dolbeare, Jr., and Mrs. Skeesuck and Mrs. Avery went to Ocean Beach.

Mrs. Pete and son Harold, who have been visiting in Providence for a few days, have returned.

Mrs. Nonsuch and sister of Philadelphia were callers at the Matthews home recently.

The New Glenwood INSULATED OVEN

Perfected to Make Cooking Easy



An inch and a half of mineral wool insulates the walls of this oven. This saves gas every time you bake.

THE fuel saving principle of oven insulation is no longer a matter of experiment. Now, after months of practical tests in our laboratory and kitchens, it has finally been brought to perfection in this new Glenwood range.

Try this test yourself with your old gas range. When the oven has been heating for 20 minutes or more lay your hand against the outside. You'll find it uncomfortably hot. This means, of course, that a good deal of the cooking heat has been radiating through the sides of the oven, wasting gas and heating up your kitchen.

But with a Glenwood Insulated Oven this heat is held inside by cool walls of thick mineral wool. Every time you use this oven you'll be saving gas.

With the Glenwood Robertshaw Oven Heat Control

Suppose you are cooking a whole meal in this new Glenwood. Set the indicator at 275 degrees, put all your food in tightly covered pans and you needn't look at it again for three hours.

The gas will be automatically turned down the minute the oven has reached 275 degrees. The insulated walls hold all heat so that the flow of gas is gradually shut down even more. When you come back everything will be cooked just right. Then feel the outside of the oven and you'll see how these two Glenwood features have been saving heat and fuel for you every minute since you first turned on the gas.

Ask to see the Insulated Glenwood at your local gas company or range dealers. Or write us for Booklet A.

SMUGGLING ALIENS.

Fixing quotas and declaring that no others can enter the country is not going to be enough to accomplish the keeping out of the large number of immigrants who want to enter. It will prevent many from coming in, but there must be much vigilance exercised in connection with the enforcement of the law. Otherwise there will be much evasion and much illegal immigration.

This is indicated by the capture of the launch bringing 31 Italians ashore from a three-masted schooner, which had brought them across the Atlantic to be smuggled into this country. But for the alertness of the authorities in dealing with rum runners this delivery might have been made without interference. It was in fact no different than other endeavors to bring bootleg aliens into the country. The interruption of such schemes indicates what can be expected as the result of putting up the bars, but it likewise indicates the character of the penalty that should be imposed to discourage such acts. The Italians have lost the money they paid for being smuggled in, the owner and mate of the launch are in the hands of the authorities, but those who operated the schooner may never be known.

Had the Italians been landed it is probable that their illegal entry would never have become known. Their deportation therefore would not have been threatened. As it is an interesting light is thrown upon the character of the law enforcement that must go with the new immigration act. The greater the restriction the greater the task of enforcement, both along the shores and the borders.

But while the enforcement of the law looms up prominently there cannot fail to be recognized the importance of protecting ourselves against such illegal immigration once these people get into the country. As it is now there's little chance of detecting them. If every immigrant was obliged to register there would be a means of knowing who were entitled to be here and who were not, and those who could not produce a registration card would be subject to deportation. Smuggling under such conditions would not be so attractive.

ADMISSION TAXES.

Commencing with this month there went into effect changes in the internal revenue law which eliminated the taxes on admissions to theaters, entertainments and the like. It was part of the nuisance tax removal which congress voted. There was not removed, however, all taxes on admissions, but simply those where the admission is 50 cents or under. The tax continues to be 10 per cent on admissions over 50 cents.

Because of the fact that the bureau of internal revenue has received complaints to the effect that there were instances where the tax was collected after the date fixed for stopping it, it has been considered wise to warn the people against paying any such tax and to caution those who have been levying such taxes on ticket purchasers to refrain from such collections.

Where the war tax has been collected it has invariably been added to the regular price of admission. Hence with the tax removed there should be a corresponding decrease in the amount which those purchasing admission tickets are required to pay. The admission price may remain the same but the tax must not be collected.

Inasmuch as the internal revenue bureau has placed the obligation upon amusement places to collect the tax it is only just that it should take an interest in seeing that those who have been representing it are not permitted to continue to tax the people and pocket the proceeds. In planning to call such cases to the attention of United States attorneys it takes a step for the protection of the public that is commendable and timely.

It cannot be believed that there will be many who will try to defraud the public in such a manner. The amount is small but it is the worst kind of advertising, and those conducting places of amusement cannot afford to give themselves such a black eye as would be received from the reaction of the patrons. That honesty is the best policy is well understood by those who are dependent on the public for their living.

TUSKEGEE HOSPITAL.

Perhaps there has been no real reason why the color line should be drawn and none but colored surgeons and doctors allowed to serve those in the Tuskegee hospital in Alabama. But neither does there appear to be any good reason why this institution for the benefit of the colored should not be conducted solely by colored people from flunkey to superintendent provided it is possible to obtain those who can meet the requirements.

This has been an open question for a considerable time. There are those who have fought the idea of placing the hospital under the management of colored people, while the latter, including the patients who are colored veterans of the war, have sought those of their own color to administer to their wants.

When the announcement is made from Washington to the effect that the institution is now managed and served solely by Negroes there is a fulfillment of a promise made to the colored people that the desired change would be made when it was believed that there were those among the colored capable of directing it. It is clearly a case of testing out the fitness of such an arrangement. The government has shown itself willing to yield to the demands and to give them a chance, for if the colored physician, surgeon or superintendent is going to measure up to requirements and be of real service it is to be expected that it will be among his own people. Therefore the chance to demonstrate his ability for this work must be provided among his own, and when they are insistent that they be thus favored and encouraged there seems to be no sound objection on the part of the whites to such an arrangement.

It will be unfortunate if there is opposition from the whites to such management of the hospital. They object if the colored man mingles with them, but they should be happy when they can so manage their own institutions as to take care of themselves. It is time to give them a chance to help and serve their own.

TAMMANY STILL LIVES.

The choice of the head of Tammany, New York's democratic organization, arouses interest because of the power that that organization wields and the corresponding authority of the individual who stands at its head. The political czar of New York is the head of Tammany and Tammany's influence is by no means restricted to New York city but extends to New York state and in so far as it is possible to the nation. No one overlooked the part that Tammany played in the recent New York convention.

In the choice of Judge G. W. Olvany as the head of Tammany, the impression may be gained that because he has been drafted from the bench it means a different Tammany. That idea is without foundation Judge Olvany even squelches it when he declares that he will follow the same general policies of his predecessor. That declaration is no different than was to be expected from anyone chosen to that position. It couldn't be otherwise, or he would have been chosen. Judge Olvany has long been a Tammany brave. He has been brought up in Tammany and he was placed on the bench because of his Tammany service and Tammany influence. Now he is called upon to take over the guidance of the organization, in the intricacies of which he has lost none of his cunning even during his occupation of the bench.

Tammany has been Murphy's organization for years, just the same as it was Croker's, and from now on it will be Olvany's, but that simply means that it will be continued in the same channel, use the same methods and deal with politics to win no matter how or what the expense. The choice of Judge Olvany simply means that Tammany still lives and that Tammany is in the hands of its friends.

THROWING LIVES AWAY.

Life is too precious a thing to be thrown away, and yet there are those who are doing this every day. That may not be what they set out to do but that is what they accomplish. By the way in which they fail to observe the ordinary requirements for self protection they invite a sudden, sometimes horrible and an untimely end.

The list includes those who hold a gun to their heads in fun and declare they are going to shoot themselves. They don't intend to do anything of the kind, because they think the gun unloaded. But when they find out it is loaded it is too late. The same is true of those who invite death in front of a locomotive, who attempt to change seats in a canoe, or who even go out in a canoe without knowing how to swim, those who venture into deep water, those who tempt fate by failing to learn how to take care of themselves in the water and those who dive in shallow places.

It is hard to understand why anyone, with the judgment that should be credited to youths, should undertake such a stunt as diving into water not up to the knees and expect to escape serious consequences. Because some thrilling stunts have been done by professional divers does not warrant the taking of chances which must be regarded as invitations to broken necks and sudden deaths. It is unfortunate that there are those who cannot seem to resist the temptation to try out daredevil performances, even though they know the consequences that go with failure, or not knowing how. Inasmuch as the supreme penalty is paid in throwing lives away in such manner, what is going to place the needed check upon such gross wastefulness?

SNARING A HEART

The old Willowby place had long since given up the effort to appear prosperous. The once famous white colonial mansion was dingy with age and gone to seed.

Joan Willowby was thirty-one and looked it. When a child her mother had died, leaving to her small daughter the task of mothering the other little Willowbys. During those long starved years she managed her father's household.

She had seen to it that Kathleen and Cynthia had all the advantages of their set. She had sent Gareth and Hugh to college when they should have been mending the roof or hoeing the garden. Many an evening she sat in solitary loneliness thinking wistfully of the gayety denied herself.

Now that Cynthia, the youngest, was married, there was no need to remain longer in the shabby old house. Nobody needed her now, and she was free to find an apartment in town and begin all over again.

When the Willowby place was put up for sale, Joan's family was horrified.

"Joan Willowby," cried Kathleen, who hadn't spent a night there in five years, "you don't actually mean you'd sell our historic old home? Have you no pride. We were all born there, and our father before us. Are you going to sell to a rank outsider the famous Willowby mansion, with its secret passages and the green room where Lincoln chatted with Great Grandfather, and then—oh, Joan, dear mother's room where she used to sit and—"

"Where she used to sit and knit and sew and shiver and long for a small, warm, comfortable cottage where she wouldn't have to work her fingers to the bone keeping up appearances!" cried Joan violently.

Then Aunt Diana arrived on the scene. She was a plump, energetic little woman who had buried two husbands and was looking for a third.

"You've played Cinderella long enough, my dear. Come out of the shadows. You've slaved so long that you've forgotten how to play."

Aunt Diana bedecked the veranda with gay wicker furniture. There was a male guest every week end.

"I wish, Auntie," began Joan, "that you'd leave me alone. I'm perfectly happy, so why marry?"

"Look here, Joan, Gano Downs is terribly interested in you!" cried the little bride Cynthia. "He's worth mints of money. Think of it, old dear, a house in Palm Beach, and a yacht."

"At your age," began Kathleen sweetly.

"Very well, bring him on," replied Joan, narrowing her eyes thoughtfully.

"You dear!" laughed Kathleen. "He admires your common sense. He says you have the most remarkable brain for a woman."

Joan donned a sweater and hastened to the grove in the rear of Willowby place. As the keen autumn wind lashed her face, her spirits soared. She adored these stately old trees. She would miss them. Here, too, there were ghosts, but she loved them.

"Hello, Joan."

Silently they made their way down the narrow path.

"No, a small town college professor has little time to himself." He lit his pipe thoughtfully. "What's this I hear about you leaving the old homestead?"

"Yes," she was saying glibly enough. "I'm going away to begin all over again." Then, in a sudden burst of confidence, just as one old friend to another, she told him of her domestic troubles.

"Don't let them weedle you into anything against your will, Joan. You're all right as you are."

"They shan't," she answered spiritedly. "I'm looking out for Joan Willowby from now on. I'm going to tell you a secret. I believe Gano Downs will buy Willowby Place. Isn't that splendid? And if he does I'll take a little trip somewhere, away from all the ghosts and the shadows."

Norman Judd carefully put out his pipe.

"Joan, I'd like awfully to talk with you."

"I've plenty of time," she replied.

Aunt Diana's party gave promise of being a huge success. Joan was charming to Gano Downs, and her sisters beamed.

"The psychological moment has arrived," whispered Norman, as he bent over Joan. Smilingly he led her to the center of the merry throng.

"Friends, we have a little surprise for you. Joan and I are going to be married."

"That ungrateful girl, after all we've done for her!" cried Kathleen angrily.

"Oh, do be quiet!" panted Aunt Diana. "Gano Downs just proposed to me. He's been crazy about me for ages—he swears it! He's bought Willowby Place, and is going to remodel it—for me. Not that I'm so keen about your old ancestral castle, but it will remain in the family, and that's refreshing."

So it turned out beautifully after all.—Ottawa Citizen.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Mme. Annie Besant, who, with others, India has lost confidence in Britain's Labor Government, and will declare for Home Rule, is something of an authority on conditions in India, where she has passed much of the latter part of her life. To the world at large Mme. Besant is best known as the high priestess of theosophy. By her admirers she has been designated as "the most remarkable woman of the age." Certainly, her's has been one of the most wierd and checkered careers that a woman ever had. She was born of Irish parents in humble circumstances. Her maiden name was Wood. In 1867 she married Rev. Frank Besant, who later rose to a place of importance in the church. After a few years the couple separated. Mme. Besant took to writing and lecturing and other work for the uplift of the masses. Then she joined the Theosophical Society and became the friend and intimate of Mme. Blavatsky. In 1907 she achieved her ambition of becoming world president of the cult.

MacMillan's Hope Slow of Fulfillment

When Donald Baxter MacMillan was nine years old his father, a sea captain, kissed his wife good-bye and sailed into the mysterious north, never to return. The future explorer had to go to work to support the large family left behind.

Under great handicaps, the lad managed to go to school and prepare himself for college. As a boy and man he cherished but one ambition, that was to be an arctic explorer, but his work as a teacher seemed to be cut out for him.

As a lad in Princeton, Mass., where he was born, he was noted for his enthusiasm, patience, grit, loyalty, reverence and especially for his courage. For risking his life on many occasions to save the drowning he was awarded medals and diplomas. Becoming a trained athlete, he set out to win trophies, but typhoid fever struck him down, and he dropped back a year in college.

In 1898 he was graduated from Bowdoin College and became principal of Levi Hall, North Gorham, Me. When he was 35 his ambition to go to the far north appeared to be as hopeless as ever. For some years he had been an instructor at the Worcester, Mass., Academy, and seemed likely to end his days amid tanquil academic influences, when suddenly Peary, who was soon to discover the north pole, asked him to join his expedition. A notable band of heroes set out on that bold adventure, and all who survived testified to inspiring of the schoolmaster explorer.

His independent explorations began when he lost himself in the north in 1913 to find out whether Peary's "Crocker Land" was real. He proved it a mirage, found many records left by early explorers and made numerous discoveries. When rescued on August 8, 1917, by Captain Bob Bartlett, after two other expeditions had failed to reach him through the ice-fields, he was living on dog-biscuit and duck's eggs.

MacMillan is now in the Arctic making scientific observations, but has wirelessed an offer to assist in the proposed trip of the Shenandoah, the United States dirigible, to the north pole.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Physical Conservation

The good use of money and material posessions does not by any means constitute all there is to thrift.

There is always a great temptation for those who are naturally energetic and ambitious to overdue. We read recently of one of America's outstanding public men who boast that he works almost continually, excepting for about four hours' sleep a night.

While we can not help but admire a man who can make of himself such a driving force, we know that sooner or later nature will refuse to be abused. Collapses will come. The man's usefulness will, perhaps, be over years before such an event would have occured with the observance of temperate habits.

The nation's loss through the illness of its citizens is prodigious. For example, we are told that the 42,000,000 gainfully employed men and women of the United States lose the labor of 1,000,000 workers each year from sickness—a loss equivalent to 300,000,000 working days annually. In other words, the time lost every year to the nation, through the sickness of its workers, is three times greater than all the working days gained annually through immigration.

These millions of days of labor lost through sickness are in addition to 227,000,000 working days which the United States department of labor estimates are lost annually through industrial accidents.

It is impossible to check the dollars lost in wages annually through sickness of workers, but inasmuch as the wages loss from industrial accidents exceeds $1,000,000,000 the financial loss from sickness must be far in excess of that sum.

Much ill-health is the result of carelessness. Guard the reservoir of your physical strength as you would your home or your life's savings.

There can be no real thrift that does not include care of the health.—American Society for Thrift.

Stories That Recall Others

Mixing the Breeds.

Mrs. A was the owner of a Jersey dress of which she was fond. It was beginning to show signs of wear as the result and she went shopping one day for another dress. When her husband returned at night he asked about the dress and what kind she had bought.

"Oh, after I had looked at a lot of 'em, I finally bought another Jersey one?" replied the wife.

The husband apparently was disappointed. His next question was:

"I'm getting tired of Jersey dresses. Why in the world didn't you get a Holstein this time?"

Where Was the Stand?

Mrs. D—— had lived in the country all her life but had never been around men who hunted or who talked much about hunting. This spring she visited some friends who were very fond of the sport and who had some well trained hunting dogs. They spoke several times of how well the dogs took the stand." One morning the host invited the women of the party to a nearby wooded tract to see the "dogs on the stand." As usual, the women were a few minutes late in arriving, and their host hurried them up with, "You had better hurry or you won't see the dogs on the stand." Mrs. D—— hurried, saying: "Oh, where is the stand; how did you get them up there?"

The host fell over in a fit of laughter, doubting the worth of explaining that "dogs on the stand" really meant "pointing the bird."

Fined in Salem.

POETRY

SONGS UNSUNG.

Here's to the songs still unsung, and may they be merry,
Songs of the road and the camp and forests men planted,
Songs that sailors might sing coming over the ferry,
Gay songs from the hearts of the happy, joyously chanted.

Here's to the songs still unwritten, may they be ever
Telling of battles and many a glorious rally;
Notes that will sleep in the depth of our memory never,
Clashing of swords and tall men marching down through the valley.

On, on with its echo of Love's most wonderful laughter,
Songs that are sweet at the end, as at the beginning,
Straight from the merry of heart, ringing up to the rafter.
—Winnifred Tasker, in London Times.

A GARDEN SONG.

Here, in this sequestered close,
Bloom the hyacinth and rose;
Here, beside the modest stock,
Flaunts the flaring hollyhock:
Here, without a pang, one sees
Ranks, conditions, and degrees.

All the seasons run their race
In this quiet resting-place;
Peach, and apricot, and fig
Here will ripen, and grow big;
Here is store and overplus,—
More had not Alcinous!

Here, in alleys cool and green,
Far ahead the thrush is seen;
Here along the southern wall
Keeps the bee his festival;
All is quiet else—afar
Sounds of toil and turmoil are.

Here be shadows large and long;
Here be spaces meet for song;
Grant, O garden-god, that I,
Now that none profane is nigh,—
Now that mood and moment please,
Find the fair Pierides!
—Austin Dobson.

OBJECTS TO INDEPENDENT POLICY OF FRANCE IN RUHR

Oneida, N. Y., July 15.—Pierrepont B. Noyes, who was Rhineland commissioner for the United States, today predicted the doom of the Dawes report and a continued deadlock between France and Germany unless the United States representative at the coming conference of premiers in London is instructed by the government to inform France that the United States desires that country to give up it's "independent policy" in the Ruhr.

Mr. Noyes' statements are contained in a letter written by him to Charles G. Dawes, made public here tonight.

"The Dawes report can be saved only by positive official word from the American representative at the London conference," Mr. Noyes wrote. "Your new relation to the republican party entitled you to urge upon the administration that Ambassador Kellogg, at the London conference, abandon that half-hearted attitude that has been imposed upon all our representatives in Europe during the past four years and state plainly to France that the United States believes the time has come for that country to give up her independent policy and make such concessions as are necessary to get together with Great Britain in an honest and effective attempt to put into operation the Dawes plan."

Mr. Noyes added that he had "reluctantly arrived at the conclusion that your plan is about to go into the discard along with the many previous plans for settlement of the Franco-German feud," adding that "the death of the Dawes plan may be graceful and gradual, but unless some new factor intervents, it seems certain."

"The American people have set their hearts on the success of the Dawes plan," Mr. Noyes continued "They will be shocked at my statement and many will be incredulous, I firmly believe, however, I am right.

"The conference of premiers in London faces an unsurmountable obstacle. Herriot cannot agree to share with Great Britain and Italy the power she now has in the reparation commission to independently declare Germany in default. Great Britain, on the other hand, cannot agree to join France in enforcing penalties against Germany if she has no voice in decreeing those penalties. Again, if Premier Herriot were to weaken, Poincarb and the military party would break him."

After suggesting that the republican vice-presidential candidate urge the administration to instruct Ambassador Kellogg to call upon France to abandon its "independent policy," the letter concludes:

"The present Washington administration has in its platform, assumed much credit for the work you did in Europe. It is only right and proper that it should now back up that work. Such action would today be recognized by the American people as a master stroke for peace and for economic revival in Europe so badly needed in the interest of the farmer and of all business in America."

HOUSE AT CHAPLIN BURNED EARLY TUESDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Chaplin, July 15.—The tenement house owned by Michael Laudeck of Bedlam and occupied by his brother, Adolph Laudeck and family was burned to the ground soon after midnight Tuesday morning. The neighbors were aroused and saved most of the contents of the house. The fire started in the wing and the building was soon consumed. A small insurance was carried.

Mr. Laudeck's family are staying at the home of his brother for the present.

Children to Go on Picnic.

WILL APPEAR IN NORWICH CITY COURT

David B. Ashton, 32, of 187 Edgeworth street, Hartford, a commercial traveler, was summoned to the Norwich police court for this (Wednesday) morning for failing to have his operator's license with him, as was revealed when he was involved in an accident on North Main street Tuesday night at 7.25 o'clock.

While he was driving near Seventh street, a little girl, Helen Legko of 485 North Main street, ran out from the sidewalk and into his car which he had brought to a stop when she ran against it. She was knocked down, but got up and ran to her mother. Mr. Ashton took her to Dr. Paul F. Gadle who found that her injuries consisted of scratches on the knees. Officer William Sharvan found that the man was driving without his license. Ashton telephoned to his home in Hartford and his wife told him the license was there.

CITIZENS SAW GREAT ELECTRIC POWER PLANT ON THE THAMES

Economy, efficiency and provision for expansion and permanency were attributes of the Eastern Connecticut Power company's steam station at Montville, on the banks of the Thames river, that were impressed upon a party of Norwich visitors there Saturday afternoon, who made an inspection of the plant by invitation of the officers of the company. The visiting party included Mayor Waters and members of the common council committee on the power company's proposition to sell electricity to the city or buy the city's plant, members of the city gas and electric commission and members of the citizens' advisory committee. They were shown around the power company's station by General Manager H. D. Larrabee, Treasurer E. A. Harris and others.

The inspection began with the coal storage and handling equipment, this vital matter of supplies being delivered at the dock where there is a berth 250 feet long and 130 feet wide and a depth at low tide of 30 feet. Barges of 3,000 tons capacity can unload at the dock. The coal handling equipment, which is operated by three men, with an actual handling capacity of 175 tons per hour, consists of crusher, elevator-bucket and belt conveyor to the bunkers on the top floor of the power house building from which the coal is fed by gravity to the boilers. An auxiliary derrick is provided for use in emergency if the automatic coal carrying system should break down.

The coal storage capacity is 50,000 tons and there was on hand at the time of the inspection 21,851 tons. The coal consumption for last year was 47,218 net tons.

The plant has a railroad siding and yard with a capacity for 30 cars.

The power house is an immense building of fireproof construction, steel, brick and concrete, 180 feet long, 168 feet wide and 90 feet high, the equivalent in height of a nine-story building.

The boiler plant of the station consists of 6 Babcock and Wilcox water tube boilers, four of which were installed in 1919 and two in 1924. When the power house was enlarged to put in the last pair of boilers, the foundations were set for another pair and the place of their installation is waiting for them to be set as soon as expansion of the plant shall make this necessary. The four earlier boilers are each of 880 B. H. P. capacity, total 3,520 B. H. P., with a maximum continuous capacity of 300 percent of rating, while the two newest boilers are 984 B. H. P. each, total 1,968 B. H. P., with a maximum continuous capacity of 400 percent of rating. The operating steam pressure is 275 pounds and all boilers are equipped with super-heaters to give 127 percent super-heat at normal rating.

The coal is fed to the boilers by automatic stokers which take the coal by gravity from two overhead bunkers with a capacity of 450 tons each. The coal is weighed by automatic scales as it is fed to the bunkers and there is no shoveling by hand.

Above the station tower the three concrete stacks, or chimneys, set on a structural steel sub base, each 15 feet in diameter at the base and 10 feet 2 inches diameter at the top and 250 feet high from the ground.

Two 10,000 kilo watt 11,000 volt, turbo generators, installed in 1919, producing 27,000 horse power.

With this are two 12,500 K. V. A. three-phase transformers by which 11,000 volts are stepped up to 33,000 volts, and four 5,000 K. V. A. single phase transformers which step up 11,000 volts to 66,000 volts, one of these transformers being a spare.

In 1923 the water evaporated amounted to 844,544,000 pounds, or 422,000 tons, and the water used for condensing to 33,781,760,000 pounds, or 16,890,880 tons.

Telephones, electric control of the switches, signals, and automatic devices contribute to the minimum in the force required in the operation of the plant. There are 3 men per shift required for operation only, 3 men, days only, required for maintenance, and an average of 6 men, days only, required for miscellaneous duties.

NATIONAL SPEAKER ADDRESSES NORWICH KLAN MEETING

While the fiery cross lighted the heavens, once again in Preston Tuesday night over 50 candidates took the oath of the Knights of the Invisible Empire on the presence of nearly 600 klansmen from Norwich, New London, Jewett City, Mystic and many other eastern Connecticut towns and many from Washington county, R. I.

The Bulletin representative was invited to hear the speaker of the evening, Dr. Harold L. James, of New York, national speaker for the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, and witness the initiation of the candidates—from a distance. The initiation took place inside of a hollow square formed by klansmen, while robed officers of the Norwich klan unit obligated the candidates as the fiery cross threw out its rays a short distance away.

Soon after the ceremonial of obligating the candidates the klansmen silently left the field, departing for their homes. The meeting was most orderly and at the request of the klan the Norwich police department sent Sergt. John H. Casey and Officer Elmer Allen to the grounds to assist in keeping order, but it was evident that the crowd gathered outside the field was there for curiosity and there was practically no disorder.

Shortly after 9 o'clock Dr. James addressed the gathering and explained the purposes of the klan. In part, he spoke as follows: Why this klan business? we hear a lot of people say. Why any organization, why the state, why labor organizations, why the church of God? There is but one raeson for the klan. When men individually have ideas they can accomplish nothing, but when they gather together, organize, they become strong and put the idea over. It is only as ideas become convictions, and these convictions become embodied in the convictions of an organization, that they become a reality and possess power, just as the church has become a world power. The klan is a power in the land today because it embodies the convictions of men and women who are ready to lay down their lives, make any sacrifice to perpetuate these ideals. That is what makes the klan a power in the land today.

Christ wrote no book himself, but his ideas were embodied in the hearts of men and women. He organized the church which is now the greatest power in the world. You on the outside hold ideas similar to ours, but unless you organize, work hand in hand with us, you can never get your ideas over.

Now we come to the question of what the ideas of the klan really are: what is the ideal of the klan? Tonight we have seen an anonymous letter which certainly breathes a most beautiful Christian spirit. In just one word I am able to tell you what the ideal of the klan is: the klan stands for America. That says it all. We would like to see in the heart of every man, woman and child in this broad land the spirit that was in the heart of that dying French soldier who, when asked what he was fighting for, knelt and, picking up a handful of soil, kissed it and answered "For that." That is what we want to see in America, the feeling that the very soil you are standing upon is holy ground. But for the draft we could not have put one-tenth the number of men in France we did send there. The klan hopes, with the aid of Almighty God, to implant in the hearts of all true Americans the love of country and the things for which it stands.

We believe in freedom of speech, freedom of press, freedom of thought and the right to worship God according to our own dictates. Will you tell me who gave us these things? From whence they came? I challenge anyone to contradict me when I say that liberty, freedom and the independence which we enjoy were given to the world by Protestantism. They are all children of Protestantism, nothing else. Republicanism is not the kind of thing that Rome brings forth, it comes only from Protestantism.

Take the public schools, the strong right arm of our republic. I don't want the Catholic in control, for I cannot see how they can believe in them heart and soul as I do. Every day the Bible disappears from the public school, the little morning prayers of my day go into the discard; they would make the public school a secondary inspiration. When our public schools go, our country goes also, and I don't want to see it go.

We have no hatred; there is no religious issue; no theological problems to solve; we stand for one thing and Rome for another, and we are going to stand for these things; the things for which our republic stands, until we die.

We have nothing against the Jew or negro, religiously or personally, but we do not like their tactics. Our forefathers settled this country. The Jew never settled this country, he did not suffer and work for the building of this wonderful land, but, after someone else had done the hard work, established the country as a success, he came in to harvest the money, to undersell the very men who gave their lives for our country. We are looking forward to the day when America shall be for Americans, tried and true and we shall always abide by the order of General Washington, who at the most critical stage of the Revolution said, "Put only Americans on guard."

FINES ARE GIVEN IN LIQUOR VIOLATION CASES

In the city court Tuesday morning Judge Arthur F. Libby disposed of a large number of cases.

The first case taken up was that of a woman motorist who had gone to the left of the flashing beacon on Water street. The case was nolled upon payment of $3.

Andrew Clendennin, charged with actual sale of liquor on July 11th at his place on North Main street near Boswell avenue, evidence being secured by officers, was fined $200 and costs and given 10 days in jail. He appealed through his attorney, John H. Barnes, to the court of common pleas. Bonds of $500 were furnished. When the case came up his attorney entered a demurrer.

Martin Krauss, of Norwich avenue, Taftville, charged with sale of home brew and for violation of the liquor law, was fined $100 and costs and given a suspended sentence of 10 days for one year. He paid Clerk Bailey $141.91 for his violation.

County Detective Lewis told of going to the Krauss store several days after bottles of home brew had been secured, showing by analysis, 3 per cent. The paraphernalia for making the home brew was found in a back room. Investigator William Butler, who had purchased the liquor, said three bottles cost 80 cents. He asked Krauss if he sold whiskey and Krauss replied that he handled none of that stuff.

Martin Krauss testified that besides running the store he was employed in the Ponemah mill. He produced in court a registration receipt from Collector of Revenue George Charbonneau, as a manufacturer of cereal beverages containing less than one-half of one per cent, as per the regulations. He also claimed that he had been told to make the beer and that there would be no trouble over it.

Rose Caron, violator of the liquor law, mother of two children, was represented by Attorney Kelly, who entered a demurrer in the case. She claimed she sold the liquor for the past five weeks at her place on North Main street to support her family and has no relatives in these parts. Judge Libby after hearing the evidence was lenient, fining the defendant the actual costs of $9.80 and gave a suspended sentence of 30 days in jail.

In the continued case of Louis Tremontossi, charged with statutory rape on a 13-year-old girl on Lake street, he was bound over to the criminal term ofr the superior court under bonds of $1,000.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS HAIL CIVIC ORGANIZATION

The splendid response to the call sent to 20 eastern Connecticut organizations by Norwich Council is an indication of the growing interest in better highways, due to the rapid increase in the number of motor vehicles in operation today, and the future prospect of the number being doubled in the five years just ahead.

Connecticut and most states as well have lagged behind in the demand put upon their trunk lines. With the speeding up of motor car production by the installation of modern machinery and the adoption of modern methods in distribution of factory output. With one plant alone turning out a finished motor car every 11 seconds and employing 40,000 operators in the one plant in itself is the big thing before the highway departments of all states right now! Multiply what the factory referred to is doing by the hundreds of factories engaged in automobile manufacture and the result is startling to say the least.

Connecticut, we believe, has a highway commissioner in John H. Macdonald that if given the financial backing, is big enough to handle every highway problem that may arise and if allowed a 20 million dollar appropriation for 1925-6 will spend every cent in a manner pleasing to the tax payer and promote what this newly organized association is aiming for, viz: Safety on Our Highways.

There's another angle also to the bringing together of community interests through a central organization. The acquaintanceship thus produced through closer association of the businessmen is found to be of value to each community. We believe it will act as a stimulant to the local chamber of commerce, the backbone of all civic progress. In the selection of Valentine Murphy as our first president, we have started well. Mr. Murphy is no novice in organization work, nor is he lacking in force or will power to get what he goes after.

He has been honored in the past by being chosen to lead every civic organization in his home city of Willimantic and he will have the heartiest support from every organization in the association. In John J. O'Rourke as the first secretary, we are fortunate indeed, as an association to secure such a persevering and tireless worker, practical and patient. Mr. O'Rourke is secretary of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, and in securing him we secure the machinery for putting across any problem no matter how big or how little.

WILLIMANTIC ROTARIANS CELEBRATE AT HAMPTON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, July 15.—The Willimantic Rotarians and twenty-one guests made merry at Chelsea Inn, Hampton, Tuesday evening, where the weekly session of the club was held. A chicken supper with all the fixin's appeased the appetites of all present and ushered in the evening's activities. John Ahern began mustering in his songsters while the evening was yet young and soon had a team on the band wagon comprised of George Hickey, Ray Parker, Jim Mustard, Robert H. Fenton, Henry Congdon, Arthur Roy, John Pickett and Al B. Smith. Their rendition was the ever popular old timer Sweet Adeline. Charlie Hill, the erstwhile secretary, and Little Tim Weatherhead, the nest builder, was given an opportunity to enjoy the shakedown of their luncheon in a new turpine dance. Garbed in his Sea-We-Dees Charlie shook a shimmy which would have sent a first class Hawaiian to the bleachers. Jim appeared in a graceful solo interpretation of the disappointed milkmaid. Val Murphy's fame as an amateur author of original song was confirmed when several verses of his composition were sung by George Hickey and Ray Parker. John T. Quinlan, pianist, and Ralph Gibson, violinist, rendered pleasing accompaniments. The Rotarians then arose and gave a greeting song to their guests who were Rowland B. Jordan, Harry S. Gaucher, Leroy A. Dissinger, C. C. Case, P. D. Donohue, Ralph Carpenter, Adelaide Bacon, Walter Goettlick, John Riley, Dr. Harland Beach of Yale, Arthur Roy, Joseph F. Riordan, Robert H. Fenton, Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, John Vantyne of Bradford, Penn., Joseph M. Berard, Kenneth Branch, Dr. A. D. March of Hampton, W. S. Kirkpatrick of Storrs, Dr. Chester Cole of New York, Kenneth N. Hillhouse and George S. Elliott.

Routine business was conducted and several communications were read by Secretary Hill. A committee of five will be appointed by President Standish to collaborate with the chamber of commerce in a movement to secure better hotel accommodations in Willimantic. There were two speakers, Dr. Harland Beach of Yale lead the way with a talk on the fellowship of man and the service above self motto of Rotarians. Capt. Frank P. Fenton, delegate to the national convention in New York, closed the program with an excellent talk on the sidelights of the convention and certain facts concerning the Klan issue brought home to the members and guests, a message for which they had been hungry and to which they listened with the keenest of attention. A good fellow song was rendered in his honor at the conclusion of his talk. The speakers were roundly applauded and given rising votes of thanks. Adjournment was taken at 10.45 o'clock.

HOW NORWICH LETTERS CAN CATCH AIR MAIL

Information for those who want to use the air mail route to the Pacific coast or to intermediate points is contained in a circular that has been received from Boston at the Norwich post office.

Letters mailed in the latter part of the afternoon in nearly all New England cities will reach New York in time to connect with westbound air mail service.

The train from Norwich at 7.50 p. m., standard time, and the train from Willimantic at 7.05 p. m. are the connecting trains from these two cities.

The transcontinental air mail route is divided into three zones—(1) New York to Chicago, (2) Chicago to Cheyenne, (3) Cheyenne to San Francisco. Air mail postage is eight cents an ounce within each zone in which mail is carried by airplane. No additional charge is made for transporting mail to the airplane stations, or from the air mail to destination. Special air mail stamps should be used, although the words "Air Mail" under ordinary stamps will suffice. A special delivery stamp will insure immediate delivery at points where mail arrives too late on the day for regular carrier delivery.

Eight cents an ounce to Illinois, Indianna, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, Wisconsin.

Sixteen cents an ounce to Colorado, Nebraska, South Dakota, Wyoming. Twenty-four cents an ounce to California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, trans-Pacific and foreign.

Summer schedule, air mail service: Westbound—Leave New York 10 a. m. ET, arrive Cleveland 2.55 p. m. ET, arrive Chicago 6.15 p. m. CT, arrive Omaha 12.05 a. m. CT, arrive Cheyenne 5.10 MT, arrive Salt Lake City 11.05 MT, arrive San Francisco 5.45 p. m. PT. Elapsed time 34 hours 45 minutes.

Eastbound—Leave San Francisco 6 a. m. PT, arrive Salt Lake City 1 p. m. PT, arrive Cheyenne 7 p. m. MT, arrive Omaha 1.50 a. m. CT, arrive Chicago 7.20 a. m. CT, arrive Cleveland 12.20 p. m. ET, arrive New York 5.05 p. m. ET. Elapsed time 32 hours 5 minutes.

Intermediate stops are made at Bellefonte, Pa., Bryan, Ohio, Iowa City, Iowa, North Platte Neb. Rawlins, Wo., Rock Springs, Wyo., Elko, Nev., and Reno Nev.

SCHOONER SHAMROCK WAS FLOATED AT HIGH TIDE

Booth Bay Harbor, Me., July 15.—The schooner Shamrock, fisherman sailing from Boston and contender in the Lipton cup race for fishing schooners at Gloucester, Mass., last August, was floated at high tide tonight from the Spruce Point ledges where she went aground this afternoon. United States coast guardsmen said that the vessel was apparently undamaged and seemed all tight.

OLVANY TO INSIST UPON SMITH FOR GOVERNOR

New York, July 15—After putting in an active day at his new job of running Tammany Hall, Judge George W. Olvany of the court of general sessions said tonight that Tammany would insist upon Alfred E. Smith as a candidate to succeed himself as governor this fall.

In Tammany circles the opinion is general that the appearance of Governor Smith's name on the ticket is essential to the success of the democratic state and national ticket. The governor is known to have serious objection to becoming a candidate again.

The attention of Judge Olvany was called to a report that was circulated after the convention by one of the McAdoo managers in New England to the effect that a deal was on between the democratic state organization, through Tammany Hall, with the republicans, whereby votes for Coolidge from the democrats were to be swapped for republican votes for some democratic candidates. This was on the presumption that Tammany Hall did not care much for the democratic ticket.

"That is silly—it couldn't have come from any responsible source," said Judge Olvany. "And let me add—we wouldn't make that sort of a deal if we could."

CANOEISTS HAD NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

Waterbury, July 15.—Harry Tisi, 21, and Martin Grady, 20, of this city had a narrow escape from drowning in Lake Quassapaug this afternoon when the canoe in which they were sailing overturned. The young men were fully dressed. They were rescued by Michael O'Connell, manager of the amusements at the lake, who obtained a motor boat and went to their rescue. Tisi was unconscious when brought ashore. Gracy was on the verge of exhaustion. They were both revived quickly.

FELTON ELKINS MARRIES MRS. LANSING KELLOGG TEVIS

New York, July 15.—Friends of Felton Elkins, wealthy sportsman of New York and San Francisco, tonight confirmed the report that he had married Mrs. Lansing Kellogg Tevas of Boston on June 24. A license was issued to the couple on that date, inquiry at the marriage license bureau here disclosed. They are now in Europe enjoying their honeymoon, having sailed on the Majestic June 28.

It is surprising how many really good people there are in the world—if one can take their word for it.

MASKED MARVELS PEEVED AT EAST ENDS FOR HURLING INSULTING CHALLENGE

Bang, bang, bang, bang, bang, the echoes of five shots rang through the hills and vales surrounding the Duwell field last night during East Ends-Nugget game when the Masked Marvels again came to light and drove onto the field in wild west fashion and tossed out a flaming missile which read in the following manner:

East Ends, Beware. We have been insulted in this morning's Bulletin and we shall get revenge. The last time we came it was for fun, when we come again it will be for blood. For further information look in tomorrow's Bulletin. There were only nine of the last time; there shall be one hundred and two of us the next time. Let Friday be the night.

Again, Beware.

By Order of Masked Marvels

While during the previous appearance of the Marvels there was only one hooded terror last night there were six all carrying flaming torches and by all appearances they were much enraged and to hear the East Siders talk last night it appeared that they had bitten off more than they could chew when they challenged the Marvels to a return game for Friday night in yesterday's Bulletin. Although the East Ends won last night there was no joy in Preston and there are plenty of people on that side of the bridge that realize now what the overseas boys meant when they spoke of the zero hour across. Already some of the boys have notified Manager Holland that owing to unexpected happenings that they will be unable to be around Friday night, some having to stay home and mind the children or else to go to their grandmother's wedding anniversary.

To Manager Holland and the rest of the swellheads on the East Side.

About three weeks ago nine of the best sports of the city assembled together named themselves the Masked Marvels, challenged your team and complishing our purpose we tore up beat them on your own grounds. Across masks and proposed to let the Masked Marvels be forgotten. But that well composed bunch of slurs which you had in yesterday's paper supposed to be a challenge was enough to bring back even the dead to life and we will play your team Friday night or any night and you can rely upon it that it will be for blood and whether we win or lose the Masked Marvels shall be no more after the game. Be sure and have your regular team, Harry Mills and the rest of them as we do not went any more crying from you and your team. As a special favor to us kindly have Mills in the box so that we can ruin the reputation of this twilight league wonder once and forever. You spoke of why we wear masks, it is no so much that we wanted to conceal ourselves as it was to prove that we could beat your team almost blindfolded and to prove it we will discard all our masks in the third inning and reveal ourselves to all those present. If this is agreeable to you and the rest of those East Siders be on hand Friday night and bring only your best players, preferably Harry Mills in the box.

By order of his royal highness,
THE HOODED TERROR.

YANKEES-BROWNS GAME PROLONGED BY ARGUMENT

New York, July 15.—The New York Yankees made it four out of five from St. Louis here today, winning the last game of the series by a score of 5 to 4. The game was held up for fifteen minutes in the eighth inning by a protracted argument. With Dugan on third, Ruth on first and none out, Meusel hit a low liner to left, which Bennett scooped in on a low bound. Dugan scored, and Ruth reached third. The St. Louis club claimed that Bennett caught the ball and Ruth was doubled off first. This claim was sustained by Evans, who ruled both Meusel and Ruth out. New York then took the protest back to Owens, the base umpire, who stuck to his original decision that the ball had not been caught, and Meusel and Ruth were returned to the bases. he decision cost St. Louis the game, as Ruth scored the winning run after play was resumed.

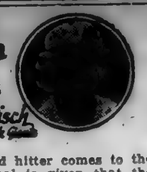
How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
(Fordham, New York Giants)



A right-handed hitter comes to the plate. The signal is given that the pitcher is going to throw him a fast ball.

Where should the shortstop play?

When a fast ball is being pitched to a right-handed hitter, the shortstop should move over toward second base, because right-handed hitters, as a rule, do not pull a fast ball a great deal. The position of the shortstop, that is how far over he comes to second base, depends on the speed of his pitcher. If the pitcher throws a very swift ball, the shortstop moves over a little closer to second base than he would if a slower pitcher were in the box.

AMERICANS STRENGTHEN THEIR POSITION IN OLYMPICS

Paris, July 15.—(By The A. P.)—The Americans are strongly entrenched tonight on the various fronts of the Olympic battle after notable victories today in four outstanding branches of competition. The famous Yale crew easily won in the elimination heat for eight-oared shells over the 2,000 metre course on the Seine river.

Jack Kelly and Paul Costello, the Philadelphia stars, qualified in the double sculls, in which they hold the championship.

In the swimming contests the American girls outdid the men and shared the laurels with the Australian swimmers, who led the Americans at the end of the day's three events, 24 points to 23.

Diegel wins Shawnee Title

Shawneee-on-the-Delaware, Pa., July 15.—Leo Diegel, of Detroit, today won the Shawnee open championship golf tournament by defeating William McFarlane, of Oak Ridge in the 18 hole play-off. Diegel and McFarlane had finished the stipulated 72 holes in a tie with scores of 287. The Detroit player turned in a card of 69, five under par in the play-off. It was his best round of the tournament.

Inland A. C. Beats Uncas P. C.

The Inland A. C. team of Versailles defeated the fast Uncas Paper Board team at Versailles on Sunday, 12 to 2. Godaire who pitched for the Inland team had 19 strike-outs to his credit. French played a star game behind the bat. Manager Arthur Satarlo says he has a fast team and would like to challenge any fast team in this part of the state.

YALE CREW MAKES BEST SHOWING IN OLYMPIC ROWING

Argenteuil, France July 15.—(By The A. P.)—Wearing the American shield in competition for the first time, Yale's great varsity crew today maintained its unbroken string of triumphs by racing to a decisive victory in the trials of the eight-oared Olympic rowing competition, thereby establishing itself as the favorite to capture the Olympic championship in the finals next Thursday.

Demonstrating that the waters of the Seine river were as much to their liking as those of the Thames or Housatonic, the Eli oarsmen rowed away from the strong Toronto University eight representing Canada, winning by three and one-half lengths with a five-length margin over the third contender, Holland.

Yale's time of 5 minutes 51 seconds, establishing a record for the course of 2,000 metres or approximately 1 1-4 Miles, was 13 seconds faster than the performance of the Thames crew, representing Great Britain, which won the first heat and 15 seconds better than the mark of the Italian crew which defeated Australia and Spain in the third heat.

On form today, the British eight loomed up as the most formidable of Yale's rivals but the New Haven men, apparently well up to the superb form which has characterized their brilliant victories in the United States during the last two years, made a far more impressive showing.

The second heat which Great Britain won in a clean cut fashion witnessed a bitter battle for second place, which ended with the disqualification of France after the latter had led Belgium and Argentina over the finish line by a narrow margin.

The South Americans, who finished last after holding second place three quarters of the distance, protested that the French crew had not kept to the right lane and had caused interference and the claim was upheld.

After a lengthy conference, the official jury decided to give Argentina and Belgium another chance to qualify for the finals by allowing them to participate tomorrow in the eliminations among the second place crews. Thus, these two shells with Canada and Australia will row to determine which will be the fourth finalist with the United States, Great Britain and Italy.

N. L. CITY LEAGUE HOLDS IMPORTANT BUSINESS SESSION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 15.—Several important matters were disposed of in the Industrial league managers meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. this evening. The meeting was called to order by the league president, Bert Farrand. Ralph W. Fistere acted as secretary in the absence of A. B. Dawson. The team managers who were present were as follows: Johnstone of the Standard Oil Co.; Bert Farrand, representing the Connecticut Power; James Doyle of the Robert Gair, and Mr. Hughes of the Postoffice.

The resignation of the league's official scorer, W. J. Barry, was acted upon and accepted. Russell Stebbins was elected to take Barry's place as official scorer. The withdrawal of the Postoffice team was voted on and agreed, providing the Postoffice management also forfeited their bond of $10. In the place of the Postoffice, the Standard Oil Co. nine, represented at the meeting by S. P. Johnstone, was given permission to take the place of the mail employes. The last place position, which the Postoffice occupied, will be taken by the Oil company nine, likewise the victories and losses credited to the Postoffice team.

The withdrawal of the Postoffice did not come as a surprise, for it was expected that this team would withdraw from the league due to difficulties of getting a nine together and dissension in the ranks. This difficulty was hard to obviate, and consequently the withdrawal of the Postoffice nine. The Standard Oil nine it is understood has a formidable array of baseball material and a hot time for the other three teams in the league is expected.

SILKMAKERS PULL STARS OUT OF FIRST PLACE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 15.—The Corticelli Silk Co. nine broke the deadlock that existed in the City league by defeating the Fort Trumbull Stars at Morgan park this evening by a 6 to 0 score. Chappell was too much for the league leaders and he applied the kalsomining brush with an artistic touch and made the Stars forget that they were in a ball game.

Two big innings in which the Silkmakers scored three runs each time was the cause of the Stars' defeat. The winners outplayed the losers in every phase of the game and from the first inning the latter nine was never in it. Four hits in a row by the head of the Corticelli batting order in the first inning gave them the lead from which they were never threatened to be headed.

While Chappell held the Stars to five runs, not one man reached third base, so tight was his pitching. He was invincible and received good support throughout. Zepp, on the other hand, was easy for the Silkmen, and he was hit hard in the first and fourth innings. The victory for the Corticelli pulls this team out of a tie for last place, and also pulls the Fort Trumbull Stars out of a tie for first place.

SHAMROCK RUNS AGROUND IN BOOTH BAY HARBOR

Booth Bay Harbor, Me., July 15.—The Boston fishing schooner Shamrock which finished third in the Lipton cup race at Gloucester last August, went aground today on Spruce Point ledges, between Spruce Point and Negro Island at the entrance to Linekin's bay, four miles from Booth Bay harbor. She struck nearly at high water and was in such a position that it was feared she might break in two if the wind should freshen. The tug Seguin of Bath, was prepared to try to pull her afloat at high tide late tonight. The crew of 22 men had no difficulty in leaving the vessel.

SUB BASE TO PLAY AT FT. WRIGHT TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 15.—This (Wednesday) afternoon will be soldier and sailor day at Fort H. G. Wright, N. Y. where the Submarine Base crew of apple sockers will depart over the briny deep in the sound and then stop off long enough at the above named Fort to give the soldier nine a licking on the diamond. Just in what manner the gobs expect to make the trip, whether it will be by submarine or by special boats from the Base is a matter for the Commander at the government reservation to decide.

OLYMPIC TENNIS PLAYERS STILL CONTINUE TO GAIN GLORY FOR AMERICA

Paris, July 15 (By the A. P.).—Of the 16 survivors in the men's singles in the Olympic tennis tournament, three are Americans—Vincent Richards, Watson M. Washburn and R. Norris Williams. The other member of the American men's quartet—Francis T. Hunter, was put out of the running today by Jean Washer, the Belgian champion, 2-6, 1-6, 6-2, 6-1, 6-4.

Miss Helen Wills, the American woman champion, won easily from Mrs. Satterthwaite of England, 6-1, 6-2. Miss Eleanor Goss, the other American woman contestant, won by default when Miss Contostlavos did not appear to play.

Williams, Richards and Washburn each came through the day with victories to their credit, Williams defeating Macnenauerr of Czechoslovakia, 6-2, 4-6, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1, notwithstanding the fact that he was bothered by an injury to one of his ankles.

Richards required almost the entire afternoon to dispose of Sleem of India. He finally managed it by the score 8-6, 1-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2.

In the men's doubles Williams and Washburn, United States, defeated Rohrer and Gottlieb, Cechoslovakia, 6-3, 6-2, 6-1.

In the mixed doubles Mrs. Marion Z Jessup and Vincent Richards, United States, defeated Mme. Billaut and Jean Borotra, France, 6-3, 6-1.

Mrs. Molla Mallory and Mr. Nielsen of Norway defeated Mme. Dupont

NEW LONDON BOOTLEGGER CAUGHT, DURING GOLDEN STREET FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 16.—Carson Newton, colored, well known in New London and vicinity as a waiter, was arrested this afternoon by Sergeant Nelson Smith, Acting Sergeant Edward Daniels and Traffic Officer Frank Lenehan, charged with keeping liquor with intent to sell. He is locked up at the police station in default of $500 bail for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

Newton resided at 22 Golden street, occupying rooms on the upper floor of the structure which was attacked by flames today. During the work of the firemen in extinguishing the blaze the apartment of Newton was entered and there was found in the place a bottle of alcohol, two demijohns and an empty five-gallon alcohol can. Newton who had long been suspected of engaging in the bootlegging trade, was in the building and he was placed under arrest, following Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Crosbie issuing a search warrant that other liquor or alcohol might be seized should any be stored in the building. None was found, however.

James Kirby, a member of the F. L. Allen Hook and Ladder company, has gone to the club house of the company at Richards Grove where he will remain several weeks.

A commercial automobile, owned by Charles Gordon, a Bank street merchant, was taken without permission of the owner last night or early this morning by George Ryan, a Prospect street youth, and before the car was returned it had been in collision with an obstruction in the highway and damaged, the radiator and mudguards receiving the greater amount of damage. Gordon lodged a complaint with the police, but he did not want the thief to be prosecuted, the owner of the machine apparently desiring to be recompensed for the damage done. When Ryan was taken into custody he furnished a surety on his bond of $100 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning, but it is understood that Ryan will be given his freedom provided he pays for the damage he caused.

An automobile owned and operated by William J. Potter, 114 Sauw street, and a commercial truck owned and driven by Albert Rinciotti, 111 Oneco avenue, were in collision on Main street late this afternoon. Both cars were damaged. Potter declared that Rinciotti stopped the truck without giving a signal and as a result the former machine crashed against the rear of the heavier car. Rinciotti asserts that he had signalled that he was going to stop and that his car was motionless when the crash occurred.

The New London police were notified today by the Philadelphia authorities that Mary Denison, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Denison, of Willetts avenue extension, and a young man were being held in the Quaker City on a charge of unlawful cohabitation. The Denison girl and the young man eloped from this city Fourth of July and the whereabouts of the couple became known when the girl wrote a letter to her mother stating that she was in Philadelphia and providing the parent with the street address. The Philadelphia police were communicated with and it was then revealed that the young man and girl were living together as man and wife.

Peter Stemberg of Mystic, was arrested last night by State Policeman Walter Shea of the Groton barracks, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He furnished a bond of $150 for his appearance in the Groton borough court Monday morning next.

The car operated by Stemberg was headed towards Groton. When the machine reached a point near the thread mill on the Poquonnoc road, the Pantomobile owned and operated by Olin Page, Mitchell street, Groton, and headed in the opposite direction, was encountered. The course of the car driven by Stemberg was so irregular that Page declared that he could not operate the car clear of the Stemberg car, with the result that a collision followed. Officer Shea arrived shortly and declaring Stemberg had been drinking, caused the driver to be placed under arrest.

Mrs. Isadore S. Machol, Main street, stenographer of the superior court, is in Fairmont, West Virginia.

Bootlegging was carried on in its boldest form here this afternoon, yet though so bold was the negotiations of the pair of rum traffickers business men having knowledge of the attempted sale of the liquor, did not think to make a report of the attempted sales until about five hours after it had occurred.

Shortly after 1.30 o'clock a man entered the Plant building and publicly made offers to sell quantities of wine, which he declared, had just been obtained from a government warehouse. The liquor was declared to be of the finest vintage and absolutely the best obtainable. No sale was made, however, so far as could be ascertained. A short time afterwards not more than an hour, a second man, a partner apparently of the first salesman, appeared at the different offices in the building and offered for sale another brand of wines. The second salesman also failed to negotiate a sale. Among the offices visited was that of the United States inspectors of steam vessels. Inspector Harry M. Rankin was not in a purchasing mood, neither did he think to acquaint the police of the bootlegging activities until nearly five hours after the bootleggers had disappeared. The police conducted a search for the sellers of the wine, but were unsuccessful in locating them.

One of the salesmen was described as being about 35 or 40, about five feet, eight inches in height and weighing about 160 pounds. He wore a blue serge suit, straw hat, had glasses and carried a suit case. The second salesman was about 25, five feet eight inches in height, slender build and wore a dark suit and straw hat. He was light complexion and had blue eyes.

Frank Meyers, 89 Potter street, complained to the police this evening that while walking along the north side of Huntington street, at the corner of Stony Hill, he was attacked and bitten by a dog. The animal sank its teeth through a sweater Meyers wore and fastened its teeth in the left forearm.

An automobile owned and operated by Bernard Glassman, 22 Colver street, got beyond the control of the driver on Ocean avenue this evening and struck a telegraph pole. The machine was slightly damaged, but none of the occupants were injured.

The automobile owned and operated by Thomas F. Shea, 15 Tenth street, who is employed at Midway by the New Haven railroad, and a machine, owned and operated by William Hartman, 51 Blackhall street, were in collision this evening, corner of Jefferson avenue and West Colt street. Both cars were damaged.

Mrs. Samuel Weinstein, of 37 Hamilton street, Mrs. Ellsworth Williams, 13 Bolles avenue, Frank Turano, Westerly, Miss Ruth Genter, 193 Hempstead street and Mrs. Samuel Gordon and infant daughter, 33 Bayonet street, were patients dismissed at Home Memorial hospital today.

The three story wooden building Nos. 20-24-36 Golden street, owned by the Charles H. Klinck estate was threatened with destruction by fire about 1.30 o'clock this afternoon. A still alarm was followed by a box alarm, bringing additional fire fighting apparatus. Within an hour after the fire was discovered the stubborn blaze had been extinguished, the greater amount of damage being confined to smoke and water. The structure is occupied on the ground floor by Sauerzopf Brothers as a tailoring establishment and on the second floor as a tailor shop, with lodging apartments on the top floor. The damage, it is believed, will not exceed $5,000.

The fire was discovered by tailors, who observed clouds of smoke issuing from the rear partitions. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters summoning the Niagara Engine company and Allen Hook and Ladder company. With the arrival of the firemen it was realized that it was a much more serious blaze than was at first indicated and Chief Rose caused an alarm to be sent in from Box 312, corner of Golden and Green street. With the arrival of the added equipment and firemen the blaze was attacked from the roof in the rear, holes being cut in the building through which lines of hose were stretched and great quantities of water emptied upon the flames. How the fire started is not known.

Conviction cannot be secured in court without evidence, it was manifested today when William Dardis was prosecuted for maintaining a gambling place on Golden street in a pool room. Sergeant Smith made the arrests and he took in three frequenters of the place, accused of having been detected gambling for money, which was on the table when Sergeant Smith entered. But Smith was alone in accusing the men. That was where he made his mistake for the men contradicted Smith in every important particular. The men arrested are Henry Gavitt, Fred Bosworth and Jimmy Parkman. All admitted that they were playing "rummy" but that there was a nickel at stake they denied with one voice. Sergeant Smith told the court that complaint had been made against the place by neighbors and by others on the street. When Smith stepped into the place, he said, Bosworth threw a half dollar on the green cloth. There was other money on the table then. According to Smith Jimmy Parkman said something and the money all disappeared from the table Smith was positive about that. But every one in the place declared that Smith saw wrong and that there was no money on the table nor were the men engaged in other than an aimless pastime of whiling away time until the shows should begin in the afternoon. With four witnesses against Smith the officer saw that he was outplayed and he abandoned the idea of securing conviction. The men accused were found not guilty as alleged. Then Dardis was prosecuted for operating a pool room without having secured a license. Dardis represented that he leased the place from Gus Kuchka, a taxi driver at $23 a week. Kuchka told Dardis, the latter said that the license to conduct a pool room went with the lease so Dardis did not look further for his authority. The court believed him and the complaint for that offense was nolled.

Nicholas Fleming, a seaman on a lighthouse tender, was found helplessly drunk. He said he came ashore a few days ago and was sick. Then he met a friend and telling him his condition the friend gave him something to drink, with the assurance that it would cure Nick. It made him drunk instead. Nick said he was never arrested before anywhere for anything. Judgment was suspended that he might go away and earn his living, instead of working for the county without pay.

Peter Salegna of Blackhall street, Mrs. Clifford Wilbur and infant son, Groton, Miss Barbara J. Lawrence, Thatcher street, Herbert Logan, United States Coast Guard Academy, Charles Adams, Groton and Captain George L. Eaton, Waterbury, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Stephen A. Talmadge, 81, died this morning at his residence, 222 Jefferson avenue, after a long illness with heart trouble. Mr. Talmadge, who was a retired farmer, is survived by his widow, a daughter, Mrs. E. E. Blackman, of Prospect, Conn., and by two sons, George A. Talmadge, Hartford, and Albert S. Talmadge of this city. Mr. Talmadge was a veteran of the Civil war. The body will be forwarded to Cheshire for burial.

Mrs. William O'Connell, 15 Thames Terrace, Norwich, lodged complaint with the police this morning, alleging that an automobile bearing public service registration O-2884 had collided with her machine. Mrs. O'Connell however, did not desire that the driver of the colliding car be taken into custody.

An automobile of the sedan type, owned by Henry Crocicchia, 54 Howard street, was damaged by vandals last tnight and today the owner lodged complaint with the police. The automobile was parked for the night on Blinman street and during its stay there the damage was perpetrated. The wire connecting the sparkplug was cut, the magneto broken, tire cover ripped and two of the glass windows smashed.

her resignation to take effect July 18 and the proposed lower salary is to apply to her successor. Several applications for the position were placed in the hands of the finance committee for consideration. Alderman Lee introduced a resolution authorizing the fire committee to investigate the feasibility of transferring the members of the Hilltop Hose Co. No. 3 to the jurisdiction of Engine Co. No. 1 and motorizing one of the chemical wagons from the first named company for transfer to the Montgomery Co. No. 3 on Jackson street. It is proposed to close up the building now occupied by the Hilltop Company on Summit street. After the motion to adjourn, Acting Mayor Hickey called the attention of the members to a portrait of the late Mayor Hormidas Dion which has been placed on view at the rear of the presiding officer's chair.

Mrs. Henrietta Hobbs Beal, of Waterlane farm, Sbrewsberry, Mass., wealthy widow, of Major Howard W. Beal, who was killed in the World war, was quietly married last Thursday to Harold Kreb Friend, of New York, writer and poet.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Barn Swallows

"Oh, Mother!" shouted Little Jack Rabbit one morning as he dropped the kindling wood into the box behind the kitchen stove, "Black Cat is out by the barn."

"Keep indoors," advised cautious Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother. "Cats are fond of little rabbits. Not in the way Mother is fond of you," giving her little rabbit boy a kiss. "No, indeed. They often eat little rabbits. You stay in the kitchen till he goes back to the Farmyard"

He ran back to the Farmyard in a hurry

Hopping over to the window, the bunny boy looked out. Just then, through the open barn door flew two swallows, their steel-blue feather coats glistening in the rays of Mr. Merry Sun. Straight for Black Cat they flew, sheering off just before he could strike them with his paw. Then again and again they fooled the old cat, until at last he ran back to the Farmyard in disguest.

"Ha, ha," laughed the bunny boy, as the old cat disappeared. "Guess I'll hop out and talk to Mr. Barn Swallow.

"Don't go far away," advised Lady Love, taking the carrot cake out of the oven. "Supper will soon be ready."

Mr. and Mrs. Barn Swallow seemed to be playing a sort of game as the little rabbit sat down beside the woodpile. Back and forth they skimmed, back and forth, close to the ground, with such happy twitterings that pretty soon the bunny boy shouted: "What game are you playing?"

"Oh, just having a little fun," answered Mr. Barn Swallow. "Our clay nest is finished. We like to build our homes in barns. We are very sociable birds.

"We like to have such nice neighbors," answered Little Jack Rabbit. "I learned something about you in school today.

"What is it?" asked Mrs. Barn Swallow, curiously; just like a lady bird you know.

"You are one of the most graceful birds," answered the bunny boy. "You fly lower than the other members of your family, especially at evening, when in search of insects."

"That's right," answered Mr. Barn Swallow. "And another, too, little rabbit. Our tails are more deeply forked. The feathers are a darker blue, with white spots."

"So I see," laughed the bunny boy.

"Yes, we never tire when flying," went on Mr. Barn Swallow. "And we fly so swiftly we have no time for a song. So we just twitter, twitter, all the day."

"Have you a nice nest?" asked the little rabbit, all of a sudden.

"Come into the barn," answered the two little birds, and off they flew to show the bunny boy a nest made of clay and lined with soft feathers.

"When the winter comes we go to South America, but we always return in pril," explained Mr. Barn Swallow as the little rabbit hopped out of the barn in answer to Lady Love's call to supper.

"The lollypop stew is steaming hot,
And the carrot cake is sweet.
Tuck your napkin under your chin,
And please be clean and neat.

SUCCESS ACHIEVED BY MISS CONWAY IN MUSIC

Miss Catherine Conway, head of the department of music, George Washington High school, New York city, formerly of Colchester and New Haven, has been appointed to give two summer courses in music for teachers at Hunter college, a training college for teachers of New York city.

The first course is intended to prepare teachers and supervisors of music for elementary and junior high schools. The purpose of the second course is to prepare teachers of music for senior high schools.

Miss Conway was born in Colchester and is a graduate of the New Haven normal school, New York university and the Institute of Musical Art, and was soloist at St. Patrick's church. She entered the New York city school system and was rapidly promoted from teaching to supervisor and then to head of the music department in one of the largest high schools in the city. In addition to her ability as a concert singer and teacher, she has achieved considerable success as a composer of school operettas and songs.

C. V. MOTOR BUS DOES NOT SATISFY GOVERNMENT

The new electric motor bus, that had been operated on the Central Vermont line between New London and Palmer, has been taken off the line as it did not meet with the approval of the government. It has no facilities for working the U. S. mail, the baggage, express, and mail apartment being in one place, whereas the government insists that provision shall be made for working the mail separately from all other business of the road. The smokers apartment was also in the same section as the mail room and this is not permissible.

Increased exports and decreased imports marked the foreign trade of the United States for the fiscal year ended June 30.

RAILROAD SHARES STRONG.

New York, July 15.—Further irregularity developed in today's active stock market which was featured by an impressive demonstration of strength in the railroad shares and the marked heaviness of the oil issues. Total sales again were slightly above the million share mark.

Heavy selling of the oil shares reflected the spread of gasoline price reductions. Atlantic Refining broke nearly 5 points to 82 1-2, some of the liquidation in this issue, apparently being inspired by the recent court decision awarding the Superior Oil company large damages against it, Pan-American issues broke about 2 points each and losses of a point or more were recorded by General Asphalt, Maracaibo, Tidewater and Royal Dutch.

There was no special news news to account for the brisk demand for the carrier stocks, recent action of which has been based, in part, on speculative expectation of large earnings during the latter part of the year. Some excellent gains were recorded by the seasoned dividend paying issues, Lackawanna closing 4 points higher at 126 and Delaware and Hudson showing a gain of 3 points at 119 3-4. Baltimore & Ohio touched a new peak price for the year at 61 3-8, closing slightly below its top price with a net gain of more than one point. Buying of this stock apparently was based on publication of the annual report showing $13.21 a share earned on the common stock.

Active buying of American Can sent that stock up more than two points to 117 1-8, but it eased later to 117 1-4. United States Steel closed at par, off 1-2, and small fractional losses were recorded by Baldwin and Studebaker.

Heavy selling of Stewart-Warner, which closed 3 points lower, at 57, was based on the expectation that the $10 annual dividend would be substantially reduced at this week's meeting of the board of directors. Stromberg Carburetor closed more than a point lower at 62 1-2; Chemical issue reacted oh profit-taking, as did such industrial specialties as United States Industrial Alcohol, International Harvester, Manhattan Electrical Supply and Westinghouse Air Brake.

Resumption of pool activities in American Water Works sent that stock up more than five points to 111 but it reacted later to 108. Substantial net gains were recorded by the preferred issues. Several other public utilities fell back on realizing sales. Virginia Railway and Power dropped nearly four points to 66 and United Railways investment preferred, 2 1-4.

Call money continued to rule at 3 per cent. Time money and Commercial Paper rates were unchanged with lenders of time funds apparently unwilling to reduce rates in order to find employment for surplus money.

The foreign exchange market showed a complete reversal of form from Monday when trading in European currencies was active and strong. The reactionary tendencies which developed today were attributed to nervousness, over the impending conference on reparations. Demand sterling declined 1 3-4 cents to $4.36 3-4 and French and Belgian francs reacted about 10 points each to 5.16 1-2 and 4.66 1-2 cents, respectively.

BOND MARKET

New York, July 15.—With a revival of interest in speculative railroad obligations, bond prices hardened perceptibly in today's more active trading. Conspicuous weakness of some of the foreign issues and oil company liens gave the market a spotty appearance, but improvement of the rails and public utilities sustained its general firmness.

New high records for 1924 were established by some of the Erie railroad issues simultaneously with the advance of the road's shares to hte year's highest levels. Some of the buying was attributed to reports that the Van Sweringens soon would take definite action to consolidate some of their recently acquired railroad interests, including Erie and Pere Marquette. Seaboard adjustment 5's touched a new top price and some of the New Haven and St. Paul mortgages moved higher.

Continuation of unfavorable rumors regarding the Sinclair dividend, on which action is due tomorrow, depressed the company's 7 per cent bonds. At the same time the general weakness of the oil shares, based on additional gasoline price cuts, unsettled some of the less active oil company bonds.

After an early decline in Brazilian issues to new low levels, the Republic 8s and Rio De Janeiro 8s rallied 1 1-4 to 2 points, on the assumption that they had been oversold, the Sao Paulo issues, however, continued to drift lower.

Preparations were said to be under way for refunding the remaining $20,000,000 of the outstanding Argentine short term loans. Flotation of another six months issue on a 5 per cent. basis is expected, although it may not be marketed until next month. The new Hungarian bonds, listed on the New York stock exchange today, sold at a fractional premium.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, July 15.—Profit-taking sales of huge volumes brought about a set-back in wheat values today after the market had again broken all high price records of the season. Drought reports from Canada gave the market an excited early advance, but indications of rain tended to stimulate sellers. The close was unsettled, 3-8 to 1 5-8 net lower, Sept. 1.21 5-8 to 1.21 7-8 and Dec. 1.24 5-8 to 1.25, with corn 1c to 4 1-8c down, oats 1 1-4c to 1 1-2c off, and provisions unchanged to 20c down. With Winnipeg, Liverpool and Buenos Aires quotations all showing extraordinary upturns, the wheat market opened here with a tremendous rush of buying, and with Canadian weather conditions eclipsing all other factors. The impetus of wholesale orders to purchase carried prices to the day's top level before the first hour of trading was at end, but then a battle royal ensued that lasted until the finish of the board of trade session, with fluctuations so rapid at times that the blackboards above the brokers' heads failed to keep even with the lightning changes in the pit.

One of the strongest rallies of the day in the wheat market came after reports were circulated telling of black rust in Minnesota and the Dakotas and of excessive dry weather in Montana. There were signs too that foreign buying was absorbing much of the wheat sold to realize profits. On the other hand, a collapse on the price of the September delivery of corn tended to unnerve some wheat holders, especially at the last.

Corn, like wheat, went wildly upward at first, September in particular was in eager demand from shots and with July and December was soon at a record-breaking height. Meanwhile No. 3 yellow corn, immediate delivery commanded $1.14 1-2 a bushel. Later, however, the corn market reflected the influence of better weather.

Oats were active and unsettled, following corn but kept within relatively narrow limits.

Provisions attained new high price records owing to strength of cereals and of hog values, but subsequently reacted.

CURB MARKET.

New York, July 15.—Heavy selling of the oil shares, based on the spread of gasoline price cuts to eastern territory, imparted a reactionary trend to prices in today's curb market. Standard Oil of Nebraska broke 8 points to 323, Prairie Oil and Gas dropped six points to 199 while losses of a point or more were recorded by Ohio Oil, Magnolia Petroleum and Buckeye and Northern Pipe. Losses in active Standard Oil and independent issues were held to fractions.

There were several strong spots in the industrial and public utility group. Hudson and Manhattan closed two points higher at 23 and Dubilier Radio established another new peak price at 46 3-4, closing slightly below the top with a net gain of 1 3-8.

Brisk trading in American Light and Traction carried it up almost five points at one time, easing slightly later on profittaking, but closing for a gain of nearly 4 points on the day. Appalachian Power offered little resistance to small sales, losing about 4 points at the close.

The motors were steady, Durant and Dupont showing fractional gains.

NOVELTY ORCHESTRA

NORTH LYME

Miss Gladys Stratton of New London was a caller here recently.

C. R. Tiffany and Mrs. H. A. Rogers were guests Sunday of Mrs. W. M. Sisson.

H. A. Gates and family, Mrs. William Porter, Gladys Porter and Alice Hodge of Little River were callers at G. H. Strong's Saturday.

Mrs. Lillian May Babcock, 62, wife of George Babcock, died Thursday after three months' illness from stomach trouble. Mrs. Babcock was highly respected by all who knew her, a woman always cheerful and hospitable, and will be greatly missed in her circle of friends. She leaves her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Alpheus Nye of Fitchville and Mrs. Bertram Elton, of New Britain, one of whom has been with her almost constantly for two months; a son, Merrill Babcock, of Meriden, and nine grandchildren. The funeral was held at her home Sunday afternoon. Rev. J. C. Gavin had charge of the services. Burial was in the family lot in the cemetery on the East road.

Mrs. Alpheus Nye and son and Mrs. Bertram Elton and children will remain with their father, George Babcock, the remainder of this week.

Miss Henrietta Gates, who spent the past three weeks at G. H. Strong's, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. John Warner, in Hadlyme, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adams and family of Fitchville attended the funeral of Mrs. Adams' sister, Mrs. Babcock, Sunday.

ONECO

Mrs. Fred Holt and daughter Florence are visiting Brattleboro, Vt. friends.

Miss Mabel Kennedy was a week end visitor at Mrs. Ellen Waite's.

The H. H. Class met with Miss Mildred Brown recently. Cake and lemonade were served by the hostess.

A. J. Dixon has moved to Sterling.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hess of Jersey City are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Whitford at Yankee Doodle Farm.

Joseph Hawkins, Jr., has returned home from a visit in New Hampshire.

Arthur Hawkins and family and Mrs. Palmer of Bridgeport were holiday visitors at Joseph Hawkins.

The world wouldn't move quite so fast if it depended on some people we know to push it.

SECRET OF HAPPINESS

The greatest menace on earth to happiness is the ill health with which so many women are afflicted. The young woman is subject to pain and irregularities, the mother to the tortures of displacements with consequent pains, aches and nervousness—the middle aged woman to the uncomfortable conditions caused by this critical age. The one remedy to control these conditions and restore the system to a normal, healthy condition is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for fifty years has been restoring sick and ailing women to health and happiness.

NORWICH TOWN

Howard Bushnell of Oecum, supplied the pulpit at the Sunday morning worship at the First Methodist Episcopal church, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich, who was out of town over the week end.

Mr. Bushnell spoke on the Parable of the Talents, choosing for his text, Matthew 25:15. And unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one; to every man according to his several ability, and straightway took his journey.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening was in charge of Edward Howe. The topic was, Abolish War! Why? How? Isaiah 2:1-4.

In his sermon at the First Congregational church, Sunday morning, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey used for his theme, A Picture of the Early Christian Church. The text referred to was Acts 12-1x. And when Peter was come to himself, he said, Now I know of a surety, that the Lord hath sent His Angel and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews.

Miss Margaret Ewing, daughter of a former pastor of this church, Rev. George H. Ewing, now holding a pastorate at Sanford, Maine, assisted in the choir during the service, as did also Miss Helen Avery.

Miss Ewing was the leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening, when the topic assigned was Abolish War: Why? How? While in town, Miss Ewing was the guest of Mrs. Charles W. Chapin of Town street.

The mid-week service of the Congregational church, Thursday evening, will have for its scripture lesson the 13th chapter of I Corinthians.

At a special meeting of the Dropin class of the First Congregational Sunday school, held recently at the home of Mrs. David M. Dean, of Town street, it was decided to hold a cafeteria supper on the church lawn. The chairman Mrs. Dean and the several members of the class will have charge.

Rev. and Mrs. James B. Aldrich have as their guests at the Methodist parsonage, Mrs. Aldrich's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Aldrich and their little son Linwood, of Cambridge, Vt., they having arrived Wednesday.

Saturday, Mr. Aldrich with his brother-in-law, Rev. Mr. Aldrich and the latters son Lewis, motored to Boston and spent the week end at the home of another son and daughter-in-law of Rev. Mr. Aldrich, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Aldrich.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. House and Mrs. Elizabeth H. Kinney of Town street, motored to Hartford Sunday, having as their guest, G. P. Coates of Broadway, Norwich.

Mrs. Kate McClure of the Johnson Home family, returned Saturday after six weeks' stay in Massachusetts. The first five weeks were spent in Winchenden, where she was the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Free. Mr. Free being a former pastor at the Greeneville Baptist church. The last week of her visit Mrs. McClure was located at the Berkeley street, Y. W. C. A., at Boston, from which place she took daily trips to Concord, Salem and other points of historical interest.

Mrs. Mary White, nurse at the Johnson Home is passing a vacation of two weeks at Wethersfield, Hartford, Mystic and at Sag Harbor, L. I.

Mrs. White at first visited at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Newbury, of Wethersfield.

Recent additions to the Johnson Home family include, Mrs. Agnes Blackburn of Norwich, who was admitted about three weeks ago and Mrs. Philena Hough Noland, who entered the home Saturday. For some time Mrs. Noland has been making her home with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Hough, of West Town street. At present Mrs. Noland is spending several days at Pleasant View, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight L. Underwood, who with their daughter, Miss Bernice Underwood are occupying a cottage there for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Vaughn, with their son Stanley K. Vaughn of Bliss Place, are passing a number of weeks at their cottage at Pooquogh.

Mrs. Rose K. Burr, R. N., of Town street who is having a month's vacation, is at Quonochontaug Beach, R. I., for the remainder of July.

Master William Leonard of Julian street who is in camp at Kennebunkport, Me., was visited over the week end, by his parents, Dr. and Mrs. William W. Leonard and his sister, Miss Beatrice Leonard.

GALES FERRY

Ruth, Daughter of Moab, a sacred cantata given by female voices, with Mrs. Eugene La Fontaine, organist and director, illustrated with tableaux, with Mrs. C. E. Colver narrator, was given in the M. E. church, Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. The costumes of the period of Bible times were effective. Mrs. A. P. Miller impersonated Naomi, with grey robe and head covering, Mrs. Alton Stoddard, Ruth, in white robe with scarlet sash, Mrs. Nelson Parker, Orpah wearing light blue and silver. Courtland E. Colver was Boaz. The gleaners were Mrs. J. E. Ammand Arman, Mrs. Carroll S. Hurlbutt, Mrs. Davison in white robes, Mrs. John Harold in lavender, Mrs. Avery Main in yellow, Misses Laura McGuire in blue, Ida Erickson in pink. The singers were Miss Grace A. Chapman, Mrs Dudley C. Perkins, Mrs. Monett A. Lawton, Miss Amos Main, Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt and Misses Jennie G. Perkins and Gertrude Allen.

Consider the lilies was the theme of Rev. W. D. Woodward, when he spoke to the young people, Sunday morning in the M. E. church, preceding his sermon, from Psalm 66:12, the text, Beautiful Vows at the offertory, a duet, Forever With The Lord. (Gounod) was sung by D. R. Povey and C. E. Colver.

About fifty girl scouts from Camp Merritt at Brown's Crossing, were in attendance at this service. Rev. Mr. Woodward called the attention of the congregation to a petition, in the vestibule of the church, requesting all legal voters in the town of Ledyard present interested in the prohibition ticket, for the fall election to write their signatures thereupon.

The Sunday school resumed its session as formerly, at 12:15.

A preliminary meeting for all interested in the annual community picnic is to be held at the home of Mr and Mrs. Nelson Parker Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, (D. S. T.)

Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham entertained, six tables of bridge at her home, here on Friday afternoon, from 2.30 to 5.30 o'clock for the benefit of the Country club. Mrs. Marie Renton of Brooklyn, N. Y., donated the prizes. Mrs. Buckingham served punch and wafers.

Recent callers at the home of Noyes B. Allyn, were Charles G. Lincoln and sister, Mrs. W. O. Burr of Hartford, who are at the Burr summer home at Lord's Point, and were friends of Mr. Allyn years ago, when he was a business man in this city. Each presented Mr. Allyn a gift of money, for the permanent fund of the M. E. church of this place for which Mr. Allyn has been the promoter and collector for many years.

Among motor parties that have visited Elizabeth park, Hartford recently to see the roses, from this locality were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Colver and family and Mr. and Mrs. John Harold and partsy. Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt, Mrs. Charles H. Bartlett and Mrs. Harold Bartlett.

The entertainment given by the Glee club quartet of the Submarine base, assisted by Mrs. Grace T. Manning of Yantic, reader in the auditorium of the M. E. church Thursday evening was largely attended, by residents and summer people. The quartet, Harry K. Brown, chief yeoman, U. S. N., Louis J. McHugh, radioman, second class, U. S. N., Joseph B. Cloigan, sergeant, U. S. M. C., who gave their interesting and, varied program of songs, for the benefit of the church, were accompanied by Mrs. Rufus W. Hurlbutt at the piano. They also gave banjo and ukulele accompaniments, interspersed with snappy jokes. Mrs. Manning's readings, Uncle Ephram Takes the Wheel, Mice at Play, and Fourth of July Celebration with several encores won much applause. The Star Spangled Banner, sung by all closed the program.

Mrs. E. V. Mann, celebrated her 84th birthday Saturday, July 12 at Redfern cottage, with her sister, Mrs Franklin H. Brown. Mrs. Mann received calls from friends and during the day, and special guests were her sister Mrs. H. C. Aldrich, and her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Crowell of Norwich. Mrs. Mann received gifts, flowers and many remembrances, including two birthday cakes.

Miss Jennie G. Perkins attended a basket picnic of the New London Northfield club, at the home of Miss Nellie J. Starr at Nncasville, Saturday afternoon.

J. Harvey Mann and daughter Miss Edna Mann of Putnam motored here Thursday and opened the summer cottage of the family on the Bluff, preparatory to occupying it at a later date.

Noyes B. Allyn was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Brown at Brown's Crossing Sunday.

Mrs. Mercy Dean now of South Scituate, a former resident for many years of Gales Ferry who has passed her 86th birthday, and is in fairly good health, has written friends here that she has been recently made a voter and if she lives until next November, will vote for Calvin Coolidge for President.

COLUMBIA

Miss Susan P. Clapp, of Hartford, arrived Saturday, and is at the home of Miss Eliza Hutchins on the green, to remain during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clarke and daughter of New Haven were in town on Saturday calling on Mr. Clarke's mother, Mrs. Willard Clarke.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Collins of Willimantic were guests over the week end of Mr. Collin's mother, Mrs. Warren Collins.

The first dance of the season at Utley's Hall was held Saturday evening and was well attended. The hall was engaged by an orchestra from Manchester, which furnished excellent music.

The infant daughter of Mrs. Horace Trythall is seriously ill. Two consultations of physicians have been held during the past week.

A coating of oil and tar was spread upon the road in front of the church, and the other roads at the center, Saturday afternoon.

Some of the gardens have been feeling the necessity of rain and continued warm weather. The cold, late spring and the spasmodically hot and dry weather recently has made the ground very dry. The recent heavy showers in surrounding towns did not reach Columbia, but this town was favored, with fine showers Sunday and which should greatly improve conditions.

Another well baby conference is to be held in Columbia Monday July 21st at Yeomans Hall from 2 to 4 P. M.

Much interest was manifested in the last conference in May, when not only babies, but children, especially those from the Chestnut Hill school, were taken to the meeting for examination as to health and to be weighed. It is the intention to examine and weigh children from one of the sections of the town at each of the well baby conferences.

Rev. Charles C. Haun preached Sunday morning on Where Shall We Worship, referring to the many opinions held by worshipers of all ages as to the place, method and object of the worship of God.

In the evening the Christian Endeavor Society was led by Clayton E Hunt, the subject being, Abolish War

BEFORE COURT FOR IMPERSONATING OFFICERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 15.—Three New London youths, all minors, were before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in the Waterford town court this forenoon, charged with impersonating an officer. The cases were continued a week. The youths were in an automobile between New London and Norwich several nights ago where they caused several machines to be stopped and the occupants were informed that unless the drivers of the several cars refrained from speeding they would be arrested, the youths declaring themselves to be state police officers. One of the cars stopped was occupied by naval officers attached to the submarine base and with the arrival of that machine in Norwich the state police barracks in Groton was communicated with and the number of the "hold-up" car was furnished. It was then revealed that a New London young man, owned the machine and a short time afterwards the car and the youths was found on Bank street, near Tilley street. The three were then ordered into court.

YANTIC MOTORIST FINED IN SOUTHINGTON COURT

In Southington, Monday in the town court before Deputy Judge James F. McPartland, Stanley Armstrong of Yantic, arrested on the charge of operating a motor vehicle in a reckless manner following a collision with an automobile owned and driven by Anthony Ptaszynski, of Bristol, on North Main street, Southington, Sunday night was fined $25 with costs amounting to $26.57. He paid.

Certificates of Dissolution.

The following companies have filed certificates of dissolution: Bergam Brothers Corporation of Bridgeport; the Shetucket Company, Inc., of Norwich; the Royal Business School, Inc., of New Haven.

NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL IN BIGGEST FARMING PROGRAMME

This season the Norwich state hospital is embarking upon its most ambitious farming programme, having added 30 acres of the so-called Geer farm to the cultivated area of the hospital property at Brewster's Neck that has been used in other years.

Big returns are anticipated in the potato crop for which 600 bushels of seed potatoes have been planted. There are three acres of beets, three acres of carrots, two acres of parsnips, and five acres of turnips. This crop of root plants will play an important part in the cuisine of the hospital.

Fifty acres of corn are under cultivation and this week the cabbage crop has been set out, 10,000 a day, until 40,000 plants will be placed.

A new development this summer will be the raising and canning of beans and tomatoes. Seven to eight thousand tomato plants have been set out and there are 4,000 poles of Kentucky Wonder beans. A canning and capping machine has been bought and a carload of 9,000 tin cans ordered so that when the time arrives, the hospital force will be prepared to do the canning. It is figured that this will be a large saving in this item of provisions.

The strawberry crop this season was a prolific one. The record shows that 8,500 baskets of the fruit were picked and besides this the patients were allowed to pick as much as they wanted at all times from the strawberry beds.

At the present time the dairy herd of Holsteins, 66 in number, has been transferred to the Geer farm and put out to pasture in a 100-acre lot. The cows are producing a daily average of 800 quarts of milk.

There are 3,000 hens and chickens on the hospital's poultry farm. The maximum egg production is 600 daily.

The other livestock department, the hogs, now has a count of 445 Berkshires, all fine animals of this breed.

TRAGIC DEATH OF J. WILBUR CHAPMAN, JR.

The funeral of J. Wilbur Chapman, Jr., eldest son of the late Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, the widely-known evangelist and moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, will be held privately this afternoon from the chapel of the Fourth Presbyterian church, West End avenue and Ninety-first street, of which he was a member. Rev. Dr. Edgar Whitaker Work, until recently the pastor, will return from Center Lovett, Maine, where he is spending the summer, to officiate. Burial will be in Woodlawn cemetery, by the side of Dr. Chapman, who for years was pastor of the Fourth church.

It was not until Sunday that his family positively identified the body as that of Mr. Chapman. His automobile and the body was found in the Hudson river. His car plunged in the river at Ninety-sixth street last Wednesday. The body was discovered at the foot of Eighty-sixth street, opposite the Columbia Yacht club last Saturday.

Newly-weds Entertain Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McAvoy, who were married last Saturday, have returned from a honeymoon trip to Block Island and were at home on Tuesday evening to a party of friends at their residence on Otrobando avenue.

Played Piano Solo.

A piano solo, Good Night Little Girl, was given by Mildred Carter in the programme of children's night at Norwich grange last week.

AVERY DESCENDANTS WILL GATHER FOR REUNION

The annual meeting of the Avery Family Memorial association will be held at the Avery memorial in Poquonoc Friday afternoon at 4.30 and a picnic luncheon will be served. This association was organized in 1894, for the purpose of preserving the site of the old Avery homestead in Poquonoc, and perpetuating the history of Capt. James Avery, colonial warrior and founder of the Avery family in America. Captain Avery was born in Ipplepen, England, in 1620 and came to this country with his father, Christopher Avery, in 1630. Captain Avery, who commanded the Pequot allies in the Narragansett swamp fight during King Philip's war and many of his gallant Revolutionary descendants slain at the battle of Groton Heights in 1781, are interred in the old Avery burying ground adjoining the memorial, as well as Susannah (Palmes) Avery, wife of Samuel Avery of royal lineage who died in 1747. Samuel Avery, who died 200 years ago was buried in a cemetery in Ledyard, but his remains were reontered last year in the Avery cemetery.

Captain James Avery was prominent in the civic and military affairs of New London county and served at various times as deupty to the general court in Hartford and New Haven. Two hundred and sixty-seven years ago he built the "Hive of the Averys" the Avery homestead in Poquonoc whih burned in 1894. On the site of the old house now stands a bronze bust of Captain Avery, surmounting a granite shaft.

Descendants of this illustrious man from all parts of the country, journey each year to attend the family meeting. Hon. Elroy McK. Avery of Florida is the president and Miss Addie A. Thomas of Groton is secretary. Hon. Frank M. Avery of Brooklyn, N. Y., is one of the vice presidents of the association.

A. T. GARDNER CELEBRATES HIS 80TH BIRTHDAY

Addison Tracy Gardner of Gardner Court and Otis street reached the 80th milestone of his life Tuesday, celebrating the day with relatives and many friends who extended congratulations.

Mr. Gardner was born on Bashon Hill in the Town of Bozrah in 1844, the fifth generation in that town and seventh from the settlement by George Gardner in Bristol in 1640, and was the first of seven children to be born to Alvin and Sarah (Chapman) Gardner.

After residing in Lyme, Salem and Colchester he removed to Norwich and entered the employ of William Ford and his uncle, Henry R. Gardner, at No. 3 Market street, where in 1862, he conducted a meat market. Here he remained under the business names of Ford and Gardner, A. T. Gardner and Gardner and Reynolds for over 40 years.

Mr. Gardner was a great lover of horses and made a side line of bringing in western horses for many years. About 1880 he established sales stables and conducted them in different parts of the city on Franklin, Willow, Chestnut and Bath street besides having one in Colchester, New London and at one time Southampton, L. I. In 1890 he purchased the property on the westerly corner of Chestnut and Willow street and built a large modern sales stable and after conducting it successfully for a few years it was sold to the Broadway theatre which now occupies the land.

Mr. Gardner made a specialty of bringing from the north and west the finest driving and coach horses obtainable and the horsemen tell big stories of some of his importations that found their way into the best stables in this section of southern New England. Many matched pairs brought as high as several thousand dollars and one driving horse in particular called "Dandy" held his particular box stall, for many months with a daily arm-breaking exercise by his valet (John Mack). This particular animal was a jet black gelding weighing over 1,200 pounds and when bought in Michigan by Mr. Gardner himself was given a tryout over the country road sands of over 12 miles in one hour. The territory was covered for miles looking for a mate for a coach team, but finally the horse was sold to a county doctor for $800.

About 1890 Mr. Gardner became associated with his brother Willis O. Gardner in the native lumber business under the name of A. T. Gardner & Co., and for many years ran a number of steam mills, supplying ship builders and railroads with native products. The war made this work impossible owing to the cost and lack of labor and for the last few years they have confined themselves to getting out poles and piles. For many years Mr. Gardner ran a sales and livery stable on Bath street and a few years ago sold the same to William F. Bailey who now conducts it as a garage. Mr. Gardner has several large farms to which he has given his personal attention, one the Kinney place on Plain Hill, and another in Franklin known as the Sherman Loomis place where he will be seen nearly ever day.

For a period that Mr. Gardner has been personally conducting his business here there are a few men that can go back 62 years in active business and few who can show the clean business record and great number of friends which he has attached.

Mr. Gardner on the paternal side traces back through Elizabeth Hyde to Samuel Hyde who settled in Hartford in 1635 and to Ensign Thomas Lee, son of Phoebe Lee, who built the old Lee house at South Lyme in 1660, and to the Chapmans, Wickwires, Latimers and Hallams who settled New London, as well as the Shermans who settled Providence.

Forty years this April he married Jeannette McNaught of this city who with many friends and relatives enjoyed the birthday anniversary with him.

Installed as Conductor.

Through an error it was stated in The Bulletin Tuesday morning that William Osborne was installed as conductor of Uncas lodge, No. 11, I. O. O. F., Monday night at the meeting of the lodge. The name should have read William Ortman, who will hold the office of conductor for the ensuing six months.

COUNTY FAIR SECRETARY IS SECURING ATTRACTIONS

Edwin V. Ross, secretary of the New London County Agricultural society left for Boston Tuesday and will remain there over today Wednesday, to secure circus acts and other entertainment numbers for the 70th annual fair of the society to be held at the Fairgrounds, this city, on September 1, 2 and 3

Everything promises for a banner year in 1924 and the free vaudeville acts will be bigger and better than ever. It is the purpose of the executive committee of the society to provide good horse racing all three days of the fair, high class free vaudeville before the grandstand and a thrilling balloon ascension each day promptly at 4 o'clock daylight time. This last feature of the fair is moved ahead this year to allow people coming long distances to witness the balloon ascension and parachute drop before they leave for their homes.

The midway has been organized with one thought in mind this year—to allow those who enjoy this feature of the fair to do so without fear of imposition or fraud.

The premium list for the 1924 fair has been greatly simplified, the items arranged in such an order that anyone desirous of making entries in the many classifications may do so by getting in touch with the superintendents of the departments. As an added inducement to make entries the premium list has been increased considerably. One thing that is being impressed on all prospective entrants, is that entries must be made by the time mentioned in the contracts and that no late entries will be accepted.

LEBANON D. A. R. CHAPTER HEARS INTERESTING PAPERS

Gov. Jonathan Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., held their July meeting at the war office Monday, July 14. Miss Laura C. McCall, the regent, presided. The meeting opened with the Lord's prayer, singing America and salute to the flag.

After the business meeting two very interesting papers were read, one on Jedediah Elderkin and Elipht Dyer members of the Connecticut Council of Safety in Revolutionary War times by Mrs. Anna Perry, and the other on "Patriotic Songs and Their Origin" by Mrs. Ellis Potter.

There followed a social hour during which the hostesses, Mrs. Ethel R. McCall, Miss Dorothy F. McCall served light refreshments.

RACING YACHT WRECKED ON BLOCK ISLAND SHORE

Zingara, a 46-foot sloop yacht, owned by J. H. Duys, Jr., of New York, an entrant in the New York Athletic club race from New York to Block Island, is a total wreck after piling upon the rocks on the west end of Block Island.

The Zingara, like the Witchcraft II, which ran on a sand bar there Sunday, got off the course trying to race to the finishing line.

Under the excitement of racing and in the heavy fog Zingara stood too close to the Block Island shore. Suddenly there was a crash, a ripping sound and the big sloop was piled up on the rocks in a most dangerous manner. Life guards came to the rescue of Captain Duys and his crew. All were saved, but it was found impossible to get the yacht off the rocks.

Another craft to get in trouble was the big racing sloop Typhoon, the property of William J. Ehrich. The yacht ran aground near the entrance of West harbor. Fortunately the tide was rising and she finally got afloat, crossing the finish line hours after the other boats of her class.

Karl Ieburgh's Celeritas, one of the Larchmont 39-footers, now rigged with a Marconi mast, led the fleet into West harbor. It took the big sloop over 13 hours to sail the course, estimated at 160 nautical miles. It was a new record. Celeritas won the special class on both actual and corrected time.

Although it was not the winner of the regular division on corrected time, C. A. Marsland's Azor was the first across the finish line, covering the course in 12 hours, 29 minutes, 35 seconds. The winner of the division on corrected time was Adios, one of the 30-footers of the New York Yacht club, now the property of C. E. Trowbridge. It was the 19th annual race to Block Island.

The motor boat divisions, which were taking part in the 15th annual Block Island race, also made good time. They all got through without any trouble. In the express cruiser class the winner was Nueva, which is owned by T. W. Brigham. The cabin cruiser division was won by W. R. Halsey's Spendthrift II.

Contract For Jail Barn.

The Tolland county commissioners met at Rockville Monday morning and a contract was awarded for the erection of a new barn at the Tolland county jail. The contract calls for a barn 43 by 43 feet and was let to Harwood J. Skelly of Tolland.

CUMMINGS WOULD REFUSE TO BE CHAIRMAN AGAIN

Homer S. Cummings of Stamford, regarded as Connecticut's leading democrat, who has been prominently mentioned as the next chairman of the democratic national committee, stated Monday that he would not accept the position even if it were tendered him.

"There is no likelihood that any such tender will be made," he said, "and even if it were, I would not accept it. Anyone who has been chairman of the democratic national committee is grateful for the opportunities for service which come with it, but it is an experience no one cares to repeat. The task is trying and difficult."

EUROPEANS BASE HOPE ON HELP FROM AMERICANS

Sentiment Expressed by Premier MacDonald in Welcoming Delegates to the Inter-Allied Conference in London—Asserted That the Dawes Report Provides For the Reconstruction of Germany, With the Payment of Substantial Reparations.

London, July 16 (By the A. P.).—The importance with which the European powers view America's participation in the inter-allied conference on the Dawes report on German reparations was clearly indicated today during the deliberations of the delegates of ten nations whom the British prime minister, Ramsay Macdonald, formally welcomed at the foriegn office.

Mr. Macdonald extended a special welcome to the American representatives, Ambassador Kellogg and Col. J. A. Logan, Jr. He remarked that America's mind illuminated the Dawes report, which had brought the delegates together, and he hoped that the Americans, although only official spectators, would be able to help the Europeans out of the wrecks and disasters of the reparations negotiations of the past six years.

The members of the other delegations likewise voiced the view that the presence of the Americans was likely materially to aid in bringing about an allied agreement that would make the Dawes plan workable, thereby placing reparations on a sane and reasonable basis satisfactory to the allies and acceptable to Germany.

Premier Macdonald's Address.

"My first words and thoughts," said Premier Macdonald in opening the interallied conference, "are those of welcome in behalf both of my country and government to the representatives of the nations that fought by our side while war was raging and that now share with us the responsibility of bringing peace and security to Europe.

"The after-war problems have been many and intricate; it was in the nature of things that we could not always see eye to eye regarding them. But every time we have disagreed we have had fresh proofs of the imperative necessity of unity, if our victory is really to make Europe safe for other large powers or small nationalities. Nothing has baffled us more than the economic problems resulting from the war, of which reparations is among the most difficult."

The prime minister briefly surveyed the problem up to the expert committee stage and commented upon the ability and unanimity of the experts whose endeavors placed an imperative obligation on the conference to put its proposals into operation without delay.

The policy which had been pursued, he continued, had not only failed to yield the expected reparations, but had unsettled the minds of the people concerned, created aggressive militarism and increased fear, overshadowing all sense of security. He urged the conference to seize the new opportunity to create happier prospects.

The report would have to be taken as a whole, or disagreements such as had occurred in the past would be overwhelming. Outlining the measures needed to create conditions under which the plan would be workable, Mr. Macdonald said:

"The first is that the economic and fiscal unity of Germany shall be restored; second, that adequate security shall be given to creditors who will be asked to advance a large loan, which is the basis of the plan."

The machinery establishing these conditions presented unquestioned difficulties, but Mr. Macdonald was certain they could be surmounted, and that the conference could write as the final word of its deliberations "success," a word which had been so long absent from allied conclusions.

The prime minister lay stress on the necessity of dealing with the Dawes report only, and doing it in the businesslike manner the experts themselves had adopted. He described how the experts had devised a means for the reconstruction of Germany side by side with the payment of substantial reparations, thereby doubly contributing to the reconstruction of Europe. It was to Germany's own interest to carry out the plan, which not merely obtained payments from Germany, but attempted to ensure stabilization of German currency and balancing the German budget.

The One Hope for Germany.

"In fact," he contended, "the plan offered the one hope for Germany of climbing out of the financial morass into which she had almost irretrievably sunk."

An equally important and original feature in which the Dawes plan differed from its predecessors, he pointed out, was that it regulated the transfer from Germany of sums paid to the allies on account and provided for the allies absorbing them without upsetting exchanges or economic conditions generally. The experts, in fact, had devised an elastic scheme providing for an empirical solution of the problem.

"Has anybody contemplated the lamentable consequences of a disagreement?" asked the prime minister. "Without unity there will be no security; without security there will be no peace."

He believed that the allied conceptions of political wisdom would be coordinated into an agreement, and heavy would be the responsibility upon anyone who did not strive with might and main to arrive at such an agreement.

Plenipotentiaries representing Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Japan, Portugal, Greece, Rumania and Serbia, together with the representatives of the United States, were seated around the table when Premier MacDonald made his welcoming address.

The British dominions tomorrow will probably add her own delegates to the conference, the question of dominion representation having been the first misunderstanding to occur in relation to the conference. It is understood that the question has been settled to the satisfaction of Ireland and Canada which demanded a representative of their own if they were to be bound by the conference's decisions.

The high hopes which the appearance of the American ambassador has raised among all the delegations emphasizes the importance of hte role which Mr. Kellogg may be called upon to assume in the critical stages which must be passed if the Dawes report is to become an instrument for solving Europe's woes. For, although the conference has been launched in a spirit of optimism, the United States may have to muster every resource of strength and tact if the conference is to be kept off the rocks.

The test of American tact may well come should any effort be made to enlarge the discussions before the conference to include those military and political questions which it has been declared must be excluded from the deliberations.

Welcomed American Envoy.

Addressing Ambassador Kellogg, the premier said: "I wish to extend a special welcome to the American representatives. I know they are not here as full delegates. The position in America prevents that. But they are here as evidence of co-operation and good will. America was a great partner of ours in the days when we were at war; her mind illuminates the report which brought us here together.

"We shall ask her, not as a government, but as a people with many resources and with good hearts, to take a share in the financial schemes which will have to be put into operation if there is to be a speedy reconstruction of Europe.

"It is not our desire to urge unduly any country to adopt a policy which they believe is economically and politically not for their interests, but, rather, if we can from our position to be helpful in trying to solve the greatest economic problem which has faced Europe in generations.

"The necessity for something being done was recognized by the reparations commission and the governments interested in the appointment of the so-called Dawes committee.

"I have the honor of knowing some of those gentlemen. They are all men of responsibility and experience. I know that the American members are men of the highest ability, experience and character. I believe that all of them approached the subject in a broad and liberal spirit, intending to be fair and to recognize the rights of all countries.

"Has anyone a better plan? I can say simply that my government and the people of the United States believe that the adoption of the Dawes report is the first great step towards the rehabilitation of Europe, the stabilization of our industries and the prosperity and happiness of the people."

M. Herriot, addressing the conference, said: "Each one of us realizes the seriousness of the duty we are here to fulfill.

"The question is how to reconcile the interests of people who have had to suffer equally and for a long time through an atrocious war with the necessity of restoring peace, for which we all ought to aim. The task is extremely difficult. But each and all will bring here the love of the country we are representing and the love we feel for peace. We shall all work as much as may be necessary in order to reach a solution. And we also are particularly glad, like you, Mr. Prime Minister, to see here our good friends from the United States."

ACTIVITY CONTINUES IN CHICAGO WHEAT PIT

Chicago, July 16.—It was a red letter day for high prices in every grain pit on change. Influenced chiefly by crop failure reports from Canada, wheat, corn and oats all soared above top record quotations this year. Even hog values at the stock yards felt the effect and smashed the season top record.

Although official figures on the volume of trading were unavailable tonight, opinions from brokers were that the aggregate of wheat transactions today in Chicago equalled or perhaps exceeded yesterday's total, which was computed at $9,138,000 bushels, the largest amount on record in more than a year. Corn business done here today also was of huge proportions.

The climax in the wheat pit today was reached just before the market closed, and was largely due to Winnipeg despatches received by one of the principal grain firms here declaring that the crop damage situation in Canada was such as to warrant predicting $1.50 as the probable price goal of wheat.

JUDGE MAYER RESIGNS FROM CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS

New York, July 16.—Judge Julius M. Mayer, of the United States circuit court of appeals, today forwarded his resignation to President Coolidge, to take effect August 1. In announcing his resignation, Judge Mayer stated his intention to become a senior partner of the law firm of Mayer, Warfield and Watson.

OBITUARY

John Thompson Spencer

Newport, R. I., July 16.—John Thompson Spencer of Philadelphia, died here today after an illness of two weeks. He was well known in Philadelphia as a lawyer and editor of Wallace's reports of United States supreme court decisions. He was born in 1841. He was president of the Newport reading room, and the Newport Improvement association, director of the Newport casino, governor of the Society of Colonial Wars of Pennsylvania and a member of many clubs. He is survived by his widow who was Rebecca Willing Wallace, and two sons, Willing Spencer, counselor of the merican embassy in Buenos Aires who is at present at Newport, and Arthur S. Spencer of Philadelphia.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Mean[illegible] to Protest Italians.

Rome, July 16.—The foreign ministry has been informed, according to the Messaggero, that the Italian consular agent at Sao Paulo has put himself in contact with the insurrectionists there in order that the life and property of the Italians in that city may be protected. The commander of the insurrectionists gave the Italian consulate ample assurances that no damage would be caused to the property of Italians and specific instructions to his forces to this effect.

CONFERENCE ON REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN PLANS DEFERRED

Washington, July 16.—President Coolidge's conference with William H. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, to map out further the immediate republican campaign plans was postponed today until early next week.

Mr. Butler had been expected to arrive in Washington in a day or so but word was received at the White House today that the chairman had decided to complete all arrangements for the opening of the party headquarters in New York before coming to Washington.

Mr. Coolidge was furnished with summaries on the situation in five states today through the most extensive series of political conferences in many days at the White House.

The president's political callers included Raymond Benjamin, of San Francisco, who was state chairman in California for six years prior to 1922, and who had general charge of republican activities in that state, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and Idaho in the 1920 campaign; Representative Var, a republican leader in Pennsylvania; Carmi Thompson, one of the Coolidge pre-convention campaign managers and a party lweader in Ohio; Senator Brandegee, of Connecticut, and Representative McLaughlin of Nebraska.

MAJOR M'LEARY, MISSING ARMY OFFICER, SLAIN

Asheville, N. C., July 16.—Major Samuel H. McLeary, missing army officer, was killed, by Mortimer H. King, living near Canton, and a companion whose identity is still unrevealed by authorities, on the afternoon of July 3, says a sworn confession made at Canton late today by King. A search is being conducted for the body of the major, which is said to be hidden in the brush about ten miles from Cheraw, S. C.

The motive of the killing, says the confession, was robbery. After the major had taken King and his companion into his car to give them a lift, it relates, they compelled him to stop at the point of a pistol, forced him to get out of the car, shot him to death and carried his body into the brush at the roadside.

Stripping the body of valuables, the confession continues, the two men returned to the car and drove it to Asheville, going then toward Canton. They were unable, however to cross Crab Tree mountain, near Canton, it say, and returning to the Thickety section where the car was ditched unintentionally, they hid McLeary's belongings, removed the license tags from the machine and fled, King going to his home.

ANNIVERSARY OF THE BATTLE OF STONY POINT

New York, July 16.—The anniversary of the battle of Stony Point, celebrated there without a break for 133 years until the world war, will be observed today with a double programme. The Grand Army of the Republic, West Point Cadets, 2,000 Boy Scouts, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Sons of the Revolution, and other patriotic and civic organizations will participate.

Senator King of Utah and Anthony Wayne Cook, only living direct descendent of "Mad Anthony" Wayne, will be principal speakers. A parade will follow, led by the G. A. R. and a cadet detachment from West Point.

There will be a ceremony at the laying of the cornerstone of the American Institute of Operatic Art by Archibald R. Watson of New York, secretary of the Wayne day celebration committee.

Wayne day is a legal holiday in Rockland county. The committee has prepared to entertain 20,000 visitors.

PERFECTING PLANS FOR MERGER OF RAILROADS

New York, July 16.—Plans for the consolidation of the Erie and Pere Marquette railroads with the "Nickel Plate" and other Van Swerington properties began to take definite form today when O. P. Van Swerington and J. J. Bernet, chairman of the board of directors and president, respectively, of the "Nickel Plate" road, outlined a proposed merger of the properties through an exchange of stock, to Chairman E. N. Brown and President Frank H. Alfred of the Pere Marquette at a conference in the latter's offices.

Mr. Brown stated after the meeting that Mr. Van Swerington had informed him that he had obtained control of "something over 100,000 of the 650,000 shares of outstanding Pere Marquette common stock.

While the details of today's conference were withheld, it is reported that the plan will involve the formation of a new corporation whose shares would be exchanged on a share for share basis with "Nickel Plate" and a one-for-two basis with Pere Marquette.

DAVIS IN CONSULTATION WITH POLITICAL ADVISORS

New York, July 16.—John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee, spent several busy hours with political advisors today, but late this afternoon it was said that he had reached no decision as to his choice for campaign manager or national committee chairman.

George T. White of Ohio, former national chairman, was with the nominee today. Following his morning visit, Mr. White told the correspondents that the selection for the two important posts would be made before the day was over. However, when he had finished an afternoon conference with the nominee, Mr. White asserted that no choice had been made.

It was learned that Mr. Davis is consulting his running mate, Governor Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, with regard to the appointments, and that the consultations, which are being conducted by telegraph, have not yet been concluded.

American Aviators In Suburb of London

Planes Are to be Prepared For Their Final Dash Across the Atlantic.

London, July 16.—(By The A. P.)—Six bronzed American aviators, 244 flying hours out of Seattle and with two-thirds of the world's circumference behind them, glided into the Croydon airdrome just outside London this afternoon ready for their first real rest on the round-the-globe flight and for a week of preparation for their final dash across the Atlantic via Iceland and Greenland.

They left Le Bourget airdrome outside Paris at 11.05 o'clock this morning, fought headwinds all the way across the English Channel but jumped from the continent in otherwise perfect flying conditions, and landed at the British airdrome just 3 hours and 4 minutes later to be greeted by a crowd of enthusiasts who nearly mobbed them as they climbed stiffly from their cockpits. They tried vainly to get a good stretch before they assumed company manners to face the shower of greetings from the British and American welcomers.

Tomorrow, the planes will go to Brough for installation of new engines and for a general tightening up process before they hop off some time next week for Kirkwall in the Orkneys, the last European stop.

The aviators' arrival was most casual, their only escort being a British passenger landing plane and several French military planes.

The land greeting of the Americans, however, was not at all casual and the Bobbies had a hard time protecting the planes and fliers from button, souvenir and autograph hunters, and wild-eyed well- wishers who showered the six Americans with congratulations.

As the planes approached, Mrs. Stuart MacLaren, wife of the British round-the-world flier, excited as a school girl, watched the machines anxiously and whispered to a companion: "It's wonderful but I wish it were my husband coming home." She was one of the first to congratulate Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, the American commander, who leaned out of the fuselage of his plane and gave her a word of good cheer about her husband.

The flagship "Chicago," carrying Lieutenant Smith and Lieutenant Leslie P. Arnold, his mechanic, was the first o taxi to the field. Immediately following it was the "New Orleans" carrying Lieutenant Eric Nelson and Lieutenant John Harding, Jr., and the "Boston" carrying Lieutenant Leigh Wade and Sergeant A. M. Ogden.

DE VALERA AND STACK HAVE BEEN RELEASED

London, July 16.—(By The A. P.)—Eamonn De Valera and Austin Stack, Irish Republican leaders, were released from prison today by the Free State government, according to a news agency despatch from Dublin.

Since De Valera's arrest, while speaking in an election campaign last August, he has been kept in strict confinement, and until a few days ago was not allowed even a visit from his wife. He was, however, permitted the use of books and writing materials though precaution was succesfully taken against his communicating with his colleagues outside the prison.

Manifestoes have been issued from time to time by his deputy, P. J. Rutledge, a former member of the Dublin parliament; but there is no means of ascertaining how far De Valera is committed by what was said or done in his absence.

The republican party has, since De Valera's "cease fire" order in May, 1923, concentrated on ordinary methods of political controversy and has sought to secure a majority of the electors by argument.

None of the forty-four republican deputies returned in the last elections from the Dail Eireann has yet taken his seat, and there is much speculation as to whether the release of De Valera will lead these men to reconsider their attitude. De Valera's health is said to be good; he devoted his enforced leisure to mathematical studies, especially of the Einstein theories.

Austin Stack has been De Valera's chief lieutenant. It the chancery court today the judge gave an order that Stack be produced to give evidence in the case connected with the custody of the Dail's American funds.

EFFORT TO APPREHEND "CRAZY NIGHT RIDERS"

Boston, July 16.—Calling attention to the fact that there have been 367 persons killed in automobile accidents in Massachusetts this year up to July 1, Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin today wrote the chiefs of police of the state a request to report judges unduly lenient with drunken or reckless drivers, and to "make a special effort to apprehend all crazy night riders."

The number killed up to July 1 was 154 more than for last year, and since July 1 there have been 33 fatalities. To date there have been 1647 convictions for operating while under the influence of liquor, Mr. Goodwin said, 730 more than in 1923, and 461 persons have been convicted of driving so as to endanger lives.

SPECULATION IN NEW HAVEN RAILROAD SHARES

New York, July 16.—Increasing interest was revealed in speculative quarters today toward New Haven Railroad shares. At its top figure the stock has climbed above the best of last year, but still was more than ten points under the peak of 1922. Accumulation of a large amount of shares and the rise now under way, have chiefly been predicated on an improving situation and efforts of the management to bring more largely into play the plant, facilities of the road.

IMPROVEMENT IN CONDITION OF SAMUEL GOMPERS

New York, July 16.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor has so far recovered from the illness that has confined him to his hotel at Coney Island for the last week, that he was able today to leave the hotel for an automobile ride and a stroll on the boardwalk.

Clarence Saunders Wins Right of Appeal

From Injunction Proceedings Brought by the Piggly-Wiggly Corporation.

Memphis, Tenn., July 16.—The decision of the United States court of appeals in the injunction proceedings brought by the Piggly Wiggly Corporation against Clarence Saunders, organizer and former president of the concern marks the end of another chapter in the long and colorful story of Saunders' business and financial career, and settles, for the moment at least, one of the many complicated legal tangles which resulted from his sensational expedition in Wall street more than a year ago.

The injunction, amed at a certain chain of stores system which Saunders organized following his resignation as president of the Piggly Wiggly Corporation last summer, was granted by Judge J. W. Ross in United States district court here March 6, the day before Saunders planned to open the first unit of his proposed chain. Merely a restraining order in the beginning, the injunction prevented Saunders opening his first store and enjoined him from using his name as a part of a trade mark which he had devised for his new system.

The restraining order was twice extended by the court pending a hearing on the corporation's application for a permanent injunction which was sought on the ground that the Saunders' proposed new business was a violation of a contract he made with the corporation several years ago, and an infringement upon patents and trade marks which he had soul to the corporation.

The application for a permanent injunction was never heard. After the second extension of the restraining order, counsel for Saunders raised the point that the proceeding had taken the form of an interlocutory injunction, and the case accordingly was appealed. In allowing the appeal, however Judge Ross modified the original order by granting Saunders permission to engage in business under his own name, as an individual, and requiring him to furnish bond to indemnify the corporation in the event of infringement of it's patents and trade marks. The modified order specifically prohibited the use by Saunders of all trade marks, patents and trade marks previously transferred to the corporation.

Saunders opened his first store here early in April. Since that time he has established three other units. Since the restraining order was modified, the former Piggly Wiggly head has used the trade name of "Clarence Saunders, sole owner of my name."

Saunders' receivership suit against the Piggly Wiggly Corporation, in which he alleges the corporation is insolvent, and seeks to hold it responsible for heavy stock purchases which he made during his Wall street raid 18 months ago, is still pending in the federal court here. His personal estate is now in the process of liquidation in the bankruptcy court, to which he turned for relief several months ago.

CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY IN IMPORTATION OF LIQUOR

Boston, July 16.—Capt. Arthur L. Bachman of Lunenburg, N. S., master of the Canadian schooner Frances and Louise, which was seized 18 miles off Cape Cod yesterday by the coast guard cutter Ossippee and towed here, was arrested late today, charged with conspiracy to import liquor illegally into the United States. Bachman entered a plea of not guilty and was held in $500 bonds for hearing tomorrow. The seizure of the Canadian vessel was said to be the first under the new American-British treaty aiming at the prevention of rum running.

The arrest of the Lunenburg skipper followed a conference attended by customs and coast guard officials, special treasury agents and representatives of the United States district to the discussion. Immediately after the meeting a warrant was sworn out against the master of the Frances and Louise.

The complaint alleged that Bachman conspired with unknown persons at Lunenburg to import liquor illegally into the United States.

CONVENTION OF THE AMEICAN HOTEL ASS'N

Cleveland, O., July 16.—Election of officers and adoption of several amendments to their constitution was the final business transacted by delegates to the annual convention of the American Hotel association, which ended here last night.

Frank A. Dudley of Niagara Falls, N. Y., was re-elected president of the association, Frank S. Haight, manager of the New Willard, Washington, D. C., was elected vice president for the United States and John Davidson of the Hotel Windsor, Montreal, Quebec, vice president for Canada.

One amendment to the constitution decrees that representations at future conventions will be made up of delegates from state associations instead of individual representation.

The program of hotel education will continue and next year it is expected nine will receive the degree of bachelor of science in hotel management from Cornell university.

Next year's convention city has not been selected.

TO RAISE CAMPAIGN FUNDS BY PERSONAL SOLICITATION

New York, July 16.—Replying to a letter from Senator Borah as head of the senatorial committee authorized to investigate and report on party financing of presidential campaigns, William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, today announced that his organization had approximately $50,000 on hand July 1 and that it expected to raise campaign funds by personal solicitation and correspondence.

The committee, Mr. Butler said had not decided how much it would raise and spend toward election of the republican ticket, but was preparing a budget. It further intended to place a "reasonable limit" upon contributions and din to propose to violate the law prohibiting the acceptance of funds from corporations.

MAMMOTH STILL IN NORTH COVENTRY CONFISCATED

Raiding Officers Found in a Subterranean Chamber a Splendidly Equipped Distilling Plant—Two Stills Were Found in Operation, One With Sixty Gallons Capacity, Another With Forty—A Test Showed the Product to Be 110 Proof.

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, July 16.—The largest and most complete distilling equipment confiscated by federal agents in the history of Tolland county fell into the hands of Deputy Sheriffs Risley and Benjamin, Federal Prohibition Enforcement Chief William S. Congdon and County Investigator William E. Jackson, Wednesday, in a raid conducted at the Alexander Chequer farm, North Coventry. Liquor has been pouring into Hartford for the past six months and through a recent arrest the officials were informed as to the source of the flow of illicit beverages. Following up the information given by the tipster, Deputy Sheriffs Risley and Benjamin with an assistant were successful in purchasing five gallons of moonshine for $20 at the Chequer farm. Wednesday forenoon the sheriffs with Officers Congdon and Jackson swooped down on the premises. No resistance was offered by the owner. The strong smell of newly made liquor led the raiders into a small summer kitchen adjoining the rear of the house. Cleverly concealed behind an ice box and other furniture the officers came upon a trap door which was opened. The sight which met their eyes brought exclamations of surprise. They were looking into a neatly appointed underground chamber, some 12 by 20 feet and about seven feet high.

The subterranean chamber was concreted all around, and placed about the room was the apparatus of the best distilling plant ever seen by the raiding crew. On one side was a forty gallon still in operation and on the other was a sixty-gallon still in which was a quantity of mash being prepared for distilling. Fourteen barrels of mash, or over 700 gallons, were arranged in one corner, and eighty gallons of finished product in jars, jugs and bottles lay about the floor ready for market. The room was well lighted with oil lamps, and ventilated by a modern blower system. Oil stoves were used to operate the stills and an immense copper cooler fed with running water served to distill the product. The plant was equipped to turn out over fifty gallons of liquor a day. The concoction was made of corn and sugar, and according to the officers was a high grade of moonshine. A test showed it to be 110 per cent. proof.

The entire plant, which was valued at well over $1,000, was confiscated as was also a large quantity of copper which was to be used in the building of a new 200 gallon still to be added to the plant.

Checquer was taken before Justice of the Peace William B. Hawkins of Coventry town court Wednesday afternoon and was fined $400 and costs along with a sentence of 30 days in Tolland jail. Grand Juror Robert Brooke prosecuted. Checquer paid the fine and was taken to jail by Deputy Sheriff William Eldredge.

This was the man's second appearance in court on violation of the liquor law. Over two years ago he and his son were fined $500 and costs each in Hartford, after being arrested by Officers Kroupneck and Moriarty of the vice squad. Checquer admitted that the distilling plant had been a paying proposition. He sold in bulk quantities, of not less than five gallons. Checquer is a Lithuanian and a citizen of the United States. He came to North Coventry about two years ago, purchasing a 160 acre farm now valued at $10,000. Most of the farm work has been done by his son. The place is located on the Merrow-Coventry back road about one mile north of the Coventry church.

During the raid the officers became deeply interest in Checquer's mother who is 106 years old and although slightly hard of hearing has the agility and vision of a woman over a score of years younger. The fact that a raid was being conducted did not appear to disturb her and she walked about in an unconcerned manner.

300 ADDITIONAL ACRES FOR PEOPLE'S FOREST

Hartford, July 6.—The purchase of an additional three hundred acres of forest land in the town of Barkhamsted, to be added to the land already acquired for the projected People's Forest, has been approved by the executive committee of the Connecticut Forestry association, which is sponsor for the project. The land for the people's forest is being bought with public contributions to the people's forest fund.

With the purchase of the additional three hundred acres, the acerage bought for the people's forest will be 800 acres or a little less than one third of the total acreage desired for the projected forest. The land is being bought from private owners by State Forester Austin F. Hawes, acting for the Connecticut Forestry association. The average price of an acre is $8. The Connecticut organization of the Daughters of the Revolution has instiutted a campaign among the local chapters looking to the purchase by each chapter of one acre.

It is planned to turn over the forest land to the state in the fall, the occasion to be marked by special exercises, the outstanding feature of which will be a pageant symbolizing the history of the territory and its future possibilities. The Connecticut Forestry association, which will conduct the exercises in co-operation with the state forestry department, hopes the pageant will stimulate more interest in the people's forest project and result in more contributions to the fund.

SHOT FIANCE AFFLICTED WITH INCURABLE MALADY

Paris, July 16.—Slowly dying from an incuarble malady, Jan Zoznowski, a well known Polish writer, repeatedly begged friends and attendants at the sanitarium at Ville juif to put an end to his sufferings. Today his fiancee, Mlle. Stanislawa Unicuska, visited him and was so overcome at the sight of his agony that she could not resist his pitiable pleadings. She shot him in the head and he is not expected to recover.

Following the shooting, Mlle. Unicuska collapsed and officers who were summoned to make the arrest left her in the care of the sanitarium. She is only 22 years old and noted for her beauty. She had been a constant visitor to hre fiance's sick room.

Zoznowski, a talented writer, is 35 years old. He came from Warsaw to Paris to seek medical advice. The best French surgeons operated on him twice but were unable to give him relief.

THREE INSURANCE AGENTS INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Rockville, July 16.—Maurice Sturling, Arthur E. Haywood and Fred J. Forster, three agents of the Metropolitan Insurance company, were injured today when their automobile was wrecked while the party was on the way to Hartford to attend the regular weekly meeting of the agents.

Between Talcottville and Manchester, while rounding a sharp curve the car hit a guy wire supporting a trolley pole. The running board, top, windshield and one fender of the machine was ripped off and Sturling, who was riding in the rear seat alone, was thrown forward, his head coming in contact with the front seat. He was taken to the Manchester hospital with a fractured jaw. The other two men were not seriously hurt.

HIGH PRICES DETRIMENTAL TO THE TEXTILE INDUSTRY

Washington, July 16.—In its effort to determine the reason for the present low price of raw wool in the face of reduced wool supplies and decrease in the number of sheep in the principal wool-producing countries of the world, the department of agriculture has found clothing prices too high.

"All branches of the textile and clothing trade regard clothing prices as too high," says the department, "but each feels that economies can best be effected by the others. Retailers fel that any ductions must take place in the manufacturers' selling price. The clothing manufacturer contends that the present wage scale makes it impossible to effect economies in production costs. Some of the clothing manufacturers and wholesale dealers feel that more efficient organizations in the retail trade would bring about lower clothing prices.

Raw wool is a compartively small factor in the price of clothing, the department adds, an all-wool suit averaging about five pounds of wool, and the difference between a high priced and low priced suit being mostly in the quality of linings and findings, and the labor used in making the cloth and the suit.

"Curtailed buying of woolen goods and clothing because of high prices, backward season, high rents, changes in style of women's wear, two-pants suits, and increased use of silk and cotton goods have been advanced by the trade as the reason why the prices of raw wool are under those of a year ago, despite the American import tariff on wool.

"Last year considerable wool was used in women's sweaters and knitwear. This year the style changed from wool to silk. Artificial silk, of which more than 25,000,000 pounds were produced in the United States last year as compared with about 500,000 pounds in 1913, is given as another factor responsible for the decreased consumption of wool."

STOWAWAYS FAILED IN EFFORTS TO ESCAPE

Boston, July 16.—Two stowaways who tried to escape today from the Dollar Liner President Harrison, in port from a trip around the world, picked a poor spot as their objective. They leaped overboard at quarantine and swam half a mile to Deer Island Light, but shortly after they had clambered up they hastened down again when Second Officer Cadigan, who with a number of seamen had pursued them in a boat pointed his revolver at them. Had they succeeded in getting beyond the light to Deer Island itself they would have found themselves at the doors of the Suffolk county house of correction.

The men, with five others, were discovered hiding in a hot air shaft when the steamer was two days out of Marseilles, her last port of call. Six of them were held by the immigration authorities today while the seventh, found to be an American citizen, was permitted to land.

SEARCHING FOR MURDERER OF AN 8 YEAR OLD BOY

New York, July 16.—Every resource of the metropolitan police was concentrated tonight on the capture of a stocky gray haired man of about 60 years as the probable murderer of 8 year old Francis J. McDonnell, son of a Staten Island policeman, whose mutilated body was found last night in a thicket near Port Richmond.

Both Mrs. McDonnell and Jacob Stern, a neighbor, told of a man of the foregoing description, with a close cropped mustache, watching the children at play on the day of Francis' disappearance. According to Stern, the old man followed the boy into the woods. Their testimony was corroborated by Elsie Kiso, 11 years old, and her brother Belmont, 8.

WILLIMANTIC

Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson conducted an inquest Wednesday afternoon at the office of Chief of Police Allan MacArthur on the death of Miss Odelia Marcoux, which occurred early Tuesday morning as the result of an assault on her by her brother-in-law, Fred Lusvick, July 6 last. The hearing was behind closed doors. The witnesses were Mrs. Mary Marcoux, mother of the dead woman; Mrs. Ida Lusvick, wife of the accused; Misses Victoria and Mary Pyse, neighbors of the Marcoux family; Dr. Samuel J. Turcotte, the attending physician, and Dr. Louis I. Mason, medical examiner, who performed the autopsy Tuesday evening.

It was made known through the testimony of the first two named that Lusvick came home shortly before 11 o'clock on the night of July 6, after all members of the household had retired. Lusvick started a rumpus all by himself in the kitchen and his wife attempted to pacify him. Miss Marcoux, the deceased, joined her sister Lusvick took both women and after throwing them in a heap on the floor bothrew both of them on to the outside stone steps. Mrs. Mary Marcoux, the mother-in-law, came out of her bedroom and was thrown over a chair by Lusvick. She sustained three fractured ribs. Lusvick then rushed outside and in the presence of a number of people he pushed his wife against the wall of the house and then grabbed Miss Marcoux and threw her on the ground. Her head struck a rock and she later developed concussion of the brain. The Misses Pyse said that they picked up Miss Marcoux and brought her into the house. Fred Lusvick testified at the hearing, but the testimony was not made known. It is said that he blamed his sister-in-law for much of his domestic trouble.

In making a report of the autopsy performed Tuesday night at the undertaking rooms of The Hurteau-Bosse Corp., Medical Examiner Mason reported to Coroner Bill that superficial contusions on the chest and left shoulder had been revealed. The skull was not fractured nor were there any broken bones. The cause of death was given as cerebral embolism. Coroner Bill has reserved the result of his finding, to be announced later. Lusvick will appear in police court this (Thursday) morning on the charge of manslaughter. Attorney H. H. Gaucher will represent him. He is under bonds of $5,000.

Three new men were admitted to membership in the Willimantic Exchange club at the meeting held Wednesday noon, in charge of President Dr. G. E. Wilcox. The new Exchangeites are C. C. Case, Ralph U. Wolmer and Frank M. Lincoln. Other members in attendance were President Wilcox, Samuel Chesbro, Dr. F. E. Gould, Dr. C. E. Simonds, Edwin P. Hayes, Rev. F. C. Williams, Clarence A. Bowen, George S. Elliott and Harold C. Lincoln. Harold Lincoln was appointed secretary pro tem in the absence of Secretary Roderick A. Jodoin. The gathering listened to an interesting talk by George Elliott.

Godfri Sanderstrom was in police court Wednesday morning, charged with violation of the traffic laws in that he failed to obey the command of Traffic Officer Roderick Lariviere. Sanderstrom was given an opportunity to hear something which would do many motorists a lot of good. Judge Foss discharged the accused, but not until he had given him a severe reprimand regarding the obedience which he should pay to the command of an officer. Sanderstrom failed to stop his machine after having been signalled to do so by Officer Lariviere.

The case of Fred Lusvick was taken up in police court Wednesday morning. A new writ was made out by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank F. Fenton charging Lusvick with manslaughter, and the case was continued until this (Thursday) morning at 9 o'clock under the same bonds of $5,000.

Rev. Simon Bogan of 226 Valley street, this city, and Mrs. Bogan, with Rev. Alexander Laucevusky of Taunton, Mass., were all taken to a Manchester hospital after an automobile accident in which they figured in Manchester Tuesday evening. The car was driven by Rev. Alexander Haluchyansky, and was run into a telephone pole in an attempt t oavoid striking another car.

Word has been received by the local police from Supt. Charles T. LaMoure of the Mansfield state training school and hospital that Oscar Brown, 15 years old, escaped from the institution Monday. He is five feet seven inches in height, weighs 130 pounds and wears glasses. When he left he wore khaki trousers, a dark hat and blue shirt.

"Billy" is to take a trip today (Thursday). "Billy" is a baby deer which adopted Trout Brook farm at Clark's Corners as his home some time ago, and he is now to be shipped to Bushnell park. The animal has had good care and has developed from a four-pound baby to a lively deer of about 30 pounds. He is tame and very playful and will leave many close friends made during his stay at the farm.

Albert B. Smith, general secretary, and Christopher M. Case, desk secretary, at the local Y. M. C. A., were at Camp Hazen, Chester, Wednesday. Others who visited the camp were Charles Smith, Basil W. Standish, James Hendry and Howard Weeks.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

My Man, which will be seen at the Palace theatre with Patsy Ruth Miller and Dustin Farnum in the leading roles, is an adaption of George Randolph Chester's novel, A Tale of Red Roses. Mr. Chester is best known as an author through his famous finance plays an important part in My Man. Mr. Farnum appears as Sledge, an all-powerful politician, who wins his bride by modern cave man methods. Patsy Ruth Miller is the young society girl, who is at first amused at her admirer's methods, and then rebellious, but who finally is literally carried off her feet a willing captive.

Special added attraction. He's back the sheik of sheiks, Rudolph Valentino and Carmel Myers in A Society Sensation at last after months and months of waiting-another Valentino picture, with Rudolph in 100 per cent form as the greatest and most dazzling of all lovers. Valentine as of old in a masterful, romantic role, also latest Pathe review and Palace supreme orchestra.

Next Sunday night only another smashing big double feature program, The Wolfs Fangs starring Wilfred Lytell. A refreshing romance of the north replete with thrills. Added feature Allena Ray in Partners of the Sunset a western picture with plenty of action and thrills.

BROADWAY THEATRE

An all star aggregation Keith vaudeville act has been secured for the Broadway theatre for the last half of this week starting today.

That beautiful and vivacious young comedienne and dancer Pert Kelton will offer a distinctive series of "blues" and jazz songs and dances. Brimful of pep and magnetic personality, she will hold you spellbound.

Bert Wilcox and Josephine La Croix and Co., offer their latest comedy, The White Collar Man. It is from the pen of that celebrated author, Herbert Hall Winslow and is sure to find favor.

Out of the channels of the ordinary come Sidde Dale and Dixie DeLane in a series of song and dance classics.

Kennedy and Peterson, two comedians offer laughs, songs, dances and more laughs.

The photoplay is Untamed Youth with an all star cast. It is adopted from the play Born of a Cyclone. It glows with the surging passions of youth.

A film narrative of an attractive gypsy girl—impulsive and fearless—swept by a tide of passion into deep love where she finds her soul! A picture, jam-packed with action and thrills, romance and adventure that will pull you out of your seat with excitement and interest.

Bring your family—tell your neighbors and friends about it. It's the sort of a picture that will delight everybody!

Bread Theatre

Annette Kellerman was never more attractive than as the island girl in Venus of the South Seas, which opened two days run at the Bread, yesterday.

This colorful story of tropic life gives ample opportunity for feats of diving and graceful swimming. Against a fascinating background of underwater and luxuriant island scenes a romance of rare charm is pictured—the fi[nd] of a lone white maiden with dar[k] her dreams of love many trials, the realization [dra]ma.

If you enjoy seeing [be]auty, and if you love beauty and [ro]mance do not fail to see Venus of the [Sea]s.

The second feature Time [Ha]s Changed, William Russell's latest. [Wil]liam Fox attraction, was warmly received by capacity audiences.

It is an ostensibly serious drama, tempered and refined by much irresistible humor. Satire plays an important part in the development of its multifarious situations. In brief, the story concerns the unfortunate circumstances of an aunt coming to live with a newlywed couple. The events that lead to their ultimate rebellion against her sovereignty offer highly sensitized amusement. Mabel Julienne Scott, notable among the screen's leading ladies, and Allene Ray, beauty contest winner, support William Russell.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Wednesday afternoon corporators of the Brooklyn Savings bank held their annual meeting. Officers were elected and attention was given to the annual report of Treasurer Sidney W. Bard. This report showed that the bank has made an excellent showing during the past twelve months; that its deposits now amount to $4,280,790, a gain of $225,000 during the year and that the net profit of the bank after paying dividends and all other charges was $42,290, a really remarkable showing, and a gain of approximately $10,000 over the net profit for the preceding year. The major portion of this net profit will be added to the bank's surplus account.

Indicative of the successful management of the bank during the past twelve months is a comparison of its net earnings with those of the preceding year, when the net profit was $32,181, and with the net profit of $24,774 in 1922 and $22,679 in 1921. This showing by the bank will be gratifying to the several thousand depositors of the institution resident in all parts of eastern Connecticut and in more distant territory.

J. Arthur Atwood was elected president at Wednesday's meeting, William H. Burnham of Hampton vice-president and Sidney W Bard, treasurer All of these were reelections A new office—that of assistant treasurer—has been created and J. Dyer Potter, who has been with the bank for some time past, was elected Wednesday to fill it. The board of trustees elected Wednesday is made up of Charles Bragg, Fayette L. Wright, Dr. George M. Burroughs, Frederick E. Bitgood, Frederick A. Jacobs, Ernest R. Warren, Joseph N. Lavallee, Herman M. Coulter, Frederick W. Tillinghast and Thomas J. Featon, Moosup. Mr. Featon replaces the late General J. Walter Atwood on the board.

Henry P. Dubuc has been appointed district deputy of the Knights of Columbus for the district that includes Rose of Lima council of Danielson and other councils of the order in this section of the state. Mr. Dubuc succeeds District Deputy Edward W. Mullan of Putnam, who has creditably filled the offices for several years.

Mr. Dubuc's appointment is very pleasing to members of the order in Danielson and in councils in surrounding towns. He is past grand knight of Rose of Lima council and has been a very active worker in the organization. It is forecasted that his administration of the district deputyship will be successful and that it will reflect credit upon himself and the district he represents.

Wednesday afternoon, funeral services for Charles Edward Wyle Ray, drowned in Quadic pond last Sunday, were conducted at the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy by Rev. Walter B. Williams, of the Westfield Congregational church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Frank Spaulding, Albert Bernier, Walter Evans and Herman Lamarop.

The funeral of Mary Laducer, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Laducer of Goshyear, was held from their home Wednesday afternoon with funeral services at St. Joseph's church in Danielson at 2 o'clock. Rev. Ignatius Kost officiating. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were Adelard Margery, William Margery, Joseph Osog and Walter Lipka. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

In view of the fact that the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. company has announced an excursion from Norwich to New York and return for the small sum of $3 a demand has been created for the extension of such excursion privileges to this corner of the state, even though an extra charge is necessary. Maybe the road will do it when it runs exursions mentioned for later in the season.

"Did you see the aeroplane?" is a question asked many times almost daily in Danielson of late. The latest connection from a machine came Wednesday afternoon when one flying so low that the drone of its motor could be plainly heard attracted much attention.

A fatality of the thunderstorm in this vicinity last Sunday afternoon, it has come to light, was the killing of a cow by lightning on the Bouthillier farm in the Allen Hill section.

Car drivers would appreciate something being done to improve the detour leading from Attawaugan schoolhouse to White's underpass in Putnam. This detour has been roughed up by heavy traffic to such an extent that it is dangerous driving and numbers of cars have been damaged in negotiating the route.

As a rule, poor success has been experienced this season by growers of peas. They have not seemed to develop as well as usual and in many cases the crop is only a fraction of what had been expected.

It is now expected that gas will be let through the new high pressure mains recently completed between Putnam and Danielson, by August 1. The new service will be the means of bringing many additional consumers into the ranks of those now using gas in the town of Killingly.

Up to Wednesday afternoon gasoline prices at retail in Danielson had not commenced the recession that has started in many places in New England, as forcasted by the drop in price announced by refining companies in press despatches appearing in yesterday's papers.

Following a meeting of the Danielson Building and Loan association, it was announced Wednesday that about 57 shares of the 18th series have been subscribed to date. The 17th series brought subscriptions totaling 175 shares.

The People's Light and Power company has been notified that equipment for such an improved lighting system as was authorized by the annual borough meeting in April has been shipped and will arrive here in the near future.

The forest fire that has raged east of East Killingly intermittently for more than a week continued to burn during Wednesday. Five hundred cords of wood endangered Tuesday, but not destroyed, is the property of Harley Place of East Killingly, not of Byron M. Lewis, as stated in Wednesday's paper.

Members of the Bijou Whist club presented Mrs. I. L. Buteau of Main street a cut glass sandwich dish and a set of cut glass sherbet glasses, incident to her leaving Danielson with her family for Fall River, where Mr. Buteau will soon take over a responsible position. The hostess served the Bijou club members a dainty luch and there were various entertaining pastimes to round out a pleasant evening.

Shoppers will recall that this is Thursday and a half-holiday in Danielson, many of the stores of the borough closing at noon for the day.

August 19 is the date on which the Service battery is expected to leave Danielson, for 15 days' tour of duty at Camp Eustis, Va.

ROSELAND LAKE BATHERS ARRESTED WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, July 16.—Acting under instructions issued by Supt. Robert Hurley of the state police, Officer Williams of the Danielson barracks went to Woodstock Wednesday afternoon to make arrests of bathers in the waters of Roseland lake or its tributaries. The officer's work was made easy for him, because he found about 50 members of Camp Utopia, which is south of the lake proper, sporting in the waters. There was no wholesale arrest, but three of the older male bathers were notified to appear in court this (Thursday) morning.

The arrests caused no surprise, as it had been spread broadcast in state newspapers that Superintendent Hurley, after a consultation with the commissioner of health, had given orders that arrests be made by some of his men from the Danielson barracks, the nearest barracks to Woodstock.

The arrests will doubtless bring to a decision the controversy between the state department of health and those who are opposed to the department's order that bathing in Roseland lake and its tributaries be stopped.

Putnam's water supply has its source in the Woodstock lake and it is due to this that the order was given under the statute made and provided in such cases. Bathing has been more general the past three years and one camp on the shores of the stream flowing from the lake to the pumping station houses 150 to 200 New York campers. There are other smaller camps on the lake and it is the belief of many that it was owing to the large numbers bathing in the lake that the order forbidding it was issued.

It has been stated that well known lawyers in New York and Connecticut have been consulted in the matter and will be retained to defend the rights of the abutting property owners.

The order to stop bathing was issued May 5th and has bene upheld as legal by the attorney general, Frank Healey. Notwithstanding this, bathing has continued in defiance of the order. Due to this the consultation was held which resulted in the arrests Wednesday afternoon.

PLAINFIELD

St. Paul's Sunday school is to motor to Mohegan park for their annual outing.

Harold Green, treasurer of the Lawton Mills Corp., of Boston, inspected the mill and the mill property Wednesday.

Mrs. Daniel Connell spent Monday at Ocean Beach with her son Thomas.

A boy about six Wednesday noon crossed the Main street as Philip Fuch was going by. The child ran off the sidewalk without looking to see if any vehicles were coming. When he reached the center of the road he turned and saw a car about a foot away. The child had presence of mind enough to run in the direction the car was going or he would have been struck by the truck. Mr. Phillips, driver of the automobile did not see the child until within ten feet of him. He put on the brakes and slid about 12 feet. When the car came to a stop the child's clothing touched the front wheel. The child ran home frightened(as soon as he realized the situation.

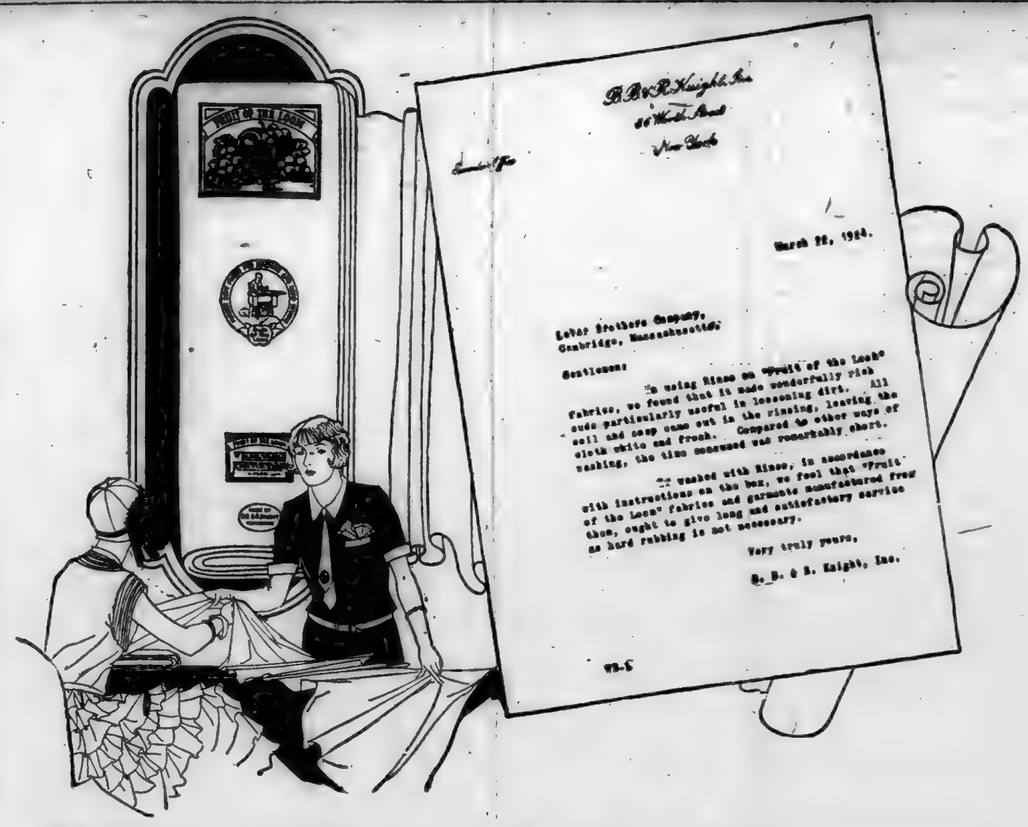
DROUTH BROKEN IN CANADIAN NORTHWEST

Winnipeg, Manitoba, July 14.—Rain, ranging from .54 inches at Edmonton to 1.41 inches at Grand Prairie, Alberta, fell throughout Northern Alberta and southern and central Saskatchewan last night, according to reports reach here today.



R. B. & R. Knight, Inc.
Lever Brothers Company,
Gentlemen:
Fabrics, we found that it made wonderfully rich suds particularly useful in loosening dirt. All suds and soap came out in the rinsing, leaving the cloth white and fresh. Compared to other ways of washing, the time consumed was remarkably short.
With instructions on the box, we feel that "Fruit of the Loom" fabrics and garments manufactured from them, ought to give long and satisfactory service as hard rubbing is not necessary.
Very truly yours,
R. B. & R. Knight, Inc.

Makers of "Fruit of the Loom" recommend washing their fabrics with Rinso

WHITE cotton fabrics form a good part of your family wash. You have always insisted on having them washed spotless even if it almost broke your back.

But now you can have that same satisfaction without the desperately hard work. You can soak dirt out of your clothes with Rinso, the new kind of soap for the family wash.

Soaking in it loosens all the dirt

Soaking in Rinso takes the place of the hard rubbing that used to wear you out. The Rinso suds are so rich in cleansing power that they loosen even ground-in dirt. Play clothes, collar bands and cuff edges now come clean with a sprinkle of dry Rinso and only a light rubbing between your fingers.

And what a relief not to drag heavy sheets and towels up and down on the washboard.

Rich cleansing power lies in these wonderful suds

Be sure to use enough Rinso to get lasting suds after the clothes have been put in. Then soaking in Rinso floats the dirt out.

The secret of Rinso's cleansing power lies in the firm lasting suds. When clothes are very soiled or when the water is hard you will need more Rinso—just let the suds guide you always. This completely dissolved soapiness will safely soak the dirt right out.

Then a good rinse to flush the loosened dirt away and that good-looking wash of yours is ready for the line. Made by the makers of Lux, this new laundry soap is just as wonderful for the family wash as Lux is for all fine things.

Rinso is also wonderful for washing dishes, for floors, linoleum, woodwork, and enameled surfaces.

Get a supply of Rinso today. All grocers carry it in the regular size and big new package. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Whether you Soak—Boil—or use a Washing Machine—
RINSO is the only soap you need on washday

MARRIED TWELVE YEARS BEFORE BABY CAME

Gladly Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Louisville, Nebraska.—"I was married twelve years before my boy was born. I had a lot of female troubles and had been treated by a physician for them but they continued much the same. Then I read your advertisement in the newspapers and thought I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a good trial, for if it had helped others, why not me? I have taken 36 bottles of the medicine and am never without it in the house. My baby boy is three years old now and I sure am happy since I got relief from my troubles. When any one has troubles like mine, or any ways like mine, I am always glad to recommend the Vegetable Compound so that they will get the right kind of medicine."—Mrs. JOE NOVAK, Box 662, Louisville, Neb.

In a recent country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, 98 out of every 100 report they were benefited by its use. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Yeast-fermentation!—

Everywhere today that's the cry of successful breeders who know it is the greatest advance in poultry husbandry in twenty years

FERMENTATION of poultry feeds with Fleischmann's Pure Dry Yeast makes even the best ration better. By making the feed more palatable and easier to digest, it makes proper feeding possible. And proper feeding is the solution of most poultry problems.

When Fleischmann's Pure Dry Yeast, dissolved in water or milk, is added to your poultry feed, it starts at once to ferment. After the mixture has stood from 12 to 24 hours, the whole character of the feed is changed. The fermentation breaks down the hard, tight-packed granules of the feed (which must be broken down before they can be digested) and acts upon them in a way similar to digestion itself.

The fowl's system can then complete the process quickly and easily. The body turns food into flesh and energy at astounding speed! Young birds grow quickly into pullets. Laying stock do not lose their vitality during the fall and winter laying season. Hens weather the molting period quickly and easily. Yeast-fed birds lay eggs with a high percentage of fertility.

You can get Fleischmann's Pure Dry Yeast right here in town. Come in today, ask for a free booklet, and take a package home. You'll soon be surprised by the general improvement among your birds!

For POULTRY, SWINE, CATTLE, HORSES, DOGS, RABBITS, CATS, PIGEONS, FOXES—

Careful feeding experiments on practically every type of bird and animal have definitely proved the value of Fleischmann's Pure Dry Yeast to

TEARING UP THE STREETS.

Where is the city which has not had trouble with the replacement of pavements that have been disturbed for the repairing or extension of one kind of service or another? The number will be small. But in those communities which have had such trouble, which have decried the practice of opening new pavements soon after they have been completed for work which should have been done before the pavements were started, which have suffered from the failure to replace torn up pavements and which have experienced all kinds of inefficient work in trying to make replacements there will be sympathy with the campaign which is now being waged in Brooklyn for the prompt repairing of streets and the overcoming of that great waste which comes from tearing up new pavement the day or week after it is laid.

Not long since Norwich found it necessary to protect itself against the hodge podge of such repair work and it is to its credit in the putting down of permanent pavements that it precedes it with the renewal of services which need it and the laying of new ones that are soon to be required. This does not overcome the breaks and it does not take care of the unforeseen, but it means the minimum amount of disturbance of costly roadbuilding, cuts the number of pavement repairs and overcomes much waste.

Conditions which Brooklyn is fighting are not new. They have gone on for years without any relief being obtained and without sufficient objection being raised to bring about the needed reform. There is no excuse for it. There are times when streets must be torn up but there's no justification for keeping them torn up just because there is a failure to provide the foresight or cooperation that would prevent it. The cost, the waste and the effect upon the street should not be disregarded.

DECREASING HIGHWAY SAFETY.

Massachusetts' registrar of motor vehicles has been a consistent foe of intoxicated drivers of automobiles. What his views are as to the use of liquor is not known, but he does maintain that the person who drives an automobile should not be a consumer of strong drink and then undertake to handle the wheel of a machine. Registrar Goodwin is concerned for the safety of the highways and he is fully aware of the fact that no contribution thereto is made by drunken drivers.

In his fight to relieve the highways of this danger he has maintained that there has been too much leniency, that violators should be given jail sentences and that consideration should be shown the public rather than those who defy the law and the safety of the highway users. It has been necessary for him to point to the failure of the courts to do their duty, in bringing the situation to the attention of the public, and it is not improbable that his efforts have resulted in the abandonment of a certain amount of leniency, or at least the open winking at such cases which amounts to no less than encouragement.

But in spite of all that has been done and the pointing out of the menace that results from the irresponsible driver the situation does not change for the better. It is not so that the views of the motor vehicles registrar have been carried out in sympathy with his efforts. There has not been a resort to the jailing of drunken drivers to any great extent, and certainly not to the point of discouraging others from such practices. The fact seems to be that there is such little chance of drawing a jail sentence that the person under the influence of liquor does not hesitate to drive a car and be willing to face the consequences if caught.

This at least is indicated by the record which the registrar has kept for the first six months of this year when there have been 1647 convictions while in 1919 the number was only 554.

This may or may not indicate more drinking and it may or may not indicate greater vigilance on the part of the authorities, but there is no getting away from the fact that the likelihood of being sent to jail is not causing any decrease in drunken drivers. Presumably this is so because there is little chance of experiencing such a penalty, and the safety of the highways increases instead of decreases.

AMERICAN VICTORIES.

Cause for elation is to be found in the success of the American representatives in the field and track contests at the Olympic games. It is of course only what was expected, but that does not reduce the satisfaction that is felt.

There have been established new world's records for a number of the events. There has been a measuring of skill between the leaders of the various nations in which the Americans have not played an inferior part. Picked with the view and intention of winning they have measured up to their responsibilities. It was not expected that they would win everything. That would have been unreasonable, for this is not the only country where attention is given to athletics, and yet from the showing thus far it would appear that the attention given to athletics and the training stand on a conspicuously high plane in this country, and that they to a marked degree, are responsible for the excellence of our showing. The value of athletics, aside from the satisfaction of winning, comes in for due attention and we stand out in marked contrast to the activities of other countries in this respect.

In connection with our victories, however, it is impossible to overlook the record made by the Finns who stood second to this country and who participated freely in the victories and the making of new records. Perhaps the most conspicuous was Steenroos, the winner of the Marathon who, at 40 and without having competed for 15 years, finished six minutes ahead of his nearest rival.

Finland does not compare with this country in size or population, but it has demonstrated that it has athletes, regardless of its size and numbers, who are able to make the rest of the world sit up and take notice. While we are rejoicing over American victories we cannot fail to doff our hats to the plucky and athletic Finns.

THE CONFERENCE AT LONDON.

There may be certain countries which have a deeper interest than others, but there is most certainly an interest among all nations in the conference now under way at London. There is an interest because these countries want to see a settlement of the European situation and an adjustment of the reparations question. It is recognized that while Europe is directly concerned the unsettled state of affairs has its effects upon all others. The peace of the world and the business situation cannot get into their proper channels until there is an understanding and a determination to respect it on the part of all.

The way has been pointed out as to how such an understanding can be reached. The recommendations have been made following a thorough study of the situation and the various problems entering into it, and interest in the conference is to a large degree due to the belief that it is through this assembly of the representatives of the several nations that the necessary agreement can be reached.

There have been leaders who have conferred before, but it will be admitted that such conferences lacked the same spirit that surrounds this. There was a bigger division of views and there was not the common support of a single plan that exists at the present time. A way to meet the prevailing situation has been pointed out. There is a desire to have the situation adjusted and it is to be sincerely hoped that the London gathering will be the means of putting in motion the action that is needed to make the Dawes recommendations operative. That is the purpose of the conference. It is not as simple as turning over the hand, for diverging views must be reconciled, but there is so much benefit and relief involved that there should be no other thought than a successful culmination.

FIGHTING OPIUM TRAFFIC.

How habit forming drugs get into this country and are dispensed through illicit channels to contribute to the demoralization of humanity is clearly revealed, in part at least, by the raid which was made upon the Italian steamship Duilio at New York. The 500 ounces that were obtained were only half of the supply that the person selling the dope claimed he had to dispose of. Whether he exaggerated the case or whether he had it so carefully hidden as to avoid discovery, it is fully demonstrated that a tremendous business must be carried on by those in a position to smuggle narcotics. At the same time it emphasizes the need of penalizing all those involved in the affair so severely that some discouragement may be offered to those inclined to earn easy and big money in this manner.

How many members of steamship crews are engaged in similar smuggling efforts no one probably knows. Combined it means the nullifying of the narcotic laws and the attempts at restrictions in this country. It is just such disclosures which offer the best kind of evidence for the suppression of the manufacture of habit forming drugs to the point where only such as are needed for medical and scientific purpose are produced. A world-wide agreement is needed to accomplish such an object. Those nations which give consideration to the returns from the business regardless of the havoc wrought are the ones that are blocking it but it remains to be seen whether they can maintain their attitude in the face of such a growing demand for restrictions that will actually restrict. It will be the curbing of it at the source that will bring the relief that is so much desired.

London reports a young woman clad like Lady Godiva walking in Essex. Had it been in Paris it might have been regarded as the first steps to a new style.

William Jennings Bryan says Davis is a progressive. He also says Davis is another Coolidge. Therefore according to Bryan both Coolidge and Davis are progressives.

IT MADE A DIFFERENCE

"That Hazel Winslow's a perfectly terrible girl," moaned the young woman with the honey-colored hair. "Why, you always pick out such perfectly priceless prunes—"

"Priceless prune, nothing," growled her sandy-haired brother. "What a line! Girls get jealous of each other and they just let their tongues run wild. Gosh! I never heard any one talk the way you talk about a slick peach like Hazel Winslow."

"Men are so blind," said the young woman almost tearfully. "Jealous! Me, jealous of Hazel Winslow! Do you know what she told one of the girls? She said she just loved to break up friendships between the boys she knew by making them perfectly raging jealous of each other. The next thing you know you and Bobbie Butler won't be speaking."

"Pause just a moment, will you?" interrupted her brother. "It interests me greatly to see the feminine mind exhibited in such a curious aspect. I want to take a few notes on your conversation. A brain specialist would give a great deal for this look-in at your brain that I'm getting all free and everything."

"Hazel told one of the girls," went on the young woman with the honey-colored hair ruthlessly, "that she was going to break up the friendship between Bud Miller and Harry Edwards, and you know how devoted those boys have always been to each other. So one evening when Harry was there she had the maid come in and say—she was engaged to Harry, by the way, at the time, but of course she's through with him long ago—she had the maid come in and say: 'Here's the glove that Mr. Miller left here this afternoon.'

"Of course Harry asked her about it and she said: 'Oh, yes, he comes over every afternoon now; he works up in this part of town, you know.' And Harry never spoke to Bud again, and finally she turned Harry down, too.

"I saw Bud and Harry having luncheon today, but do go on with your gossip," said her sandy-haired brother.

"Oh, you can laugh all you want to, but wait until she's broken up your friendship with Bobbie Butler and see how funny you think that is!"

"Oh, mercy, she's already done that little bit of dirty work," said her brother, airily. "Of course, I never speak to Bob any more—didn't you know that? One day I was having luncheon with her and I had just got an official document which was very important. Well, I was called away to another table, and I left it with her for a moment and she stuffed it in her handbag. That night when Bobbie came over to call on her she locked herself in her room and sent the maid down to tell Bob that a strange gent had abducted her, and had dropped the letter in the struggle. With that she handed over the letter from Washington and Bobbie thought that I had doubled-crossed him for sure. He's never spoken to me since."

The sister simply gasped.

"That's not the worst," went on her brother. "She's sworn to break everything off between President Coolidge and me, too. He's sent for me on the q. t., you know, to come out and help him down in Washington and Hazel has sent her maid on a special train down to Washington to blacken my character with the president."

"You think you're funny," said the girl with the honey-colored hair, "but Bobbie Butler—"

"I know you're worried."

"As if I cared about Bobbie Butler," said the girl.

"No, he's still devoted to you," continued her brother. "At least he will be until I read him the notes I've taken on your mental derangements. And, by the way, I forgot to mention that he's coming over tonight to take you to the theatre. He called me up today and said he had four tickets and that I could ask a girl, so if you don't mind going with Hazel—"

"Oh, really and truly?" beamed the girl with the honey-colored hair. "Why didn't you say so? Of course I don't mind going with Hazel! You know that Minnie Clark told me all those things about Hazel and you know Minnie isn't the most reliable source of information in the world."

"I suppose she told you that Bobbie had fallen for Hazel, too," commented her sandy-haired brother wisely. "Believe me, if any woman breaks off my friendship with Bobbie it won't be Hazel. Can I bear it to see my dear friend Bobbie falling in love with a woman with such a mind as yours? I doubt it, I doubt it"—Chicago News.

McCormick, The Quiet Farmer Boy

Cyrus Hall McCormick was one of those quiet, serious farmer boys who seem always to be too busy for girls, or society or anything else but work.

Born on his father's farm in Rockbridge county, Virginia, where Indians still roamed, he attended the school nearby and worked in the fields. At 18 he studied surveying, making his own quadrant.

The boy's father had tried for 15 years to invent a harvesting machine, then gave it up. Forty-six reapers had been patented, but none were practical. Cyrus, then 22, completed his father's ideas. The improved machine cut six acres of oats in a day, but neighbors laughed at it and farm hands said it would take away their bread.

Young McCormick began to manufacture reapers. He completed one, offered it for $50—and waited nine years for a customer. In a few days the purchaser found that it would not cut wet grain, and McCormick had to further improve the machine. In 1842 he sold seven machines; in 1844 he disposed of 50.

Many of his customers were so far away he could not fill the orders in time for harvest. With $300 in his pocket he started to hunt for a new location. He lived in Cincinnati two years, then went to Chicago, at that time a frontier city. William B. Ogden put in $25,000, the McCormick Reaper Company was organized and its plant was soon rushed to fill orders. Two years later the two men quarreled, and McCormick bought out Ogden's share for $50,000.

By the next year 3,000 reapers were in use. Europe was buying them. In 1870 the works turned out 10,000 machines. In 1871 the entire plant was destroyed in the Chicago fire. The factory was rebuilt and soon was producing 15,000 harvesters every 12 months. The self binder was introduced and binding twine manufactured and substituted for wire in the reapers.

The original patent expiring, McCormack fought 17 years for a renewal, and lost. He sued certain manufacturers for infringement of his patent and was defeated. But business continued to grow.

He was decorated by this and other countries, became rich and was noted for his philanthropies.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

John G. Price, who has been chosen from among 900,000 members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks to fill the office of Grand Exalted Ruler during the coming year, is a self-made American. He was formerly a letter carrier in Canton, Ohio, the home of President McKinley, and counted the late Chief Executive among his friends. When Mr. McKinley went to the White House he made a place for Mr. Price in the Postoffice Department at Washington. While filling this position Mr. Price studied law at Georgetown University and later took up the practice of his profession in his native state. For four years he was prosecuting officer of his county and has just completed his second full term as attorney-general of Ohio. The order of which he has become the national head is one of the world's largest fraternal organizations.

Stories That Recall Others

The Green of Spring

Pedestrians were shivering in the chill air of a rainy day, when a young girl, attired all in white sport clothes, tripped down the street.

"Well," remarked a man as he cast a disgusted look at the outfit, "Maybe that costume is white, but it looks green to me." And he turned up his coat collar and walked on.

He Was Generous

It was one of the few rainy days and this chap stood just outside of the door sheltering himself under the awning.

A decidedly peppy young woman sought shelter there. She noticed that he had no umbrella but still insisted upon being facetious. "Mr. A," she said, "Won't you please lend me your umbrella?"

He looked at her a minute, then he smiled wisely, "I can't loan you an umbrella," he returned, "but I can loan you my example," and buttoning up his coat walked right out into the rain.

SENATOR WHEELER TO SUPPORT LAFOLLETTE

Washington, July 16.—Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, democratic prosecutor of the Daugherty investigation committee said today he probably would support Robert M. LaFollette in this year's presidential campaign.

"I do not see how I can support John W. Davis," said Senator Wheeler. "In view of my past position, I could not ask the people of my state to vote for Mr. Morgan's personal attorney."

Asked whether he would accept a nomination for vice president on the LaFollette ticket, for which he has been widely mentioned, Mr. Wheeler replied that he would not.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

The Night Hawk

As Lady Love and her little bunny boy sat on the back porch after supper, from time to time from the sky came a deep booming. It was the night Hawk, swooping downward with closed wings, perhaps several hundred feet, to catch some insect his sharp eyes had seen even from so great a height.

"Listen, Mother," whispered the little rabbit, as again the deep booming

"Ha, ha!" laughed the little rabbit.

noise was heard, "Night Hawk has spread his wings again and is turning upward. The wind rushing through the stiff feathers of his wings makes that noise."

"Dear me," shivered the timid lady rabbit. "I'm glad he isn't near us."

"Don't worry, Mother," answered the bunny boy. "I read only yesterday from Professor Crow's Wisdom Book that Night Hawk feeds on insects. Why, he's no larger than Bobbie Redvest, ten inches in length. Of course, his long wings make him look larger."

"I don't like hawks," sighed pretty Lady Love, smoothing her pink apron. "I'd hide under the woodpile if he happened around while I was out of doors."

Just then, there came a different sound, a strange nasal "peent."

"Night Hawk is calling to his mate," explained the bunny boy. "They're lazy birds. Sometimes they don't bother to build a nest. Mrs. Night Hawk just lays two eggs on a bare rock or a flat-roofed house."

"Dear me," again shivered Lady Love, "I hope she doesn't pick out our roof.

"Ha, ha!" laughed the little rabbit. "She knows better. Our roof is sloping."

"So it is," agreed Lady Love, less anxiously."

By and by, when Mrs. Moon was shining from the sky and the Twinkle, Twinkle Star was winking above the Old Bramble Patch, the two little bunnies hopped upstairs to dream of Lollypops and clover tops,

And chocolate ice cream cones,
Luscious lettuce marmalade
And butter-scotch cake scones.

Early the next morning, after polishing the front door knob, feeding the canary and bringing in the kindling wood, the little rabbit hopped down the path through the bramble bushes out to the Sunny Meadow. Up the Old Crow Path he went, clipperty clip, lipperty lip, until by and by, after a while, and a hop and a smile, but not nearly a mile, he came to a big stone close by the Old Rail Fence. Goodness me, right there on the top rail sat Night Hawk himself, crouching low down, the white patch at his throat above his black breast feathers shining in the sun.

Peeping from behind a bush, the little rabbit noticed a white spot in each wing, marks of white along the black wings and a white band near the end of the black tail feathers.

"Now I can explain to Mother how Night Hawk is dressed," thought the little rabbit, hopping quietly away.

Firestone Leads on Speedway With Five Record Breakers

When the race driver selects his tires he does so realizing that his life and chances for success depend upon them. It is significant that all of the ten money winners in the Indianapolis race were Firestone shod. Firestone, using gum-dipping and other special processes, has developed tires to such a high degree of efficiency that at Indianapolis, May 30th, the following drivers broke the world's record for 500 miles over this brick track, making many rounds at over 100 miles per hour.

Never before were tires put to such gruelling service, where it was necessary for every ounce of rubber and every fibre of fabric to work in perfect unison with every other part.

Driver	Time Miles per Hour
Joe Boyer—L. L. Corum	5:05:23:51 ... 98.24
Earl Cooper	5:06:47:18 ... 97.99
Jimmy Murphy	5:08:25:39 ... 97.27
Harry Hartz	5:10:44:29 ... 96.55
Bennett Hill	5:11:07:00 ... 96.46

Leadership in Everyday Service

Millions of motorists are profiting by the lengthened service of Firestone tires. Scores of unsolicited testimonials, lay emphasis on the long mileage Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords are delivering.

Leadership on Cabs, Buses and Trucks

The largest taxicab companies in the five largest cities in the United States use Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords exclusively. One fleet alone, the Yellow Cab Co., of Chicago, uses over one-half million tire miles per day.

Firestone for years has been first to develop tires and rims complete which would meet the heavy trucking loads, great strain and demand for traction. By originating and carrying forward the Ship by Truck movement, and establishing Ship by Truck bureaus in all large cities, Firestone helped speed up highway transportation and reduce costs.

Balloon Tire Leadership

Firestone's latest contribution to motoring is the low air pressure or Balloon Tire. This, the original full-size Balloon, was made practical by the special Firestone Gum-Dipping process, insulating every fibre of each cord, adding great strength and stamina. Firestone has also simplified the application of full-size Balloon tires to your present car by designing a special unit consisting of tires, tubes, rims and spokes applied by any dealer at a very low cost.

Leadership Against British Rubber Restriction Act

Attacking the unsound and uneconomic character of the British Rubber Restriction Act limiting the exportation of rubber from the Far East, Firestone was the one large tire manufacturer to take up the cause for the car owner. Soon after the agitation was started for America to produce rubber under its own control, the cost of crude rubber was reduced and tire prices brought back to normal.

Dealer Leadership Through Tire Quality and Service

Through Firestone dealers you can obtain organized service and the soundest values on the market, whether you need a Ford 30 x 3½ Fabric, a set of full-size Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords or a 10-inch truck tire

AMERICA SHOULD PRODUCE ITS OWN RUBBER — H. S. Firestone

Why Women Grow Old More Quickly Than Men

Greater Percentage of Anaemia—Lack of Iron in the Blood—Among Women Makes Them Lose Much of Their Youth, Beauty and Former Attractiveness And Become Fretful, Nervous and Run Down—

What Women Need Is Not Cosmetics or Stimulating Drugs But Plenty of Pure Red Blood Rich In Iron

Physician Explains How Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron Helps To Enrich The Blood, Strengthen The Nerves, Build Up Physical Power and Often Make Weak, Pale Careworn Women Look and Feel Years Younger.

Look for the woman who appears younger than a man of the same age and you will find the exception to that vast majority upon whom anaemia—lack of iron in the blood—has fastened its grip and is gradually sapping the health, vitality and beauty which every woman so longs to retain. In most cases men safeguard their health better than women by eating coarser foods, being more out-of-doors and leading more active lives, thereby keeping their blood richer in iron and their bodies in better physical condition. The very moment a woman allows herself to become weak, nervous and run-down she is placing a drain upon her whole system which overtaxes the power of the blood to renew wasted tissue and keep active the natural life forces of the body. There are thousands of women who are ageing and breaking down at a time when they should be enjoying that perfect bodily health which comes from plenty of iron in the blood, simply because they are not awake to their condition. For want of iron a woman may look and feel old at thirty, pale, haggard and run-down—while at 50 or 60 with good health and plenty of iron in her blood she may still be young in feeling and so full of life and attractiveness as to defy detection of her real age. But a woman cannot have beautiful rosy cheeks or an abundance of strength and endurance without iron, and there is nothing better than organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to help supply this deficiency and aid in building a race of stronger, healthier women.

It's NOT always the youngest woman that is most sought after—there is an indescribably alluring fascination in the ROSY CHEEK the INVITING LIPS and SPARKLING EYES of a woman whose blood is filled with iron. You may be pitied with IRON STARVATION of the blood and not know it, just as thousands of other women are. It is said that about ONE PERSON IN THREE in America today suffers more or less from MAL-NUTRITION—lack of nourishment which is caused NOT BY LACK of FOOD, but in many cases, by LACK of sufficient IRON IN THE BLOOD to enable you to get the strength and nourishment out of your food. Indoor life, over-eating and modern methods of cookery are sapping the iron from the blood of hundreds of thousands of women. Our forefathers to whom history refers as a NATION OF RED BLOODED AMERICANS ate the husks of grains and the skins and peels of vegetables and other coarse foods rich in strength giving organic iron, which the modern woman does not get.

To make up for the great loss of iron caused by the life woman is compelled to lead she should eat more such iron-containing vegetables and fruits, as spinach and baked apples and take organic iron like Nuxated Iron from time to time to help enrich her blood and revitalize her wornout, exhausted nerves.

NUXATED IRON represents organic iron in such a highly condensed form that one dose of it is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating half a quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It's like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. It often increases the bodily and mental vigor, strength and endurance of weak, nervous, "run-down" folks in two weeks' time. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results. Beware of substitutes. Nuxated Iron comes in tablets only—never in liquid form. Always ask for the word "Nuxated" on every package and the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

HOW TO REMOVE UNSIGHTLY HAIR SAFELY —ROOTS AND ALL

No need now to undergo painful electric treatments to remove superfluous hair; nor to apply ordinary ineffective hair removers which only remove surface hairs.

A marvelous new oriental balsam has been discovered which is applied almost as easily as cold cream. It penetrates towards the hair roots and gently "eases out" every objectionable hair, root and all, and leaves the skin clear, white, healthy and soft as velvet. No muss. No odor. No growing back of hair stronger than ever. Absolutely harmless.

Karma, as this wonderful new discovery is called, is highly recommended by prominent beauty specialists, and is sold on an absolute guarantee of satisfaction by

TWO SEEDED PLAYERS ARE ELIMINATED IN TENNIS

Boston, July 16.—The first break in the seeded ranks in the 33nd annual Longwood Bowl singles tournament in progress at Chestnut Hill came late today when Hugh Kelleher of New York and Gerald B. Emerson of Orange, N. J., were prevented by young collegians from reaching the round before the semi-finals. Kelleher, who was seeded fifth, fell before the powerful all-court play of Lewis N. White of Austin, Tex., three sets to one, while Emerson went down by the same margin in his match with Irving Weinstein of San Francisco.

Another overturn developed in the double when Lawrence B. Rice of Boston and Kelleher, a seede team, were eliminated by Alan Yerrington, Los Angeles school boy star, and Edawrd H. Whitney, former Harvard player.

Tomorrow's singles matches will find Wallace Johnson of Cynwyd Pa., pitted against Jerome Lang, a Columbia undergraduate; N. W. Niles of Boston meeting Fritz Mercur, Lehigh University; G. P. Gardner, Jr., of Boston playing Lewis N. White, University of Texas; and L. B. Rice, Boston, contending with Irving Weinstein, San Francisco. In every instance a collegian will oppose a veteran.

FOUR AMERICANS REMAIN IN OLYMPIC TENNIS

Olympic Stadium, Colombes, July 16. —(By The A. P.)—Only 16 tennis players—eight men and eight women —remained in the running for the Olympic singles championship tonight after the fourth day of play on the courts at Colombes

Two of the members of the octet surviving in the men's singles are Americans, R. Norris Williams and Vincent Richards. Similarly, two of the eight women who remained in the fight are Americans—Miss Helen Wills and Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup.

In both events the Americans are in opposite halves of the draw, so that all four of them may reach the semi-finals and thereby win points for their countries.

There is a third American woman among the eight remaining in the women's singles—Mrs. Molla B. Mallory —but she is wearing the colors of her native Norway. On Friday, Mrs. Mallory will play Miss Wills, who defeated her last year as champion of the United States.

GUILFORD AND OIMET LEAD FIELD IN MASS. TOURNEY

Newton Mass. July 16.—Isaac Guilford and Francis Ouimet, Woodland's famous golfing sons, led a field of 144 starters in the qualifying rounds of the state amateur championship over their home course today. Guilford had rounds of 77 and 67, the afternoon score setting a new record for the course. Ouimet had a pair of 73's.

Second in line, two shots from the leaders, was A. P. Wade, of Meadowbrook with 77 and 69. Until Guilford finished Wade was a record holder with his 69. Howard Paul, of Belleview, who led with a 70 in the morning round, also held the course record for a short time.

The tournament marked the return of Fred J. Wright, Jr., to New England competition after a three year's absence in California. He easily qualified with 75 and 77, being bettered by only five others in the field.

Danielson to Play Here Saturday.

The fast Danielson A. A. will be the attraction at the Duwell athletic field Saturday, when they will oppose the local American Woolen company team. Danielson is playing great ball so far this season, cleaning up everything they have met. Manager DeForest has strengthened his team considerably since the last time they played in this section and that was at Baltic when they took Baltic in by the score of 7 to 4. For the battery on Saturday, Manager De Forest has secured one of the best. Eneck will be on the mound with Farrelly behind the plate. This battery has won many a game for the Worcester Tech. being rumored around that they were the mainstay of that well known baseball team. The rest of the lineup will consist of some of the best in their territory and if the fans can still remember they will notice a few names of which were with the well known Conn. Mills some years ago. All these players have a large reputation and should give the local team a hard go. The Danielson lineup will be as follows: Eneck pitch, Farrelly second base, Reynier third base, Aubin short stop, La Fave, Perrault, Cote and Benoit, outfielders. Manager Hamill of the local team will place his usual lineup with the exception of Morin who was hurt while at practice last week. McGowan, who has been playing center field, will step into Morin's shoes until the latter returns. The local lineup will be as follows: Hamill catch, Diffley pitch, Simpson first base, McGowan second base: Skiffington third base, Marowski short stop, with Hollander, Berry and Lynch in the outfield.

These two teams will meet again at Danielson Sunday. Both teams will present the same lineup as Saturday's game with the exception of Fuller who will do the twirling for the Norwich team and De Forest who will do the honors for Danielson.

To Preach at Wa-Wag.

Rev. Lucien Drury of North Stonington will preach at the service Sunday morning, July 20th, at 11 o'clock, daylight saving time, at Wa-Wog camp.

OBITUARY.

William F. Smith.

News of the death of William F. Smith, formerly a resident of Norwich, which occurred Tuesday morning at his home in New Haven, was received in this city, Wednesday, by friends.

Mr. Smith enlisted in the Union army from New Haven and after receiving his honorable discharge from the service came to Norwich where he resided for about five years. He was one of the first members of Sedgwick Post, No. 1, G. A. R. Leaving Norwich he returned to New Haven about 50 years ago, where he had since made his home and transferred his membership to Admiral Foote post, New Haven. In 1923 State Commander Orrin M. Price of the G. A. R. appointed Mr. Smith assistant adjutant general of the Department of Connecticut, an office he held at the time of his death.

Edward F. Latimer.

Edward F. Latimer, a former resident of South Lyme, died Sunday at his home in Providence. The body was brought to South Lyme this afternoon for burial, the committal service being conducted by Rev. 2,928 OPERATORS' LICENSES SUSPENDED IN FIRST SIX MONTHS OF THE YEAR

Nearly 3,000 operators' licenses were suspended in the first half of this year for various violations of the motor vehicle law, it is disclosed in the July bulletin of the state motor vehicle department. The exact number is 2,928, of which 896 were suspended for reckless driving, 369 for intoxication, 67 for evading responsibility, 113 on account of fatal accidents, 492 for operating without license, 110 for operating unregistered cars, 601 for failure to report accidents and 280 for miscellaneous causes.

At the present rate, the suspension record will exceed that of any previous year since the department was established. For all of last year, 5,236 licenses were suspended, for 1922, 1,835 and for 1921, 1,184.

Sixty-three automobilists were sent to jail in the past six months for driving while under the influence of liquor. Four more were similarly dealt with for conviction of reckless driving charges. During 1923, 176 jail sentences were imposed in courts throughout the state for driving while intoxicated and 25 for reckless driving, which figures show that, while the department of motor vehicles is finding it advisable to suspend more licenses, the courts are imprisoning less of the motor vehicle offenders. Other figures presented in the department bulletin, however, lead to the conclusion in it that "a comparison of the statistics indicates great hope that the discipline by both police and courts will soon be so severe as to stamp out the willful offender." It is against this type of offense that the major part of the current bulletin is directed, and Commissioner Stoekel reiterates the policy of the department "to co-operate in every possible way to help and sustain enforcement officers and the courts, so that the true intent of the law to punish offenders shall be carried out and so that the great class of non-willful offenders may be equitable and justly disposed of."

The front page of the bulletin carries a cartoon showing the stern hand of the law held up against two automobiles, one labeled "Intoxication" and the other "Recklessness," which are depicted racing down the highway in dangerous fashion, each representing one of the types of motor vehicle offenses responsible for the great majority of highway accidents in Connecticut. Commissioner Stoeckel treats of this subject in the current issue, and sketches the duties of police, state and municipal, sheriffs and constables, and the courts, in disciplining and regulating motor vehicle traffic. It is pointed out that, of 444 such police officers on traffic duty throughout Connecticut, a state of 5,004 square miles, approximately 1,338,000 population and 12,000 miles of highways, improved and unimproved, 289 city police cover an area of about 792 square miles, and thirty state-policemen, ten constables and fifteen town police officers cover the rest.

Discussing disposition of cases by local court officials, the bulletin treats at length of the practice of many prosecutors to nolle cases for a sum of money. The practice, it says, "so far as my effort to make better driving through discipline is concerned, is valueless." It provides a means for persons who have violated the motor vehicle law to avoid the publicity of a trial, thereby losing the broad effect of "carrying out the principles of the administration of justice through example." The publication takes the view that "a careful study of the statistics showing disposition of actual court cases, and an examination of these statistics for other years, shows that enforcement of the motor vehicle law through the courts is becoming better standardized and more and more severe. Cases are being handled better in every particular from the standpoint of safety on the highways. The argument of safety is getting into the public mind as the necessity for it increases. It is coming to be expected of the court that it will protect the public against the menace of the reckless driver."

HOTEL DISH WASHER DROWNED IN LEBANON

While bathing alone in Williams pond, Exeter, Lebanon, Wednesday about 3 o'clock, Erwin Lauterbach, 23, was drowned and the body was recovered about midnight.

Lauterbach had been employed since July 7 as dishwasher at the Hotel Grand Lake which is on the shores of Williams pond. A small boy who saw him go down in deep water near the dam and gave the alarm and search was made for the body up to a late hour Wednesday night but without success. W. T. Curry came to this city about 10 o'clock and borrowed from the police department a grapnel with which to continue dragging for the body.

Mr. Curry kept at the dragging until about midnight when the grapnel brought the body to the surface and it was taken to the shore.

The drowned man was wearing only a pair of overalls and sneaks. He was about 5 feet tall, weighing about 250 pounds.

Mr. Curry notified Dr. C. C. Glidersleeve, medical examiner, for the town, who went to Lebanon with Undertaker Gager to care for the body.

About all that is known of Lauterbach is that he is a native of Berlin, Germany, and has a mother there. He came to the hotel through an employment agency in New York and it is known that he had an intimate friend by the name of Herman Sick at Wayne, Mich., to whom he recently sent $30 to enable Sick to come to Lebanon and work at the hotel with him.

CHARGED WITH PARKING TOO FAR FROM CURB

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 15.—Abner Schwartz, 25 Perkins avenue, Norwich, was ordered tonight to appear in police court tomorrow morning charged with violation of the automobile law as a result of his car being in a three cornered collision on Bank street in which the Schwartz car and automobile owned and driven by John J. Kelly, 230 Huntington street and another driven by Louis Glater, 357 Bank street, were damaged. The Schwartz car had been parked alongside the curb in front of 357 Bank street and in the rear of the car owned by Glater which was also parked. The car operated by Kelly was proceeding in a southerly direction and instead of passing the Schwartz car Kelly's machine hooked into the rear end of Schwartz's car, forcing that machine against that of Glater's. Kelly's car had the right running board ripped off and the two other cars were extensively disfigured. Kelly alleged that the accident was due to the rear of the Schwartz car being parked several feet from the curb, while Schwartz declared that he was starting his car in motion and gave a signal that he intended to do so. Patrolman Hommand who was nearby when the collision occurred found the Schwartz car several feet from the curb immediately following the accident and ordered Schwartz to appear in court.

PICNIC TO DRAWBRIDGE FOR TWO PLAYGROUNDS

On Wednesday morning the instructors of the Lake street and Hobart avenue playgrounds, took their proteges o na picnic to the drawbridge. The procession of 150 children aroused much interest as they marched to the New Haven railroad station to board the 11.34 train for the drawbridge.

From the time they left home until they returned there was not a dull moment. The chief events of the day were the long and short swimming events and some of the children displayed unusual ability in fancy diving.

At noon a picnic lunch was enjoyed and in the afternoon the program included competitive athletic events consisting of relay races, long distance runs, jumping and other events. A feature of the afternoon program was the distribution of balloons, this being made possible through the generosity of Theodore Schultz, proprietor of Happyland casino.

Games completed the entertainment for the day and the party prepared for the trip home, arriving about 6.45, being conducted to their playgrounds by Mr. Corcoran, Miss Farrell and Miss Dodd. This outing was the first of a series to be given by the various playgrounds instructors during the summer.

FOUGHT POLICE WHEN THEY ARRESTED HIM

Patrick Sullivan, 61, gave the police a fight Wednesday night when they were called to his home on Sixth street by a compaint that he was intoxicated and making trouble in his home. He was arrested by Officers Cgburn, Dunion and Kosiowski and is charged with intoxication, breach of the peace and resisting an officer.

BAND CONCERT PROVES POPULAR ENTERTAINMENT

That the public of Norwich does enjoy good music and that band concerts are attended by many people was made evident Wednesday night when hundreds lined Union square and listened to a well rendered program by Swahn's band. The members of the band played in their usual pleasing manner and the people were quick to voice their appreciation of their efforts. Several people were heard to comment that "it seemed like old times to hear Swahn's band" and also welcome the chance to hear good band concerts in Norwich once again. mwa'ignntp

The concerts are being given through the efforts of the court of common council and there are four more in store for the people during the coming weeks. Alderman E. La-Rue Bliven chairman of the amusement committee of the council, will announce the dates of the coming concerts and it is likely that they will be held on Union square as this is the most central place in the city.

The program rendered Wednesday evening under the efficient direction of John M. Swahn was as follows:

March—Equinox J. A. Sousa
Overture—Martha arr. by Tobani
Medley—Popular Airs:
Introducing
In the Garden of Tomorrow
Can You Bring Back the Heart I Gave You?
Home in Pasadena.
Operatic Selection—Blue Paradise Eysler nad Romberg
Serenade—Chilian Dance Misud
Selection—Plantation Songs arr. by Brockton
(Solos for cornet and baritone)
Novelette—A Little Bit of Scotch Lampe
Finale—Star Spangled Banner.

MOOSEHEART LEGION PICNIC AT THE BEACH

The annual picnic of Mooseheart legion, Norwich chapter, No. 124, was held Wednesday at Ocean Beach. The members of the chapter sailed from Norwich at 9 a. m. on the Nelseco and enjoyed games, swimming and other amusements at the beach during the day. At noon a dinner was served and at supper there was a luncheon. The party returned home late in the evening. The committee in charge of the picnic comprised Mrs. Carolina Hastedt and Mrs. Emma Beaver.

FUNERALS.

Thomas F. Norris.

The funeral of Thomas F. Norris, steward of the Elks club, whose death occurred Sunday in Boston, was impressively conducted at 4:3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the lodge room at the Elks' home with an attendance of 150 of his Brother Elks and friends who came to pay their final tribute. The casket, which was completely covered with pink roses and gladioli, was placed between the altar and the station of the exalted ruler, and near it were arranged many floral forms, including one from the lodge made in the form of the Elks' emblem.

Members of the lodge assembled in the parlor and marched into the lodge room in a body, headed by the officers, at the time for the service which was read by Rev. R. R. Graham, rector of Christ Episcopal church. Softly Now the Light of Day was feelingly sung by Hugh Kinder and the Elks' burial service was conducted by Exalted Ruler John E. Fitzgerald and the officers of the lodge, with Abide With Me rendered by Mr. Kinder and Bryant's Thanatopsis impressively recited by Past Exalted Ruler James. P. Hayes.

At the conclusion of the service the delegate representatives of the lodge, J. F. Monaher, Lawrence Stanley, Charles Fox, John P. Corcoran, Perry H. Corning and Hugh B. McAvoy, led the members of the lodge past the casket where each deposited a sprig of amaranth among the flowers that covered it.

Burial was in the Osgood lot in Yantic cemetery where a committal service was read by Rector Graham and the Elks' committal service was conducted by the officers of the lodge. The bearers were John P. Flynn, Ralph W. Patrick, Frederick W. Hutchinson, Joseph P. Farrell, John H. Wilson and William H. Callahan.

The funeral arrangements were in charge of Cummings & Ring.

Fire on Preston Bridge.

The fire department was called out for the second time Wednesday afternoon when at 2.27 o'clock a telephone call came in for a fire in the planking of Preston bridge. The blaze was easily extinguished by pouring a few buckets of water on it and the loss was slight.

GIVES ENCOURAGING VIEW OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS

The Connecticut Chamber of Commerce through its membership in the International Chamber of Commerce has received this week from Paris "Information Letter No. 29," which contains the following encouraging review of foreign affairs. Secretary Chandler expressed the view that the upward foreign trend should be reflected in this country.

The special report on German conditions appearing in the letter shows increased stabilization of German finances but a decline of actual business transactions. The government and the reichsbank are in controversy with the business interests—the former insisting upon deflation and the maintenance of the gold basis and the latter clamoring for more liberal credits.

The letter says:

"The Dawes report did much to relieve the pressure of politics on business. Although the report has not yet been formally accepted there is a prevailing optimism that it is to be put in effect in the fall. Without very much specific ground for doing so, it is expected that a step in this direction will be made at the conference of premiers which is to be held in London July 16th. For the first time, America is to be officially represented by the American ambassador at London, Mr. Kellogg, and by the American observer on the reparation commission, James A. Logan, Jr. It is realized that whatever progress may be made on July 16th, the actual enforcement of the plan requires changes in the constitution of the German republic which can only be effected by a two-thirds majority of the reichstag. These changes apply not only to the control of the railways in particular, but also to the five so-called controlled revenues (the monopolies on alcohol, tobacco, beer, salt and sugar). It is not unlikely that some concessions may have to be made by the allies in order to placate a sufficient number of the opposition to Chancellor Marx's government in order to enable him to obtain the two-thirds majority required to modify the constitution. Here again is a situation where political consideration may facilitate or obstruct a measure which is fundamental to the settlement of the practical difficulties in the way of establishing permanent reparation payments.

The notes in the following pages indicate on the whole a healthy trend in affairs. Where difficulties exist, they are due in part, if not very largely, to the healthy but painful processes of currency reform. France would appear to be generally prosperous. The visible exports continue their favorable excess over imports. The cabinet of Mr. Herriot is generally regarded as a strong one, and much is hoped for the realization in practice of the reforms promised by the new government, especially as regards a real housecleaning in the field of finance.

There is, however, some indication of a development which is of unusual interest and of the highest possible importance. This indication is contained in a recent report of the minister of agriculture. If the figures quoted mean what they say, the French are leaving the land and going to the cities. If this be true, France, which hitherto has been primarily an agricultural country which in basic food-stuffs was practically self-sufficing, has made a definite step towards industrialization.

Affairs in Germany, too, appear to be hanging on the acceptance of the Dawes plan. In the meanwhile, however, they are being very much influenced by the currency reforms of the existing government, which, for the time being, have perfectly naturally created a currency shortage. It remains to be seen whether the government is strong enough to protect its conservative financial policy against the pressure from industry. In Austria the banking world is still suffering from the shock received by the amazing recovery of the franc a few months ago. It would seem, however, that the League of Nations plan under the direction of Dr. Zimmerman is still working successfully and that the recovery of the courageous Chancellor Dr. Seipel, is confidently expected so that he may continue his sound and healthy influence on Austria's development. In Italy, too, an upward trend will be found not only in the progresive development of Italy's "white coal," namely, her large hydrolic power resources, but also in the continued favorable position shown by the budget returns. In Poland there is a conspicuous example of money shortage due to currency stabilization, for, despite the painfulness of the process and the temporary increasing unemployment, the general morale and self-confidence of the people seems to be definitely improved. The situation in Hungary would appear still to be uncertain until the success of the pending loan under the League of Nations' plan is known. The loan is to be floated the first week in July. Despite the unimportant amount of American participation, it is expected that the loan will go through.

GOVERNMENT MAY DEEPEN THAMES RIVER CHANNEL

The pleas of Connecticut residents for a deeper Thames river between New London and Norwich appear in a fair way to be given favorable consideration by the board of engineers of the rivers and harbors division of the army engineers during conferences this week according to a Washington dispatch.

The drawback to almost certain favor is the unfavorable report already made by Division Engineer Colonel H. C. Newcomer of New York. On the other hand the board is confronted with a report of Major V. L. Peterson district engineer at Providence urging the deepening at a cost of about $200,000, together with various data furnished by the local supporters of the project. It was said at the board office in Washington that if the proposition is turned down by the board, the petitioners will be given a further opportunity to plead their case at a hearing some time in the fall.

Back in 1922, a survey of the channel showed a depth of twenty feet between New London and Allyn's Point and one of about fourteen feet from there on to Norwich. The local people petitioned for a channel of sixteen feet saying it would be adequate to handle the larger coal and lumber barges which they wished to get up to Norwich. But the board could not see much advantage in the two-feet deepening. So after a hearing a survey was recommended to be made by Peterson who subsequently returned a report recommending a channel of 18 feet.

The arguments propounded by the residents interested in the project and by Peterson are to the effect that the large coal barges which bring West Virginia bituminous coal, a superior grade, could get up to Norwich, whereas now only small barges carrying Pennsylvania coal can get up there. They also want a means of bringing lumber and other such commodities up the river. Colonel Newcomer holds that the trucking costs at Norwich would equal the rail cost from Allyn's Point to Norwich and therefore make it inadvisable for the United States to invest such a large sum of money.

STERLING EXPECTS 4,000 ON U. S. FINISHING PICNIC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Sterling, Conn., July 16.—All arrangements have been made for the largest gathering ever held in this part of Windham county when the employes of the various plants of the United States Finishing Co., in Rhode Island and Connecticut, including Norwich and this town, will meet here on Friday for their annual outing, that great company furnishing free transportation, for not only the workers, but their entire families.

Special trains will be run from Providence, Pawtucket and Norwich, also a special car from New York city, home office of the corporation.

Present indications point to at least 4,000 visitors. All kinds of games and amusements including baseball games, will be on the programme and several bands will be here.

Late this afternoon C. B. Montgomery of Oneco, received word from Congresman Richard P. Freeman of New London, that he will arrive in Sterling at 2.30 Friday afternoon and will be entertained by Hon. Harold Mowry, resident superintendent of the United States Finishing Company.

All arrangements have been perfected by the force under Mr. Mowry to take care of the great assembly, and they intend to make it a red letter day for Sterling.

GOLDSTEIN RETAINS BANTAMWEIGHT TITLE, BEATING FRENCH CHAMPION

New York, July 16.—Abe Goldstein, holder of the world's 118-pound pugilistic crown, successfully defended his title in a listless 15-round match against Charlie Ledoux, of France, former European bantamweight champion at the Velodrome A. C. tonight. Goldstein knocked Ledoux to the floor twice but could not produce a finishing punch. He was awarded the unanimous decision on points.

The little Frenchman, game to the core, took a bad beating but managed to evade Goldstein's wild swings and remain upright at the termination of the match.

The crowd, a scant 5,000, booed the exhibition and hissed the decision. In the eleventh round a smash to Ledoux's nose sent him reeling and he rolled to the floor, rising again at a count of eight. Goldstein, anxious to finish his man was too eager and Ledoux had little trouble evading the wild assortment of blows.

In the fourteenth round it seemed that Goldstein would accomplish his purpose. He shot his right straight after a series of blows to Ledoux's head, and the game Frenchman measured his length on the canvas, passing completely beyond the ropes but managing to remain on the platform. He was up and at Goldstein at the count of four.

K. O. Phil Kaplan, New York welterweight, out-pointed Vic Brog, of Pittsburgh, in a ten round slugging match, the semi-final number on the programme. Brog proved to be an easy target for Kaplan's straight shooting right and his left jab. Kaplan weighed 148 pounds and his opponent one-half a pound more.

TIGERS PICK UP ON LEAGUE LEADERS

Boston, July 16.—Detroit advanced to within a game and a half of the league leadership today by defeating Boston twice, 5 to 4, and 11 to 3. Cobb went hitless but his mates batted fiercely. In the seventh inning of the second game, when Detroit made eight runs, Burke doubled off Piercy and tripled off Workman, Blue was put out of the game for disputing the action of Umpire Owens in calling him out for interfering with Picinich's throw to prevent Heilmann stealing second in the second game. How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Fordham Star and New York Giants

A right-hand batter steps up to the plate. The signal is passed for a slow or a curved ball to be pitched to him.

Where should the shortstop play?

When a slow or curved ball is being pitched to a right-handed hitter, the shortstop should pull over towards third base. Such a hitter has a tendency to pull such balls into left field. This is one of the reasons why all infielders should know the kind of a ball the pitcher is going to serve the batter every time he pitches to him.

ATHLETICS TROUNCE WHITE SOX TWICE IN DOUBLE HEADER

Philadelphia, July 16.—The Philadelphia Athletics took the Chicago White Sox into camp today for a double victory, winning the first game 5 to 0 and the second 6 to 5. Sam Gray's elusive pitching proved too much for the White Sox in the opening half of the day's engagements, the youthful Texan holding them to four scattered safeties.

Chicago piled up a five run lead in the second inning of the closing contest on Heimach but were helpless against the relief hurling of Bob Hasty. Going into the ninth a run behind the Athletics walloped out three successive safeties that scored two runs and brought them the victory. The score:

Sheets Still in Lead

Fort Niagara, N. Y., July 16.—Lieutenant H. B. Sheets, of the 350th Infantry, Scofield barracks, Hawaii, maintained his lead today in the third day of shooting for membership in the United States infantry national match rifle team.

Lieutenant Sheets' score for three days of shooting was 851 out of a possible 900. Lieutenant L. M. Broderick, 110th Infantry, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., was second with 848.

WEST ENDS TAKE EASY GAME FROM HARDIGS AT DUWELL FIELD, 12 TO 8

In a loosely played game at the Duwell field Wednesday evening, the West Ends defeated the Hardigs by the score of 12 to 8. The Hardigs blew completely in the first inning when the West Ends bunched seven hits for nine runs. This lead proved too big to overcome, although the Hardigs scored four times in the last inning in a vain effort to catch their opponents. Siegel pitched mediocre ball for the West Ends, his big lead enabling him to win with ease. After the first inning Rankin settled down somewhat, the West Enders making but three runs in the remainder of the game.

The Hardigs claimed that bad umpiring was responsible for their defeat, but to the fans present this did not seem to be the case. The play the Hardigs based their claim on was in the final inning, during the Hardigs' big rally. Felix had led off with a double, when R. Heebner drove what seemed to be a fair hit ball inside the first base line. The umpire called this as he saw it, a foul ball. Keeping Felix on second and sending Heebner back to the plate, Heebner then walked and both he and Felix scored later on singles by C. Heebner and Tombari. Whether the ball was fair or foul the outcome of the game would have been the same. The Hardigs later protested the game on the grounds of bad umpiring, but as the protest was based on an umpire's decision on the field, it is doubtful if it will be allowed by President Mathewson.

The game was unmarked by any sensational plays, but both Hamil and Wheeler played well for the West Enders, the former making several good plays in the field, while the latter featured with three hits, two of them doubles.

ECHOES FROM THE STANDS.

(By Matt.)

We wish to correct an error on our part regarding Chick Stanley's ability in yesterday's paper. The item should have read: "Chick Stanley played a good game at First and was valuable to his team as a coach."

It was a horrible first inning for the Hardigs. Rankin was hit for seven clean bingles and nine runs, taking the interest out of the game.

Felix, the old-timer, was the shining light of the Hardigs, hitting, fielding and running bases in wonderful style.

Hollander showed up much better back of the bat than he did in the outfield in previous games, his catching being very good.

The Pedaee Bros. acted like umpires and were good although Whacko Riley called them the James Boys. Whacko always did have a jealous nature.

WESTERLY

Mrs. Herbert W. Rathbun of Westerly was the hostess Wednesday at a luncheon and bridge at Stonington Manor Inn. The party numbered about twenty, bridge being played and prizes awarded following the serving of the luncheon.

Two civil cases for damages to the amount of $500 each have been brought against Mrs. Margaret Conigher for Elesee Magni, a miner, way of Tower street. The suits were brought by Attorney John F. Gallagher through his father; and the other by Charles Magni, of Joshua street, father of the young man. Litigation grows out of the alleged hitting on the head of the Magni boy with a stone by Mrs. Conway. The fracas occurred last May and as a result, it is stated, the boy required the services of a physician for several days and it is said that at one time it was possible that the boy would have to be taken to the hospital.

The annual picnic of the Bible school of the First Baptist church is to be held Saturday at Atlantic Beach. It is planned to have the school leave Westerly at 9.15. J. Howard Martin is superintendent of the Bible school and Albert G. Martin of Pawcatuck is chairman of the committee of arrangements.

Under the auspices of the Westerly Teachers' association a clinic was held Tuesday at the Westerly High school building, for the removal of tonsils and adenoids and six cases of students in the grammar schools of Westerly were treated. Dr. Frederick L. Blair was assisted in the operations by Dr. Michael H. Scanlon and Dr. C. Grant Savage. Also in attendance were the school nurse, Miss Tuite and visiting nurse, Miss Ball.

Dr. A. La Pierre of Norwich was a caller in Westerly Wednesday afternoon.

Westerly Italian residents, men, women and children, several hundred in all, left Westerly Wednesday morning by early trains and by automobiles for Providence. The attraction was the annual two day Carmine celebration.

A prize fireworks display in which two of the foremost fireworks companies of the state were competitors, was entered into on the Kinsley avenue flats at 9 o'clock Wednesday evening. The exhibition was the closing feature of the two-day celebration, beginning Tuesday, of Federal Hill societies in honor of the patron saint Madonna Del Carmine.

The observances opened Tuesday night with processions and band concerts by Banda Napoli, under the direction of Prof. Julio Capone and the Thornton band, Prof. Borelli, the leader. The morning's programme of mass at the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel at 10 o'clock and a procession of several societies at 12 o'clock. There were band concerts afternoon and evening, preceding the pyrotechnic display.

The committee in charge of the celebration comprised M. Colasciovanni, chairman; C. Puglio, vice chairman; F. Caligiuro, secretary; A. Feole, treasurer; C. Palmerino, D. Cecero, A. Sorrentino, A. Sarli, A. Totolo, A. Mendillo, C. Seaglione, N. Granieri, D. A. Germano, F. Rocco and M. DiToro.

The officers of the Society of Mount Carmel are: President, A. Mendillo; vice president, F. Lombardi; honorary presidents, G. Martini, M. Misuceli, Emilio Carrone, Cosmo Bucci and Frank Gammino.

The Men's Bible class of the First Baptist church is to hold its annual outing this (Thursday) evening at Mulberry Glen on the Boston Post road. Among the feature attractions will be a baseball game between the married and single men and a clam chowder supper.

"Unlisted" among the summer sports is a quahaug contest between representatives of New London and Washington counties. To one unfamiliar with the sport, the first move is to don a Palm Beach suit (to avoid sunburn which the exposure to salt air and the sun induces) without shoes or stockings to wade into the coves and "tread for 'em." The last report showed Washington county, represented by Herbert W. Rathbun, ahead with a score of "300 and some" against New London county, John F. Gallagher, with a record of only "200 and some."

The joint annual picnic and outing of Westerly Historical Society and Phoebe Green Ward chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will this year be a pilgrimage to Lebanon, Saturday, July 19th. The pilgrims will leave the Wilcox Memorial and public library at 1.15 p. m., and are scheduled to arrive at Lebanon at 3 o'clock. The trip will be made by way of Norwich and Hartford turnpike, passing near the Lebanon-Franklin line and near the Mason farm, which was the first dwelling place of Rev. James Fitch Mason, one of the original purchasers of the tract embracing the present town of Lebanon.

Before arriving at the common the party will visit several places, including the old "house of the stone chimney," so called, the residence of several of the early colonial families, such as the Metcalfs, Fitches, Brewsters and Dolbeares, now occupied by the family of Rev. Hollis A. Campbell, formerly pastor of the First Congregational church. After parking the party will proceed in a body to the war office where an informal reception will be held by Jonathan Trumbull Chapter, D. A. R., of Lebanon. Registration and inspection of relics, with visits to other notable colonial houses, including a visit to the original site of the Trumbull house, "Redwood," headquarters, home of Jonathan Trumbull's father and son and given over to the occupation of the French officers, quartered in Lebanon, 1780-1781.

A stop will be made at the high school, where in the auditorium a paper will be read by a prominent Lebanon woman. Lunch will follow and automobiles will be taken to circle the common, noting important sites of early days en route, reaching the grave of the unknown French soldier buried there and returning to Lebanon Center, to pass the old cemetery, containing the Trumbull family tomb and graves of colonial settlers and revolutionary settlers. The return to Westerly will be made by way of the Windham and Norwich turnpikes. It is expected that 25 automobiles and trucks and a party of 75 members and guests will make the Lebanon pilgrimage.

RUM RUNNING PARTY BALKED AT THOMPSON COVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I., July 16.—On counts of possession and transportation of more than 200 cases of whiskey, champagne and cognac, Fred Garlando, Fred Titjen of 96 Cedar Hill avenue, and Henry Tietjen, 212 English street, all of New Haven, were presented before Judge Michael J. Turano in a special session of the Third District court Wednesday evening at 4.45. They were represented by Attorney William G. Troy of Providence, while Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., represented the state. Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, complainant. Being found guilty, they were fined $100 each and costs. Their attorney took an appeal and bonds of $200 were required of each man for his appearance in superior court for Washington county, September term and Henry P. Walton became surety in that sum. On their release the men were returned their touring car but the Federal truck, 16-757 Conn. was held to await the arrival of federal authorities.

The arrest of the men was brought about when the police officer on duty in Dixon House square received a message about 4 o'clock Wednesday morning that there was a commotion of some kind in the vicinity of the old stone dock just back of the trolley waiting room at Thompson's cor-

MARKET WAS ACTIVE.

New York, July 16.—Contrasting price movements featured today's active stock market, strength of the railroad shares being counteracted by the weakness of the oil and steel issues. Dividend news and rumors were an important contributing influence in the determination of quoted values, omission of the Sinclair common dividend bringing a flood of selling orders into the oils while several high grade rails moved up smartly on the likelihood of increased dividend payments.

Sinclair was hammered down more than one point to 15, a record low for all time, but rallied later to 15 1-2. Atlantic Refining broke nearly six points to 78 1-2 and then snapped back to 80 1-4 while losses of a point or more were recorded by California Petroleum common and preferred, Cosden, Houston and Atlantic Refining preferred. Announcement of additional gasoline price cuts also was a factor in the selling of the oils.

Reports questioning the safety of Bethlehem Steel dividend sent the common stock down 2 5-8 points to a new 1924 low at 43 1-4. Other independent steels reacted in sympathy. Crucible dropped 1 1-4 points and Gulf States Steel 2. United States Steel common dropped below par, but later rallied and closed at a slight fractional gain.

Interborough Rapid Transit was one of the outstanding individual strong spots, jumping more than six points to 38 5-8 in reflection of an unusually large gain in earnings during the last few months. Other local tractions advanced in sympathy.

Another flock of new high records were established by the railroad shares, including such issues as New Haven, at 26 7-8, Southern Pacific at 94 5-8, Baltimore & Ohio, at 61 7-8, Delaware & Hudson at 130 1-8, and Wheeling and Lake Erie common and preferred at 11 3-4 and 23, respectively. Rock Island 7 per cent preferred duplicated its high of 86 1-2.

Weekly steel trade reviews showed little change in the general situation, although Iron Age reported that an encouraging feature was the moderate increase in orders taken recently by various mills.

General Baking led the advance in industrial specialties by jumping 12 points to 114 and then slipping back to 111 on profit taking. Commercial solvents issues advanced three points each on publication of an unusually favorable semi-annual earnings report.

Call money continued to rule at 3 per cent. The time money market was quiet with rates unchanged. In the commercial paper market, the few best grade names discounted at 3 1-4 per cent a new low on the movement.

Early irregularity in the foreign exchange market gave way to firmness with most of the principal European rates closing at small net gains. Demand sterling ruled about 5-8 of a cent higher at $4.37 3-8 and French francs were active around 5.17 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, July 16.—The pace of bond trading quickened perspectively today, bringing recovery in the prices of Brazilian issues and substantial improvement in the values of various railroad liens.

Reports of federal successes in the Brazilian revolution were encouraging to bond holders and rallies of 1 to 3 points were scored by the Rio De Janeiro 8s, Sao Paulo 8s, Brazilian government 8s and Central Railway 7s.

Bullish demonstrations in the railroad shares stimulated buying of numerous rail bonds. Buying orders again flowed in for the St. Paul issues, bringing advances of 1 to 2 1-2 points, which gains of a point or so were registered by Western Maryland, Seaboard Air Line, Louisville and Nashville, Frisco, Northern Pacific and Chicago and Eastern Illinois liens. Higher grade issues appeared to lead in popularity.

Several weak spots appeared in the industrial list although the main price trend of this group was upward. Recessions ranging from fractions to 2 1-2 points took place in the Wilson & Company, Virginia-Carolina, Sinclair and Armour issues.

Prospective new financing includes a total of more than $30,000,000 in public utility and industrial stock and bond issues under negotiation. Offering of a $15,000,000 Great Consolidated Electric Power Company, Ltd., of Japan, is under contemplation but may be delayed until next week.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, July 16.—A wild stampede to the buying side of the wheat market today sent prices whirling up as much as 5 3-8c. Reports that a large part of the Canadian crop had been irreparably damaged 50 per cent and that $1.50 a bushel would likely be reached at Winnipeg were chiefly responsible. New high price records for the season were made here both for wheat and corn and for oats and hogs as well. Wheat closed excited with 3 3-8c to 5 3-8c net gain, September 1.26 7-8 to 1.27 and December 1.29 to 1.29 1-2. Corn finished 3 3-4c to 4 1-2c up, oats at 1c to 3 3-4c advance, and provisions showing a rise varying from 5c to 42c.

At first, the wheat market here showed a downward tendency owing to rains over part of the drought district in Canada. Prices failed to break to any unusual extent, however, and a sudden advance ensued, stimulated by dispatches from trained observers telling of deplorable conditions from which rain would afford no relief.

Trading on a big scale quickly developed in the wheat pit but the upward sweep of the market proved to be of a somewhat restrained character until near the end of the day. Then in the final fifteen minutes, prices leaped 2c and finished at the topmost point reached. A good deal of the late buying was ascribed to foreigners.

Corn and oats acquired much of their strength from wheat. Bullish crop reports regarding corn in Ohio and Indiana were also given notice, and so too were advices about injury to the oats crop in Canada.

Provisions advanced with hogs and grain.

CURB MARKET.

New York, July 16.—Continued weakness of the oil shares resulting from unfavorable developments in the industry and omission of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil common dividend stood out in curb market trading today in contrast to the general firmness of industrial issues.

Pressure on the oils affected even many leading stocks. Prairie Oil and Gas yielding 3 points at the close for a new low of the year at 186. Several of the active Standard Oil issues held their ground, receding only fractionally, but Standard Oil of Ohio lost six points and Swan and Finch 5 1-2 points on small turnovers. Penn Mexico Fuel gained two points and South Penn Oil closed a point higher.

The firm tone of the industrial list was shown in a gain of more than two points by Gillette Safety Razor which rose 3 points at one time. Centrifugal Cast Iron Pipe and Glen Alden Coal closed more than a point higher. Strength also was displayed by the radio and motor shares, while public utilities failed to produce their customary interesting movements, prices being held to a narrow range.

GOVERNMENT PAYS OVERDUE BILL OF NEW LONDON SHIP & ENGINE CO.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 16.—Fifty employes of Department O, of the New London Ship & Engine company, who were laid off two weeks ago because of the failure of the government to pay for repair work being done on submarines at the Groton yard, returned to work today when a check was received calling for payment of a portion of the claim due the shipbuilding company. The balance of the money due, it is expected, will be received here within a few days, after which the remaining 150 employes laid off will be returned to work.

Charles E. Cavanaugh, 196 Connecticut avenue, who underwent an operation at a local private hospital several weeks ago, was able to return to his home today.

Earl Parks, Raymond street, has entered a Hartford hospital, where he will undergo an operation to his leg. The member was injured several months ago when a weighty barrel being unloaded from a truck of the Gardner Storage company fell upon it.

Norman F. Nelson, Jr., 201 Sanford avenue, Flushing, Long Island, reported to the police late this afternoon that he had been robbed of $28, telescope, folding camera, white flannel trousers, sweater shirt and four bottles of gin. Nelson is one of four young men who are cruising about New England ports on the launch Idylease. This afternoon while the craft was moored at the wharf of the Connecticut Power company on Water street, the men absented themselves from the launch about two hours and upon their return it was discovered that the boat had been entered and the theft committed.

An automobile owned and operated by Joshua J. Davidson, 283 White street, Springfield, Mass., and a machine owned and driven by Frank M. Rose, Waterford, were in collision late this afternoon on Bank street, near the corner of Tilley street. Both cars were damaged. Davidson declared that he was proceeding south on Bank street and that in passing Tilley street, Rose operated his car from the left hand turn of the intersecting street and made a collision unavoidable. Rose declared that his car was struck by Davidson's machine.

Charles Antonio, 183 Wallace street, New Haven, was arrested this evening by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock charged with violation of the automobile law in passing an intersecting street without reducing the speed of the machine. Antonio gave a bond for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

Bathhouse thieves continue to operate without molestation at Ocean Beach for this afternoon three of the group of houses at the Patrick J. Clifford concession were entered and a small amount of plunder secured. Joseph Nahass, 565 Bank street, occupying No. 13, lost $5; John Grippo, 64 Shaw street, occupying No. 45, had a leather belt stolen, and Solomon Nahass, 27 Church street, occupying No. 36, suffered the loss of his bathing suit. The thefts today brings the total number of bathhouse robberies for a week or ten days to about 12 or 15.

Mrs. Edwin Keeney of 30 Pleasant street, Rev. Henry W. Hulbert, Groton, and Mrs. John Keenan and infant son, Mystic, were patients dismissed at Home Memorial hospital today.

Mrs. Cleora Horton Fenn, wife of Earl F. Fenn, 25, died last night at her residence, 44 Perry street, after an illness of about six weeks. Mrs. Fenn, besides her husband, is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Horton, of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. Ralph Edson and Miss Lois Horton, also of New London.

When Newton Carson walked out of the police court this morning his friends said he was too slick for country guys to trap into the sale of alcohol. Carson is known as "Tex" among his friends. Tex worked at the Pease house for some time and while he was there he had something to do other than sleep. He kept his eyes open and his ears in working order while he was associating with the set that spent evenings and afternoons at the Saybrook resort. Then Tex came to New London. He had a room on Golden street. Then, as misfortune would have it, there was a fire in the building, and it was disclosed that Tex had a variety of stuff in his room that surprised the police who investigated. The officer found women's apparel and Cinderella shoes that were never bought for the feet of Tex. He didn't claim them, but said "All that stuff was here when I hired the room." It seems that a few days ago there was a suspicion at the police station that "Tex" was in business of some sort, but it wasn't apparent what that business was, so Officer Babcock was sent to the Klinck building, in which Tex had a room. The officer, when he reached the building, was looking for a defective system of water supply. He didn't find it because Tex was not on the premises. He was, however, notified that the policeman had been there. That was a tip to Tex to clean up. The next day there was a load of alcohol cans on the sidewalk and they were taken away. When the fire occurred it took place at a time when Sergeant Smith had a search warrant in his duds and was on the way to execute it. The officer went into the Carson room but all he found in the way of liquor was a half pint of grain alcohol, something anybody was apt to have in the house. There were empty glass jugs there too, but these were not evidence that Tex was not doing an honest-to-goodness business. Carson was arrested, but in court the prosecutor said he had nothing to convict Carson of illegitimate business and he asked that the complaint should be nolled. That motion was allowed. Tex chuckled as he left the court.

Morris Lubchansky has been very fortunate and prosperous because he possesses the energy that makes for industry, was in the police court this morning charged with having sold the sort of liquor that is known as hooch to William N. Holt, a New London printer some ten days ago, which liquor it is claimed caused the death of Holt, as it produced a chronic case of alcoholism. Lubchansky is a carpenter who works almost any hours and while he is thus engaged his wife operated a store on North Bank street. There is where the liquor was purchased, according to Joe Govlosky and others who were the companions of Holt when he met death through the neck of a bottle. The connection of Lubchansky with the case brought a fine of $100 to him from the court. He promised, through his attorney, to abandon all business that would connect him with the sale of liquor hereafter.

Three boys from East New London were in the police court today charged with breaking open a freight car on the tracks of the New Haven railroad in this city. There was evidence against them from Railroad Policemen Caleb Green and Martin Kane, but that evidence had the element of eyesight in it and vision does not always prove to be correct. The boys accused are Benjamin Scaplin, Thomas Sheehan and Leroy Hollis, all about 17. They were in a gang that passed along the tracks of the road and which came to a stalled freight train. The officers were close at hand and declared that they found a seal that came from the car on the ground near where the youths were standing. The officers accused the boys of having broken the seal, but they did not accuse them of having entered the car nor did they charge that they took anything from the car. The father of Hollis, a man for 35 years in the employ of the Central Vermont road, disputed the testimony of the police officers and declared that the finding of the seal was no evidence at all that the boys broke it. Hollis declared that the seal might have been broken off by the jolting of the train or the collision of cars in the train. He said that was a common occurrence. The court did not think the evidence against the youths sufficient to convict them of so serious a crime and declared them not guilty.

Benjamin Denehey, another youth of the same age, was charged with the theft of a peck of potatoes from a car. He pleaded guilty. He is the son of a widow and is her main support. Thus to send him to jail or to impose a fine would necessitate a hardship that would fall on the mother. The boy has never been in any trouble that called the police into it before so when Judge Crandall fined him $25 he suspended the execution of the judgment for six months and placed Denehey in the custody of the probation officer.

George La Brizzi was in court to answer to a complaint alleging the sale of liquor to a couple of agents of the state's attorney's office some two weeks ago in the Lawrence Shea building on Bank street. But it is not a certain thing that La Brizzi will be held to answer for the offense that he is accused of. When the officers made the purchase of liquor they described by name a man who was supposed to be the accused. Now it is declared by friends of La Brizzi that he is not the man who is wanted.

Francis Archer and William Seward, the latter a merchant on State street, were presented for parking their cars on the left side of a highway. Judgment was suspended in each case. The police are enforcing the ordinance that restricts the drivers of automobiles to specified rules and the parking on the right side of a highway is one of the regulations insisted upon.

Isaac Meyers, 40 Whiting lane, Hartford, a retired tobacco merchant, was before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in the Waterford town court last night charged with reckless driving. He pleaded guilty and was fined $25. Meyers was operating a machine at the corner of Broad street and Jefferson avenue on Monday night when his car collided with a car owned by Everett Lyons of Golden Spur, Waterford, and driven by Mrs. Lyon. The collision damaged both cars. Mrs. Lyons' daughter, Dorothy, 6, who was riding on the front seat with her mother, was so badly cut about the face and head that 15 stitches were necessary to close the wounds at a local private hospital. The other passengers escaped with minor bruises. Meyers agreed to pay the cost of repairing the Lyons automobile.

Juvenile thieves gained entrance to the Used Car Exchange, Water street, last night, smashing one of the side windows. So far as could be determined nothing of value was taken.

The burglar alarm of the New London City National bank, corner of Bank and Golden streets, began sounding last night and continued clanging for 15 or 20 minutes, during which time a large crowd of people collected in front of the institution. The cause of the sounding of the alarm was due to a defect in the mechanism.

Patrolman Michael Dorsey and Traffic Officer John Courtney today began their annual vacations of two weeks. Sergeant Frank Howard and Patrolman John Sullivan and Carlos Sesenitsky resumed duty today after their annual respite from duty.

The comfort station in Riverside park was entered by thieves, probably boys, last night and a quantity of cigars and cigarettes were stolen. Entrance to the place was gained by smashing a window. The station is maintained by Arthur Scribner.

The New Haven police this afternoon requested the New London authorities to maintain a lookout for Blanche Adams, 17, who ran away from home yesterday. The girl is believed to have left New Haven in a Buick sport car in company with a male companion. She is described as being about four feet, eight inches in height and weighs about 105 pounds. When the girl disappeared she wore a brown suit and brown hat.

Abraham Agranovitch and Benjamin Kaplan have sold a house and lot on Grand street to Joseph Win.

Leroy P. and May Gracie have sold a building lot on Nameaug avenue to Minnie E. Colgrove.

Moses Brouillard of Moosup, Miss Mary Rosen, Stonington; Henry Happell, Long Island; Mrs. George Chappell, Brooks street; Miss Eva Farnam, Eastern avenue; Joseph Marino, Westerly, Miss Florence Bobsein, Bank street; Miss Ruth Niles, Stonington; Mrs. Kenneth Lang and infant daughter, Montauk avenue, and Mrs. Charles Eyles, and infant daughter, Niantic, were patients discharged at Lawrence hospital today.

Theresa, the 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Santo Sammatara, Denison avenue, died early this morning at Home Memorial hospital, death following an operation performed at the institution a few days ago.

ners, on the Watch Hill road. Residents of East avenue had been aroused before this by the sound of heavy trucks and automobiles backing and starting in the highway. East avenue at this point is being rebuilt and some of the residents thought it a move on the part of the highway builders to close the road completely to travel as passing automobiles have given them trouble.

In response to the message Traffic Patrolman Robert Nessel and Patrolman George H. Champlin went to the place, accompanied by Pawcatuck Patrolman Charles W. Connors, who was just completing his tour of duty and volunteered. At the entrance to the Thompson dock the officers found a large Locomobile touring car, "A 6191 Conn." parked and the driver gave his name as Fred Carlando of New Haven. The car was moved closer to the laneway and when the tracks of a heavy truck were seen in the dim light caused by the heavy fog the automobile was left across the driveway and Carlando was left handcuffed in the car. Parties near the river front hailed the driver and the auto horn was blown in response. The officers had interrupted a rumrunning party at Thompson's cove. The 200 cases of rye whiskey, champagne and brandy, seized by the raiding officers, was held for the federal authorities.

As a man approached in the darkness he demand by Officer Champlin that he stop was answered by a pistol shot, which was followed by several shots from the revolvers of Officers Kessel and Connors and replied to by the men unseen. Carlando, who had been left in the locomobile touring car, apparently made an attempt to leave when the noise of an engine starting was heard. Patrolman Connors placed another pair of handcuffs on the man. The police officer then called for assistance and Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, Officers Fred T. Mitchell and Michael Curtin speedily arrived. Search of the neighborhood revealed an Overland touring car, 1-044-895, N. Y., near East Avenue, and near it Officer Connors found the driver, Henry Tietjen.

When the officers went down to the dock they discovered a Federal truck with a lot of whiskey cases loaded on it, and a lot more on the wharf, beside a quantity of large boxes which had been probably loaded on the truck as a blind. The driver of the truck gave his name as Fred Titjen, 98 Cedar Mill avenue, New Haven, and the truck was said to be the property of Titjen Bros., New Haven. The wooden cases were marked William Penn pure rye whiskey, Corby's special selected Canadian whiskey and J. & T. Martell cognac 3-star. One hundred cases were taken to the police station. When the truck returned for more cases it became mired and the truck of Peter LaPriore of Westerly was used to transport the balance and the Federal truck was pulled out of the mud. The cases were piled three deep from the floor nearly to the ceiling in the room of the chief of police and the three men were placed in cells.

The booze cases are supposed to have been landed from a good sized craft which came up the Pawcatuck river with an experienced pilot, as the channel from Pawcatuck Rock to the Thompson dock was navigated in the thick weather and a safe getaway made after the cargo was unloaded. It is thought that at least three men disappeared in the darkness during the revolver shots exchange with the Westerly police officers. Avondale people report hearing a strange craft come up the river and go out in the early morning hours and it is known not to be the tug Westerly, as it left the river at a later hour that morning.

New Haven Truckmen.

New Haven, July 16.—The Tietjen brothers, arrested in a raid on an alleged rum landing party near Westerly, R. I., are well known truckmen in the Cedar Hill section. Fred Tietjen was a supernumerary policeman for about a year, having been appointed by the board of police commissioners June 19, 1923. He resigned June 17 last.

WESTERLY BRIDE ILL WITH INFANTILE PARALYSIS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I., July 16.—Mrs. Daniel Ashworth of Westerly, who before her recent marriage was Miss Mildred A. Palmer, was taken to the Rhode Island hospital, Providence, Wednesday morning in the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps, and was thought to be suffering from infantile paralysis.

At the special session Wednesday evening of the Third district court, K. A. Hanna, 1807 South Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill., and George Kalell, 197 Atlantic avenue, were charged on two counts peddling without a license, one count being without the necessary town license and the other without state permit. The men were clothing peddlers and were arrested at Watch Hill and brought into the Westerly police station Wednesday morning by Patrolman Michael Curtin of the Westerly police force. Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., prosecuted on complaint of Thomas E. Brown, chief of police, and the men entered pleas of guilty. Judge Michael J. Turano imposed the maximum penalty of $20 on each count, which with costs amounted to a total of $95.20.

Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, who has been suffering with a bad case of laryngitis, is reported to be very much improved.

Mrs. N. Napoleon Boston and her daughter Barbara of Philadelphia arrived Wednesday evening to be the guests of Mrs. Boston's father, Ira B. Crandall in Westerly.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Clyde Burdick of Bradford, formerly of Westerly, left Wednesday morning by automobile for a visit with relatives and friends in Springfield, Mass.

TAFTVILLE

With the summer half over, local people are wondering if there is to be anything done on the Gallows Hill Road, which leads from the village into Norwich Town. Sometime ago an appropriation was made which allowed a good road to be built from the summit of Merchants avenue to the fork in the roads near the Ponemah Mills reservoir, but at that point the work was halted, the villiagers want to know the reason. It is believed that the town had already an appropriation for the completion of this road, and for the past two years or three years, residents of this locality have been expecting to see work start. The road is one that is traveled extensively, especially by people going to and through Willimantic. It is also a direct route to the Backus Hospital, and is used daily by physicians and hospital visitors. Not only is the Sacred Heart cemetery located on this road, but most people visiting the Yantic cemetery prefer to go via Gallows Hill instead of making a big tour to Norwich. The stretch of road which is still "country road" is in poor condition most of the winter, and very few motor vehicles can use it. During the summer there are rocky and sandy spots in the road which make it far from first class. The voters of the district, especially those who use automobiles have become impatient with the long delay, and feel that something ought to be done to put the road into better shape.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kinder and son Arthur, Jr., of Boston, are spending a short time in town.

Mr. and Mrs. John Seddon of South B street are enjoying a several days stay in Montreal, Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Airey and family of South Second avenue are on a motor trip which will include New Bedford and Boston, and Revere Beach.

The Knights and Esquires of Castle Perilous, K. O. K. A., met Wednesday evening at the Taftville Congregational church. Two Pages were raised to the degree of Esquire. Notices were received from the Council of Executive Chancellors, that the County Palatine is to be held in Taunton, Mass., in October, and the local Castle is invited to send delegates. The County Palatine is the meeting of the entire membership of eleven Castles, and the delegates from many others. It will be presided over by the Viscount of Taunton, and will begin with a banquet to all the members and delegates. The Grand Seneschal of the Order also sent out notices of the Provincial Conclave to be held at the Methodist church in Malden, Mass., on February 22nd, 1925. Not only is this date observed as Washington's birthday, but in the calendar of the Order it is known as the Day of St. Joseph of Arimathea, patron saint of the Order. The Provincial Conclave is the highest conclave attended by any member but the Peers, and all Castles in the Province will have delegates at the conclave, which will include an elaborate procession of all members in their full regalia. It is believed that one of the Dukes of the Order will be the presiding officers.

Alfred Roberts of North A street who has been employed in the No. 3 weaving department of the Ponemah Mills, is now employed in the paint department.

William A. Roy of New London has been the guest this week of his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Moise J. Durocher and family of South Second avenue.

W. E. Harmon of Boston was a caller in the village on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaspard Rondeau of Lisbon have issued invitations to the marriage of ther daughter, Ora, to Albert Fontaine at Sacred Heart church, July 21st, 1924.

St. Veronica's T. A. B. Society held a meeting Wednesday evening in their rooms on Providence street to complete arrangements for the outing to be held next Sunday at Riverside Park, Springfield, Mass.

Ray Gero and Philip Adams have left for a motor trip to Niagara Falls, Detroit, and Bay City, Mich.

WILLIMANTIC AUTO MARKERS FOUND IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 16.—An employe of the New London Fruit and Produce company, Bank street, reported to the police this afternoon that they had discovered a window to one of the store rooms opened and inside the room was found a coat, also auto markers bearing registration, N—4830. Inquiry of the state motor vehicle department revealed that the markers were issued to Mrs. M. J. Tubridy, 7 Maple avenue, Willimantic. How the coat and markers came to be deposited on the property of the produce company, could not be determined.

Inquiry from the Willimantic police Wednesday night brought the information that Mrs. Tubridy was in Hartford and they had been unable to learn whether the markers and coat had bene stolen from her or how they might have reached New London.

TELLS ROTARIANS WHAT CATHOLICS ARE DOING IN EDUCATION IN U. S.

At the noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel, Rev. William A. Keefe, an honorary member of the Rotary club, and pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church, gave a comprehensive talk on Where Does the Catholic Church Stand on Education?

Some time ago I heard a speaker at the Chautauqua talk on the increase of crime in the United States; of the difficulties facing the country today in the control of lawlessness. Serious minded men everywhere are worried over this growing increase in crime; the large number of murders, the hold-ups, the embezzlements and the noticeable decline in morality. It is becoming so prominent that all the educational bodies throughout the country are advocating that better moral and business ethics be taught to the present generation.

The American Bar association urges that more ethics, history and civics be taught. The American educational convention in Washington recently urged that the schools of the nation give better courses in morals and ethics. Men like Nicholas Murray Butler, head of a great university, clergymen addressing all the great national religious conventions, President Wilson when he was alive, President Harding in his last speeches, and President Coolidge have all voiced the sentiment of the serious men of the nation in urging more stress on the spiritual side of education in order that the ideals and affairs of the nation may be protected.

I have been asked to talk on something today. I think that here among the Rotarians I can speak on something that is being freely discussed in the press throughout the country: Where Does the Catholic Church Stand on Education? The last census in 1920 will answer this question. This census shows that one-third of the revenue of the Catholic church is spent on schools and education. There are 55000 of the purest and best sons and daughters of the church giving all they have for our schools. We have 114 Catholic colleges in which there are 140,000 students; 16 universities with 20,000 students, 723 high schools with 130,000 students; 7,413 elementary schools besides normal schools, seminaries, etc., that educate over 2,000,000 students. The census shows that the average cost per pupils in 190 was $40 which if multiplied by 2,000,000 souls educated by Catholic schools shows that the Catholics spend $80,000,000 just to educate the children. To this add the expense of capital investment, for grounds and buildings at the government estimate of $12,000 for 50 pupils we have spent $480,000,000 on education. Then to this add interest, insurance, etc., for 8,000 schools and it will amount to no small figure.

In all our work and sacrifice for our schools our one aim is to develop not merely smarter but better citizens—men and women whose minds are trained in the knowledge of human science, art and business—but with hearts and consciences and morals trained in the knowledge of God's laws which bind them to honesty, purity, respect for legitimate authority, and the justice and charity inspired by the life and teachings of the Prince of Peace.

We interfere with no one in carrying out this plan. Why should we be interfered with—we furnish the talent and we voluntarily pay the bill—we ask no favors except the rights granted by the Constitution of the United States. We follow the educational plans of the state board of education. We welcome at all times fair inspection and legitimate constructive criticism. We strive to prepare our boys and girls for the highest and best places in every department of American life. We point with pride to the record of our graduates.

We submit that as Catholics we properly take second place to no group in peace or war, in the development and defense of American ideals of liberty and patriotism. The cornerstone of the principles of our Declaration of Independence was laid on that historic field at Runnymede where the Catholic Archbishop Langton forced the Magna Charta from the tyrannical King John. The bronze doors on the Capitol at Washington tell the story of the Catholic monk, Joan Perez, who prevailed on the Catholic Queen Isabella to finance the voyage of the Catholic mariner Christopher Columbus and open the door of American civilization and American glory. The statue of the Jesuit, Father Marquette placed in the dome room of the nation's capitol reminds us all of the everlasting debt which our country owes to the marvelous army of Catholic priests who sowed the first seeds of American civilization among the sons and daughters of America's primeval forests. The name of Charles Carroll of Carrollton on America's Declaration of Independence tells the story of Catholic devotion to all the ideals and principles of that historic document.

The patriotic loyalty and powerful influence of great Catholic bishops like Carroll, Hughes, John Ireland and Cardinal Gibbons standing four square with Washington, Lincoln, McKinley and Wilson ought to be sufficient answer to any man who questions the loyalty of the Catholic church to American ideals.

What is true of the bishops and priests is true of the laymen whose names are on every roll of honor. My friends, I regret to say that our position is continually questioned. I believe that no intelligent individual or group of individuals believes in the attacks continually made on us. I look for the day when men of your standing will rise in this and every other community and protest against any who dares to sow here in our midst the vile seed of religious hate and distrust. Your business and the peace and prosperity of our city, state and nation are threatened by any campaign that dares to say to the Catholic, or Jew that they may share the burdens but never the privileges of American citizens.

I believe that each group of Catholic, Protestant, Jew and unbeliever should wage battle against the evils of bigotry, race hatred, race suicide, immorality, disrespect for authority, which threaten the American race and American progress.

Rev. Father Keefe was heartily applauded at the conclusion of his talk.

At the business session President Hugh B. Campbell presided and Adelard Morin acted as song leader. There was the usual chorus singing with selections by the guests and other groups. One of the pleasing features of the musical program was the delightfully sweet solo by Lucius Briggs, who sang that Coal Gang of Mine.

Herbert B. Cary announced that the meeting of August 6th would be held at the Seaside Sanatorium in Niantic when the members of the club would be the guests of Dr. O'Brien. Next Wednesday the meeting will be at the country home of William H. Oat at Ludlow Farm, North Stonington.

E. LaRue Bliven announced that on next Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Academy Campus the Rotary club ball team would cross bats with the Arcanum club team.

On Thursday of next week the golf team will play the Meriden team at Meriden. Secretary Weymouth read a letter from Grosvenor Ely who is in California.

The club will send greetings to Supt. F. Leon Hutchins who has undergone a major operation at St. Mary's hospital at Rochester, Minn.

The committee of three in charge of the interclty meeting to be held at Ashland park next month announced additions to the committee.

The programme for the luncheon was in charge of the "slivers", Frank P. Welch, Charles J. Twist, Lewis M Young and Lincoln Crawford. Mr. Welch acted as chairman and introduced Rev. W. A. Keefe.

ST. SWITHIN'S DAY PROMISES DRY WEATHER

Agriculturalists whose crops are suffering from the prevailing dry spell got but little hope of relief from St. Swithin's day, Tuesday, July 15. There was not even a little drop of rain to promise some precipitation in the next forty days.

Those who believe in the tradition of St. Swithin's day, therefore, are looking forward gloomily to a long dry spell, rather than a period in which dampness prevails. But scientists, who always scoff at such ideas, say that weather will follow the government predictions, irrespective of indications Tuesday.

Of late years, science has put the St. Swithin legend under the microscope, with a view to exploding the rain theory. Eleven scientists digging up four tons of documents found that in six years, when St. Swithin's day was rainy, the downpour was repeated not forty, but only thirteen, fourteen sixteen, eighteen, twenty-three and twenty-six days, respectively, in the forty-day period.

On the other hand, in fourteen years which had rainless St. Swithin's days there followed anywhere from twelve to thirty-one rainy days, making a higher average of rain than when St. Swithin's day was wet. This tends to prove that the scientist works hard at his calling.

St. Swithin, by the way, is not a saint at all. He was patron bishop of Winchester, England but never was canonized. He died on July 2, 862 asking that he be buried in the open churchyard and not in the the chancel of the church. A century later the monks resolved to move the body into the choir, meaning to do it greater honor. On the day appointed for the purpose, July 15, a mighty rainstorm burst and continued without intermission for forty days. Since then, it is supposed, it must rain forty days continuously every time there is a rainy St. Swithin's day.

Automobile Truck on Fire.

A bell alarm from Box 14 at 2.07 o'clock Wednesday afternoon called the fire department out for a small fire in front of the Thames Square garage. The automobile truck of the Marathon Beverage Co. caught fire but the flames were extinguished soon after the arrival of the department, with little loss.

HONEYMOONERS TO TEST SELF-SEAL TIRE TUBE

Thousands of people in many cities in the United States will hear about the Allyn "Self-Seal Leak-Proof" inner tubes during the next six weeks while Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kingsley of Plainfield, Conn., are making their cross-country motorcycle trip using the inner tubes made by this Norwich firm.

The start of the coast to coast trip from Norwich to Los Angeles, Cal., began at noon Wednesday when Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley started on their honeymoon trip riding their 1924 Harley-Davidson motorcycle, with sidecar, to demonstrate the H. H. Allyn "Self-Seal leak-proof" inner tubes.

The public demonstration for the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley took place at Union square where Mayor Mile R. Waters drove a nail into the front tire and tube and pulled it out again to demonstrate the first test of the tube. The serial number of the tube was then taken, and after Mayor Waters wished Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley a joyous good trip the cross country run was started.

The journey will take about six weeks and Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley will call on the mayors of various cities along the route requesting each to test all three tubes and affix his signature to a statement which they are carrying with them, describing the condition of the tubes as the several mayors find them.

The following letter was given to the motorcyclists as a letter of introduction from the Mayor of Norwich:

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
Executive Department
City of Norwich
July 16, 1924.

To the Mayor of Any City:

I take pleasure in commending to your good offices, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kingsley, who are making a coast to coast trip, demonstrating the H. H. Allyn's self-sealing inner tube, which is manufactured in this city.

Sincerely yours,
MAYOR MILO R. WATERS.

The mayor wrote the first indorsement signing, Mayor of Norwich, Conn., July 16, 1924. O. K.

The route which is mapped out in the coast to coast trip starts from Norwich to Springfield and Pittsfield, Mass., Albany, Utica, Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls, N. Y., Erie, Pa., Cleveland, Akron and Toledo, Ohio, Detroit, Jackson, Battle Creek and Kalamazoo, Mich, South Bend and Gary, Ind., Chicago, Ill., Racine, Milwaukee, Madison and Janesville, Wis., Rockford, Ill., Cedar Rapids and Des Moines, Iowa, Omaha and Lincoln, Neb., Denver, Col., Cheyenne, Cody and Yellowstone Park, Wyo., Idaho Falls and Pocatelo, Idaho, Ogden and Salt Lake City, Utah, Ely, Reno, and Carson City, Nev., Sacramento, Oakland, San Francisco and Los Angeles, Calif., and numerous other cities along the route.

Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley were married last Thursday in Willimantic by Rev. O. S. Beaumister and chose this demonstration trip as their honeymoon. The couple, if weather permits, will camp out along the way, having taken along with them paraphernalia for camping out.

Pictures of the officials of the H. H. Allyn Rubber Co. and of the departing couple were taken by Don Houghton.

TROUBLES PILE UP ON MONTVILLE MAN

Troubles accumulated Tuesday on Earl LaFlamme of Montville until he eventually landed in jail. They began when his wife made a complaint at the state police barracks at Groton that LaFlamme was failing to support her. In consequence of the complaint, State Policemen Bernard Kennerson and Walter Shea were sent to the LaFlamme home to investigate. While they were there listening to the woman's story, LaFlamme drove up in an automobile, but seeing the officers at the door, made a hurried getaway.

Starting out in pursuit, the officers came upon the wreck of a motorcycle from which two boys had been spilled. LaFlamme's car was buckled in with the motorcycle, but he had fled on foot.

The trail led to a nearby residence, where LaFlamme was found hidden in a clothes press, after the officers had made a thorough search of the house.

LaFlamme was brought before Justice of the Peace William Smiddy on charges of reckless driving and evading responsibility and was fined $50 and costs on the latter charge for his failure to stop after hitting the motorcycle. The other charge was nolled.

Unable to raise the $50, LaFlamme had to go to jail, and it is now understood that his financial plight is a serious one, as he mortgaged his furniture to secure the automobile, which is now partly wrecked, and he stands in a fair way to lose both.

KING'S DAUGHTERS VISIT THE SHELTERING ARMS

Wednesday afternoon, Comfort Circle of the King's Daughters sent a deputation to visit the Sheltering Arms. There were about 10 in the company who entertained the eighteen members of the household, including 15 beside the matron and the nurses, in a very pleasing manner.

There were enjoyable piano numbers by Miss Florence Brown, daughter of Mrs. Stanton W. Brown, leader of the circle, and Mrs. Frank Case read two humorous selections. Later ice cream and cake were served. The committee appointed for the day's visitation included Mrs. Alvin D. Lewis, Mrs. J. H. Allen, Mrs. William H. Baker and Mrs. Henry Cole.

All joined in singing familiar hymns, Miss Brown playing the accompaniments.

DR. E. P. BREWER HOME, AFTER SOUTHERN ILLNESS

Dr. Edward P. Brewer and his daughter, Mrs. Alice Brewer Griffin have returned from Miami, Florida, to their summer home, Graylyn, at Best View. Dr. Brewer is now in the best of health, although during the late spring he was seriously ill at Miami with typhoid fever.

Twenty-five years ago he had an attack of the same fever—and he states that he is perfectly willing to defer any other possible attack for another twenty-five years.

His daughter had returned north at the end of the winter, but went back to Miami on receiving news of her father's illness.

ALLEGED TO HAVE HAD GAMBLING DEVICES

The cases of Arthur O'Connor and James Rooney, who appeared before Justice Griswold in Old Lyme, Monday, in answer to charges of violations of the gaming laws, were continued until Friday at 4 o'clock, to allow them to secure counsel. O'Connor and Rooney were arrested in Sound View, Saturday night, by Centerbrook state police. Both are alleged to have had slot machines in their possession. They were held in $100 each for their appearance in court.

Watch For Auto Runaways.

New Haven police requested local authorities Wednesday to be on the watch for a red Buick touring car A-8080, in which a girl and young man were riding. They are alleged to be runaways from that city. The girl, Blanche Abrams, was described as being about 4 feet 10 inches in height, brown hair and eyes, and wearing a brown dress and hat. Traffic policemen on the local force were notified to maintain a watch for a car answering this description but none was reported as having been seen on Wednesday.

RESERVES DECISION IN COLCHESTER INJUNCTION CASE

Upon the conclusion of the hearing in the common pleas court here Tuesday afternoon on the application of Walter Sawchuk of Colchester for an injunction restraining Dwight H. Marvin, also of that town, from erecting a garage there, Judge Charles B. Waller took the papers and reserved decision. Sawchuk claims that erection of the garage will encroach upon the right of way to property owned by him, and will prove dangerous and a nuisance to persons residing in the vicinity.

HALF DOLLAR MEAL GOES UP TO 71c

The meal that cost half a dollar in Connecticut in 1913 now costs 71 cents, according to a statistical report from the department of labor, at Washington. This is based on the report for the city of New Haven, the only Connecticut city mentioned, where since 1913 the cost of living has increased 42 per cent.

But that 42 per cent represents a decrease of 2 per cent during the past year.

Throughout New England the same tendency exists. The cost of living in Boston increased 44 per cent over the 11-year period but decreased 1 per cent during the 12 months ending June 15.

POETRY

THE HEART OF THE NATION.

The following lines are respectfully dedicated to President Coolidge and family in memory of Calvin Coolidge, Jr.

The nation mourns with thee, brave father heart,
That in thy sorrow cares of state enhance;
There lives and gnaws deep in thy silent self
The grief that finds no vent in utterance.

The nation weeps with thee, oh, mother love,
That thou dost mourn thy son of tender years,
Thy cherished hopes for him in manhood's prime
Thus blighted and now hallowed with thy tears.

The nation pleads its deepest sympathy
For thee, boon life companion, brother mate,
And feign would lift this shadow from thy youth,
This grief, before was reached man's full estate.

But list, oh, father, mother, brother love;
God speaks through nature with divinest breath;
'Tis but the outer form that changes thus—
The life and soul live on; there is no death!
—Nellie E. Dashiell, in Washington Star.

THE EXILE.

I'm sick of the Mongol and Tartar,
I'm sick of the Jap and Malay,
And far-away spots on the chart are
No place for yours truly to stay.
I've had enough undersized chicken,
And milk that comes out of a can;
The East is no region to stick in
For this one particular man.

I'm weary of curry and rice all
Commingled with highly spiced dope
I'm weary of bathing with lysol
And washing with carbolic soap.
I'm tired of itch, skin-diseases,
Mosquitoes and vermin and flies;
I'm fed up on tropical breezes,
And sunshine that dazzles my eyes.

Oh, Lord, for a wind with a tingle,
An atmosphere restful and keen;
Oh, Lord, once again just to mingle
With crowds that are white folks—and clean.
To eat without fear of infection,
To sleep without using a net,
And throw away all my collection
Of iodin, quinin, et cet.

To know all the noise and the clamor
The hurry and fret of the West
I'd trade all the Orient glamour
That damned lying poets suggest.
They sing of the East as enthralling
(And that's why I started to roam)
But—I hear the Occident calling;
Oh, Lord, but I want to go home.
—Berton Braley, in Adventure.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

London Ad—Lady requires repairing and invisible patching.

It is candid for her to admit it.—Tit-Bits.

Pa, what's a "Go-getter?"

Customer—Are the stove lids indestructible?

Clerk—Yes, to be sure.

Customer—I'll take one of this size.

Clerk—Better take two; you might break one.—Good Hardware.

Wife (in extremely decollete gown)—How do you like it, dear? It's the last word from Paris.

Hub—The last word, eh? Looks as though it might have come across by wireless.—Boston Transcript.

Maid—No, ma'am, Mrs. Hughes is out.

Visitor—How fortunate! When I saw her peeping through the curtains as I came up the path I was so afraid she would be in.—Cassell's Saturday Journal.

Mrs. Gabbalot—And so you are the lady who is giving my wife painting lessons. What sort of a pupil is she?

Mrs. Daubber—Well, I find her very apt, to say the least.

Mr. Gabbalot—That's funny. I always find her very apt to say the most.—Toronto Telegram.

Mary was visiting in the country and witnessed the operation of milking. After watching the proceedings she inspected the cow minutely and then asked, "Grandma, where do they put the milk in?"—Chicago News.

"Are you making any predictions," inquired the loyal constituent, "as to the result of the contest in the adjoining district?"

"Well," responded Congressman Hammfatt, who does not approve of either candidate, "whichever way it turns out, it is bound to be a dog-fall."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

SEVERAL DEATHS AND HEAVY DAMAGE CAUSED BY LIGHTNING AND TEMPEST

Two Boys Hit, One Killed, by Lightning in New Haven—In Orange a Man Was Killed While at Work in a Field—Two Fatalities Were Reported in Fitchburg, Mass., and One in Providence—In Wallingford Big Trees Were Felled Across the Trolley Tracks—Mills and Houses Were Unroofed in Fitchburgh.

New Haven, July 17.—Two boys bathing in a creek in Fair Haven section of the city when the storm broke this noon, ran for shelter across a field and a bolt of lightning struck them, killing Libero Christina, 13, who had a fishing pole in his hand. The other lad was rendered unconscious and after being found was taken home. The dead boy's parents live in Fenton Park district.

The incident was reported by a woman to the Cedar Hill police station. She said that she saw both boys fall when the lightning flash came. She went to the place and then returned to telephone the police saying that she was sure one boy was dead. The officers hurried to the place and confirmed her fears. The boy who was unconscious had been carrying a can of worms.

The Southern New England Telephone company in a statement issued tonight reported that 1200 telephone stations in different parts of the city were put out of commission as a result of the storm. It also reported several poles were blown down around Wallingford. The company also stated that in a 15-mile area extending from Danbury to Seymour a great amount of damage had been done to cables and trees by hail. The United Illuminating company reported a similar fall of hail in the area of City Point which destroyed three high power current transformers.

The weather bureau reported tonight that 38-100 of an inch was the precipitation today.

FIERCE WIND WITH HAIL STONES IN WALLINGFORD

Wallingford, July 17.—The storm which swept through a part of this city early this afternoon was peculiar in that while the wind blew furiously for fifteen minutes with a heavy downpour of hail stones and rain there were few lightning flashes. The damage was done in a narrow belt which followed Main street, big trees uprooted and many falling across the street blocking the trolley tracks. On many side streets there was little damage and only rain fell. Some housewives who had their washing on the line did not miss a single piece, while on Main street huge tree branches were torn off. Most of the damage was done in a path from North Colony street to the Planis and followed Main street which was hit the hardest. The storm was intense for about fifteen minutes.

MILLS AND HOUSES WERE UNROOFED IN FITCHBURG

Fitchburg, Mass., July 17.—Two persons are believed to have lost their lives in a tempest that tore through this city today, unroofing mills and houses, toppling chimneys, felling trees and trees and breaking windows.

The tall chimney of the De Jonge woolen mill was overthrown, falling on the roof of the power house close by of M. Dbuja, a coal shoveler, and two companions were at work in the power house boiler room. Dbuja is believed to have been killed and buried in the debris. The other men escaped with slight injuries. The roof of the Parkhill mill was lifted off by the wind and crashed into the upper floor of the Grant yarn mill.

Although there were scores of persons in the three plants, which adjoin, none was seriously injured. The storm broke at the noon hour when the mills were not working.

At Whalom lake, where the sudden wind overturned several canoes an unidentified boy was drowned.

The Parkhill mill C. Grant yarn mill and De Jonge plant are situated in the Cleghorn district, a section of mill tenements. Excitement prevailed for a few minutes in the tenements, dut to the sudden darkness, the crash of the thunder and the noise of falling chimneys. Roofs were torn from from houses, store fronts were blown in and the chimney of the Fitchburg steam laundry was thrown over.

The railing was stripped from the Nashua river bridge; poles for telephone and lighting wires were sent down, interrupting these services; garages and other small buildings were wrecked and other damage caused. The street cars did not run for several hours. Machinery in the damaged mills was crippled extensively.

TROLLEY POLES AND TREES BLOW DOWN IN BRISTOL

Beacon Falls, Conn, July 17.—No rain fell here during a short wind storm this afternoon which tore up five trolley poles and a large tree fell on the track. The largest tree in the park also was toppled over.

Hailstones as Bib as Baseballs.

Lawrence, Mass., July 17.—Hailstones, some of them as large as baseballs, did considerable damage to greenhouses here and in Methuen this forenoon. Awnings were also damaged in some sections but this city did not apparently get the brunt of the storm.

Darkness in Boston.

Boston, July 17.—Darkness as of night settled over the city, punctuated by brilliant lightening flashes, as a severe thunder storm swept over Boston today. It was preceded by a gale which caused much damage and was accompanied by a tremendous downpour.

Killed While at Work in Field

Orange, July 17.—Oliver Neal, 26, at work in a field with his father, James Neal, at Grassy Hill, was killed by a lightning bolt during the storm this noon. He leaves a wife and two children.

Boy Killed in Providence

Providence, R. I., July 17.—Angelo Costelli, 14, was instantly killed by lightning while in a small building on his father's farm in Johnston during the storm this morning.

JUDGE ISBELL ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY FOR CONGRESS

Hartford, July 17.—Deputy Judge Milton C. Isbell, of Ansonia, announced today his candidacy for the republican nomination for congress from the fifth district. The announcement was made to party leaders from the section, who, like Judge Isbell, were here for the state central committee meeting. The latter attended the meeting as proxy for Judge Alfred C. Baldwin, of Derby, member of the seventeenth senatorial district.

Isbell became the third of a field of five possibilities to make definite announcement of his candidacy. Representative J. Mortimer Bell, of Southbury, and Lieutenant James Surley of Waterbury, are already in the field as avowed candidates, and Ex-Congressman James P. Glynn of Winsted, and Harris Whittemore, Jr., of Naugatuck have indicated intention to seek the nomination. Glynn lost his seat in congress as a result of the astonishing slump of the republican vote in Watertbury with Charles A. Templeton of that city running for goernor, Patrick E. Sullivan, democrat, being elected by 294 votes.

ITALY NOT SENDING WARSHIPS TO BRAZIL

Rome, July 17.—Italy is not sending warships to the port of Santos, Brazil, to protect the lives and interests of Italians in the state of Sao Paulo, or for any other purpose. The reason for this is that there are no Italian warships now along the South American coast, while the fastest ships, if sent from Europe, would take at least fifteen days to reach Brazilian waters.

Should there be urgent need to have a naval force at Santos, Admiral Rondolo will be ordered to go there with the battleships San Giorgio and San Marco. Cruiser Prince Humbert is aboard the San Giorgio now proceeding to South America.

POPE PIUS IS AGAINST IMMODEST DRESS FOR WOMEN

Rome, July 17.—(By The A. P.)—Pope Pius personally has taken a hand in a campaign inaugurated by the Catholic Women's Diocesan clubs against immodest dress for women.

The pontiff, having heard of the work of these clubs, decided to offer a medal to the club evolving the most attractive modest fashion in women's clothing. The contest for the medal is divided into two sections, a theoretical section devoted to the best demonstration that immodest dress is really ugly, barbaric and uncultivated, and a practical section devoted to the actual designing of attractive fashions designed to appeal to good taste.

TOKIO FINANCIALLY AIDS AMERICAN MISSIONARIES

New York, July 17.—A cable dispatch received today at the national headquarters of the Episcopal church, announced that the municipal government of Tokio had given 150,000 yen, approximately $75,000, to the emergency fund of St. Luke's hospital, one of the missionary enterprises conducted by the church in in the Japanese capital.

St. Luke's was completely destroyed in the earthquake of September, 1923. This donation is the second large official Japanese contribution toward the maintenance of the institution.

ACQUITTED ON CHARGE OF DRIVING WHILE DRUNK

New Haven, July 7.—John A. Cooney, local attorney, was found not guilty of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, by a jury in common pleas court this afternoon. The jury deliberated fifteen minutes. During the trial many witnesses testified to the sobriety of Cooney on the night of February 21, the time when he was placed under arrest.

OBITUARY

Erasmus Darwin Beach.

New York, July 17.—Erasmus Darwin Beach, an intimate friend of Charles A. Dana and at one time Sunday editor of the Sun, died today in his 75th year.

Mr. Beach was born in Springfield, Mass., the son of a former candidate for governor of Massachusetts on the staff of the Sun, in 1876, after receiving democratic ticket. He joined the ing a degree from the University of Goettingen. He left the newspaper in 1912 with a record of having occupied virtually every post of importance and performed every type of journalistic labor.

At intervals Mr. Beach contributed sketches, poetry and literary articles to various magazines.

Mrs. Isabella Stuart Gardner.

Boston, July 17.—Mrs. Isabella Stuart Gardner, better known in social and artistic circles, as Mrs. "Jack" Gardner, patronness of art and music and owner of one of the most celebrated collections of paintings and sculpture in the world, died at her Venetian palace in the Fenway at 10.40 tonight.

Capt. Ricciotti Garibaldi

He passed away quietly after having been in a coma, from which he revived only for a short period. He opened his eyes, kissed his wife, embraced his two daughter, and to his son Peppino, whispered: "Peppino, I am going; you continue the Garibaldian tradition."

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Politics in Nicaragua

San Juan Del Sur, Nicaragua, July 17.—(By the A. P.)—The branch of the conservative party opposing the candidacy for the presidency of General Emiliano Chamorro and the liberal party have agreed to join forces in the next presidential election with Carlos Solorzano, conservative, as their candidate for the presidency and Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa, liberal, as their candidate for the vice presidency.

RUM ROW PHYSICIAN CAME ASHORE ON ERRAND OF MERCY

New York, July 17.—Official courtesies of the United States government were extended today to Dr. Roystan ('Rum Row Doc') Foulkes of Australia, England to to Twelve-mile limit.

The doctor, whose practice is confined to the off-shore whiskey armada, was arrested by immigration authorities for having landed on American soil without a passport.

When it was learned his mission was one of mercy, undertaken in behalf of a sailor near death, he was sent back to the rum fleet in a coast guard cutter, with a special escort and under a white flag of truce.

Foulkes, said he was a native of Sydney, Australia, and a graduate of medicine from universities at Glasgow and London. When he left school last fall he signed on the four-master Rask for a 3-months voyage to Bermuda. He sought experience among men, he said, adventure and material for writing fiction.

Storms crowded the Rask into a harbor at Bermuda. Soon therefater she headed for rum row with 20,000 cases of whiskey. The cargoes her charter described were forgotten. The Rask had become a rumship and her crew rum runners.

Since he the was only M. D. in the fleet, Foulkes accumulated quite a practice not there among sailors and runners of the fleet. All the boys know that "Rum Row Doc" was on the Rask, subject to call 24 hours of the day.

An S. O. S. from the Elsie B. took Foulkes aboard her yesterday, to minister to sailor Ralph Conrad of Loungsburg, Nova Scotia, who had been fearfully burned.

Foulkes hailed the passing motorboat Reasle and ordered Conrad and himself speeded to Rockaway Point. There he explained the situation to Coast Guard Captain Moran, who sent Conrad to a hospital and took Foulkes in custody.

When the story was related upon the doctor's arraignment today before Assistant Customs Solicitor Barnes, that official took instant action. He shook the prisoner's hand, commended his act of mercy and assured him safe custody, back to his "office" on the Rask.

Conrad, it was reported, had meantime contracted pneumonia and probably would die.

SASKATCHEWAN VOTES DOWN "BONE DRY" PROHIBITION

Regina, Sask., July 17.—Opposition to the "bone dry" prohibition act and approval of government sale of spirituous and malt liquors in sealed packages was shown by the voters of Saskatchewan province in yesterday's plebiscite.

Returns available from more than half the total vote of the provinct show a ratio of nearly 5 to 2 against continuation of the present "bone dry' act which went into effect February 7, 1921.

PLOTTING IN KWANGTUNG AGAINST FOREIGN POWERS

Washington, July 17.—A protest has been filed by the consular body at Canton with the civil governor of Kwangtung against the apparent use of that place as a center for plots against the foreign powers, the state department was advised today by the American legation at Peking.

REPUBLICAN RATIFICATION DINNER AT SAVIN ROCK

New Haven, July 17.—Invitations were sent out today to republican state and local leaders to a ratification shore dinner at Savin Rock Saturday, July 26th. The guests of honor, if plan indicated, would be Lieutenant Governor Hiram Bingham and State Chairman J. Henry Roraback.

To Head Dawes Plan Bank Of Issue In Germany

Sir Robert Kinderaley, noted English banker and member of the Dawes' committee of experts, appointed by Reparations Commission to direct organization of the new German bank of issue which will be set up under the plans of the Dawes' committee.

To Arrest Officials Of The Ritz-Carlton

Warrants Issued as the Result of Recent Raid by Prohibition Officers.

New York, July 17.—Warrants have been issued for the arrest of four officials of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel company as a result of a recent raid by prohibition agents who seized a large quantity of liquors on the hotel's fashionable roof resort, it was learned today.

Knowledge of the action against the hotel managers became known with the arraignment before United States Commissioner Hitchcock of Errol Kerr, a member of the hotel management, on a charge of having violated the Volstead act. His appearance was the first indication that the government authorities had acted against the hotel officials.

Investigation showed that warrants charging violation of the Volstead act had been issued against Duncan Harris, William Harris and John Watt, all concerned in the management of the Ritz-Carlton. Kerr, Watt and Duncan Harris already have been arrested and held in $1,000 bail each. A deputy United States marshal who sought to serve the warrant on William Harris reported that the accused official was dead.

The specific charge named in the warrants is that of maintaining a public nuisance in violation of the Volstead act.

MEETING OF REPUBLICAN STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Hartford, July 17.—The republican state central committee, at a meeting today in this city passed to its chairman, J. Henry Roraback, the responsibility of selecting a state vice-chairman and member of the republican national committee to fill the vacancies caused by the death of Mrs. Samuel O. Prentice. Mr. Roraback, upon leaving directly after the meeting for a conference with republican campaign leaders in New York, said that he would have to go over the ground thoroughly when he returned before announcing his appointment.

Several women were being proposed for the places before the meeting came to order, among them Miss Isabel L. Alcorn, of Thompsonville, Miss Katherine Byrne, of Putnam, Mrs. Helen E. Lewis, of Stratford, Mrs. Joseph Merritt, of Hartford and Mrs. Alice Russ, of Shelton, but the plans to elect at the meeting quickly gave way to the proposal, offered by Senator John H. Trumbull, of Plainville, to avoid a contest that might leave unpleasantness as the party entered the presidential campaign, by leaving it to the chairman to appoint.

Dates for the caucuses and primaries for the election of delegates to the state convention will be fixed at a meeting of the state committee next Thursday. This meeting will also decide the time and place for the state convention for the nomination of the candidates for governor and other state officers. The democratic state central committee is to meet at Savin Rock August 2 to fix the date for the democratic convention and caucuses.

STATISTICS CONCERNING THE RATE OF SUICIDE

New York, July 17.—The average suicide rate of 80 American cities for the year 1923 remained at 15.3 per 100,000 of population, the 1922 figure, The Spectator, an insurance journal, announced. The paper pointed out that this reflected a nation-wide prosperity.

San Diego, according to the statistics, continued to have the highest proportion among the cities considered the rate there being 30.5. The Pacific coast generally, as in former years, had a high rate, the journal said, while in cities of the Lake region the rate was low. Suicides were reported as particularly few in the coal and steel producing districts.

The tendency towards suicide among the well-to-do and more highly educated is more pronounced at the present time than in former years, the article asserted.

SHAVER MAY BE CHAIRMAN OF DEM. NATIONAL COMMITTEE

New York, July 17.—Although formal announcement still is withheld there is every indication that Clem L. Shaver, of Fairmount, West Virginia, has been selected as chairman of the democratic national committee, in which capacity he will conduct the campaign for John W. Davis, the democratic presidential nominee.

Announcement of this selection and of the general campaign organization is expected to be made before Mr. Davis leaves New York tomorrow evening for Islesboro, Maine.

Mr. Shaver, who conducted the nominee's pre-convention campaign had a long conference with Mr. Davis during the day and also discussed campaign plans with Senator King of Utah and Thomas Spellacy of Connecticut whose name has been mentioned in connection with the appointment os campaign director in the east.

SCHOONER COLLIDED WITH STEAMER OFF CAPE COD

Boston, July 17.—With bowsprit broken and headgear carried away, the Boston fishing schooner Radio arrived here today after having been in collision, according to Captain Albert Hines, with the Norwegian steamer Verona 50 miles off Cape Cod in the early morning. Captain Hines said dense fog was responsible. None of the crew of 20 was hurt.

The Verona, which arrived here shortly before the Radio, suffered only a broken rail. Captain Olsen said that following the crash he tried to locate the Radio in the fog but failed.

FRENCH AVIATORS BREAK DURATION FLIGHT RECORD

Chartres, France, July 17.—The French aviators Coupet and Drouhin today broke the world's record for a duration flight, remaining in the air 38 hours. The previous record of 37 hours 15 minutes 48.8 seconds was made by Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, leader of the American round-the-world fliers, and Lieutenant J. P. Richter, August 27-28, 1923, when the American airmen used a DH-R plane and refueled in the air.

Grain Freight Rate Case is Dismissed

I. C. C. Finds That Reduction Would be Ruinous to Certain Railroads.

Washington, July 17.—The benefit which would accrue to the average farmer in case of a reduction in freight rates on grain and grain products generally is small compared with the disastrous effect on certain railroads' revenues and on their credit, the interstate commerce commission declared today in an opinion in the general grain rate case.

The commission held also that the general basis of rates for transportation of grain, grain products and hay are not unreasonable, or otherwise in violation of the interstate commerce act, and the complaint was dismissed.

At the same time an investigation previously ordered by the commission was discontinued.

NO CLUE TO IDENTITY OF SLAYER OF 7-YEAR-OLD BOY

New York, July.—Baffled police admitted today that they still were without reliable clue to the identity of the man who last Monday hid the mutilated body of 7-year-old Francis McDonnell in a thicket near Port Richmond, Staten Island.

A roundup of suspected persons had brought three men into custody. But all efforts to connect any one of them with the McDonnell case promised little reward. A fourth man—a hermit reported to ocupy a hut near the scene of the crime—was being hunted on the strength of a story told by Jennie Carlson, 1, that he had pursued her through the woods the day of the murder, after having tried in vain to lure her to the spot where the McDonnell boy's body was found.

John Clyde Patterson, 42, and Jacob Gottlieb, 48, both orderlies at Sea View hospital, New Dorlington, Staten Island, were in Richmond county jail in default of $10,000 bail each, charged with statutory offenses against each other.

They acknowledged membership in the "Rattlesnake Nest" gang who held rendezvous in the cluster of woods which marked the scene of the boy's death. Arraingned before Magistrate Featherstone, both sought to plead guilty of the statutory offenses but the court refused to accept their pleas because they were without counsel.

Jocob Herman, 50-year-old farm hand who had escaped from the Morris Plains, N. J., insane hospital and was captured yesterday at Kearney, N. J., had been virtually freed from suspicion in the McDonnell murder.

Prosecuting Attorney Fach and Captain Van Wagner tonight concentrated their efforts upon battering down the denials of Patterson and Gottlieb that they knew anything of the murder.

Captain Van Wagner extended his search tonight to include two former orderlies at the Sea View hospital—friends of Patterson and Gottlieb and alleged members of the "Rattlesnake Nest" gang. The chief clue pointing to the missing pair, said Captain Van Wagner, was that they were know to be such inveterate readers of newspapers that they always carried several stuffed in their pockets. Newspapers were found in profusion about the spot where the McDonnell boys body was found.

LAFOLLETTE LEADERS TO BEGIN CONFERENCES TODAY

Washington, July 17.—Leaders in the La Follette for president movement will begin a series of conferences here tomorrow which ar expecti to result not only in the selection of a vice presidential candidate, but in a definite campaign program.

The national committee of the conference for progressive political action, which endorsed Senator LaFollette's independent candidacy at its Cleveland convention, will meet to name his running mate and to discuss a wide range of campaign problems, chief among them perhaps the question of financing their movement.

Four members of a conference committee, instructed to draw up a financing program, will meet tomorrow with the national committee which at present has 42 members representing various labor and farm organizations. Ready for submission to the committee for its approval will be plans for raising a campaign fund through a country wide contribution in small amounts from individuals interested in the La Follette movement. The appeal for funds will be directed chiefly to members of labor and farm organizations.

In addition to agreeing upon a financial program the committee hopes before the end of the week to endorse a vice prsidential candidate acceptable to Senator LaFollette. Talk today centered chiefly around Associate Justice Brandeis of the supreme court who is understood to be held in especial esteem by Senator LaFollette.

RISE IN PRICE OF N. H. STOCK IS PUZZLING

New York, July 17.—New Haven railroad got into new high ground today.

The manner in which the stock has advanced has staggered many observers of the tape. Those seeking new reasons for the advance were prone to intimate Pennsylvania railroad accumulation, confirmation of which, hoyever, was lacking. Pennsylvania long had held a large block of New Haven shares in its treasury with a voice in its management through places on its board. Some see in the stock's performance plain absorption of most of the floating supply. In the last 18 years New Haven's gross earnings have increased from $49,981,000 to $133,940,000 while capitalization has jumped from $117,004,000 to $462,627,557.

DECISION CONCERNING MOTION PICTURE HOUSES

Philadelphia, July 17.—Payment of a license fee to the publisher must be made by motion picture house proprietors utilizing copy righted music to create "atmosphere" for films shown in their theatres, Judge J. Whittaker Thompson decided today in federal court.

The decision was the result of suits brought by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, against thirty-one film theatres in this city, where, it was claimed, copyrighted compositions of the plaintiffs had been used as accompaniment to action on the screen.

SATISFIED WITH PROGRESS OF REPARATION CONFERENCE

Conferees Have Perfected Organization to Be Set Up in Each Country for Handling Payments to Be Made by Germany—Deliberations are Keeping Close to the Purpose of Making the Dawes Scheme Workable—It is Considered That the Question of Flotation of Loan to Germany is a Problem for Bankers.

London, July 17. (By the A. P.)—The Dawes plan for a reparations deal, intended to be devoid of sentiment and political nationalistic feeling, is going through the most critical period of its existence under the scrutiny of the experts, who spent the second day of the inter-allied conference at work in the committee rooms in Downing street. Tonight it was authoritatively stated that America's official observer, Ambassador Kellogg, and his adviser, Col. James A. Logan, Jr., and the prime ministers of Great Britain, France and Belgium were highly satisfied with the progress made.

The British are said to be particularly pleased because the deliberations are keeping close to the vital purpose for which the confreence assembled, that of adopting broad, sweeping measures for making the Dawes scheme workable.

One important phase of the conference work, that of perfecting the organization to be set up in each country for handling the payments to be made by Germany under the new scheme, was completed today, and a draft of the proposals embodying the agreement is ready for the approval of an plenary session of the conference which probably will be held Saturday.

Thus a third of the work laid out for the conference has been accomplished within 36 hours of Premier Macdonald's formal welcome to the delegates. But the most optimistic of the envoys who have gathered in London to attempt to put an end to the reparations wrangles of the past six years do not suggest that it is the most important or the most difficult third of what is to be done before the Dawes plan is effective.

It is pointed out that making plans for receiving and distributing reparations was easy sailing, but the real rocks around which the allied plenipotentiaries must steer a careful course lie hidden in the two subdivisions of the conference known as committees one and two. The first is dealing with the problem of creating confidence for an international loan for Germany and the question of an American member of the reparations commission as arbiter on the subject of defaults. All this must be accomplished without diminishing the authority of the reparation commission thereby endangering Premier Herriot's position as spokesman of the French government at the London meeting.

Another problem before this committee is what penalties to inflict if Germany wilfully defaults under the Dawes schedules.

Committee two, which is attempting to devise means to restore the fiscal and economic unity of Germany, has encountered difficulties owing to the French requests for assurances that an international loan, upon which the whole working of the Dawes plan depends, shall be underwritten before the question of German unity is brought up.

It is understood that even the British treasury experts are not altogether sure about the flotation of a big loan, but foreign office officials maintain that this point is one for the bankers and reparation commission and need have no disastrous effect upon the broad lines which the present conference should seek to maintain.

On the question of sanctions in case of a German default, the French delegation would not discuss the proposals they are understood to have put forward at the committee meetings today. It is understood that France favors putting the sanctions into definite shape, so that the complete program will be ready for application at any time that Germany is adjudged delinquent. It is stated that the French have circularized the members of committee No. one with their proposals so that they will be before the committee as a basis for discussion.

Ambassador Kellogg did not participate in the conference work today, but Colonel Logan, who attended the session of committee No. one, maintains that the tone of the deliberations was satisfactory and that as much progress has been made as it is reasonable to expect, considering the issues involved.

Although the exact nature of American participation in the conference has been explained repeatedly, there continues to be a widespread misunderstanding as to the exact significance of the presence of the American ambassador and Colonel Logan. When Colonel Logan announced in the committee room last evening that the Washington government did not object to an American citizen being selected to act on the reparation commission in order to establish a default on Germany's part, the statement was heralded by usually authoritative newspapers here as one of the most dramatic developments in the whole series of post-war conferences.

This emphasis upon the attitude of the Washington government toward Americans who may be asked to assist in operating the Dawes scheme has already been explained by American officials. At the embassy the American spokesman commented on the misunderstanding of the American position, but the news still runs through the press as the feature of the conference.

An evening newspaper headline reads: 'New U. S. move in reparations—United States to accept reparations task."

COOLIDGE HEARS REPORTS OF POLITICAL SITUATION

Washington, July 17.—Views of the political situation in two states—West Virginia and Idaho—were presented today to President Coolidge and added to his accumulating store of information as to the general situation faced by the republican party in the forthcoming campaign.

The West Virginia situation was detailed to Mr. Coolidge by Guy D. Goff, former department of justice official and now republican candidate to succeed Senator Elkins of West Virginia. Mr. Goff predicted that the republican national ticket would carry the home state of John W. Davis, the democratic presidential nominee, by fifty or sixty thousand votes.

Representative Smith of Idaho, talked over the political conditions in his state with the president, also predicting that the republican candidates for president and vice president would receive Idaho's electoral vote, although conceding that Senator La Follette had a strong following and possibly would carry the state.

The tariff act with its protective rates on Idaho's chief products, he said, would be emphasized during the campaign in that state.

Renomination of Senator Borah by acclamation by the republican state convention next month and his election beyond doubt also was predicted by Mr. Smith.

TRAWLER TO SEARCH FOR MISSING BRITISH AVIATOR

Aboard U. S. Cutter Haida, July 16.—(By Wireless to the A. P., via St. Paul Island—Delayed)—After receiving additional coal at Petro Pavlovsk, the trawler Thlepval was prepared today to start out in search of A. Stuart MacLaren, British around-the-world aviator, who, with his two companions was reported overdue at Paramushiru Island, according to a wireless message received from the vessel by the Haida.

After returning to Dutch Harbor, Alaska, with the steamer West Jena which was taken in tow Tuesday, the Haida will steam toward Attu Island and assist the British globe flier when he reaches that territory.

DECREASE IN NUMBER OF AUTOS MANUFACTURED

Buffalo, N. Y., July 17.—The number of automobiles manufactured in the United States during the first six months of 1924 decreased 1 1-2 per cent., in comparison with the number in the corresponding period in 1923, it was stated in reports submitted to the directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, meeting here today. The total number of motor vehicles manufactured in the first half of this year was 2,002,084 the number for the first half of last year was 2,031,093. Exportation of automobiles still is increasing the reports said.

BRIDGEPORT CHILDREN MISSING WITH CANOE

Fairfield, July 17.—Grave fear for the safety of seven Bridgeport children was expressed here late tonight when it was learned that they had not returned from a canoeing party since early this afternoon.

The children as far as could be learned are: Alva Nordquist, 13, and Clinton Nordquist, 12, of 294 Ellsworth street; Ethel Bertquist, 14, and Walter Bertquist, 12, of 222 Seaside avenue; Alva Anderson, 14, of Lee avenue; Florence Benson, 15, of Lee avenue; and Ernest Peterson, 8, a guest at one of the children's home.

About 3 o'clock the children were seen getting in a large canoe at St Mary's By the Sea and starting out into the Sound. The canoe is described as having a red side and a green side.

Late tonight parents of the little ones reported to Bridgeport police that the children had not returned. The bureau of missing persons immediately began a search along the beach fronts. Men in boats also sailed along the Sound in an effort to find the missing ones.

WORCESTER POLICE FIND AUTO USED BY BANDIT

Worcester, Mass., July 17.—Worcester police believe that they have the automobile in which the bandit escaped after shooting and probably fatally wounding Herbert E. Jacobson, of 148 Vernon street, when he rushed to the assistance of his sister, Lillian, yesterday morning in their cottage at Lake Quinsigamond. The machine which was stolen from the garage of Carl Kaufman, 14 Jones street, was found this afternoon about half a mile from where it was taken, stripped of tires and accessories.

Police believe that the man who did the shooting is the same who, an hour later, held up Myer Grossman, a grocer, and relieved him of $50 in cash, checks and papers.

Mr. Jacobson is in a critical condition at City Hospital with puncture wounds of the intestines, while the sister, Lillian is at her home in a highly nervous state.

TRAINED NURSES BEING DEPORTED TO GERMANY

New York, July 17.—When Miss Anna Hans, trained nurse and companion to Mrs. Malvina Schleicher, a member of one of the oldest German-American families in the city was deported today on the ground that she might become a public charge, her employer, highly indignant, decided to accompany her back to Germany. The two sailed on the steamship Westphalia.

At Ellis Island, Miss Hans claims, her mail was withheld from her and she was compelled to sleep in a room with twenty women and children and to share a bed with a negress.

WILLIMANTIC

By far the worst rain and thunder storm experienced in Willimantic this year, if not in a number of years, flooded this section and did considerable lightning damage during a downpour which lasted over half an hour during the noon hour Thursday. The rain came down in torrents strong enough to smash windows and the elements were in a turmoil, a veritable barrage of electric flashes accompanying clattering thunder. The skies had been opened up but a few minutes when the streets, especially those in the business section, began to look like brooks and small rivers. The need of a more open system of sewerage was again shown when rubbish washed down from the hill section clogged up sewer openings on the side streets and on the main thoroughfare, and the water was held back to a depth of several inches. Main street reminded one of the Johnstown flood, even a policeman's shoe being no protection against the curbing-high flow of muddy water. Venice had nothing on old Willimantic about 12.15 o'clock Thursday noon when it came to having to walk across a street. While the rain appeared in sheets the electrical end of the storm was having its inning, although no serious damage was reported. The great steel derricks and girders being used in the erection of the Capitol theatre appeared to be a source of attraction to the lightning. Freak bolts played about the heap of steel and were a curiosity.

Mr and Mrs. Costas Stamaton of 178 Pleasant street were seated on the veranda of their home watching the storm when a bolt ripped down through the limb of a large elm a few feet from the house. The family scurried to cover. Damage estimated at nearly $100 was done at the home of Edwin F Cross, 54 Prospect street, when lightning tore through the shingles, after striking the chimney. The bolt dismantled the stove pipe, smashed through the partitions and passed down into the basement, which is occupied by Mrs. Grace Jacobs. Fortunately there was no one in the house at the time. The Cross family was away and Mrs. Jacobs was at work so thought that the heavy rain prevented the roof from being set afire. The loss is covered by insurance.

Several bricks were knocked off the top of a chimney of the three-tenement house owned by Merrill H. Jones at 44 Union street. Chimney covers in all three tenements were blown out and soot was spread all over the furniture.

At 96 Prospect street, in a house owned by Joseph Gagnon, Mrs. James Blackburn was cooking over a gas stove when the flames suddenly flared up after a loud crash. It was at first thought that the house had been struck, but later it was presumed that damage had been done to the gas main, as a strong smell of gas quickly permeated the atmosphere in the cellar of the house and in the basement tenement occupied by Winifred Lyons.

The power of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company went off during the storm. Shops and other places depending upon electricity for operation were forced to come to a standstill for a time. Seventy-five lines carrying 500 stations of the local exchange of the Southern New England Telephone company were disrupted, and circuit No. 5 of the fire alarm system was affected. The damage was being repaired during the afternoon.

Someone got slightly mixed up in a report from New London which appeared in Thursday morning's issue of The Norwich Bulletin that automobile markers N-4830, said to belong to Mrs. M. J. Tubridy of 7 Maple avenue, Willimantic, had been found at the New London Fruit and Produce company store-room, along with a coat, Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Tubridy claims that the Willimantic police did not receive information that she was in Hartford, but rather that her car bearing registration numbers N-4038 was safely housed in the garage. The number said to have appeared beside her name at the state motor vehicle department was N-4830, so that the entire affair seems to have been a case of putting zero in the wrong place.

Fred Luzvick was charged with manslaughter in police court Thursday morning and through his counsel entered a demurrer to the complaint. This was overruled by Judge Frank H. Foss and the accused was bound over to the next criminal term of the Windham county superior court under bonds of $10,000. This was an increase of $5,000 over the bond under which Luzvick had previously been held. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. enton stated that the large bond was named at the request of State's Attorney Charles E. Searls.

A special court session was held at 11 o'clock, following the funeral of Miss Odelia Marcoux, for whose death Luzvick is charged with manslaughter. During the session Luzvick was charged with assault on his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Marcoux, mother of the deceased. He pleaded not guilty. Testimony was given by Mrs. Marcoux through Dr. E. J. Turcotte as interpreter. The witness said that Luzvick was having trouble with her two daughters, Mrs. Ida Luzvick and Miss Odelia Marcoux. Witness attempted to intercede with him to stop quarreling, and he pushed her with both hands. She fell backward into a chair which broke and allowed her to fall to the floor. She was unable to rise, due to a sharp pain in her side. Dr. Turcotte testified to being called to attend Mrs. Marcoux. He said her injuries consisted of contusions on her left side and indications that some of the ribs were fractured. An X-ray picture would reveal the true condition of the bones.

Mrs. Mary Pyzo, a neighbor, was called to the stand, but as she had not seen the assault on Mrs. Marcoux her testimony was not taken. Mrs Luzvick volunteered to testify against her husband. She related circumstances leading up to the quarrel and of the assault on her mother. Attorney Gaucher pleaded for his client on the grounds that the assault was not vicious as he had only pushed the woman. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Fenton labeled the action aggravated assault. It was brought out by the testimony given that Luzvick had been drinking but was not acting under the influence of liquor at the time. Judge Foss rules that the assault was not vicious but resulted from a push with the serious results that followed. A fine of $50 and costs was imposed. Following the session, Luzvick was taken to Brooklyn jail to await the hearing in the superior court.

The funeral of Miss Odelia Marcoux was held Thursday morning from her home. A high mass of requiem at St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock was sung by Rev. E. A. Mathieu. There was a large attendance of friends and relatives and beautiful floral forms. The bearers were Adelard, William, Eddy and Aime Marcoux, Louis and Eddy Bonneville. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Mathieu read the committal service. Arrangements were in charge of the Hurteau-Bosse Corporation.

At his home, 1389 Main street, James Kenney, 73, died Wednesday night after an illness of two weeks. He leaves his wife, Bridget McKenna Kenny, three sons, two daughters and two sisters, all of whom reside in Fall River, Mass.

Word was received here Thursday from Lieutenant Commander N. W. Hibbs of the U. S. naval training station at San Diego, California, to the effect that Ernest H. Reade of 4,633 Ohio street, San Diego, who enlisted in this district had been designated as apprentice petty officer, second class, of his company at the Pacific coast station. The young man is the son of Charles M. Reade, formerly of this city. The Reade family moved to California about a year ago.

Windham's valuable record books are being overhauled and reconditioned for preservation through future years. The work is being done in the G. A. R. room by members of a probable book binder company and is interesting to watch. The workmen believe that the task will take two weeks to complete. Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton has insisted that the work be done right in the town building so that the invaluable records can be placed back in the vault every night and be safe from fire or theft.

For the first time within many years Willimantic has sadly fallen down on the job, in that it has failed to support a baseball team which should have been its boast and pride. American Thread Athletic association baseballdom is a thing of the past. Members of the association have been voting on the question for the past two days and propositions to continue baseball either in the league or independently were defeated by a vote of more than 5 to 1. There are 1,600 men and women in the association. The voting results were: Yes 285, and No 813. The vote on the independent team stood 294 in favor and 804 against. Since May 17 the loss on baseball has amounted to $3,200, or an average of about $400 a week. There is now on hand about $2,000, not all of which is available for baseball, and the league season has seven weeks to run. President Bert F. More of the local association, Manager John P. McQuillan and possibly other members will attend a meeting of the Connecticut Baseball league directors in Hartford this (Friday) evening and will officially announce Willimantic's resignation from the league.

On her 85th birthday Mrs. Angelina Loring Avery was tendered a birthday party in the afternoon by her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Avery, with whom she makes her home at 152 Chestnut street. The decorations about the house were attractively arranged. Mrs. Avery has the distinction of being the youngest living child of any soldier of the Revolutionary war, her father, Solomon Loring, of Hingham, Mass., having enlisted when 14. His father also served in the Revolution, fighting for eight years and dying in a prison ship after having been captured by the British. Mrs. Avery is an honorary regent of Annie Wood Elderkin chapter, D. A. R.

MRS. GEORGE MOORE, HAMPTON DIES WHILE DRESSING

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, July 17.—Mrs. Alice M. Moore, 71, died suddenly at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alice Faye Hinds, of Hampton, early Thursday morning. Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason was summoned from this city and pronounced the cause of death cerebral hemorrhage. Mrs. Moore was found partially dressed, she had apparently risen shortly before she was stricken. She was born March 25, 1853, in Barkhamstead, the daughter of Daniel and Olive Slade Searle. She leaves her husband, George Moore, a daughter, Mrs. Alice Faye Hinds and a brother, S. P. Searle of Noank.

JEWETT CITY

An unavoidable accident happened near Slater canal bridge, Wednesday evening, when Stanley Chlowea's automobile struck eight years old Jennie Kosshiewics, injuring her so seriously that Dr. G. H. Jennings thought it advisable to send her to Backus hospital. No bones were broken, the injury seeming to be to the head. No blame was attached to the driver. It is almost impossible to drive through certain sections of the borough and not hit small children. Parents are perfectly indifferent, apparently as to whether they are hurt or not. A case noted recently was that of a child hardly able to walk, that started to cross the road on Slater avenue. An automobile was coming and half a dozen women calmly sat on the ground and watched the car stop, never making a move to protect the baby from danger. Children deliberately run into the path of an automobile and dare the driver to hit them. The indifference of parents to the whereabouts and conduct of small children ranging from five to ten years of age is alarming, and a matter of general comment. All day long children run the streets, and trespass on private property, stealing and doing damage, insulting anyone who attempts to interfere, and moving picture nights hanging around the theatre entrance, begging for money. One man said, no less than 25 "kids" asked him for money one night. Another man's comment was "What are their mothers thinking of not to keep small children at home at night?"

Members of the Congregational church are to meet in the vestry this (Friday) evening to accept the resignation of the pastor, and determine other matters of church interest.

Miss Winifred Scates is in Montville and will attend the Baptist Sunday school picnic of that place, to be held at Ocean Beach today (Friday.) Saturday she will go with a party of Academy girls and their chaperones to camp for a week at Mason's Island.

Miss Alice Callahan of New York has been visiting a few days with her niece, Mrs. James McCusker, of Tracy avenue.

The Christian Endeavor societies of the Eastern Connecticut district are to have a union picnic at Mohegan park, Norwich, Saturday afternoon.

COLCHESTER

Miss Nellie Gerhardt was given a linen shower at the home of Mrs. A. T. Van Cleve, South Main street, on Tuesday afternoon, when she received many handsome gifts. Two comfortables were tied with the assistance of all present. After luncheon the bride-to-be was showered with gifts from the grape arbor, under which the company was assembled. Pictures were taken and the Ten Commandments for the groom to follow were read with comments by the company. Later there were enjoyable games.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. A. Baker and children and Mrs. Whittaker of Meriden were callers on Mr. Baker's parents Wednesday.

District Deputy G. E. Baker and staff were in Lebanon Wednesday evening to install the officers of George S. Hull lodge No. 74, K. of P. After the work a lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Wickwire of New Haven were guests of Mr. Wickwire's sister, Miss Addie May Wickwire Wednesday and Thursday.

Charles Daniels of Stonington was a guest Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. John Higgins.

A GOOD STYLE FOR MATURE FIGURE

Linen, gingham, percale, jersey and crepe weaves are good for this model. The "weatee" is an attractive feature it breaks the straight lines of the front, and is very becoming to stout figures. The sleeve may be in short "cap" length or finished with a cuff in elbow length.

The Pattern is cut in 8 sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size requires 5 1-4 yards of 27 inch material. The width at the foot is 1 7-8 yards.

PAINTING THE HOUSE

Most homes look better painted in light colors. The colonial type house, either pure or modified, cannot well be given any color other than a cream yellow or white, with shutters and roofs in deeper tones.

The popular square type house, if not too large, may be finished in warmer colors, particularly when it is close to other dwellings and has little shrubbery or a few trees around it. Such homes are frequently painted in two colors, a darker or warmer hue being used on gable ends or on the upper story if it is a large residence.

In selecting two or more colors to be used in combination it should be remembered that a very small part of the house painted in the dark or heavy color will be sufficient to complement the larger areas where lighter color is used.

EMBROIDERY IN VOGUE

The present vogue for embroidered effects finds expression in lovely filmy cotton materials with square designs in white that reproduce English eyelet embroidery. A similar effect is seen in heavier linens which are shown in all the brilliant colors for summer wear.

Air Route in Belgian Congo

An air route will shortly be inaugurated between Leopoldville and Elizabethville in the Belgian Congo, according to a report to the Department of Commerce from Consul W. E. Vaughn, Johannesburg. A special airplant designed for use on the Congo has been built for the Aerial Transport Company, which is aided by the Belgian state. It is equipped with three engines and designed to eliminate the risk of compulsory descents through engine failures. The machine will be employed in regular service, carrying passengers, mail and goods to and from remote tropical stations. At the present time it takes forty-five days to cover the 1,200 miles between the two points mentioned, but by the proposed new air service the journey will be covered in two days. The machines will be kept in touch with their aerodromes during the whole flight by means of radio telephony.

It always makes a man feel cheap to be caught looking at a photograph of himself.

To Modernize Spanish Phones

Representatives of the American telephone industry have arrived at an agreement with several important Spanish banks to take over the present telephone systems in Spain for the installation of a modern up-to-date service. The service in that country has been the subject of criticism and has been a serious impediment to the conduct of business along present-day lines. Even in Barcelona, the most progressive city in the country, scores of important commercial and professional firms have refused to install telephones on account of the poor service rendered. The agreement, according to advices received by the Department of Commerce, provides for the formation of a corporation to take over the entire system and the installation of an automatic service similar to that in Havana.

MONTEFIORE HOSPITAL

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Usually motion picture interiors are erected from a photographic standpoint; and in many cases look stiff and unlivable. A certain hominess is lacking.

In My Man which is now being shown at the Palace theatre, Director David Smith made a strenous effort to have interiors present the appearance of having been "lived in."

Interiors were selected in actual homes; and then great care taken to photograph the rooms from many angles; measurements were taken and a list of furnishings made. In every instance the surroundings in which people have lived and loved were duplicated in the studio.

Considerable curiosity was aroused throughout Los Angeles and Pasadena by the visits of the technical and art department; but in every instance, whether in the home of the Eastern millionaire, the mechanic or the store employee, they met with interested co-operation.

The interiors on the production are reproductions of actual homes. Every cozy nook has been duplicated in construction and furnishings. Drapes and hangings have been copied or rented outright. Pictures and portraits to which sentiment is attached have been borrowed. The result has removed much artificiality from screen technic and makes the picture far more realistic than usual.

Special added attraction, Rudolph Valentino and Carmel Myers, the greatest of all screen stars, the artist who made love an art on the screen, in a pulsing passionate society romance A Society Sensation. It's real entertainment. Don't miss it. Pathe Review and Palace supreme orchestra complete the program. Next Sunday night only, another smashing big double feature program The Wolf's Fangs and Partners of the Sunset.

Broadway Theatre

A beautifully presented program of well diversified B. F. Keith all star vaudeville acts, each taking individual honors was presented at the Broadway theatre yesterday and will continue there Saturday.

Kennedy & Peterson, opened the bill with a comedy, singing and dancing act. They showed that they were fine exponents of the triangular combination.

Bert Wilcox & Josephine La Croix & Co. in their new comedy, "The White Collar Man," followed. This bright little skit scored highly. Thomas Morrison ably assisted this clever pair of actors. Two Maltese Terriers added to the comedy.

Bert Kelton must be seen to be appreciated and to say that she carried off all honors is putting it mildly.

Sende Dale & Dixie De Lane offered as the closing number "A Classic in Song and Dance." It is Out of the channels of the ordinary and is real entertainment.

DUBS DAVIS AND BRYAN AN "IMPOSSIBLE MESALLIANCE"

Laconia, N. H., July 17.—The democratic ticket Davis and Ryan, was described as an "impossible mesalliance," here tonight by Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, in a speech opening the republican campaign in New Hampshire.

"Judging by the usually accepted standard," said Senator Watson, "Davis is an ultra-conservative, while Bryan is an extreme radical. Davis is safe and sound, while Bryan's mind is running over with fads and vagaries. If they are elected, will the dog wag the tail, or the tail wag the dog?

"Is Bryan to run on the same platform? Is Davis to stand on the democratic platform in the East, and Bryan on his own platform in the West? Or are they simply going to run, without reference to any platform?"

ANNOUNCEMENTS

This Week's New Music

The ethereal beauty of Wilhelmj's lovely arrangement of Wagner's "Album Leaf," a number set high in the violin range, is brought out in its perfection by Mischa Elman in all its delicate tonal shades on a new record this week. Paired with it is "The Gondolier's Song" a number calling for all the subtle simplicity and naturalness of this master's bow.

Bass operatic arias are somewhat in the minority and it is fortunate that we are occasionally enabled to hear numbers of such beauty as does Mardones records this week. "Vani" in Mia Vendetta" (Hasta Thes, for Vengeance) is the tragic, yet melodious vow of Don Alfonso from "Lucrezia Borgia." The second number is from an opera bouffe little known outside of Italy—De Ferrari's Pipele. It is brilliant, varied, also melodious, like something from Rossini. (His "Questa notte mentre a letto" (At Night While Sleeping.)

The Lucy Stone Leaguie will approve these two numbers sung by Della Baker this week. They were composed by women and are recorded by a capable member of the sex. They have plenty of emotion and are neither commonplace nor obscure as to type. "Love's First Kiss" and "Cup of the Dusk to You" as here sung are really beautiful and full of appeal.

Elliott Shaw and Lewis James sing solos in similar vein: "Just for Remembrance" and "Just Some Roses" are ballads of robust sentiment, somewhat alike, but interesting for their individual handling.

The sorrows of Eddie Hunter are nothing to weep over. He can put comedy into tribulation. Broke, or afoul of feminine temperament, it's all the same to Eddie. Judging from "Hard Times" and "Mamie" his latest records.

This is the outdoor season for the Goldman Band and we hear this well known organization as admiring thousands gather to do on a new record this week. "On the Mall" and "The Pioneer—March" are compositions of the leader, clean, brilliant brass band numbers.

Charles Dornberger and his orchestra record a pair of fox trots that will hold interest in the dance wherever heard. "That's the Tune" is from "Vogues" the New Century Revue a melodious number. "Tropical Palms" is a little dreamy and languorous for the dog days.

"Lovely Little Wallflower" which the Benson Orchestra of Chicago plays this week is a gentle and melodious fox trot. That doesn't half do it justice. "Worrying Blues" which Philip Spitalny and his orchestra record, is comic and up to scratch.

Bread Theatre

A romantic, thrilling, though somewhat sombre tale of "The Shadow of the East"—the photoplay which opens at the Bread Theatre today.

It is about an English earl, Barry Craven, who, like many other Englishman exiled in India had secretely taken a beautiful native wife, though he still felt the attraction of his own countrywomen.

Much has been written and said about these light loves of the East which men leave so easily, but when Lorlare, made with tempestuous love for the native unresponsive Englishman and with jealousy for an English girl who was visiting India, finally commits suicide, Barry finds it not so easy to forget.

He returns to England—even marries Gillian Locke—but still the Shadow of the East hangs over him and all the things he would hold dear.

Unable to bear the torture of it, he goes back at last to aid in a war a young chick is waging against his enemies. He leaves a note telling Gillian the dark secret of his past and his desire for atonement through death in a war. Gillian follows him to India and, regardless of her own danger, to the very field of battle.

So, in the end, it is her husband, whom she hoped to rescue, who rescues her. And then she finds that he no longer is in need of rescuing for in the thick of the battle, he has redeemed his soul and the Shadow of the East has at least lifted. Frank Mayo, Mildred Harris and Norman Kerry appear in the principal roles of this production. Ruth of the Range, Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy complete this program.

Concert and Dance at Ocean Beach

A concert and ball to be given by the New London Jewry at Danceland, Ocean Beach, promises to be one of the biggest social events given in New London.

A very elaborate program has been prepared by the committee in charge, that will assure every one who attends the affair a genuine good time.

One of the big attractions of the concert will be Miss Frances Foskett, soprano, formerly of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, also of the Cleveland Opera Co., also Mr. Arnold Goldstein of Norwich, Conn., who is widely known as an accomplished pianist.

Following the concert the dancing will start. The celebrated orchestra of Shepard-Swanson will furnish the music.

The net proceeds of this undertaking will go for the establishment of a Jewish community center in New London and the maintenance of a nurse in Palestine for the New London Hadassah.

Parties from Providence, Springfield, Hartford, Norwich and surrounding towns have already been arranged to attend the affair.

The committee consists of Mrs. Joseph Soits, Nathan Morris and Julius Sherif.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A thunderstorm that would qualify without condition as a rip snorter, visited itself upon Danielson at the noon hour Thursday. To many it was terrifying. Sweeping in from the west it darkened the sky and under the pall the borough was in early evening darkness for more than half an hour.

A downpour of rain was accompanied by flashing lightning threatening even greater damage than was caused and the crash of the thunder gave the timid a very uneasy period. However, everyone escaped alive.

East Killingly suffered a fire loss as the result of the storm, as told elsewhere in this column and the telephones that were put out of commission in the Danielson division were counted by the score. The electric lighting system of the town also was rendered temporarily useless.

Not in several years has this section been visited by an electrical storm of such severity. It endured for about an hour, and as trying a one as as the average person cares to experience.

At East Killingly, a cow owned by Deacon Luther M. Smith was killed by lightning.

Mrs. Ellen M. Aldrich, wife of Phineas Aldrich, of North Main street, died at her home Thursday morning after a long illness. Mrs. Aldrich was a daughter of Henry and Agnes McDougall Owens and was born in the town of Plainfield, October 30, 1873. For many years she had been a resident of the town of Killingly. Mrs. Aldrich leaves her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Julius Rainville; six brothers, John of Florence, Mass., Frank Walter, James and William of Moosup and Joseph of Dayville and three sisters, Mrs. Stephen Tyler of Central Village, Mrs. Frank Shippee and Mrs. Howard White, both of Moosup.

Responding to a still alarm, Captain C. A. Hamilton and a small group of members of the fire department went to East Killingly Thursday afternoon, taking along several large extinguishers that it was felt might be needed in protecting the house at the Porter place from being damaged by the fire that destroyed the barn on the place.

If for no other reason, Thursday's heavy storm was welcome to owners of growing crops, suffering for three weeks past from a shortage of rain. All crops were thoroughly wet down in the storm.

This early in the season, those who give close attention to political matters are lining up prospective candidates to be made voters. This being the year of a presidential election, the number of new voters is expected to be large.

Some business men, not being wholly satisfied with the new parking regulations, have been voicing their recommendations for certain changes and likely will formally present their suggestions for a revision of the rules to borough officials.

Lightning took its toll of property in this territory Thursday afternoon, when the barn of Joseph P. Porter, near East Killingly, was struck and set afire and burned to the ground. The barn was one of the largest and best in that section of the town of Killingly and likely could not be duplicated today for less than $5,000.

No live stock was lost in the fire. A horse that was in the barn when the fire started was removed to a place of safety. The barn was about half filled with hay. This and all the other contents, including tools and some ... machinery, was destroyed.

There is no ure fighting appartus available for use in the territory where the fire occurred, on the highway leading out of East Killingly past the John Chase farm, so nothing could be done to check the spread of the flames. The dwelling on the Porter place was not damaged.

The loss is estimated at between $4,000 and $5,000, partly covered by insurance.

The Porter barn was the second large structure of the kind to be destroyed in that part of Killingly within the past five days, one on what is known as the Warren farm burning the past week.

The Porter fire attracted people from all that section of the town, numbers coming in response to hurried calls for help. The barn was struck by lightning in the same storm that swept over Danielson.

A huge limb that crashed down from one of the great trees at the Thomas Adams place on North Main street Thursday morning damaged telephone and electric light equipment. A woman had passed along the walk where the limb fell just a minute before it came down.

An interesting incident in the business section Thursday was that in which two motoring parties, both from Florida and acquainted with each other, met here and had a chat for a few minutes.

In spite of the thunderstorm, members of local patriotic organizations that were at Wildwood park Thursday for an annual outing had an enjoyable day.

Rod and Gun club members were out in force Thursday hunting crows and woodchucks for points in the competition in which they are engaged.

Dancing at Wildwood park Thursday evening attracted a large number from various towns hereabouts.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Woodworth have taken a cottage at Pleasure Beach and will spend the week ends there until Septembr.

Well worth investigating by those who may be interested are the summer courses being offered at the State Trade school in Putnam. Tuition is fre to residents of Connecticut.

This is what town court officials call a good week of business, for there has been none to claim their attention.

As a street cleaner Thursday's downpour did some service, washing down the thoroughfares of the borough.

George C. Lanphere of Providence was a visitor with friends in Danielson Thursday.

Danielson's health situation continues to be favorable and is regarded as improving with each passing day. Releases from quarantine were begun on Thursday.

While out hunting crows, William M. Franklin of Broad street shot a red fox.

Stocks of hard coal against the requirements of next winter are being accumulated in Danielson, insurance against short fuel shortage as many have come to dread, considering the experiences of recent years.

There appears to be a question whether the borough of Danielson is responsible in a damage suit recently instituted by a Dayville woman for injuries received when she stepped in a sidewalk depression on Main street and fell. A claim is heard that the depression is on private property, by a margin of a few inches.

PUTNAM

By agreement of all concerned, the cases of the three bathers at Camp Utopia, near the shores of Roseland lake, summonsed into court, Wednesday afternoon for bathing in the lake contrary to the order of the state commissioner of health have been set for trial Monday morning, July 28th, probably before Justice Charles H. Perrin of North Woodstock. The bathers were at first notified to appear Thursday morning by State Policeman Williams, who was sent to make the arrest. After the situation was talked over with Grand Juror S. Howard Peckham, it was learned that an adjournment would be asked for, it was decided to adjourn the time of hearing without calling the court officials together.

The arrest of the three bathers is only incidental to threshing out the rights of the state and property owners as to whether the order of the State Health Commissioner forbidding bathing in Roseland lake and its tributaries is legal.

Thursday, Isadore Leibou, who conducts the summer camp in which the three arrested bathers are staying, stated that he did not care to say anything. He did say, however, that he thought the attorney general and the state commissioner of health were acting fairly in the matter and he apparently had no fault to find in this direction. He intimated that he hoped there might be some way to adjust the matter, but failed to express any views on how this might be accomplished. Mr. Libeau, who has been conducting the camp, which is called, Camp Utopia, for the past three years, said that he had about 150 boys and girls in camp. Most, if not all of the campers, are New York young people and Mr. Libeau is also a New Yorker.

Putnam's volunteer firemen were called out of bed, just after the sun appeared over the eastern hills, on Thursday morning. The alarm was from box 42, corner of Main and Bridge streets. They found a second hand Ford with its top ablaze in a shed in the rear of the Lucier property on Bridge street and the flame was quickly extinguished.

Patrolman Durand, who was passing along Bridge street shortly after 5 o'clock saw, through a window in a shed, flames bursting up. He rang the box alarm at 5.10 and within a few minutes the department was on the scene and quickly put the fire out.

The automobile belonged to Walter Bodo and he had a short time before put the car up. How the fire started is not known but was one of those mysterious fires that have happened several times in this city following the putting up of automobiles.

Thursday morning the humidity was depressing. At noon a savage looking thunder shower came out of the west and for a half hour rain fell. The storm, however, was not nearly as savage as it appeared in the distance and there was little sharp lightning accompanying it. It passed over the city within the hour and it was hoped would afford relief by clearing the atmosphere but in this the storm was also disappointing.

State's Attorney and Mrs. Charles E. Searls left this (Friday) morning for Oak Bluffs where they will spend Sunday. From there they will go to Nantucket, to remain through August.

Members of the Putnam Country club will go to Stafford Springs for a return game of golf, Saturday the 26th. The local club has not lost a match this year, having beaten Woonsocket, Southbridge and Stafford Springs at Putnam. This evidences that the Putnam club is developing some good players for during the during the first three years, Putnam was easy for the clubs from which she is now winning matches.

G. N. Lematire, of Providence street, has just completed a bungalow on Irish Island, Quadic pond, Thompson. The family will occupy the new summer cottage over weekends during warm weather.

Miss Katherine Byrne spent Thursday in Hartford.

Mrs. J. Harry Mann and daughter, Miss Edna Mann of Grove street, are occupying their summer cottage at Gales Ferry. Mr. Mann will spend August there.

Miss Lorena Gallant, who is finishing her training to become a graduate nurse, at the Hartford City hospital, is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Gallant, Church street.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Maloney have with them their daughter, Miss Mildred Maloney of the Worcester City hospital.

Mrs. A. S. Macdonald and daughter Kay have returned from a week's visit at Poquonnoc Bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rouse, School street, are on a two weeks' trip during which they will visit their daughter, Mrs. Volney Durfey and her family, at Fair Haven, Vt.

Miss Edith Carpenter of New York has returned home, after coming here to visit her father, a patient in the Day Kimball hospital.

Miss Grace L. Reynolds is staying with her aunt, Mrs. C. W. Chase, of Walnut street.

Mrs. Samuel Rosoff and little son are guests of relatives in Lancaster, Pa.

James McGauley, U. S. navy, is spending a furlough in Putnam, having just returned from a cruise in the far east.

A number of mill operatives have secured employment in the mills of Webster, going back and forth daily. A number of these operatives are working in the plant of the Slater Woolen company, which is running night and day.

The tower on Putnam inn is being torn down after being in place for half a century. It is rumored that Landlord Rogers is to put a fourth story on the hotel and install an elevator.

Judge L. H. Fuller, who has been ill for six months, was able to be at his office for a short time, Wednesday, and Thursday was reported as feeling no ill effects from his effort.

The State Trade School is continuing through the summer months with a good enrollment, summer courses in home economics being especially well patronized, there being a total of approximately 35 students taking up the various phases of sewing and dressmaking.

The school is receiving a large number of applications from out-of-town prospective students.

The carpentry department boys are building two cabinets for Israel Putnam school. These are to be of cypress finished in the natural wood, with bronze hardware, and are to be completed by September 1st.

The electrical students are about to begin work on wiring a two-tenement house. This training on the job constitutes the most valuable part of the school program by making for practical application of the principles taken up as theory in classroom work.

Alfred Gallant, recently graduated from the machine department, has taken a position at his trade with the Underwood Typewriter company at Hartford.

EAST KILLINGLY

Saturday, July 12, 1924, the Union Baptist church of East Killingly had a reception for their new pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Hetherington. Mrs. Clarence Soule presided, and made a brief address, after which the congregation sang America. Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Hetherington. Then followed a duet by Miss Jessie Smith and Mrs. Nellie Chase, a reading by Mrs. Nellie Chase, solo by Edward Pinkham, duet by Mrs. Myra Wade and Mrs. Leonard Williams, solo by Harry Beaman, who also answered an encore. Duet by Mrs. Arthur Knapp and her son Richard, solo by Miss Lois Vigeant, and a reading by Mrs. L. A. Bartlett. This number was in rhyme. A number of out of town visitors were present. A strawberry supper was served, with Parker House rolls, cake and ice cream. The affair was a great success.

Stanley and Martin Hetherington of Fitchville were week-end visitors with their parents at the parsonage.

The East Killingly Patriotic club met Monday evening at Union Baptist church, and made report of the Fourth of July celebration. All reports were very encouraging. Everything went to the satisfaction of its promoters, and there was a fair sum of money left after paying all expenses. It was voted to have another celebration in 1925. Officers were elected.

Tuesday afternoon at the funeral of Benjamin Franklin Chaffee, W. D. Hetherington officiated at the home and cemetery.

SPRING HILL

Last Sunday the choirs of the Spring Hill and Mansfield Centre churches changed places for the morning service and, as the hour of service in the two places was different, some beside the choirs took advantage of the opportunity to attend both.

Last Saturday evening a party, mostly young folks, had a hot dog roast at Wayne Storrs'. Prof. Littleworth was present, and on behalf of those present and Spring Hill people generally H. A. Gillette presented him a pipe. Mr. Littleworth has taken a course in agriculture at the C. A. C., was graduated last month and has secured a position to teach in the eastern part of the state, and moved to Brooklyn Tuesday. The family made many warm friends during their stay here.

Monday afternoon a dozen or more automobile loads from the C. A. C. came to Prof. Davis' field at Alanweld and had a picnic where they could enjoy the fine view of the valley toward the east.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Nichols and Miss Ruth Morse went to Westford Sunday where they met all of Mrs. Nichols' brothers and sisters and their families.

There was an attendance of twenty-five or more at the church last Thursday evening to receive further instruction in the art of rattan basket weaving under the direction of Mrs. Jones. It was a busy party.

WAUREGAN

The Congregational Sunday school held its annual picnic Monday at Mohegan park, Norwich. Some fifty people attended and were conveyed in automobiles. All report an enjoyable time.

F. C. Leavens is able to be at work, after having been confined to the house for a week.

Mrs. William Riley is somewhat improved in health.

Mrs. Allen Moffatt has been spending a few days in Maine, making the trip by automobile.

Miss Barbara Leavens is working in Hartford.

Mrs. Harold Wignall has been ill this week.

The Wauregan Band has been engaged to furnish music for the Field Day exercises of the U. S. Finishing Co., at Sterling on Friday of this week.

Cooler Breakfasts

Tomorrow's breakfast prepared with tonight's dinner—a QUICK QUAKER delight

Try this new recipe

HERE is the richest, most delightfully cooling of hot weather breakfasts. Made of oats, it's supremely nourishing and invigorating, too.

As you prepare dinner tonight, cook your regular breakfast quantity of QUICK QUAKER (the new Quaker Oats that cooks in three to five minutes).

When done, pour into a pudding mould and let cool. Then place in the refrigerator over night. Cut in medium thick slices and serve at breakfast with fresh or cooked fruits or berries and sugar—float with rich milk or cream.

The combination is delightful. A world noted chef discovered this new way. Just for the joy of it, try it.

CALIFORNIA FIRES.

Ordinarily this is not the season of forest fires, but California gives evidence to the effect that they are entirely possible and that they can be highly destructive even if there is much green foliage. The big acreage burned over and the area threatened accentuate the situation that exists on the Pacific coast, where huge losses have been experienced, where many lives have been lost and where efforts to check the fires have had slight effect.

The California fires direct attention to the forest situation in this country in a striking manner. We see much woodland and we give little thought to the repeated and insistent claims that our woodlands are disappearing much faster than we are replacing them. When it gets to the point that such great areas of standing timber are going up in flames and smoke it is difficult not to appreciate just what a loss is being experienced, and what an economic waste the country is suffering.

How to stop it is the question. Were the fires the result of human agencies the setting forth of a remedy would be fairly simple, but it appears that lightning has been the cause of California's trouble, or at least it is being credited with it. That being the case the checking of the cause is beyond the control of man, and it depends upon the type of fire fighting as to the effectiveness of the resistance.

Whether the forest fires result from the carelessness of individuals, or are kindled by electrical bolts from the sky, the greatest service in behalf of the protection of the woodlands lies in the maintenance of a thorough system of lookout stations for the discovery of fires and an adequate and well trained body of fire fighters. This means much in a state which has large forests but it must all be figured in on the price of protection. California has reason to appreciate it more now than ever in the past, but California is not the only state with extensive woodlands or the only one where lightning may be the torch to set them aflame.

PANAMA CANAL BUSINESS.

When the Panama canal closed its fiscal year in June 1923 with total receipts of over $17,500,000 it was not only recognized as a record breaking business handled by this waterway, but it foretold what might be expected in the future. The amount of traffic through the canal has been steadily growing. The value of its facilities is being more and more appreciated and there is no telling how soon the day will come when this country will find itself making money on its canal investment.

According to the receipts for the fiscal year ending with June of this year almost a third more business has been done during the past twelve months than was done during the preceding period. Increasing the receipts by nearly seven million dollars, it means the boosting of the daily average from about $48,000 to well over $66,000. This likewise means an increase in the number of vessels from 3967 to 5230.

Rapid though this gain is and high though the gain in transits and tolls is, the business is not such that the canal facilities will not adequately handle it. Where the record will yet be boosted to there is no way of telling but there is as yet no prospect of such a waiting list at the canal for passage that steamship captains will go around South America rather than take their turn.

Large amounts of lumber are being handled by the canal, the tonnage of such having shown large increases in the past four years and the five months of this year show greater shipments than for last year, while they are one and four-fifths times those for the full calendar year of 1921. Large amounts of oil help to swell the canal business while Canadian wheat and Chilean nitrates contribute heavily to the cargoes carried through the waterway.

It has taken some years to bring about a full realization of the advantages furnished by the canal and the uses to which it can be put and only trade conditions can serve to adversely affect the excellent showing that is being made each year.

ADVISING THE FILIPINOS.

It will be interesting to note what kind of a reception is given to the message which Governor General Wood presented to the Philippine legislature as it reconvened this week. In the recent past it has been the disposition of certain leaders in the island, in their efforts to bring about independence, to practically ignore the endeavors of the governor general, or at least to offer their opposition to such recommendations as he made with no other apparent reason than to be on the other side.

They have not helped their situation by such tactics. Rather have they created the impression that the islanders are not in a position to properly administer their own affairs, and do it in a peaceful and successful manner.

Governor General Wood tells the Filipinos that very little has been done to encourage economic development, that economic growth is necessary and with further progress of education in the government's activities will hasten the political development in the islands.

Not only does he make this suggestion and the modification of laws governing the leasing of the public domain, but he assures the Philippines that it will have the full cooperation of the executive branch of the government in establishing economic independence. There is a chance for the development of the great natural resources of the islands and thereby the chance to greatly increase the revenue.

Whether this message will receive the response that would be expected awaits results. The Filipinos have reason to weigh the suggestions carefully, and if they do they cannot fail to come to the conclusion that they are made for their good, quite the same as the general policies which have been put into effect by General Wood. Uncle Sam isn't making recommendations to the islands which he expects will fail. Rather are the suggestions drawn to meet conditions and bring about success.

BEATING THE LAW.

For years we have had a law to the effect that coastwise traffic was restricted to American vessels. That law was established for the purpose of giving an advantage to American ships by preventing those flying foreign flags from coming in and taking the business away from them through not being obliged to meet American laws and conditions.

That coastal transportation law has not been changed but there are those who believe that they can get around it. Basking in the belief that the loophole was adequate a steamer flying the British flag was obtained for the purpose of taking a large party from Philadelphia to Boston, but the steamer was advertised to make a trip to Canadian ports. According to report it made its trip, left the party at Boston and picked it up on the return, but the claim is that the Canadian visitation was solely for the purpose of beating the coastwise law of this country.

At least reports of the affair have been placed in the hands of government authorities and a fine of $110,000 for violation of the law has been indicated. It is clearly a matter which cannot be overlooked. Either there was an intentional beating of the law or else the vessel had a right to do what it did. There is reason for a determination of the facts in the case and such a handling of the matter as will indicate whether the law needs attention or whether it is adequate to meet just such a situation. If it is possible through such a subterfuge to open up coastwise traffic to foreign vessels the quicker it is known the better. There would seem to be sufficient reason for the clearing up of any such technicality.

CROSSING THE PACIFIC.

With the British aviator, in his around the world flight, lost in his hop from the mainland of Japan to Paramashiru island the northern Pacific will be regarded as one of the bad spots for the globe circlers. It was farther north that Captain Martin and his mechanic were lost and nearly perished, but it hasn't appeared from the reports that Aviator MacLauren undertook his flight under any such adverse conditions as surrounded the flight of the Americans when Martin was lost.

In view of his experience in Japan, where he had engine trouble and the handicap which he experienced from fog it is not improbable that he has been forced down for one reason or another before reaching his destination. It was in that particular region that the Americans were halted by unfavorable weather conditions. It is a locality which does not lend itself to keeping the world posted on what happens therein, but from the searching that is being done it should require only such time as is needed to check up the entire area before determining where he is or what has happened to him.

Aviator MacLauren is not only attempting his circuit of the globe in the opposite direction from the American aviators but he is alone as far as other planes are concerned. In electing to follow the route established by the Americans he has unquestionably picked the safest way of getting across the Pacific but that does not mean that it is free from pitfalls or dangers. That was not claimed by the Americans and their experience gave no cause for believing so.

SOCIAL ENTERPRISES

"Well, I guess it's about time I gave a party," declared the popular woman who was invited to every day or so to somebody else's party. "I think I'll have a bridge luncheon."

"That's the very worst thing you can have!" said the cynical man whose wife always came home from social functions and related everything that had happened. "If it is merely a luncheon all they can find fault with is the eats, but if you add cards they can row about the rules you lay down, the partners they draw and the prizes you give, to say nothing of every one of them blaming you because she did not get the highest score. Why, you simply won't have any friends at all for weeks after a bridge luncheon!"

"No doubt that is true," admitted the popular lady with a sad sigh, "but what is there for me to do?

"You see, the woman who gives the party always has a sweet and childlike faith that nothing unpleasant can happen because it is hers. It is disagreeably catty as they were at Maisie Pepper's bridge. Why, at Maisie's there was a woman at my table who declared the monogram on the napkins was machine made, holding here up to the light and using her lorgnette. And she found the tiny bit of thread tied around one of the spoons, proving positively that it was borrowed. She said they might have kept the rolls hot before serving them if they had put their minds to it—and look, there was dust on the other side of the bookcase!

"She regarded with a cold and fishy eye the prize I got at our table. Just as I started to rave about it she said casually the prizes she had bought for her bridge luncheon the week before were simply beautiful, if she did say it.

"The woman across from her chimed in here that everybody told her at her bridge luncheon last month that they never had seen prizes which evidenced such taste and care in their selection, to say nothing of the cost.

"For first prize she had—but here number one coldly said she had made up her mind that selfish women winning her lovely prizes were not going to get away with the little trick so many of them had of taking the prize home without unwrapping it and displaying it to the envious losers—so she had all the prizes out on a table where everybody could see them.

"Number two had caught her breath by this time, however. She was one of these determinedly sweet girls who is going to be sweet unless a convulsion of nature or something like that stops her guests to act the way dear Mrs. Hamsack said her did! Why, everybody always was crazy to open their prizes at her house because they knew they were sure to get something perfectly lovely. If one had a reputation for giving lovely prizes people never forgot it—and wasn't it funny, but this was the ninth time running she had been out at luncheon and had chicken croquettes!

"Wasn't it odd that a woman Maisie's size should deliberately pick out a figured crepe for a dress? Well, of course, everybody couldn't have good taste in clothes. Why, a man she'd met at dinner recently told her that it was positively uncanny the way she realized her type and dressed up to it. There must be Parisian blood in her, he had said.

"And they always open closet doors under the pretense of thinking it is the way out, so there isn't a bit of use throwing things in on the floor the last minute to make your bedroom look all nice and in order! They just seem to love peering in at the old magazines, bills, laundry and the dress you were fixing over, and had no time to put away. Then they tell you good-by, that it was a darling party and sigh as they meander down the steps that it is too bad when you try so hard that your affairs are always such fizzles. Knowing all this, I still feel that it is up to me to send out invitations and put my neck under the ax! I hope, whatever else I may be, that I am at least a good sport!"

"Well, heaven help you, little one!" said the cynical man fervently. "Gosh, what a life it is, being a woman!"—Exchange.

Parrish Undeterred by Ill Health

Just as he was entering upon his career, Maxfield Parrish was forced by ill health to give up home and go into practical exile where he had to endure many discomforts.

Born in Philadelphia, the son of an artist of ability, he early took an interest in art. Graduated from Harvard College, he entered the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and later studied under Howard Pyle at Drexel Institute.

He was married when 25, his ability was becoming recognized and life's outlook was bright. Then came an attack of typhoid fever. The doctors ordered him to Saranac Lake, New York. When strong enough he resumed his art work. He tried doing black-and-white illustrating, was commanded to stay on the porch and the ink froze as he worked.

"I had to warm one hand while sitting on it while I worked with the other" he wrote a friend, and on another occasion he wrote, "Today I have been trying to make a picture of Appollo and St. Patrick walking along a beach by a summer sea, but the snow piled up on it, so I had to quit." But he could not stop, and began the use of oils.

After a year at Saranac, he was ordered to desolate Arizona for a twelve-month, then sent to Italy. He turned his adversity into opportunity to study nature, and produced designs which he entered in competitions conducted by the Pope Manufacturing Company and the Century Magazine, winning both of them.

His magazine covers in rich colors became popular and his work was in much demand. He also was sought as a decorator, his "Old King Cole" in the Mask & Wing Club of Philadelphia making him a name as a mural painter. His illustrations of books added still more to his fame.

At the Pan-American Exposition his drawings won a silver medal; at the Paris Exposition his work was given honorable mention, and he has been honored by American and French art societies.

He now lives near Cornish, N. H., in a home designed with such beauty by him that he has won recognition by American architects.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Major General Charles H. Muir, who goes on the retired list today for age, leaves behind him a long record of brilliant and efficient service in the United States army. Previous to the outbreak of the World War, in which he held important commands, he had made a name for himself in the Cuban campaign and in the fighting in the Philippines. Still earlier he had seen active service at the time of the Indian outbreak at Pine Ridge. He also fought with the Allied troops in the suppression of the boxer rebellion in China. Gen. Muir is a native of Michigan and a graduate of West Point. In his early military career he was famous as a rifle shot in the world. His accuracy with the rifle played him a good service during the Cuban war, when he kept a section of Spanish artillery out of action by the deadly use of his rifle. Recently Gen. Muir has been in command of the Third Corps Area.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Oneness.

Mr. Editor: In reading over some of the back numbers of The Bulletin after returning from a visit, I read a letter by A. E. S., in which he seems to both prove and also to disprove the Trinity, or that is what I seem to make of it. And as the Trinity doctrine is incomprehensible and unreasonable to a degree (for who can believe that three times one is one?) why let us look into the matter with reason (leaving out creeds or men) and see what we can make of it from a scriptural standpoint alone. (Mr. Rice or anyone else could not possibly go into full detail on this error in one short lecture, and none can do so either in a letter fully). I will just give a few Scriptures to disprove the Trinity as I did the immortality of the soul a short time ago. Now the Apostle Paul presents to us relationship between the Father and the Son in respect to our redemption most clearly and most forcefully, saying: "There is no other God but one . . . . To us there is but One God, the Father of whom are all things." And One Lord, Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by him." (1 Cor. 8: 4-6). That is to say, there is but one Eternal and Almighty God, the Author and Source of all things, to Whom we belong, and there is only one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom the Heavenly Father operates in respect to all the features of His plan. "The head of the woman is the man, the head of man is Christ, and the head of Christ is God." (1 Cor. 11: 13).

If there is only "One God, the Father of whom are all things," and if, as Jesus declared, the Father is greater than his honored Son; and if the Father raised His beloved Son from the dead, and exalted him on high, honored Him, and has appointed for Him a kingdom; and if ultimately the Son will deliver up the kingdom again to the Father, that the Father may be all in all; then it cannot be true that there are several Gods of equal power. There is but one statement in the Scripture, and only one, which seems in the slightest degree to even imply the doctrine of a Trinity of Gods, and that passage is admitted by all scholars to be spurious, and is therefore omitted from the revised version of the New Testament, and the translators of that revised version, so far as we know, were every one of them Trinitarians. The spurious interpolation is found in 1 John, 5:7. And these words omitted from the text make it simple and easy to be understood. The emphatic Diaglott, Young's Bible translation, The American Bible Union translation, the improved version, also omit this verse. Now Jesus Christ, the Son, fully and cheerfully acknowledges that he "came forth from the Father," that he "came not to do his own will" but the Father's will; and that the power he used was not his own power, but the Father's power. Also his statement, "The Father is greater than I" and the declaration of the prophecy that he is the messenger of the covenant, together with the repeated declaration of the New Testament and Scriptures, that he is the mediator of the New Covenant, the one Mediator between God and man. Christ Jesus who gave himself a ransom for all."

"Now we know that in John 10:30, Jesus said "I and my Father are One" and another chapter in John 17; 9 20-23, explains how they are one. He said in prayer to the Father (he surely was not praying to himself) "I pray not for the world but for them which thou hast given me, for they are thine . . . Neither pray I for those alone, but for them also which believe on me through their word (please notice this verse particularly) that they all may be one, as thou, Father, are in me and I in thee, that they may be one, even as we are one. I in them and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one. Here the oneness of the church for which the Lord prayed is especially stated. Oneness of mind, and purpose of heart and not a personal oneness. If A. E. S. will write me personally I can give him or her many more proofs, which would take too much space in your paper which you are so kind as to let us use.

M. B. MILLER.

North Windham R. F. D., Conn., July 14, 1924.

A. E. S. Replies.

Mr. Editor: Having been out of town I had not read my opponent's letter until this morning, and will say that my letter was especially to prove that Christ is God as the statement was made by Mr. Rice to the contrary, and I am sure the Scripture references I gave were a sufficient proof.

I referred to the Trinity, also, as Mr. Rice also stated that (as I remember) if the spurious text, 1 John 5:7, were removed there would not be the slightest proof of the Trinity.

Now first I ask why call that text spurious? If we find a translation which does not retain it, does that prove that our common version is not true? My opponent says The Holy Ghost is nowhere spoken of as a person, but in John 14:26, Jesus tells his disciples, "but the Comforter, which is The Holy Ghost, whom the Father shall send in my name, he shall teach you all things. Christ in referring to the Holy Ghost speaks of him as he notably in the 9th and 13th verses of chapter 16.

In Acts 13:2, we read, The Holy Ghost said "Separate me Barnabus and Paul for the work whereunto I have called them. That seems like a person giving orders. There are other texts referring to the Holy Ghost as a person, which might be given, but I will just refer to the statement by Mr. Abbot in referring to the text in Isaiah 9:6, "The government shall be upon His (Christ's) shoulders, that some think that He (Christ) is now on the earth and has taken the government."

We read in 1 Thess. 5: 16-17, "For the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and the trump of God, and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air" Also in Rev. 1:7, "Behold He cometh with clouds and every eye shall see him."

Now it appears that when the Lord comes we shall know it and there are many more texts that refer to this time which show that there will be other things happening which will be far more impressive than anything which yet has occurred.

Smallpox in Killingly and Brooklyn.

Mr. Editor: So many stories have appeared in the press of this and neighboring states regarding the smallpox epidemic in Danielson which are so greatly exaggerated and in many cases untrue, that we are impelled to give a true statement of the facts with the request that you give it space in your publication.

There are at present only 17 cases of smallpox in this town (Killingly) and seven in the neighboring town of Brooklyn. Each and all of these cases are under strict quarantine. A general order for vaccination has resulted in over half of the people of Brooklyn and over two thousand of the residents of Killingly being vaccinated, and this number is increasing daily.

As the population of these two towns is nearly ten thousand it will be seen that the percentage of cases is very small and the epidemic is therefore not a dangerous one. The disease appears to be in a mild form and there have been no deaths here from it. The board of health considers the situation improving and think it unnecessary to issue any order for the closing of the theatres, churches or other public places.

The above statements are true to the best of our knowledge and belief.

Vacationing in a Sweater
TO GET THE FULL VALUE OF YOUR SUMMER LEISURE

A true vacation is built around outdoor experiences, and out of door living demands outdoor clothing—and here's where the sweater makes its appearance.

It is no longer the utility garment of doubtful beauty — entirely efficient but utterly uncompromising in its lack of charm. The sweater of today is a colorful trifle, as variable in its lines as the frocks themselves—extremely individualistic. You can match them to your personality as well as to your frocks and skirts.

WEAR VACATION CLOTHES—
YOU'LL NEED A SWEATER

CRICKET SWEATERS
A 1924 NOVELTY
$2.95
Snappy V neck model in white, with long sleeves. It is greatly used at the seashore this season. The colors used in the trim are rather vivid, and on the whole it imparts a very youthful effect.

THE TENNIS SWEATER
COOL AND VERY SMART
$3.95 and $4.95
A very pleasing slip-on with sleeves that are hardly more than shoulder caps. This model is shown in white, in colors and in stripe effects — some with monogram, and all have border at bottom and no cuffs. Just the thing for tennis.

"Kid Boots" Sweaters
ANOTHER NEW ONE
$3.95
A slip-on model, somewhat following the lines of the middy, but decidedly more trim in appearance. It has a knitted tie in same coloring as the small rolled collar, and the color combinations are really beautiful.

Sweaters In Many Styles
FOR ALL SORTS OF PURPOSES
$5.95 and $6.95
The Tuxedo, the Jacquette or Coat style—in fact all of the practical models which have found favor this season will be found here in a very wide range of coloring. You need one. Select it in the Apparel Shop.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
DAVID CORY

American Bittern

"Dear me, I must be hopping home,
I've roamed about too long.
It's twilight time, and far away
I hear the Hermit's song."

softly whispered Little Jack Rabbit to himself after the Hermit Thrush had finished his evening hymn from the depths of the Shady Forest.

Suddenly from the marsh beyond the Old Mill Pond came a strange cry. At first it sounded like the noise made by the old wooden pump in the Farmyard, a hollow booming cry,—"Plunk-er-lunk, plunk-er-lunk!" it sounded across the meadow. Then it changed to the tune of an ax striking a stake.

"What is that?" the little rabbit asked himself, and being a curious little bunny, away he hopped toward the Old Mill Pond. Along the bank he hurried until, pretty soon, not so very far, he came to the swamp where only a few days before he had found the nest of the Great Blue Heron. Here ended the Sunny Meadow, fringed with bushes standing ankle-deep in the warm water and high-bush blueberries on their tiny islands. Overhead the maple trees sent shadows dancing over the pond, dimpled now and then by the underwater swirl of a minnow-hunting pickerel.

Just then, all of a sudden, as a little toad swelled out his throat and sang "Wha-a-a-a!" the bunny boy spied a large billed, brownish-mottled bird, with many long, drooping feathers on its head and neck, standing on one leg atop a dead tree trunk.

"Hello!" cried the bunny boy, not very loudly, you know, but loud enough to make the bird turn quickly.

"Oh, it's only a little rabbit," answered the sky bird, startled for the moment. "Goodness me, I thought I was well hidden in this marshy country. How did you get here?"

"I heard your strange cry," answered the bunny boy. "I'm learning something every day. At supper time I tell Mother what I've seen."

"Do you know my name?" questioned the bird. "Be careful not to step on my nest."

Turning about the bunny boy saw a nest of coarse grass and reeds on the damp ground.

"Some call me the American Bittern, and others, the Marsh Hen," went on the bird, shifting to his right leg and holding up the other to rest it. "I belong to the Heron family. Great Blue Heron is my cousin. He is twice my size, and more graceful. Maybe I'm a trifle too heavy for my height."

"I'm sure I don't know," answered the bunny boy, perhaps more truthfully than politely. "You see, Lady Love had always made him promise to tell the truth.

"I'm very pleased to have met you," presently answered the little rabbit. "I must be going. Mother will worry if I'm late. She'll be waiting for me at the white pocket gate," and away hopped Little Jack Rabbit to the dear Old Bramble Patch.

Hymn of the Mountaineers

For the strength of the hills we bless Thee, our God, our fathers' God!
Thou hast made Thy children mighty by the touch of the mountain sod.
Thou hast fixed our ark of refuge where the spoiler's foot ne'er trod;
For the strength of the hills we bless Thee, our God, our fathers' God!

We are watchers of a beacon whose light must never die;
We are guardians of an altar 'midst the silence of the sky;
The rocks yield founts of courage, struck forth as by Thy rod;
For the strength of the hills we bless Thee, our God our fathers' God!

For the dark, resounding caverns where Thy still, small voice is heard,
For the strong pines of the forest that by Thy breath are stirred;
For the storms on whose free pinions Thy spirit walks abroad;
For the strength of the hills we bless Thee, our God, our fathers' God!

The royal eagle darteth on his quarry from the heights,
And the stag that knows no master seeks there his wild delights:
But we for Thy communion, have sought the mountain sod.

HOW TO REMOVE UNSIGHTLY HAIR SAFELY —ROOTS AND ALL

No need now to undergo painful electric treatments to remove superfluous hair; nor to apply ordinary ineffective hair removers which only remove surface hairs.

A marvelous new oriental balsam has been discovered which is applied almost as easily as cold cream. It penetrates towards the hair roots, and gently "eases out" every objectionable hair, root and all, and leaves the skin clear, white, healthy and soft as velvet. No muss. No odor. No growing back of hair stronger than ever. Absolutely harmless.

Karma, as this wonderful new discovery is called, is highly recommended by prominent beauty specialists, and is sold on an absolute guarantee of satisfaction by:

NORWICH LIONS ENJOY OUTING AT BEACH

Members of the Norwich Lions club held their weekly meeting Thursday at Watch Hill, leaving this city shortly after 2 o'clock from Union square. A short but heavy downpour of rain greeted the Lions as they started on their trip but undaunted by this trifling setback the ten machines made the trip. A fine dinner was enjoyed at the beach and a program of sports was enjoyed. The trip home was made late in the evening, the outing being a most successful one.

POMFRET WOMAN LEFT $2,500 FUND FOR CAT

The estate of Miss Eleanor J. Clark, daughter of Joseph Clark, who died Nov. 16 last at her home in Pomfret, Conn., was appraised this week at $1,557,393, of which $253,000 was in New York. She divided the estate among 43 beneficiaries, the largest bequest being to her nephew, Joseph C. Hoppin, and grandnephew, Charles V. B. Cushman. Her will contained this provision:

"I direct my executors to set apart as a trust fund the sum of $2,500, the income of the same to be paid to the person who has the charge and care of my pet cat during the life of said cat, and thereafter to become part of the residue of my estate."

The appraisal shows: Total estate, $1,557,393; New York estate, $253,917. To grandnephew, Charles V. B. Cushman, $150,000 and one-half residue; remaining half to nephew, Joseph C. Hoppin; to nephew, Henry S. Grew, $150,000; legacies of $130,000 each to nephews, Randolph and Joseph Grew.

Miss Clark's beautiful estate has always been one of the show places of Pomfret. Especially fine were the conservatories and its gardens. The wealthy owner had been in ill health for a long term of years before her death and lived very quietly.

OBITUARY
Simon Dziekam.

The death of Simon Dziekam, 44, occurred Thursday evening at his home, 229 Yantic street, after a short illness. He was born in Poland, but has resided in this city for twenty years, and for most of the time he was employed in the Falls mill. Besides his wife, he leaves two sons and two daughters of Norwich and two brothers in Derby, Conn. He was a member of St. Joseph's church and of St. Joseph's society of that church.

He was an industrious worker, always performing his duties to the best of his ability, and was a devout member of his church and the society, in which he took especial interest.

FUNERAL
Mrs. Edwin F. Yerrington.
(Contributed.)

The death of Mrs. Alma L. Slocum Yerrington, 66, widow of Edwin F. Yerrington, occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lucy Lovett, Scotland Road, last Sunday night at 11 o'clock. She was born in Laurel Glen, R. I., Oct. 15, 1857.

She was married three times. Her third husband, Edwin, F. Yerrington, died eight years ago. She is survived by two daughters by him, Mrs. Edna Barstow of Plainfield, Mrs. Lucy Lovett, Scotland Road; three sons by her second marriage, Chester, Herbert and Wallace Pierce, all of Mystic and by her first husband she had one daughter, Mrs. Minnie Gray Church, who died twenty years ago. She also leaves several grandchildren and greatgrandchildren.

Mrs. Yerrington spent her winters with Mrs. Lucy Lovett and summers with Mrs. Edna Barstow of Plainfield. She was on her way back to Plainfield from Old Mystic where she had spent the Fourth with her son, Herbert Pierce family.

Mrs. Yerrington was ever a kind and loving mother, a true friend and neighbor. She had many friends who deeply mourn her loss. She was ever ready to give a helping hand in time of sickness or trouble. She practiced nursing a number of years, but had been in declining health for about three years which she spent with her daughters where she was kindly cared for.

Her funeral services were held at the parlors of Cummings & Ring as it was her request. Many relatives and friends attended. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. They included a pillow with Mother from Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Lovett, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barstow; Chester, Herbert and Wallace Pierce, bouquets; grandchildren, Jone and Ellison Barstow, Madely Lovett, wax flowers; Gertrude, Rachel, Lizzie and Lucy Pierce, bouquets; wreath from J. Frank Yerrington; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Yerrington, spray; Mr. and Mrs. Randson Yerrington, spray; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lovett, spray; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Handy and son spray; Mr. and Mrs. Casper Bailey, spray, and Miss Lillian Bailey, flowers; Mrs. Joseph Payton, bouquet; O. U. S. class of Plainfield church, wreath of roses; friends and neighbors from Plainfield, spray of roses; also flowers from Dew-Drop-In class of Norwich Town church.

The service was conducted by Rev. G. H. Bailey of Norwich Town and Rev. W. C. Prentiss of Plainfield. Henry D. Lovett sang Lead, Kindly Light and Hold Thou My Hand. Burial was in Hill Crest cemetery, in the family lot at North Stonington, where the committal service was read by Rev. Carlos Prentiss and Rev. Mr. Bailey. The following sons acted as bearers: Chester, Herbert and Wallace Pierce and Edgar Yerrington.

SHOTS INTO TIRES STOP TWO RUM-RUNNERS IN WILD CHASE

State policemen from the Danielson barracks enacted a regular wild west scene in a chase after rum-runners from Plainfield to near this city Thursday night and finally brought two twin-six Packards to a halt after one of the wildest chases that has ever been seen along the river road from Jewett City. Pumping lead from their guns while their motorcycles tore along at anywhere from 50 to 75 and 80 miles an hour, reloading while at top speed and defeating attempts of the fleeing rum-runners to crowd them into the ditch time after time, Officers Comstock and Stephens proved that they could ride and shoot at the same time, for they eventually crippled the two cars by puncturing their rear tires with bullets and brought them to a stop.

Each car was carrying 150 gallons of alcohol in five-gallon cans. Edward Chieppo, 21, of 49 Townsend street, New Haven, was at the wheel of the first rum car and was accompanied by Frank Imperaili, also of New Haven. The car had registration plates E-8929, which have been issued to Alfred Segnalla, 516 Chapel street, New Haven, according to the motor vehicle department.

The second car was driven by Thomas Clancy, 24, of 367 Grand avenue, New Haven. He had with him two other New Haven men, Douglass Mac Laman, 18, of 936 Gran avenue, and Albert Abrams, 23, of 9 Cottage street. The car they were using had plates E-8468, which have been issued to Morris Griffin, 9 Cottage street, New Haven, according to the records of the motor vehicle department.

The state police officers were watching for Packard cars on a tip that rum-runners were due to come through Thursday night and they lay in wait at Burdick's store at Plainfield, Officers Comstock and Stephens on motorcycles and Officers Gardner and Williams in Ford roadsters.

The first car put in an appearance just about 8 o'clock and tore past them at fast speed. The officers jumped on their machines and took up the chase, popping away at the fleeing car as soon as they came within shooting distance. The two roadsters were soon out of the race but the motorcycles could not be shaken off and matched their speed with the best that the twin-six could do.

The rum car tore through the gathering dusk, regardless of the safety of themselves or other machines on the road. Hitting a speed of better than a mile-a-minute the car with the officers in pursuit hurtled through Jewett City in the direction of Norwich with no signs of slackening pace. The police officers on the motorcycles held their fire in going through the village but opened up again when they struck the open road.

At times Officer Stephens gained the side of the Packard but as often as he did so, the driver of the rum-car would force him off to the side of the road and endeavor to crowd him into the ditch. He managed to put one bullet into the right rear tire, but the car drove on and when Tunnell hill was reached, a mile from Taftville, Officer Comstock put a bullet into the other tire, which flew off the rim and rolled away into a lot. The machine creened from one side of the road to the other, barely missing crashing into another automobile driven by Earl Hiscox of Jewett City and came to a stop with its nose buried in a bank beside the road. The two men in the car jumped and attempted to get away in the woods but they were captured by the police officers.

The men took their capture with apparent unconcern, remarking to the officers that it had been a good race.

Besides the shots in the tires the rum-car had the scar of a bullet on the gasoline tank and another on the rear of the front seat between the shoulders of the two men.

The alcohol was removed from the car and was taken in a truck to the Danielson barracks, while Officer Comstock brought the two men to Norwich police headquarters, where they were booked and locked up by Capt. D. J. Twomey.

Chase After Second Car.

When Officer Comstock had returned to the scene of the first capture where Officer Stephens was guarding the rum-runner's car, he started to return on his motorcycle to Danielson and had gone about four miles toward Jewett City when he saw another Packard approaching.

His order to them to stop had no effect except to make the driver step on the gas and the car shot away from him while he was wheeling around to take up the chase. Gun play had no effect except to increase the speed and they tore along the road until they shot past the place where the other car was laid up with a curious crowd around it and Officer Stephens on guard. He mounted his motorcycle and joined in the chase, which ended when Officer Comstock put a bullet into the gasoline tank near Eli Pothier's store although both rear tires and one front tire had previously gone flat with the bullets.

Besides the shots into the tires and tank, one bullet had gone through the two spare tires and into the body and another had splashed against the body just where it joins the top. One rear tire came off, the rim when a bullet hit it.

The three men in this car were brought to police headquarters by Officer Comstock in the automobile of Justice of the Peace Walter Drew, accompanied by Constable Potter of Lisbon. At police headquarters, the officer charged Clancy, the driver, with being a man named Williams of New Haven, but Clancy stoutly denied this. McLaman pleaded not to be put into a cell, saying that he was not engaged in the business, but had merely gone on the ride for a little excitement. It was agreed that he had got what he was looking for.

When asked to produce his operator's license Clancy admitted to Capt. Twomey that he had none.

The five men are to be presented before Justice of the Peace Drew in Lisbon this (Friday) morning at 11 o'clock.

While at police headquarters the driver of the first car, Chieppo, was allowed to telephone to someone in New Haven. "We're pinched," was his message. In response to an inquiry from the other end his answer was: "They've got us and the stuff," and to another question he responded "They shot the tires."

According to the state police, three of the men captured have reputations as the most notorious rum-runners of New Haven.

Claims Officer Shot Him.

When Officer Comstock returned to the second car after locking the three men up, he was met by Joseph Dayon of Plainfield, who was carrying his bandaged left hand in a sling, and the Plainfield man charged the officer with having shot him.

Dayon had been to Dr. Harry J. McLaughlin in Jewett City where his hand had been bandaged and was on his way to the Backus hospital with a friend. According to Dayon, he had been towing the first captured car back towards Jewett City and when near there the officer on a motorcycle had fired three shots at him. The first, he said, hit him in the hand, the second went through his hair, and he couldn't tell where the third went as he ducked down into the seat to get out of the way.

The surprised officer took Dayon's report and offered him assistance, but this was already taken care of Dayon was brought to the hospital in an automobile by two of his friends.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED FOR PLAYGROUND WORK

Teachers of the Norwich playgrounds met Thursday morning with Superintendent Earle E. Brigham at his office in the court house and carefully went over plans for the remaining weeks of the season. The following committees were appointed: Industrial work, Miss Dodd, Miss Farrell and Miss Shugrue; dramatics, Miss Dodd, Miss Farrell and Miss Blackledge; boxing, John Murphy; track and field, Matt Sheridan and Charles Corcoran; physical training, Edward Sullivan.

It was decided at the meeting to have playground colors and the following were elected by the eight playgrounds: Lake street, blue and white; Hobart avenue, red and white; Greeneville, green and white; Thamesville, red and gold; Laurel Hill, orange and black; East Side, blue and and gold; Falls, black and white.

It was announced that a weekly meeting of the instructors will be held every Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. The boxing matches at Greeneville have been attracting considerable attention. The regular three round bouts which are being conducted by Instructor Edward Sullivan are creating considerable interest at this playground and bid fair to become a popular sport.

PROPOSED WINDHAM HOUSE IN HANDSOME DRAWING

In the First National bank, Putnam, is a drawing made by an eminent New York architect, Herbert Loud, depicting his conception of what the Windham House dormitory at Connecticut college should be, says the Windham County Observer.

It is of Colonial type, very attractive and it is hoped that it will be the first of a Colonial group of houses at the college.

Mr. Loud designed the interiors of the Biltmore and Commodore hotels and the drawing, a voluntary offering by him to the committee which has the raising of the fund in charge, will undoubtedly receive favorable consideration.

Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins of Norwich, who has foregone all plans for a summer vacation in order to help in the campaign to secure the money, was in Putnam Monday and is very sanguine of the success of the efforts of the committee.

There is one feature that will appeal strongly to donors to the fund—and that is that every dolar given will be devoted to construction work.

Engagement Announced.

Announcement was made Thursday of the engagement of Miss Cipa Rosenberg of 149 Broadway to Reuben Taylor of Hartford.

CONNECTICUT IS FREE FROM RABIES IN DOGS

With one exception, Connecticut has been free from rabies in dogs and other animals since the first of the year, a statement issued by Commissioner on Domestic Animals James M. Whittlesey shows. The past four months have been without trace of the disease, showing that the prevention work carried on by the department under the direction of Chief Special Deputy Howard A. Elliott is proving effective. The only case occurring during the year to date, was in March, when an imported dog from a nearby state was found to have developed the disease.

Requests to the domestic animals department from town clerks for supplemental dog tags also indicate that there is a large increase at this time in the number of dogs registered in the state.

During June the number of dogs captured aggregated 653. Of this number 486 were killed, and 110 were redeemed by the owners. Thirty-six dog owners were prosecuted for violation of the law.

In connection with the situation in Connecticut Commissioner Whittlesey called attention to the fact that Colorado was recently the scene of a serious outbreak of rabies in cattle—an infrequent disease for these animals. On a single ranch approximately 50 head of cattle died of the disease, before some 300 coyotes were killed. Examination of the coyotes showed many to have been infected with rabies.

ZION CHURCH CELEBRATES PARSONAGE ANNIVERSARY

The parsonage of the A. M. E. Zion church at 14 Grove Place was the scene of an anniversary celebration Thursday evening, the occasion being the postponed celebration of the fifth anniversary of the purchasing of the house for the parsonage of the church.

Rev. Dixon A. Brown, pastor of the church, received his guests throughout the evening and was called upon for brief remarks, to which he responded, outlining the fine work of his parishioners since acquiring the property five years ago. By the loyal support and assistance of friends outside the church, he said, they succeeded in clearing the parsonage of all mortgage in a little over three years after its purchase.

Entertainment was provided during the evening a number of the church people favoring with solos and readings. Refreshmenst were also served. The committee in charge of the fifth anniversary celebration comprised members of the Friendly Hands club, led by Mrs. Mary Reives, president.

The parsonage purchased on July 10, 1919, was before that time the property of Mrs. Sadie Hill, Rev. W. D. Francis being pastor of the A. M. E. Zion church at that time. Shortly afterwards Rev. Mr. Francis resigned his pastorate and from 1920 until June, 1923, Rev. F. A. Lusan was pastor of the church.

Rev. Dixon A. Brown, the present pastor, took up his pastoral duties in June, 1923 and shortly afterwards a campaign was launched to clear the property from all debt, and in December of that year Rev. Mr. Brown and his congregation had the great pleasure of holding the mortgage burning.

The A. M. E. Zion church, which is little less than 50 years established in this city, has grown steadily and the membership is now 42 in the church, with 35 on the rolls of the church school. There are also many other people who attend the church who are not enrolled as active church members.

It is interesting to note that July has played a prominent part in the history of the A. M. E. Zion church. On July 10, 1919, the parsonage was purchased and this year sees the celebration of the fifth anniversary, and the first anniversary of the burning of the mortgage, the drive for which was started in July, culminating in December with the mortgage burning. On July 28, 1874 the corner stone of the A. M. E. Zion church was laid on McKinley avenue. The sermon was preached by the Right Reverend J. J. Clinton, and a lecture delivered the same evening by the Rev. S. A. Dyson. Rev. S. A. Mitchell also officiated. All friends of the society, both white and colored later attended the benefit for the church given at Treadway hall.

WILL BUILD HOSPITAL AT ODD FELLOWS' HOME

New London, July 17.—Plans for the new hospital to be constructed at the Odd Fellows' home in Groton, were advanced today when a committee of five prominent members met at the home and discussed bids, plans and specifications. At the meeting of the board of managers of the home last Saturday the committee was instructed to prepare to receive bids for the construction of the building. The meeting today was for this purpose. The bids will be submitted at the next quarterly meeting of the board of managers in October. Contractors will be notified that the plans will be ready for bids September 1. All bids are to be in and the books will be closed October 1. The bids will be opened by the committee October 2 and presented to the board of managers the second Saturday in October.

The hospital when completed will be up to date and fireproof and will contain 70 beds. It will be one unit of four buildings to be built in connection with the present home at Groton. It is not believed, however, that the other three units will be needed for several years to come. The building planned will cost approximately $250,000.

The members of the committee who attended the meeting today are: Herbert J. Phillips, superintendent of the Odd Fellows' home in Groton; Philip Pond, New Haven; Charles J. Fowler, Thompsonville; Dorr R. Whitney, Bridgeport, and Harry Hirsch, of New London.

WILL PROVIDE SANDBOXES FOR SEVEN PLAYGROUNDS

It was decided to put sandboxes in seven of the local playgrounds at a meeting of the recreation committee, held Thursday evening in the rooms in the courthouse. The meeting was called to order by Chairman William Fitzgerald and considerable routine business was transacted.

In discussing sand boxes it was pointed out that they would be a fine addition to the playgrounds and the vote to place them at seven playgrounds followed. It was also decided to install a bubbler (drinking fountain) at the Greeneville playgrounds and to have afternoon and evening sessions at the Falls and Laurel Hill playgrounds.

Present at the meeting were William Fitzgerald, M. Frank Leonard, Mrs. James Drew and Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury, members of the recreation committee, and Earl C. Brigham, playgrounds supervisor.

FISHED AUTO KEYS FROM NORWICH SEWER

People on Franklin Square about 11.30 o'clock Thursday night were treated to the sight of a Jewett City young man doing a nose dive into the sewer manhole in front of Selias restaurant. A friend of his had juggled two automobile keys so cleverly as to allow them to fall into the sewer and not being able to start his car the young man stripped for action and with his hands bailed a considerable amount of refuse out of the sewer, being kept from pitching into the sewer head-first by two husky friends who parked on his legs.

If some passer-by, interested in the hunt for the keys, had not poked about in the refuse on the ground and found the missing keys, it is likely that the young man would have continued his pleasant task until the early morning hours. As it was he suffered the loss of a perfectly good suit of B. V. Dees, and his best suit smelled loudly of the always pleasant essence of sewerage.

CONNECTICUT WILL BE STRONG FOR COOLIDGE

New England will go as strong for Coolidge and Dawes in November as it did for Harding and Coolidge in 1920 in the opinion of Senator Frank B. Brandegee of this state who was twice in conference with President Coolidge at Washington Wednesday.

In the first call that the senator from Connecticut made at the executive mansion he was alone, and was asked to the White House as one of a number of prominent leaders to impart to the president their ideas as to the situation. Others who called upon the president for the same reason as did Senator Brandegee were Raymond Benjamin of San Francisco, who was state chairman in California for six years prior to 1922 and who had general charge of republican activities in that state, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and Idaho in the 1920 campaign; Representative Vare, a republican leader in Pennsylvania; Carmi Thompson, one of the Coolidge preconvention campaign managers and a party leader in Ohio, and Representative McLaughlin of Nebraska.

All of the visitors reported hopeful conditions in their sections.

On Senator Brandegee's second visit to the White House he accompanied Secretary of War Weeks, who had just returned from a vacation trip to Massachusetts. The situation in New England was again discussed, particular stress being laid on Maine. There is an old political adage to the effect that "as Maine goes, so goes the nation," but the president was assured by Secretary Weeks and Senator Brandegee that Maine was safe for him. Considerable time was also occupied in a discussion of the situation in New York state. New York is expected by the republican management to be one of the real battlegrounds of the campaign with the issue there to be decided in a measure by the preference of the business interests as between President Coolidge and Mr. Davis.

"Connecticut as it now appears will furnish the same ratio in favor of Coolidge and Dawes as the rest of New England," Senator Brandegee said.

WILL GIVE NORWICH CHANCE TO APPEAR

Decision on the petition of New London and Norwich residents for the deepening of the Thames river between Allyn's Point and Norwich from its present depth of 14 feet to one of 18 feet was withheld at a meeting of the board of engineers of the rivers and harbors division of the army engineering corps Wednesday afternoon at Washington.

Conflicting recommendations were given the board by District Engineer Major V. L. Peterson of Providence and Division Engineer Col. Newcomer of New York, and it was decided to invite the petitioners to a hearing to be given at some future board meeting. Major Peterson favored the project. The date of the hearing is left largely up to the petitioners, although there will be another board meeting about the middle of August and it was assumed that they would be present at that time.

The cost of the project is estimated at something more than $300,000.

YALE'S CREW CLINCHES WORLD'S ROWING HONORS IN MATCHLESS STYLE

Argenteuil, France, July 17.—(By the A. P.)—Sweeping all before it with matchless power and precision, Yale's mighty varsity crew raced to a smashing triumph in the eight-oared Olympic final today and clinched the international rowing championship for the United States.

The brilliant young college eight, rising to the greatest height of its career with the final outcome of the regatta at stake sped across the finish line amid tumultuous acclaim three and a half lengths ahead of the gallant but badly beaten Canadian crew, while Italy and Great Britain, which had been expected to give the Americans their hardest fight for the laurels, were third and fourth, thoroughly conquered under the terrific pace set by the victors.

While Yale gained the most coveted of all the rowing championships for the United States and the veteran Philadelphians, Kelly and Costello, swept to a double sculls victory in defense of the title they won four years ago, American prestige sustained a stunning set-back when W. E. Grant Gilmore, of the Pennsylvania Barge club, the top heavy favorite, was decisively beaten by Jack Beresford, Jr., England, for the single sculls crown.

This defeat came on top of the disappointing showing the Americans made in the pair oared race without Corzelius and Great Britain captured the four-oared event also without a stroke from either event.

Despite intermittent showers and a brisk headwind, which undoubtedly prevented several course records from being broken, all seven of the final events today witnessed stirring competition that thrilled a crowd of probably 25,000 which filled the bleachers opposite the finish line and spread along both banks of the fine and picturesque course.

But interesting as were the opening events, one of which was the pair oared with corzwain in which Switzerland gained a two-foot victory over Italy after a nip and tuck finish, the crowd had come to see the widely heralded young American college crew match brawn and speed with rivals from far corners of the earth.

The spectators were not disappointed, for Yale rowed its greatest triumph in a colorful setting in which the Blue of Old Eli supplied the typical college flavor to the occasion, mingled with the hues of Old Glory.

When the eight-oared crews paddled to the starting line, the crowd leaned forward even more expectantly because of the fact that the United States at this juncture, trailing Switzerland by nine points and Great Britain by one point, needed first place in the eight oared event to carry off the regatta honors.

All four shells got away perfectly when the starting gun was fired. The British crew, rowing a speedy stroke, quickly nosed out in front and was leading at the 500 metre mark, with Canada, Italy and the United States closely bunched in the order named.

Nearing the thousand metre post Stroke A. D. Lindley of the Yale crew hailed for the first spurt, and the blue eight, raising their smooth, easy drive to a beat of thirty-five to the minute shot out in front, leading Italy by half a length, with Canada and Great Britain another length in the rear.

From that point onward it was a conquering march for the Americans, who steadily widened their margin, notwithstanding desperate challenges from the Italians and Canadians.

In the last half of the race resolved itself into a fight for second place, in which the Canadians, three and a half lengths behind the victors, outsprinted the Italians to win the runner-up position by half a length, with the Britons another length behind.

As the Americans swept over the finish line they were greeted with tumultuous cheering, the Yale yell and a special tribute from a little knot of American midshipmen whose enthusiasm reminded the spectators of the American navy's great triumph in the event four years ago.

FIRST HITLESS GAME BY ST. LOUIS PITCHER SINCE 1876

New York, July 17.—Jess Haines' feat in holding the Boston Braves down without a hit or a run today is the 14th no-hit, no-run game to be pitched in the National league since the organization of the Elder circuit, according to available records of the league. And furthermore, it is the first one to be hurled by a St. Louis pitcher since George Washington Bradley, now a Philadelphia police officer, pitched a no-hit no-run game against the Hartford nationals in St. Louis on July 15, 1876 the year the National league was organized.

Haines' game, like Bradley's cannot be termed a perfect game as in both contests players of the defeated team reach first and second bases.

HAINES PITCHES NO-HIT GAME AGAINST BRAVES

St. Louis, Mo., July 17.—Pitching a no-hit game, Jess Haines of the St. Louis Cardinals, shut out the Boston Braves today, 5 to 0, before a crowd of 15,000 drawn by a tuberculosis society benefit. This was the first time a Cardinal had pitched a no-hit game since 1876, and it was believed to have been the first in the major leagues this season. Haines fanned five men, and walked three. Two Braves died on first base, while another expired on second reaching there when two passes were issued in the sixth inning. The Cardinals pitcher received excellent support. The score:

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

The batter up is a left-handed hitter. The pitcher is going to throw him a fast ball.

Where should the second baseman play?

Under such conditions the second baseman should always play near second base as left-handed hitters do not pull a fast ball very much, unless the ball as pitched, strikes the handle of his bat. Such a pitch is usually hit safely.

Lake Street Beats West Siders

At the Academy Campus on Thursday evening the Lake street seniors took a hard and well-played game from the West Side Seniors, 5 to 4. Jim Shea, St. Patrick's star moundsman, pitched for the Lake Streeters and fanned 8 men. He also hit well getting a triple which counted in the score. Marks was also a hitting star of the game. Elizabeth St. Wins From Greeneville

In a game interrupted continually by rain Elizabeth street won from Greeneville by a score of 16 to 12. —Both teams played splendid baseball and the outcome was in doubt until the final out was made. Coulash did some fine pitching for Elizabeth street. Score:

EPINARD'S REAL TEST IS AGAINST BLACK GOLD

New York, July 17.—The entries of Black Gold, Zev, Ordinance and Ladkin are among those received by the jockey club for the mile and a quarter race at Latonia on Oct. 11 in which Epinard, crack French thoroughbred, will be featured, it was announced late today.

Epinard's meeting with Black Gold outstanding contender for the American three year old crown this season, will be the real test of the French crack's appearances in this country, the dates for which were announced today.

Tennis Matches Postponed

Boston, July 17.—For the first time in the history of the Longwood Bowl tennis singles competition the fifth round and semi-final matches will be at best two in three sets when play is resumed tomorrow forenoon. A terrific rain and wind storm caused postponement of all matches this afternoon and after a conference with the players the referee announced that the regulations calling for best three out of five sets would be waived until the finals.

MASKED MARVELS WILL INVADE THE EAST SIDE AGAIN THIS EVENING

Kid Mystery will take the count tonight at the Duwell field when for once and forever the Masked Marvels-East End case will be finally solved and the Masked Marvels will pass into oblivion. About a month ago the Marvels showed their hand for the first time by delivering anonymous notes challenging the East Ends to a baseball game which was played on Monday June 30. The curiosity of over 2,500 people was aroused and they swarmed to the Duwell field to see what it was all about, but when six innings had been played no one was any wiser as to who they were, as they came, played and defeated the East Ends heavily masked all during the game. The only information anyone received was that Dynamite pitched, Nitro Glycerine caught, Arsenic played first, Diphtheria second Iodine short stop, Carbolic acid third base, with Small Pox, Exzima and Asthma running wild in the field.

For the next few weeks nothing was said or heard of the Masked Marvels until this week Tuesday when once again the hooded terrors again ran amuck on the Duwell field during the East End-Nugget game and amidst a fusillade of shot, six persons all bearing fiery torches dashed wildly onto the field and one who acted as their leader hurled a missile onto the field which proved to be a message from one signed as the Hooded Terror, manager of Masked Marvels which spoke of rage, blood and other bewildering words which always fit in whenever mystery is found. While on other occasions whenever they put in their appearance is was in a quiet mood, this time it was in such a bloodmanner that it would raise the hair on even the bald. Again the East Side which had just gotten over the first shock was thrown into turmoil, in despair and wonder as to why anyone should pick on its fair lads to practice their obscure doing. But as in the days of old the youthfull knights of the East Side bravely surged to the front and as did David in the day of Golith and unflinching except their challenge, tonight's game being the result.

As all the worlds great mysteries are solved so shall this one be tonight as the Masked Marvels shall discard their masks at the end of the third inning and the umpire shall introduce each individually, first each one of the ball players, then the deliverer of those terrible messages, and last of all the hooded terror and once again our fair city shall rest in peace.

Speculation is running high as to who these marvels can be, nearly everyone in the city being suspected of having a hand in it, and what a surprise it shall be to all those if it should turn out as dame rumor has it and the golden locks of some of the female sex tumble from underneath the masks and hoods as they are removed, but whoever they are or may their intentions be, not until the game is over and the crowd dispersed shall the pulses of the East Side residents beat normally again.

Hardigs Have No Claim

Norwich, Conn,
July 17, 1924

Sporting Editor,
Sir:—

I noticed in this morning's issue of the Bulletin, that the manager of the Hardigs, has entered a protest because the manager of the West Ends would not throw in a new ball. Does the manager of the Hardigs know the rules of baseball? It may be a rule of the Twilight league, that each team furnish a new ball, but the organized rules of baseball say that the home club shall furnish all balls, and the Hardigs were the home club last evening. Again in the first or second inning, the catcher of the Hardigs quit the game, because of the listless playing of his teammates, and later on appeared again in the game. Does the manager of the Hardigs know that he violated a rule of the game in allowing a player to return to the game when he was once out of it? If there was any protest coming over last night's game, it was coming to the West Ends. As a lover of baseball, and a spectator at all of the games of the twilight league, I would like to call to the attention of the manager of the Hardigs to the fact that there are no duly appointed umpires for the league, and agreed upon by both clubs, and as far as I have been able to see, the umpiring of games has been very fair and no team has been discriminated against. I have noticed that on several occasions the manager of the Hardigs has been in the stands and has taken great delight in "Razzing the umpire" and such "Razzing" has made it impossible to secure umpires who under ordinary conditions would be glad to render the league their services. Would the manager of the Hardigs volunteer to umpire any baseball game in the twilight league that his team was not participating in? I think not, then why place the blame for a defeat on some other individual that he would not like to shoulder himself When the "Razzing" of umpires is stopped by players and spectators alike, then the league might be able to secure the services of qualified umpires.

FAIRPLAY
Norwich, Conn.

Eagles Beat Thermos

There was a large attendance at the Fair Grounds Thursday evening when the first game of a three game series was played between the Eagles and Thermos teams, which the Eagles won, 10 to 7.

From the start it seemed to be easy going for the Eagles but in the fourth the Thermos boys finally found Peterson and with loose fielding on the Eagles part the Thermos piled up a score of seven runs.

The last three innings were in 1, 2, 3 order on both sides.

The outstanding feature of the game was the wonderful showing made by the Eagles' captain, John Oney, who made a three base hit in the fourth and a home run in the sixth.

Second game to be played next Thursday, July 24.

TAFTVILLE VS. DUWELLS AT EAST SIDE ON SUNDAY

To top off a most interesting week of baseball at the Duwell field, the Taftville and Norwich series will start, the first game to be played Sunday. Every year the games between these two teams have created much interest and put the baseball fans on pins and needles as to the outcome.

In previous years both teams have been represented by league players who came here with the sole intention of getting what was in it, the result being a couple of good games and a lot of poor ones, but this year both teams will be composed of players who have played all season for the honor of the team and not the almighty dollar, which always creates intense rivalry no matter where it is.

Taftville has played all the teams in this vicinity and has done themselves credit, while the Duwell team has played six games and only lost one to Moosup, whom they defeated last Sunday 11 to 7. Both teams are composed of promising youngsters who are well known to all the baseball fans in this vicinity.

The Duwell team will present the same lineup that has played the last four games, with Tim Coughlin at first, Barry at second, McInness at short, Whitney at third, and Bill Smith, Sheffiotte and Ringland in the field. Daniels will do the twirling and Joe Belair the receiving, with Simcox, Ellsworth and Mulhollnad as substitutes. The Taftville manager will present his lineup in tomorrow's paper, but has already announced that Davis, his old standby, considered one of the best slab artists in this territory, will pitch, and Bill Liberty will catch.

VELVETMEN CLASH WITH MOOSUP TEAM SUNDAY

One of the biggest attractions of the season will be on Sunday, when the J. B. Martin team clashes with the fast Moosup A. A. at the J. B. Martin grounds. This is to be the first game of the series and no doubt a record breaking attendance will be on hand to witness one of the best games in this part of the state. The Moosup aggregation needs no introduction to the fans, having played practically all of the semi-pro teams of eastern Connecticut and also coming out at the large end of the scores.

The Velvetmen have been put through a stiff workout this week and after beating Riverview last week have confidence in themselves and also think that they can do the same to the Moosup boys. Moosup is composed of some fast ball tossers, Allard of Plainfield, Hugh Harrel of Sub-Base, Mills of State Hospital, Moore of Sub-Base, Burns, Sub-Base, Kendricks, Ware, Mass., Striker, Fuchette and Noel and a few other real stars. The J. B. Martins will line up as follows: J. Murphy c, Morin p, J. Jubert 1b, Cardin 2b, F. Gley 3b, Decelles ss, B. Gley, E. Murphy, E. Joubert and Eccleston will take care of the outfield. Game to b called at 3.15 p. m. (D. S. T.).

AMERICAN BOXERS GET FOUR STRAIGHT WINS

Paris, July 17.—(By The A. P.)—With the victory in the welterweight divison of Al Mello, of Lowell, Mass., over Christensen of Norway, this evening, the United States boxers tallied four straight wins in the Olympic competition. Two of these were knockouts.

Mello put the Norwegian away in the first round.

Hugh Haggerty, American welterweight outclassed Ertmanski, of Poland punishing him so badly that the referee stopped the bout in the second round.

The Pittsburgh lightweight Boylstein disposed of the British lightweight Shorter, the bout ending in the third round, with the American getting the popular decision.

In the lightweight division, Ben Rochwell of New York won the decision over Graham of Canada.

In the Welterweight division Mendez, Argentina, won from Petersen, Denmark.

In the same class Santoro of Argentina was defeated on points by Stauffer of Switzerland.

Ben Funk, Yale University, also in this class, lost to Beecken of Belgium. Gallardo of Argentina lost to Brousse, France, on points.

U. S. SWIMMERS LEAD IN NATIONS IN OLYMPICS

Les Tourelles, France, July 17.—(By The A. P.)—The United States leads the world in the Olympic swimming competition after the completion of the fifth day having won 66 points to Australia's 26. France stands third with 12, Great Britain 11, Sweden 8, Belgium 5, Switzerland, Japan and New Zealand 2 each.

Albert C. White, Pete Des Jardins and Clarence Pinkston, America's peerless divers, were responsible for 18 points finishing first, second and third in the springboard fancy diving event, while skelton and Kirschbaum added 14 more points, finishing first and third respectively in the final of the 200 metres breast stroke.

The Misses Becker, Reigging and Fletcher, Americans, qualified for the final in the springboard fancy diving while John Weismuller will carry the entire burden of American hopes in the 400 metres free style. The corrected time showed that Lester Smith, United States, had failed to qualify.

Weismuller, Charlton, of Australia, Arne Borg, and Ake Borg, of Sweden, and Hatfield of Great Britain, are the finalists in the 400 metres, while Kealoha, and Wyatt, United States, Bartha, Hungary, Bilts, Belgium, and Rawlinson, England, have qualified for the final in the 100 metres backstroke, which will be run off tomorrow.

ARTICLES SIGNED FOR WALKER-LEONARD BOUT

New York, July 17.—Articles of agreement for a 12-round no-decision contest between Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J., world's welterweight champion, and Benny Leonard of New York, world's lightweight titleholder, to be held in Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City on Thursday evening, August 21, were signed today by the two principals and Tex Rickard, the promoter. TASK IS TO BUILD UP; NOT TO TEAR DOWN

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

I think I have noticed, at various times and under varying circumstances, a certain tendency on the part of some of my rural neighbors to be just a little bit ashamed of what I must call, for lack of a better word, their rurality. I'll try to make clear what I mean by one or two concrete illustrations.

When one of his city friends calls on Neighbor Waterhouse and finds hims in the barnyard loading manure, in old overalls and a pair of well-greased cowhide boots of the olden time, Neighbor Waterhouse almost invariably apologizes for not having on his Sunday-go-to-meetin' duds and shiny-polished shoes.

When her beribboned and gewgawed city niece calls on Mrs. Waterhouse, that good woman welcomes her effusively, but secretly wishes she had known of the visit beforehand, so she could have hidden the old plush family photograph album, and changed the comfortable, but scandalously worn old rocker for a highly varnished chair from "the best room." Also, she wishes sincerely that she hadn't been caught washing dishes in her old gingham apron and with her hands reddened with the dish-water.

Now, far be it from me to disparage shiny boots and immaculate cuffs and starched linen and dustless furniture and fluffy gowns. They are all right in their places.—which are not the manure heap nor the back kitchen. They would be as out of place there as greased cowhide boots would be at a formal dinner party, followed by a dance. When the farmer is on his farm and engaged in his farm's work, he would be a goose to wear any but clothes appropriate for and suitable to that work. Nor is there anything to feel ashamed of in them.

It is the same in matters of more consequence. When Neighbor Waterhouse goes to town, he feels quite a little ashamed of the perfectly natural curiosity which makes him want to see all there is in the alluring show windows of the stores, and stare wonderingly at the rising walls of some new sky scraper. He catches himself doing one or the other of these things and immediately glances around shamefacedly to see if anybody has noticed his "countrified" behavior.

There you have it. He and some others who live in the country and make occasional visits to the city, are just a wee tiny bit ashamed of the fact that they are countrymen and want to delude passers, if possible, into the idea that they are just as "citified" as the next fellow.

I'd be really glad if some one would tell me just why they should feel and act that way.

Of course, they are a bit awkward in traffic. They are not quite sure what is the conventional thing to do in various city conditions. Why should they be? We all know that no "Uncle Rube" from the back roads of Wayback is any more awkward or ridiculous in the city than the city-born and city-bred man is in the country. Yet he, as a rule, manifests no sense of shame when he tries to get water from the lane pump without first "priming" it, or essays to milk a cow by sitting down on the wrong side, or, being told that it is time to "brush" the peas, sets out to do this with a whisk broom.

I don't know any farmer who is really, down in the bottom of his heart, ashamed of being a farmer. Why in the name of common sense, then, should he feel shame of the farm and its ways? His work is certainly as honorable and his functions certainly as important as those of any drygoods salesman or bank clerk. They are different. They call for different handling. They involve differences of dress and the use of different tools. That's all. The bookkeeper's pen is an essential tool of his trade, but it would be a mighty poor one to dig potatoes with,—as futile as the farmer's dung-fork would to keep books with.

The late James Russell Lowell once wrote an essay of biting sarcasm, On a Certain Condescension in Foreigners. Have any of us, I wonder, ever noted any suggestion of a certain condescension in city folks? I own up that I don't think it is usual or even common. But I have noted, and wish I had Lowell's power of sarcasm in description, a certain deference in some country people towards city ways and city conditions which is, in my mind, as uncalled for as the other thing would be.

Why on earth should the pot call the kettle black? Or the "outside white" paint complain because it isn't quite as shiny as the "inside white" on interior woodwork? There are white stars and red stars and blue stars and yellow stars in the sky. Some are said to be a thousand times bigger than our sun and much hotter: some asteroids are hardly as big as pebbles and colder than chunks of ice. There's room for all sorts and shapes and sizes in the infinite universe.

There's room on this broad earth for many sorts of men and many conditions of life. It's mighty fortunate for us, that the moon isn't as big and hot as Canopus. And there's no reason why the Man in the Moon should be ashamed because it isn't. "Each in its own strict line they move" and that line is eternally the best line for both—and all the rest of the universe.

The city has its advantages and its conveniences. Let's grant them all without demur. Don't omit to mention in the same breath that the country has its advantages and conveniences. We can properly enough admit that it's "nip and tuck" in any argument between them. Why get into an argument at all? Let the shoemaker stick to his last and the bookkeeper to his pen and the farmer to his hoe. Neither one is a tool of inferiority or a cause for shame.

Nor has the farm any reason to rank itself behind the shop or the office. Nor the farmhouse any excuse for considering itself less desirable than the city apartment.

There is no pretext for us country folks showing rudeness or bumptiousness, either among ourselves or before others. There is just as little excuse for our taking any back seat. It's a dirty bird that fouls its own nest. Just at present, because of the too widespread tendency cityward, we may be justified in squaring our shoulders and sticking out our elbows a leetle beyond the normal in standing up for our fair share of the road and our equal rights in the sunlight.

I was much struck, while recently reading Walter H. Page's Life and Letters, by one letter which he wrote to President Wilson as long ago as Nov. 27, 1912, while he was ambassador to England. May I quote a single paragraph?

"The building up of the country is the big constructive job of our time. When the countryman comes to his own, the town man will no longer be able to tax, and to concentrate power, and to bully the world."

Walter H. Page was not a country-man. Before he became ambassador he had been editor of The Atlantic Monthly and partner in a big New York publishing house. Yet he was an American before he was a city man. And he saw the handwriting on the wall. What he saw and translated we real countrymen need not be chary in repeating.

He was absolutely and highly right. We farmers are just now sore at a one-sided deflation which robs us of our earnings to pay unearned bonuses to city workmen. But that deflation is only one symptom of a deeper-lying evil. Our despoilers are pillaging us because they look upon us as "easy marks," and because they think they can "get away with it."

They think that largely because we have let them think it. We have kowtowed and salaamed before them till they seem to take it for granted we haven't any spunk of our own left.

This has got to stop or be stopped, if we don't want to bust up. The country, meaning thereby the farming and cognate interests of the open-lands, has got to be built up to its proper stature. That is, as Mr. Page truly said, the big constructive job of the time. Until it is accomplished our national progress will become more and more one-sided, uneven, zig-zag, till it wobbles us all into the ditch.

Toward the accomplishment of that end we country dwellers have a part to take and a work to do. The first thing is that we've got to stop coveting the city resident's advantages and begin appreciating our own. Not only begin appreciating them, but begin understanding them and banking on them and asserting them. Let us issue a new Declaration of Independence asserting our fixed determination to assume among the on-looking cities of the land that equal and independent station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitles us. Why not?

There's no visible reason why we should be scared or over humble. A good many roads look impassable till we start out on them. Then they are found not so bad as they seemed. A good many Jerichos have walls that give one the sense of impregnability, till someone blows a few ram's horns around them. Then they tumble flat.

Moreover, in the assertion of rural equality, we shall have no little sympathy and assistance from within the cities themselves. We all know of many men in even the biggest cities who look back to their country birthplaces with increasing longings. We know, too, many who look on the city as merely a workshop from whose whir and clamor they hope to escape to a saner and wholesomer life in the country. Never fear but we shall find allies among such.

Mind you, I counsel no anti-city drive, nor will I consent to join any such. Our task is to build up, not to tear down: to attack no city, but to defend our country birthrights.

The trouble with some of us is that we have allowed the case to go by default. We have not understood the strength of our own side, and have been somewhat overborne by the flood of brag in which the other party has set his advantages forth. If we take stock, coolly and sanely, we shall find that, on the whole, the country has just as good a right to hold its head up as the city, and to hold it quite as high.

I had the honor one day last fall, briefly to maintain this position before the New London Pomona Grange. It seemed to meet with approval there. This Talk is simply an enlargement of that, and is based on the desire to give the suggestion an even wider circulation.

Wagner's lovely "Album Leaf," in Wilhelmj's arrangement for the violin, coupled with Ries's "Gondoliera," and played with consummate skill and beauty by a great artist. Records that speak volumes for the fidelity of Victor recording.

Lucrezia Borgia—Vieni la mia vendetta (Hasten Thee, for Vengeance) (Donizetti) In Italian — José Mardones
Pipelè—Questa notte mentre a letto (At Night While Sleeping) (De Fenzi) In Italian — José Mardones — 6456 — 2.00

Two bass numbers from Italian operas, one tragic, one comic, by this very great artist. They are sung with true splendor of style, by a voice that has known few rivals. If you never have heard a great bass operatic record, here is a surprise for you.

Light Vocal Selections

Love's First Kiss — Della Baker
Out of the Dusk to You — Della Baker — 19335 — .75

Love-songs in semi-popular style; neither commonplace nor obscure, but impassioned and beautiful. Sung with intensely living sympathy. Both are by women composers. Emotion is written, composed and sung into them—and perfectly recorded by the Victor process.

Just for Remembrance — Elliott Shaw
Just Some Roses — Lewis James — 19358 — .75

Two charming numbers sung with a robustness of sentiment that is refreshing. The second has a fascinating interlude in which violin and 'cello are most prominent. The Victor kind of semi-popular records that every one enjoys.

Hard Times — Eddie Hunter
Mamie — Eddie Hunter — 19359 — .75

New song-records by this famous colored specialist in human tribulation. "Hard Times" and his troubles with "Mamie" between them make an unusual offering. Eddie Hunter can put a lot of humor into a song, and these records present his songs just as he sings them.

Melodious Instrumental

On the Mall—March — The Goldman Band
The Pioneer—March — The Goldman Band — 19363 — .75

Two brilliant, cleanly played marches for the brass band. Both are compositions of the conductor's. The first one, with special whistling features by Carson Robison, is dedicated to the Goldman Band's immense audiences in Central Park, New York. These records will give delight to still greater audiences.

Dance Records

That's the Tune—Fox Trot (from the New Century Revue "Vogues") — Charles Dornberger and His Orchestra
Tropical Palms—Fox Trot — 19360 — .75

A highly melodious fox trot from the New Century Revue, and a soft, dreamy, languorous one from Russian-Oriental melodies. Both are finely played and easily danced to as presented on these records.

Lonely Little Wallflow'r—Fox Trot — The Benson Orchestra of Chicago
Worryin' Blues—Fox Trot — Philip Spitalny and His Orch. — 19361 — .75

Here is a pleasing combination of fox trots. The first number is gentle and melodious, while its companion is of the comic order. Both are up-to-the-moment in style. Superbly recorded numbers that will meet the approval of dancers everywhere.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

VALUE OF THINNING APPLES AND OTHER FRUITS

If an apple tree sets more fruit than it can mature well, the orchardist may find it will pay him to thin; a crop of good size and quality usually pays more profit than one of small and inferior fruit. Not all trees in an orchard may need thinning. Where the crop is light and well distributed over the bearing surface, thinning is unnecessary, but where the set is heavy, thinning should prove profitable.

From the experimental evidence at hand, proper thinning will not reduce the number of barrels or bushels which a tree will produce. The number of fruit on an overloaded tree may be reduced 25 or even as much as 50 per cent, depending on the vigor and the load the tree is carrying. Those which are left will ordinarily so increase in size that as many bushels will be matured as there would have been had the tree been unthinned.

Soon after the June drop, thinning should be started. Heavily loaded trees lacking in vigor should be thinned more than the very vigorous trees. Varieties which naturally produce large fruits should be thinned to a greater distance than the small growing kinds. With apples, the distance between fruits should range from six to nine inches, with pears and peaches from five to seven inches and with plums three to five inches.

A pair of small clippers or shears may be used. However, it may be done considerably faster by breaking off the young fruit with the fingers. All deformed and insect or fungus injured fruits should be removed. Only one fruit should be left on a spur, and these thinned to the desired distance.

MAKING HAY TO PROVIDE MOST NUTRIMENT

It is all right to make hay while the sun shines, but to make hay in too great haste is another matter. One county agricultural agent, is of the opinion that some stockmen put speed before quality. He says that careful tests have shown that perfectly-dried grass yields as much nutriment as fresh grass. In careless handling, however, he says that more nutriment may be lost than is gathered.

Weather conditions are important. With 13 days alternate wet and dry weather, meadow hay will lose one-fourth of its original nutritive value. Trials have shown that 40 per cent of the dry matter of clover hay can be extracted with cold water.

Clover and alfalfa should receive special attention. Every step is important. Too rapid drying and rough handling shatters the leaves and causes other losses. From 40 to 50 per cent of the weight of the alfalfa plant is in its leaves. The leaves carry four-fifths of the crude protein and more than one-half of the energy and fat of the plant.

One should strive for a bright green color and a good aroma. Save the leaves and produce a hay free from dust. In the process of curing, the water content of the hay is reduced to about 15 per cent on the average. Aromas are developed by the natural fermentations, and bleaching is likely to result. A fresh green color indicates that certain vitamines have not been destroyed. Bright color should be preserved if possible.

Hay making in the past has been pictured all the way from a romantic adventure to the lowest form of drudgery. In the light of present feeding practices, it is a complex problem requiring a full appreciation of both the scientific and practical difficulties involved.

Mosquito Bites

Apart from spoiling an otherwise enjoyable vacation often infect the blood. Itching and all fear of blood-poisoning ceases if MOONE'S EMERALD OIL is applied. To prevent the bites, spread a few drops over the exposed parts.

MYSTIC

Eight or ten fresh air children are to come to Mystic within the next two weeks and these will be placed among people of the Methodist church while some of the people of the Baptist church have contributed money for this work, instead of taking children into their homes. These children are sent here through the Tribune Fresh Air Fund of New York city; many of them come from homes which are in the crowded tenement districts and where there is a perpetual struggle for the bare necessities of life. The brief glimpse of an entirely different sort of existence from that to which they are accustomed is a great experience for these children during their two weeks' stay in the country. Some of the children who have come from these city homes in former years told of their breakfast consisting of a little condensed milk in a cup of hot water. It may mean a sacrifice of time, pleasure or a little money to help out in a cause of this kind but if there are those who cannot receive children into their own homes, a donation of money will help pay the board of these children in some other home and thus more children can have a little opportunity to breathe the pure country air for a time. Mrs. Ira C. Decker is general chairman for Mystic.

There was an attendance of 126 at the Methodist Sunday school picnic at Ocean Beach, New London, Wednesday. The trip from here was made by trolley by the majority of the company, although a few went by automobile. A basket lunch was eaten at noon and the day was full of the pleasures always to be found at the beach.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shaffer and two children of Miami, Florida, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gershom Whipple. The journey north was made by automobile and consumed about nine days, several stops being made en route.

The funeral of Oscar Floyd Chapman was held Thursday afternoon at his home on Water street. The service was conducted by Rev. J. G. Osborne, pastor of the Union Baptist church. Burial was in the Miner cemetery, at Miner's Corners, Quinebaug.

Oliver Denison is having his barn repaired and shingled.

Mr. and Mrs. Jabez Brook are moving from Greenmanville to Old Mystic where they will occupy the house recently purchased by them from Horace Williams.

Rev. W. N. Molten has returned to Stowe, Mass., after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Snell.

Thirty-nine attended the picnic of Phoebe Packer Rathbun Tent, Daughters of Veterans, Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Mary S. Benjamin, Rocky Ledge, on the Stonington road. The members left Mystic on the 2 o'clock car and spent the afternoon in enjoyment of the attractive grounds and the splendid view from the top of the hill. A delicious supper was served in the house.

Mrs. M. E. Colegrove of New London, was the guest Wednesday of her aunt, Mrs. E. V. Whiting.

Local gardeners are complaining of the dry state of the ground, which is a serious handicap in raising vegetables for market and makes everything backward and slow in maturing. Whenever there has been a shower lately it has been of short duration and the ground has quickly dried up again, which is discouraging to those who have large quantities of vegetables under cultivation.

PLAINFIELD

Mrs. Maurice King, of Washington, D. C., with her son, Maurice Jr., and Mrs. Thomas Welch of Taftville were entertained Wednesday at the home of their sister, Mrs. Daniel Connell.

About 300, including out of town people also, attended the second in the series of concerts Wednesday evening on the Community House lawn. The music was harmonious, especially the various solos. The program: Altogether Boys, march, Miller; Migonnette, overture, J. Baumann; Wild Flowers, waltzes, L. V. Gustin; Swinging Down the Lane, fox trot, Gus Kahn and Isham Jones; American Federation, overture, W. L. Skaggs; The Burgomaster, selection, W. H. Mackie; Smiles and Dimples, waltz, Miller; Sweet Old Songs, selection, C. W. Dalbey; Hoofprint, march, H. Miller; S. O. B. A., march, Hall.

Rev. William A. Keefe of Norwich was a caller in Plainfield Wednesday.

Mrs. Charles Seney, Ralph Dow and Arthur Seney and Arthur Holmes and son Arthur, Jr., attended the circus in Putnam Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mathewson and daughter, Francis, motored to Barrington, R. I., Wednesday. Mrs. Mathewson's aunt, Mrs. Charles Heath of Barrington will return with them to spend the summer.

Robert Sherhouse has completed his work in the Lawton Mills and has returned to his home in Cleveland, O.

Joseph Knarbie, a civil engineer has returned to Baltimore, Md., after being entertained by relatives here.

Edward Nygren and Rene Bergeron motored to Ocean Beach Wednesday.

Frank Fontaine has had his house renovated and painted recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kingsley of Willimantic, recently married, spent a few days at Mr. Kingsley's home in Plainfield before starting on their trip to California.

Napoleon La Barr of Taftville was entertained by his daughter, Mrs. Ovila Charron Thursday.

The Jolly Eight gave a surprise party to Mrs. Henry Fontaine of Pleasant street, Wednesday evening. As the date was Mrs. Fontaine's birthday, they gave her a casserole. After the presentation the company went to the veranda and played wheel and guessing games. Later in the evening cake and ice cream were served by Mrs. Fontaine. Those present were: Mrs. George Babcock, Mrs. Everett Dawley, Mrs. Everett Babcock, Mrs. Arthur Moffit, Mrs. Elmer Greene, Mrs. John Kingsley and Mrs. Jenks.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

While fishing off Fishers island, Captain Frank Thompson, of the New London, Conn., fishing fleet, landed a complete automobile chassis. It is thought that the machine may have been lost from one of the steamers that carry machines from that port to Australia.

The largest find of sapphires ever made in Ceylon is recorded from Pelmadulla, fifty miles from Colombo. All the gems have come from a small field about two acres in extent and include yellow, gold, purple and blue stones of from 20 to 700 karats. Some of them weigh half a pound and are worth large sums of money in the rough.

In the New York office of a company that conducts chain stores throughout the country are kept dummy store fronts. Every Wednesday night the window dressing in each of these is changed, and the next day a photograph is sent to the manager of 2,000 stores throughout the country, each of whom dresses his windows the same way, so that for the next week all of these chain stores have their windows dressed exactly alike.

Why some woods are more durable than others is a question which has apparently been answered for the first time by investigators at the forest service laboratory at Madison, Wis. They have found that woods that endure contain substances that when extracted by water are poisonous to the forms of bacteria and wood destroying fungi responsible for wood decay. These toxic substances are more abundant in the heartwood than in the sapwood, explaining the superior durability of wood taken from that part of the tree. The presence of these substances in the wood prevents the growth of the organisms which, if unchecked, would rapidly destroy it.

VARIED ACTIVITIES IN BACKUS HOSPITAL WORK

Activities at the Backus hospital are reported through the publicity committee of the hospital auxiliary as follows:

The chairman of the suburban committee, Mrs. William G. Park, of Hanover, reports the following as the result of the recent drive for membership in the surrounding towns.

Taftville, chairman, Miss Gertrude Young, 19 members.

Gales Ferry, chairman, Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, 4 members.

Town of Lisbon, chairman, Mrs. William Reynolds, 8 members.

Town of Lebanon, chairman, Mrs. Hattie Madley, 5 members.

Town of Franklin, chairman, Miss Katherine Holton, 30 members.

Jewett City, chairman, Mrs. Arthur H. Brown, 36 members.

Hanover, chairman, Miss Gladys Crombie ,13 members.

Baltic, chairman, Mrs. Blanche Case, 13 members.

During the past nine months 1154 patients have been given care at the hospital.

The first gift to the hospital from the auxiliary was a United States flag of generous dimensions. The flag was in use for the first time on Independence day, adding much to the gala appearance of the institution.

Sixty-three children have had tonsil-adenoid operations at the hospital since May first.

Mrs. F. Russell Smith and Mrs. Flint Brayton of the holiday committee were responsible for the celebration of the Fourth of July in the hospital. Flags and paper napkins of appropriate design were provided for each tray. The children were given special paper favors much to their delight. Ice cream was served. Cake was given by the following, of the First Congregational church of Norwich Town; Orrin Merry, Mrs. Earl Browning, Mrs. Herbert Yerrington, Mrs. David Dean, Mrs. Dwight Avery, Miss Jessie Hyde and Miss Mary Bacheler, also from Gertrude Toothill, Mrs. John Bliven, Mrs. Grace Fowler, Mrs. William Beetham, Mrs. Charles Dowsett, Mrs. Wilbur Chappell and Miss Addie Hill of the Spiritualist Union.

The haying on the hospital farm is about finished. It is expected that eight tons of hay will be cut.

In order that a definite statement as to the needs of the hospital might be made to the auxiliary, the finance committee made a complete survey of the buildings during the past month.

The United Congregational church provided music at the hospital on Sunday, June 22nd. On the last Sunday in June the program was in charge of the Sacred Heart church of Norwich Town.

Now that the gardens of Norwich are filled with blossoms, the flower committee asks everyone to remember the "shut-ins" at the hospital.

Since June 15th, donations have been received at the hospital, from the following persons: Charles C. Treat, Mrs. H. H. Osgood, Miss Porteous, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Edmund Perkins, Mrs. Richard Gregson, Mrs. William Bolz, Mrs. Thomas Keene, and Mrs. C. H. Osgood.

Flowers were much enjoyed from the Norwich Grange.

Flags were given by the local management of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The visitation committee, chairman, Mrs. Frederick Lester, has published the names of the visitors from the various churchs and the dates of visitation for 1924-1925.

The recent call for old linen and jelly glasses brought a goodly supply of both to the hospital.

The truck loaned by the Norwich Paper Box company was kept busy collecting the donations from the various stations, and as it went about town on its worthy mission was easily distinguished by means of the signs furnished by H. H. Vignot. Mrs. E. LaRue Bliven, chairman of the committee, personally conducted the collections and deserves much credit for the success of the day.

UNSANITARY CONDITIONS IN SOUTHINGTON WATER SUPPLY

During the past week, the attention of the state department of health was called to a grossly unsanitary condition on the drainage of the Southington water supply. An inspector of the Southington water department found that entrails from slaughtered cattle had been dumped in a well which had been temporarily abandoned and which was located in fairly close proximity to one of their reservoirs. It seems difficult for the average person to conceive how a person of any intelligence would choose such an insanitary method of disposing of this refuse.

A sanitary inspector from the bureau of sanitary engineering of the department and a police officer were immediately assigned to investigate the case. An extensive day's search disclosed the following information. A resident on property on the watershed near the well had sold the property and moved to Waterbury. Among the articles sold were two cattle which were purchased by an itinerant peddler. The latter slaughtered the cattle on the property and threw them into this well. The well was close to the highway where passers-by had access and the discharge of the entrails presented the possibility of contaminating the ground water supplying other wells, as well as creating a very objectionable nuisance.

The search finally led to Ansonia where the man who threw the entrails in the well was located. The man who had killed the cattle was next arrested in Waterbury.

The following day both offenders were hailed into the Southington police court and were fined the sum of $50 and costs. It was decided to suspend the fine and allow the offenders to pay the costs, with the condition that the well be cleaned out at once and the contents buried away from any source of water supply under the supervision of the health officer. A wagon and a liberal quantity of chloride of lime were secured and the two men were set to work to clean out the well thoroughly.

The violations of the law under which sentences were imposed were: (1) pollution of the waters of the state and (2) commitment of nuisances in or about reservoirs.

Such a case as this calls attention to the need for constant vigilance to prevent contamination of water supplies as well as the danger of commitment of nuisances and pollution of water supplies from promiscuous killing of cattle under trees and elsewhere.

On the ocean of life many a woman sails under false colors.

Charges that hostile foreign shipping interests, under the guise of opposition to flag discrimination, are moving to attack and ultimately destroy the coastwise laws of the United States," are made in a memorandum addressed to Secretary Hoover by the shipping board.

WESTERLY

The annual meeting of the International Monumental Producers' Association, Inc., was opened at the Plimpton hotel, Watch Hill, Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, by S. Hollister Jackson, Barre, Vt., president of the association. The business sessions of the association were held in the hotel ball room and there were more than fifty members of the association present. Athol Bell of Montpelier, Vt., was acting secretary due to the recent death of Robert D. Smith. William M. Adrian, Henry P. Miller and Henry J. Smalley were named a committee to erect a memorial in Mt. Wollaston cemetery, Quincy, Mass., to Mr. Smith, who served many years as secretary and treasurer of the association. Mr. Smith died in Quincy about a month ago.

The morning session Thursday included the hearing of reports of the secretary and treasurer, also of various committees. There was a discussion of rating book and credits tariff. The members in attendance came from North Carolina, Minnesota, Wisconsin, New Hampshire, Maine, Vermont and Rhode Island. Executive heads of granite industries present at this session are, John A. Cross of Cross Bros., Northfield, Vt.; George James of the Woodbury Granite Co., Hardwick, Vt.; William Campbell of the North Star Granite Co., Olaft Frick of the Great Northern Granite Co. and W. Simmons & Co., of William C. Simmons & Co., all of St. Cloud, Minn.; A. R. Bell of Bothell, Milne & Varnum and H. P. Hinman of the Hinman Granite Co., Barre, Vt.

Westerly is well represented at the convention among those in attendance being Frank A. Sullivan, Orland Smith, Joseph Coduri, John Monti, Richard H. Butler, Columbus Pasetti and Henry J. Smalley. Mr. Smalley has interests both in Westerly and Quincy, Mass.

A number of the wives and members of the families of the delegates were present and were the guests at an afternoon tea given by Mrs. Frank A. Sullivan, of Westerly.

Thursday evening after the completion of the business and election of officers and committees a visit was made to the Ninigret theatre, where moving pictures of quarry operations at the Sullivan granite works, Bradford, taken for the United States Bureau of Mines were shown.

The Anguilla Gun club of Stonington, through its secretary, James McGarvie of Pawcatuck, has received from the state of Connecticut 60 pheasants, which were raised for the state by George Dennison of Quiambaug. Of these birds 30 were distributed on various farms around the town Friday of last week and 30 were released on other farms last Sunday. The birds were all of good size and should be in full plumage by September. A year ago some 40 birds were put out and of this number not over a dozen have been reported as being taken. When this ratio of birds taken to the number put out is continued, it will require but a short time to have an abundance of game birds of this description.

In the severe shower Thursday morning, which was accompanied by thunder and lightning, an electric light pole near the bridge at Weekapaug breachway was struck and became ignited. James Howard, a chauffeur at the Rockhaven, saw the flames and extinguished them with the use of sand. The aeroplane near Joseph Dussault's on the Watch Hill road had a wing blown down. The aeroplane had been moved only the day before by truck from the garage of John Thavenet on Chase street, Pawcatuck, to Avondale.

The Rhode Island state treasury will receive revenue amounting to $1,865,322.43 from assessments upon the corporate excess and franchise taxes of manufacturing and mercantile corporations, and the gross earnings of public service corporations as levied by the state board of tax commissions, according to figures made public Thursday.

This amount represents an increase over last year of $128,059.76. This income to be derived this year from the assessment by the state tax department, is the largest since it was created in 1912. There have been years when the tax on corporate excess was larger, but the gains in the franchise tax, and public service tax—the largest ever, carry the total to a record.

The tax on corporate excess this year is $1,285,397.31, a gain over the previous year of $67,713.69. The franchise tax amounts to $59,560.45, an increase of $15,432.18. Revenue from the gross earnings of public service corporations totals $520,364.67, a jump of $44,911.89.

The nearest approach to the record revenue of this year, was made in 1921, when the tax department levy amounted to $1,795,479.92.

The total corporate excess of manufacturing, mercantile and miscellaneous corporations upon which a tax is levied this year is $321,649,208.63, a gain of $17,002,301.53. Of the total, $318,154,664.34 was reported by concerns making returns. A tax of $12,650.53 was levied on corporations which failed to file returns, representing a corporate excess of $3,162,660.15. The department also made assessments upon corporations liable to a tax, but just discovered, for previous years on a corporate excess of $31,884.14, and the tax with interest amounted to $136.86.

Steam and electric railroad corporations, Wood River Branch railroad, Hope Valley, $30,495.38, $304.35; Shore Line Electric Railway Co., Norwich, $40,950.42, $409.50.

Gas, Water, Electric Lighting and Power—Westerly Light and Power Co., Westerly, $373,075.26, $3,730.75.

The gross earnings of all public service corporations taxed this year amount to $47,026,479.30. This is an increase of $3,879,774.66, as compared with the earnings of the preceding year. Revenue which the state will get this yar, from taxes on the earnings of these corporations, amounts to $520,364.67. This is an increase over last year of $44,911.89, and a gain over 1921 of $74,658.42.

The corporate excess upon which a tax of $4 per $1,000 is levied, represents the difference between the total value of the corporations in Rhode Island and the assessed value by the city or town in which said property is located, less any exemption of non-taxable property in this state. Manufacturing, mercantile and miscellaneous corporations paying a tax on a corporate excess of $100,000 or more include the following in and about Westerly.

Bradford Dyeing association, Bradford, $693,354.99, $2,793.41; Carolina Co., Carolina, $166,102.43, $664.40; B. B. and R. Knight, Inc., $2,004,935.06, $8,019.74 (the whole state) Mystic Woolen Co., Old Mystic, Conn., $206,946.82, $827.78; Pawcatuck Woolen Mills, Westerly, $195,001.28; $780; Richmond Lace Works, Boston, $263,029.20, $1,052.11; R. A. Sherman & Co., Westerly, $372,090.57, $1,488.36; Washington Trust Building, Inc., Westerly, $180,000, $720; Westerly Lumber Co., Westerly, $100,905.67, $408.62; Westerly Textile Co., Westerly, $256,126.70, $1,024.50.

Mrs. John Crawford (Elizabeth Buffum of Westerly) arrived Thursday noon from her home in Oil City, Pa., to visit her father, E. H. Buffum and her sisters in Westerly.

Misses Florence and Hattie Clark of Shannock, R. I., who are passing the summer months at Jamestown, were automobile visitors in Westerly Wednesday afternoon.

Before a large and appreciative audience Thursday evening the Westerly band, Charles O. Gavitt, director, rendered the third in the summer series of weekly band concert.

The work of relaying a new cement sidewalk along the Collins White Front block on High street was completed Thursday.

By deed July 16th, in the office of the Westerly town clerk Arthur Perry et al conveyed an undivided one-twentieth of a certain parcel or lot of land on the north side of Atlantic avenue at Pleasant View. Also on the same date Arthur L. Perry conveyed to George B. Utter a certain tract or parcel of land on the south side of Atlantic avenue, Pleasant View, known as lot No. 130.

Robert Munson, Jr., 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Munson, previously reported from Hartford, but who are residents of Troy, N. Y., injured his eyes the day after the Fourth at Weekapaug when at the Rogers cottage he received the fish of fireworks in his eyes. He returned to his Weekapaug home Wednesday night. The young man will not lost the sight of either eye as was first thought was he was taken to the Rhode Island hospital.

WHY WOMEN LOOK 60 AT 40

With dark circles under their eyes, sallow complexions, drawn expressions, drooping shoulders, a lagging step, many women of 40 have the appearance of women of 60. In many cases this condition is caused by overwork or neglect of such warning symptoms as headaches, backache, nervousness, displacements, and irregularities, which indicate ailments peculiar to women. If all women so afflicted would only rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound it would restore them to a normal healthy condition, and the premature signs of age will soon disappear.

NORWICH TOWN

Under the auspices of the Drop-in class of the First Congregational Sunday school, a very successful cafeteria supper was held Wednesday from 6 to 8, on the church lawn. Here several small tables were placed for those who preferred eating out of doors, while a number of tables were arranged in the chapel.

The supper was well patronized, it being estimated about 100 partook of the following tempting menu: Baked beans, cold ham, salads, rolls, relishes, cake, coffee and ice cream. A good sum was realized. Representatives from other churches and nearby communities, were among those attending, as well as tourists from Pennsylvania, who in passing through Norwich Town, availed themselves of delicious home made cooking served in the open, if so desired. The small tables on the lawn and in the chapel, also the long tables in the chapel from which the food was dispensed, were attractively decorated with sprays of Dorothy Perkins and red rambler roses. At one side of the room was a large showering bouquet of the roses arranged in a basket. Mrs. David M. Dean was chairman of the supper. Other members of the class were in charge of the several tables as follows: Mrs. Albie L. Hale, plates, silver, napkins and rolls; Mrs. Frank S. Wheeler and Miss Mabelle L. Scott, baked beans and ham; Mrs. Clyde J. Beebe and Mrs. Michael Buckley, salads; Mrs. Frederick Ross and Mrs. Orrin F. Merry, cake; Mrs. Philip B. Whaley, coffee. Miss Bessie M. Grant was cashier. The chairman had charge of the ice cream.

Miss Jennie L. Congdon is the class teacher. Mrs. Gurdon F. Bailey is president of the class.

Rev. George Ferguson, pastor of the Third Baptist church, Greeneville, is to be the speaker at Scotland Road hall, Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock (standard time). These services were discontinued through the winter months; but have again opened up at the hall. The committee in charge of these services always try to procure interesting speakers. At the opening meeting two weeks ago, a fine address was given by Mrs. William J. Tate of Franklin.

Mrs. Minnie Cronin of Worcester, Mass., had as her guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Tague and son George, and Mrs. William Young of Otrobando avenue, who motored from Norwich Town. Mrs. Cronin is sister of William Tague.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fraser of Lafayette street, are entertaining for three or four weeks Miss Eunice Weegar and Miss Ruth Weegar, of Morrisburg, Canada.

The Days We Remember

Haitien Honey

Haitien honey is well liked by the American market. The best is made from blossoms of the logwood tree and is known as Campeche honey. The superior flavor of this product is much appreciated in France, where it has always brought a higher price than in the United States. The honey is nearly white in color and possesses a delicate quality. The beekeepers allow their charges to feed upon royal palms and logwood trees, thus producing a blended and desirable yield. Objections are made that some producers gather it before it is ripe, and it badly and sometimes let it be mixed with bees and wax.

A formula has been recently discovered by which a factory in Bohemia makes what is said to be practically unbreakable glass.

MORE BEER FOR NEW LONDON HOTEL SEIZED BY THE POLICE THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 17.—The New London police seized a truck load of beer early this morning and arrested the driver, Maurice Estoff, of New Haven, charged with transporting liquor in violation of the prohibition law in that the bottles in the 100 cases were not labeled as to their contents. Whether the beer is stronger than one-half of one per cent. alcohol will be determined at the state laboratory at Hartford for samples have already been forwarded to the chemist there. The beer is understood to have been consigned to the Hotel Winthrop.

Shortly after 3 o'clock Sergeant John Cavanaugh discovered the truck on Railroad avenue, in the shadow of the several beer houses there. The officer investigated the contents of the load and quickly determined that the many cases contained beer. Patrolmen Thomas Leyden, James McKenna and Dennis Murphy were detailed to guard the truck while an effort was made to locate the driver. Within a short time Estoff was located in a room at the hotel. He was placed under arrest and taken to the police station, while the beer-laden truck was driven to the police station and held there until this forenoon when it was taken in charge by Prohibition Enforcement Agent Joseph Fitzpatrick.

Estoff was brought before Judge Victor Prince this morning when a continuance was asked for by counsel for the accused until next Tuesday. A bond of $1,000 for Estoff's appearance for trial was ordered and the accused furnished a surety on the bond in Arthur Di Maggio, one of the proprietors of the hotel to which the beer is alleged to have been destined.

Last month two truck loads of beer said to be consigned to the hotel, were seized between New London and New Haven.

It is believed that within a few days the police will have arrested two or more of the youthful thieves who have been guilty of late in burglarizing bath houses at Ocean Beach, for this afternoon Patrolman Walter Rehn on duty at the shore resort, learned the identity of youths who are said to have burglarized some of the Clifford bath houses within a week. Patrick J. Clifford, proprietor of the bath houses, has asked for the arrest of the boys.

When agents of the state's attorney's office secured evidence against the occupants of a room in the Lawrence Shea building on Bank street, some weeks ago, charging that liquor was sold there, Dave Palitz, the boxer, was fined, but he appealed. Then the agents brought up a further complaint against the occupants of the room alleging that George La Brizzi sold liquor in the same room. It seems that the agents were mixed as to La Brizzi and that the man they really wanted is Harold Plympton. A warrant was issued for his arrest and late this afternoon Special Constable William Lewis, in the employ of the state's attorney on this case, brought "Plymp" to the police station to spend the night and tomorrow he will be in the police court charged with having sold liquor to the agents. Plympton was arrested in Westerly. He has been away from New London since the night preceding the arrest and arraignment of Palitz.

It is reported that another barber shop is to be established in this city, as a result of the boost the barbers gave to prices here a few weeks ago. The shop is to be operated by Fall River men and is to be free and untrammelled from union regulations. The price will be cut to the figures prevailing some time ago—15 cents for shaving and 25 cents for hair cutting, and the hours will be from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m., the barbers changing off in the hours they work when that is found feasible.

Mrs. Charles Davies of School street who has been under treatment several days at Home Memorial hospital, returned to her home today.

Daniel M. Cronin was in Hartford today in attendance at a meeting of the republican state central committee. The meeting was called for the purpose of filling the vacancy caused by the recent death of Mrs. Samuel O. Prentice, also to appoint an associate member of the national committee, of which committee Mrs. Prentice was a member.

Congressman Richard P. Freeman has returned to his home on Williams street, after several days' automobile trip to Canada.

Governor Charles A. Templeton, accompanied by Mrs. Templeton and their two daughters and the governor's aide-de-camp, Major J. M. Borrai, have been guests at the Hotel Mohican yesterday and today. The party went to Fishers Island this forenoon where Gov. Templeton reviewed the 242nd Coast Artillery corps and tomorrow the party will go to Niantic and review the state troops encamped there.

Lester Martin is confined to his home, 548 Williams street by an attack of tonsilitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil D. Spiver, Colver street, Mr. and Mrs. Roger N. Daboll and sons, Norman and Morgan, 100 Thames street, and Mrs. Herbert Williams, 31 Squire street, have returned from a fortnight's motor trip to Bath, Me.

Catherine Homan, residing on the Lyme turnpike was arrested my State Policeman Fred Caron on a search warrant complaint for keeping liquor for sale. Numerous complaints had been made and John Malona, grand juror, issued a warrant on the evidence presented. The woman was presented before Justice T. F. Morton where she pleaded guilty and was fined $100. She paid. A quantity of hooch and hard cider was found on the premises.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Rasmussen, 136 Montauk avenue, have left for Lake Harrison, Me., where they will join their daughter, Miss Hazel Brown who has been visiting in Harrison for several weeks.

Richard Dwyer has returned to his home, having been a surgical patient at a local hospital several weeks.

David Lamond has returned having visited in Pawtucket, R. I., and Plymouth, Mass.

Charles L. Ockford, for many years connected with the New London fire department as foreman of the Naumeag company and as chief engineer, died at his home in Alger place late last night after a long illness that had confined him to his bed. Chief Ockford was contemporaneous with Chief Joseph Carrier and Louis Greenberg, of Norwich, with Chiefs Stagg of Waterbury and Eaton of Hartford, and during his active service was one of the best known fire officials in the state. Chief Ockford had vacationed in the woods of Michigan and on the lakes there. He was a powerful fellow, physically, and as hardy as a sapling when he came to New London. He bought the Pequot avenue laundry and managed it successfully for many years. Finally he sold it and has since lived at Ocean Beach. Mr. Ockford was the owner of Osprey beach, from which Ocean beach, in this city, has developed, and when New London was just using its advantages as a summer resort. The late Benjamin Lemme was associated with him in the management and ownership of that beach. Later he operated the Mystic Island hotel and summer resort, for the owner, Charles Henry Osgood, of Norwich.

Mr. Ockford was well along toward 80. His wife died some months ago and the illness of Mr. Ockford followed her death. He leaves a daughter, Miss Bessie Ockford.

Charles Antonio of New Haven paid $15 into the treasury of the police court today because he failed to appear there and tell why he did not conform to the rules of the road in operating his machine. He went past corners of intersecting streets as though there were no corners to pass and as though no other vehicles might come out of side streets to claim a right of way. When Antonio was arrested he gave a bond of $15 which was equivalent to saying that he would appear in court. Today his case was called three times and when he did not answer, the cash he left was forfeited to the city.

Edna B. Chester has sold a parcel of land on Jefferson avenue to Charles A. Whipple. The parcel was originally known as the Chester asparagus field.

Mrs. Harry Elias and infant daughter of Groton, Mrs. Henry June and infant son, Lee avenue, Mrs. Minnie Rockwell, Harrison street, Frank Micklas, Oakdale, James Belvia, Middletown and Walter Greenman, Washington street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

The funeral of Theresa Sammataro, five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Santa Sammataro, was held this morning at 9 o'clock from the home of the child's parents, Denison avenue. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Miss Katherine M. Trott, 30, daughter of the late Stanley Trott, a former resident of New London, died at her home in Washington, D. C., July 2nd. The body will be brought to New London for burial in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery. Miss Trott, who is survived by a brother, William Trott, also of Washington, formerly resided on the site of the Hotel Mohican, on Meridian street, later the residence of the late Charles W. Butler, and at which time Mr. Trott was postmaster here. Miss Trott was about 80 years of age and had resided in Washington about 40 years.

Edward Kelley, of Uncasville, died last night at the private hospital, where he had been under treatment but a short time. He is survived by his wife and several nephews. Mr. Kelley was a veteran of the Spanish-American war and World war and had served in the American army about 30 years, having been retired several years ago.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has caused the operator's license of Haskell J. Thompson, stationed at the submarine base, to be suspended.

An automobile owned and operated by W. W. Foster, 24 Alger place, was damaged this forenoon when in passing through Ocean avenue, opposite Lawrence hospital, the car bumped into a concrete culvert. The collision caused damage to the automobile of about $100, principally to the transmission and two front tires. Foster reported the accident at the police station.

The condition of Austin J. Ruddy, 51 West Colt street, who suffered a fractured hip by falling on Bentley avenue, Ocean Beach, several days ago, is reported at Lawrence hospital as being as comfortable as could be expected.

Abner Schwartz, 25 Perkins avenue, Norwich, president of the Schwartz Furniture company of New London and Norwich, who last night was ordered to appear in the police court this morning by Patrolman Charles Hammond, charged with violation of the automobile law, escaped a court prosecution, for prior to the convening of court Schwartz agreed to defray the cost of repair of a Davis sedan, the property of John J. Kelly, 330 Huntington street, which was damaged by Kelly's car colliding with the Schwartz machine, which it was alleged was parked a considerable distance from the curb on Bank street, near Howard street. Kelly's car, operated by the owner, was proceeding in a southerly direction on Bank street and when near the corner of Howard street, crashed against the rear of the Schwartz car, the latter machine being driven against the automobile of Joseph Galter, 357 Bank street, which was parked beside the curb. Kelly alleged that the Schwartz automobile was parked at least two feet from the curb, while Schwartz asserted that he was in the act of operating his automobile from the curb and had given a signal that he intended doing so. Kelly's car sustained damage on the right hand side, including the smashing of the running board.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

RAILROADS FEATURED MARKET.

New York, July 17.—Strength and activity of the low-priced western railroad shares was the outstanding feature of today's irregular stock market. Industrials showed the effects of profit taking and bear selling, in the early trading, but developed a firmer tone during the latter part of the session.

Rails bounded upward under the leadership of the Rock Island issues, the common closing 2 1-2 points higher at 32 3-4 after having crossed 34, the six per cent. preferred showing a net gain of nearly a point at 75 3-4 and the seven per cent. preferred climbing 1 3-8 to 87 7-8, all at new high prices for the year. Revival of merger rumors was an important influence in the accumulation of these issues. Other strong spots in the railroad group included Kansas City Southern, Wheeling & Lake Erie preferred, Western Maryland second preferred, Peoria and Eastern, Chicago and Northwestern preferred, and the "Katy" and Missouri Pacific issues.

Fresh selling developed in the steel shares on the publication of a relatively poor quarterly earnings report by Republic, but all made moderate recovery, and net losses were limited to fractions. Bethlehem Steel touched a new 1924 low at 41 1-2 on unfavorable dividend rumors but snapped back later to 42 7-8.

Oils were subjected to further pressure on the extension of price cuts for crude and refined products, but they steadied later on the announcement of a fifty cent cut in Mid-Continent Crude by Prairie, coupled with the statement that prorating in that field would end about August 15.

News of the retirement of J. S. Cosden as president of Cosden and Co., did not upset the market for these shares. Pan-American B closed more than a point higher and Atlantic Refining, which has been under pressure recently as a result of a court decision awarding large damages against that company to the Superior Oil Company, also made good recovery, showing a net gain of 3 points at 83 1-4.

Coppe shares developed a firm tone on buying based on the belief that a settlement of the reparations problem would stimulate European consumption of the red metal, American Smelting and Refining closed more than 2 points higher at 67, and Utah advanced a point to 71. Sugars lost ground on unfavorable trade reports. Stewart Warner experienced another sinking spell, touching a new bottom at 48 1-2, and then rallying to 52 1-8 for a net loss of 2 1-4.

Local tractions were again in good demand, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit closing 2 points higher at 28 1-4 and Interborough touching a new top at 39 1-4 and then falling back to 31 1-2, off 1 1-8. American Water Works issues also dropped back on profit-taking.

Call money continued to rule at 2 per cent. Time money was freely offered at from 2 3-4 to 3 1-2 per cent., depending upon maturity. Commercial paper was in demand by local and interior banks at 3 1-2 to 3 3-4 per cent. with some exceptionally strong names going at 3 1-4 per cent.

Foreign exchange rates were reactionary with business slowing up pending further developments at the reparations conference in London. Demand sterling ruled more than a point lower at 4.36 3-4 and French francs dropped nearly 10 points to 5.08 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, July 17.—Strength of traction issues and further recovery of Brazilian obligations marked today's bond trading, which was colorless but firm. Prices slowly forged ahead although the advance was lacking in vigor. Disappointment over the failure of the federal reserve bank to lower its rediscount rate was reflected in scattered profit-taking by holders of Liberty bonds who had acquired these issues in expectation of another sharp upturn. Selling was not heavy enough to unsettle the list, however, and losses were confined to small fractions.

Interborough, Third Avenue Railway and other local traction liens responded vigorously to reports of increased earnings and improved operating conditions.

Gains of 1 to 1 1-2 points were recorded by the Interborough 6s and by Magma 7s, Union Pacific 4s, Norfolk and Western convertible 4s, Virginia-Carolina 7s and Wilson convertible 6s. Buoyancy of the low priced rail shares apparently failed to have any effect on the bonds of these carriers.

Indications that suppression of the Sao Paulo revolution was under way contributed to the recovery of Brazilian bonds, the republis 8s rallying 3 points. Rio Grande Do Sol 8s advanced 3 5-8 points.

CURB MARKET.

Nek York, July 17.—Conflicting price movements took place in today's curb market, but the main trend was upward at the close.

Heavy selling of the oil shares in the early trading sent Prairie Oil and Gas down to a new low for the year at 194 1-2, but it failed later to 202 1-2 for a net gain of more than 6 points. Other oils moved in sympathy, net gains of 1 to 3 points being registered by Standard Oils of Indiana, Kentucky and Nebraska, Prairie Pipe, Indiana Pipe and Cumberland Pipe. Most of the active independent issues improved fractionally.

Activity of Lehigh Coal certificates, which closed slightly higher at 35 3-4 on transactions totalling 16,000 shares, and the establishment of a new high record by Hudson and Manhattan Railroad and Hudson Company preferred, were the features of the industrial list. Ward Baking issues were stronf and Dubilier Radio touched a new top at 48.

METAL MARKET.

COTTON.

New York, July 17.—Cotton spot steady; middling 32.35.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, July 17.—Estimates that the wheat crop of the three prairie provinces of Canada had been curtailed 200,000,000 to 250,000,000 bushels led to further high price record-breaking here today, all deliveries of wheat closed nervous at 2 to 4 1-2c net advance with corn 1 3-4 to 4 1-2c up, oats showing 3-4c to 1 3-4c gain, and provisions higher by 20 to 47 cents.

In the face of immense sales to realize profits, the wheat market here finished at the best prices of the day and year, considerable wavering had taken place at first owing to uncertainty over the effects of rains in Canada, but the market soon began to soar when it was seen that Winnipeg quotations were up and that reports from Canada were continuing to pour in telling of severe crop damage.

Radical revisions of the current estimates of the world's exportable surplus of wheat were looked for as a result of today's figures from Canada.

Temporarily the upward swing of the wheat market, however, was interrupted by the closing out of a big spread trade between wheat and corn, the corn being bought and the wheat sold. When this operation was completed, wheat values again shot upward just before the end of the day.

Except September delivery, corn as well as other cereals over-topped the season's high price record. Receipts were abnormally meager, temperatures too cool and crop reports unfavorable. In oats, the Canadian news was again the factor.

All provisions made fresh high price records for 1924, stimulated by the ascent of grain and hogs.

HOW I LOST 50 POUNDS
In 2 Months Without Diets, Exercise, Rollers or Massage.
New French Method Explained by Mme. Elaine of New York.

"I did not have to go through strenuous exercises, nor rub myself with absurd creams, which generally put on flesh instead of taking it off. I did not wear weakening garments, nor torture myself with diets. I was fortunate enough while in Europe to find out the secrets with which millionaires, French actresses and beautiful women of Paris keep their figures slender. Not only did I easily and gradually lose 50 pounds, but the reduction was lasting, as I have never gained a pound since stopping the treatment. I feel and look years younger, and my health has greatly improved with this wonderful discovery. No matter how fat you are, you may do just as I did and easily lose a few pounds every week without any danger. Simply go to any good drug store, get a package of SAN-GRI-NA tablets (insist on these, as nothing like it has ever been offered before to the public) take it as per directions and watch your weight go down. You can eat all you want while you take SAN-GRI-NA, AS IT IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS; it is the formula of a French physician, and is sold with a money-back guarantee."

Harnessing Waterfall in Alps

What is regarded as an important engineering triumph has been accomplished in the Swiss Alps in harnessing, with specially constructed turbines, a stream of water flowing at the rate of 540 feet a second, or more than six miles a minute, according to Popular Mechanics. The column of water has the strength and rigidity of a steel bar and such force that each of the four 3,000-horse power units in the plant is striven with a stream only one and three-eighths inches in diameter. To withstand the terrific pressure, special apparatus had to be built. The water is taken from the Lake of Fully and flows through three miles of steel pipe with a fall of approximately one mile to reach the turbines.

The Colossus of Rhodes, still remembered after more than two thousand years as a mighty bronze statue, more than a hundred feet high, straddling the entrance to a harbor, stood in place only fifty-six years.

LEGAL NOTICES

City Ordinances and Rules Governing Garbage and Ashes

Sec. 8. It shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner to remove said ashes, store sweepings and rubbish so put and deposited free of expense to parties so depositing them, whenever it shall be necessary and proper for the same to be removed.

Sec. 12. No refuse building material of any kind shall be removed and disposed of by the Street Commissioner, Nor shall any such be mixed with the garbage and other matter to be removed by said Commissioner.

Sec. 13. No garbage or waste material of any kind shall be removed by the Street Commissioner unless the foregoing provisions in regard to the same shall be observed.

Sec. 14. The Street Commissioner shall have power to determine the kind and size of receptacles to be used by any person for the deposit of ashes, garbage or other material to be removed by the Street Commissioner, and the place where the same shall be placed for removal, and, subject to the provisions of Section 12th of this chapter, the kind of material which will be removed, and may refuse to remove any material for any person violating his order in any of said matters. This section shall not be construed, however, as repealing Section 7th of this chapter, providing that no ashes, store sweepings, or rubbish shall be put in any public street in the City of Norwich.

All barrels must be placed in yard level nearest street level.

Street Department shall take garbage and ashes in barrels and papers in bundles.

Only sized receptacles allowable will be cracker barrel, flour barrel or galvanized iron barrel as sold at hardware stores for said purpose.

On and after Aug. 1st the above rules under said City ordinances will go into effect.

JOHN C. DONOVAN,
jy18d Street Commissioner.

NEWS FROM GIRL SCOUTS AT GALES FERRY CAMP

Our camp paper, "The Merritt Gleam," is posted on our bulletin board. It has a free-hand drawing of our campus on its first page. The drawing was madeby Frances Werner of Madison, who is patrol leader for Tent 1. Copies were made for every colony, but what we'd like to do is to have a copy for every Scout—we think we'll have to have a hectograph or mimeograph of some kind of a ——graph tag day!

Here are a few extracts from our first issue:

1. Advice for reporters and contributors:

Have you had a thought that's happy?
Boil it down;
Make it short and crisp and snappy!
Boil it down.
When your mind its gold has minted,
Down the page your pen has printed,
If you want your effort PRINTED,
Boil it down!

2. Nature Notes (not learned from Counselor Blaisdell):

THE FROG.

What a queer bird the frog are;
When he hop, he fly—almost;
When he sit, he stand—almost;
He ain't got no sense, hardly,
He ain't got no tail, either;
He sit on what he ain't got—almost.

CATS.

A teacher one day asked her pupils to write a composition on cats. This is what one boy submitted: "Cats that are made for little boys and girls to maul around and tease are called malitese cats. Cats that have feelin's are called feline cats, and cats that have tempers are called Angorie cats." Submitted by E. C. (Green) Colony Wacheewas.

3. A description of the ride to camp in the camp bus:

A rattle of bus as it hurries past
And there we are at camp at last.
We wander in search of the khaki tent
To which by order we have been sent.
Hence to the nurse then we must go
For an examination both thorough and slow.
Then to our tents we hasten back
With right good intention and unpack.
But ho! for the shore and for a swim
And into the water we jump with vim.
When the bugle sounds, we hurry fast
To the calaphouse for a good repast.
Next we play some games for fun
Round the campfire we gather soon
To sing beneath the glorious moon.
And when the bugle sounds loud and clear
We jump into bed; we're glad we're here!

(A last year's contribution. Can our camp do as well?)

Note: Even dish washing is competitive. The Yellows and Greens have clothespins of their color, and dish towels are marked Yellow and Green.

A counselor, as the patrol leaders with their new headbands walked into the dining room: "Let's cheer for the Yellow and Gold":

Rah Yellow, Rah Gold!
Rah-rah Yellow-Gold!

A hearty response followed, then after the calm, from a thoughtful patrol leader of the Green side the question, "Is everybody for Yellow or Gold?" And only then did the rest realize that the yell should have been:

Rah Yellow, Rah Green!
Rah-Rah, Yellow-Green!

So we all cheered again and everybody was happy, yes, AB-SO-LUTE-LY.

Our last Friday's dramatic program was very short though effective, but hereafter Miss Young suggests that we add the distribution of headbands and the recognition of completed Scout work and sing a few of our good songs—and maybe dance.

The largest elevated water tank in the world is being erected in San Diego, Cal. The tank has a capacity of 1,200,000 gallons, is fifty-four feet in diameter and fifty-two feet in height.

TAFTVILLE

Moise Lambert of Chicago, Ill., is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Lambert and family of Providence street, and will accompany his parents to Canada where they will spend a few weeks.

William Burgess of Lisbon returned early in the week from a short stay in New Haven.

Miss Florence Lukoff and Master Peter Lukoff have returned to their house on South B street after spending several weeks in Blackstone, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Hormidas Gladue of South B street have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter Ruby, to Leodore Paradis, July 21st, at Sacred Heart church.

William Bailey of North Second avenue is enjoying his annual vacation this week.

Scores of young bluejays, either fallen or blown from nests, have been fluttering about the village streets this past week where they are an easy prey to cats. This variety of bird has been on the increase these past two years.

During this season of the year, local people are trimming their small trees and flowering shrubs.

Funeral services for Everett Melvin Pingree were held Thursday afternoon from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pingree of North Third avenue, Rev. Edwin Gordon Crowdis, pastor of the Taftville Congregational church, officiating. During the service, Mrs. James A. Bidwell sang Lead, Kindly Light and Abide With Me. In speaking of the young man, Rev. Mr. Crowdis told of his willingness to help in the work of the church and the community, and the great need of faith to help those who cannot understand the mystery of youth being visited by death. The wealth of flowers about the casket testified to the host of those who had enjoyed the friendship of the deceased. The bearers were George Kinder, Jr.; George W. Welch, Jr.; Thomas Greenwood, Jr.; William Shaw, William Burgess and Warren Sharples. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Crowdis conducted the short committal service. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

A. W. Buchanan of Mansfield Center was a caller in the village on Thursday.

The Aowakiya Camp Fire Girls did not hold their regular weekly meeting Thursday evening.

Alphege Beauregard has returned to town after spending several days in Fall River, Mass.

Some of the boys of the village held a clambake at the Sandbank opposite the island in the Shetucket river, on Thursday afternoon. The "feed" was enjoyed after a swim, and most of the party were badly drenched by the thundershower that came up suddenly.

The chimneys of many of the houses in the village are being cleaned.

Joseph Lanoix of Holyoke, Mass., was a business caller in the village Thursday.

The marriage ring and the prize ring often lead to the stage.

2,000 GOING FROM NORWICH ON PICNIC OF U. S. FINISHING CO.

Such a picnic as has never been seen before in Windham county will be held at Sterling today (Friday) when employes and their families from all the branches of the United States Finishing Co. will gather for a great annual outing for which they will be transported on special trains with the entire railroad fare paid by the Finishing Co. An attendance of 5,000 is expected.

The Norwich branch will send about 2,000 to the big gathering, traveling on two special trains of ten cars each that will leave here at 9 a. m. daylight time. The other branches, which are Silver Spring, Pawtucket, Queen Dyeing and C. P. Darling Co., will arrive at Sterling by special trains that leave Pawtucket at 8.45 a. m., and Providence at 9 a. m. Besides those on trains doubtless many will make the trip to Sterling by automobile. The homeward bound trip will be at 5 p. m. from Sterling.

A large recreation field in the center of the town of Sterling will be the place for the athletic events and a baseball game, which will be between the Connecticut Yankees and the Rhode Island Reds. The Connecticut team will be made up from Sterling and Norwich and the Reds from the other branches.

On the athletic programme are tug of war, centipede race, fat men's race, 100 yard dash, throwing rolling pin. There will be prizes for the winners.

A playground and special games will be provided for the children.

An event that will occasion great rivalry will be the beauty contest at 4 p. m. for which any girl over 16 and under 60, whether an employe or not, will be eligible to enter.

There will be motion pictures, dancing and a punch and judy show, and an opportunity to inspect the dairy farm that is operated by the company at Sterling, a modern equipped plant with one of the finest stock barns in the state.

Provision has been made for an attendance of 5,000. For those who do not choose to take basket lunches a first class picnic lunch on the self-service plan has been arranged, for which the price will be 40 cents, the actual cost of food and service.

The following are the committees in charge:

MAINE GUIDE TEACHING NORWICH BOY SCOUTS

Guide Hony Jordan of Bangor, Me., is busy this week at Camp Tippecan, the Norwich Boy Scout camp at Beach Pond, as bow and arrow maker and wood craftsman. The boys are all engaged in wood work and tree felling and various other work. Jordan will aid the boys this week, then he will go on to Dan Beard's camp in Pike county, Pennsylvania. The old house and stone chimney on the camp site through the courtesy of George T. Briggs of Voluntown, will be converted into a log house. The trees have already been cut for the house by Mr. Jordan and the camp staff and older scouts and will be hauled to the site by truck. George L. Ingalls, president of Norwich council, has already contributed two large loads of oak slabs for the cabin and considerable construction will be done before Mr. Jordan leaves for Dan Beard's camp.

There are 30 scouts in camp this week and the next two weeks are filled to the same capacity.

Mr. Smith, bird expert of Norwalk, Conn., will be at camp for bird study and hikes next Monday.

MONKEY FROM PANAMA FOR MOHEGAN PARK

A monkey, one year old, has been added to the animal family at Mohegan park, the gift to the city from Robert Graham of Christobal, Panama Canal Zone. For many years Mr. Graham has been with the post office department in Panama and on a trip to visit his brother, James Graham, of Lisbon, he brought a pet monkey, one year old. As he is about to return to Panama he presented the monkey to the Mohegan park officials and the gift was greatly appreciated. The monkey is very gentle and playful and those visiting the park have enjoyed watching him play.

Mr. Graham is much interested in pets and on a previous visit brought a Macaw, which he gave to a local friend and which the friend still has.

Such gifts to the park are greatly appreciated and anyone desiring to make a gift to the park, add to the animal family, will not only please the park officials, but hundreds of people who visit the park every year.

Painting Crosswalks.

For a time Thursday a part of Franklin square looked as if it had been arranged for a hurdle race. The street department was painting the crosswalks at the corner of Bath and Franklin streets and at the corner of Main and Cliff streets, protecting the freshly painted spots with wooden horses, around which automobile drivers steered a devious way, omitting any attempts to hurdle the obstructions.

LABORATORIES MOVED TO LOCATION IN HARTFORD

Additional work planned by the general assembly in 1923 made it necessary for the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station in New Haven to expand and occupy more space in its buildings. As a result of this expansion the bureau of laboratories of the state department of health which has been occupying the botany building of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station through the courtesy of the station, found it necessary to find new quarters.

New quarters have been found and the laboratory will move to Hartford and be located at the following address after July 14th, 1924, about one block from the state capitol: Connecticut State Department of Health, Bureau of Laboratories, 247 Pearl street, Hartford, Conn. The post office address will be: Connecticut State Department of Health, Bureau of Laboratories, P. O. Box No. 1001, Hartford, Conn.

The new quarters are larger than the old ones and the laboratory will be able to take care of much more work than has been done in the past. Health officers are particularly invited to send in additional milk samples during the warm weather in order to be sure that the milk supply of the state is being properly taken care of.

PORTEOUS & MITCHELL CO. ON PICNIC TO BEACH

Employes of the Porteous & Mitchell company enjoyed the Thursday afternoon half holiday at Ocean beach where swimming and sports were enjoyed. The employes and their guests left Norwich on a special trolley at 12.15 o'clock, going direct to Ocean beach for their outing.

During the afternoon there were several racing events, Arthur D. Hinckley, chairman of the committee, planning the events that kept things moving during the afternoon.

After enjoying supper at the beach the party started for home at 8.15 o'clock arriving home at 9.45 o'clock on their special trolley. It is expected that similar weekly outing will be held Thursday afternoons during the summer by employes of the company and their friends.

INSTALLATION RECEPTION FOR MT. CALVARY PASTOR

An installation reception to Rev. G. G. McGee and Mrs. McGee of Mt. Calvary Baptist church was held at the church Wednesday evening. Members of Grace Memorial and A. M. E. Zion churches, with members of Rev. McGee's parish, were present. Seated at the table with the pastor and his wife were Rev. D. A. Brown and wife of the A. M. E. Zion church, Deacon J. W. Williams and daughter, Deacon Overton Howard and wife, Deacon Liner and wife, Mrs. S. W. Lacy, Trustee Henry Lacy and wife and friends from the several churches.

The blessing was by Rev. D. A. Brown, after which a short program was rendered. Opening selection, Onward, Christian Soldiers; prayer, Deacon Liner; selection, member of W. W. G. society; reading, Mrs. Louise Hall; solo, Mrs. Martha Liner; reading, Miss Idella Scott; solo, Prof. W. E. Geary, accompanied by Prof. H. E. Wheeler.

The menu consisted of chicken salad, bread and butter, sandwiches, coffee, ice cream and cake. The tables were placed to form a large L and the decorations were sweet peas and roses. The church was prettily decorated with roses, ferns and sweet peas.

Mrs. Mary Jane Brown was the chairman and Mrs. Eva Scott, pianist.

The waitresses were Miss Rosabell Johnson, Miss Mattie Yancy, Mrs. Frances Evans, Mrs. Eudora Randall, Miss Idella Scott and Miss Martha Pollock.

The reception was in charge of the Willing Workers and Missionary societies of the church. Mrs. Mary Jane Brown was chairman, assisted by Mrs. Jane Simons, Mrs. Sarah Strong, Mrs. Fannie Jackson, Mrs. Bessie Green, Mrs. Martha Liner and A. F. Drury.

Dr. F. S. Wilcox Returning.

Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of the Norwich State Hospital, will return today (Friday) from Wilkesbarre, Pa., where he was called Tuesday by the death of his aunt.

Why will people go into society to get bored when it can be done just as well at home?

CLOTHING FIRM SHOWS GRATITUDE TO FIREMEN

A check for $25 for the firemen's fund was received by Chief Howard L. Stanton Thursday from Beckenstein & Taylor in appreciation of the work of the department at the recent fire at the firm's store, at 266-270 Main street.

The following letter accompanied the check:

Howard L. Stanton, Chief of the Fire Department, Norwich, Conn.

Dear Sir:—We take pleasure in sending you herewith our check in amount of $25.00 for the firemen's fund as a token of appreciation for the valiant work of your men in battling through the blinding smoke and quickly extinguishing the fire in our stores at 266-270 Main street.

We wish particularly to commend the ingenuity, thoughtfulness and care exercised at such a critical time. We are certain that were it not for the quick response and alert teamwork of the men under your direction; our stores might have been a total loss.

Your department more than deserves the many expressions of admiration it continually receives. We extend our hearty thanks to you and your men.

Yours sincerely,

BECKENSTEIN & TAYLOR,

The Brooklyn Outfitters.

FORT WRIGHT TO HACE COAST ARTILLERY HERDQUARTERS

Coast artillery headquarters for New England will be moved to Fort H. G. Wright, Fishers Island, for the summer when Brigadier General Mark L. Hersey leaves Boston for the Long Island coast artillery center the first of next week. At Fort Wright he will devote his attention to the work of the regulars, R. O. T. C. and National Guard troops on duty at Wright, at Fort Adams, Rhode Island, and at Fort Terry on Plum Island.

TRAFFIC AND ACCIDENTS ON HARTFORD HIGHWAY

Between Hartford and Colchester early Sunday evening one autoist counted 947 machines going in the opposite direction, over 600 of which were between Marlborough and Colchester.

Another motorist reported nine cars had come to grief Sunday on the hill with the whitewashed wall between Colchester and the railroad crossing.

ADDING 300 ACRES TO STATE FOREST LAND

The purchase of an additional 300 acres of forest land in the town of Barkhamsted, to be added to the land already acquired for the People's forest, has been approved by the executive committee of the Connecticut Forestry association, which is sponsor for the project. The land for the People's forest is being bought by public contributions to the People's Forest fund.

With the purchase of the additional 300 acres, the acreage bought for the forest will be 800, or a little less than one-third of the total acreage desired for the project. The land is being bought from private owners by State Forester Austin F. Hawes, acting for the Connecticut Forestry association. The average price an acre is $5. The Connecticut organization of the Daughters of the Revolution has instituted a campaign among the local chapters looking to the purchase by each chapter of one acre.

It is planned to turn over the forest land thus acquired to the state in the fall, the occasion to be marked by special exercises, the outstanding feature of which will be a pageant symbolizing the history of the territory and its future possibilities. The Connecticut Forestry association, which will conduct the exercises in cooperation with the state forestry department, hopes the pageant will stimulate more interest in the People's Forest project and result in more contributions to the fund.

Before City Court.

Three cases were disposed of in city court Thursday morning by Judge Arthur F. Libby. An old soldier who is soon to go to the Soldiers' home in Bristol, R. I., was before the court for intoxication. His case was continued to allow him to go to the home.

Patrick Sullivan of Sixth street was fined $5 on the count of intoxication and $10 on the charge of resisting an officer. He said that he had sufficient funds to pay his bill, but preferred to go to jail. He was accordingly committed to the institution on the hill for the next 26 days.

A young man, 27, from the vicinity of the Norwich state hospital, paid $2 and costs, amounting in all to $13.00 for being intoxicated.

CANOE FOUND OVERTURNED; SEVEN CHILDREN MISSING

Tug Picked Up the Canoe, Overturned, About Midway Between Bridegport and Port Jefferson, L. I.,—The Seven Children Had Embarked in the Canoe at Fairfield Beach Thursday Afternoon—Parents Have Abandoned Hope.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 18—A search of more than 24 hours by state and local police aboard chartered boats, with the aid of numerous volunteer workers, has failed to disclose any trace of the seven children who put out from Black Rock harbor yesterday afternoon. The parents have all but given up hope, following the finding of the overturned canoe by the tug John Glen, of the Bridgeport Towing Line, a mile and a half northwest of Middle Ground light, about midway between Bridgeport and Port Jefferson, L. I.

The canoe was brought in here late this afternoon, and the owner, George Mills from whose place the unsubstantial craft was taken without permission, identified it. It was found floating bottom side up, and two chairs which were loosely set in the canoe, were found underneath it. There was no trace of any clothing, nor any other sign of the children.

While a squad of detectives from the Bridgeport police, were occupied running down the numerous false reports and rumors, all of which appeared to have the breath of authenticity, the boats which had been chartered vainly grappled all along the shore, without any positive direction as to where the adventure-seeking children were last seen.

Every place on the shore of Connecticut and Long Island has been notified by the state police, a special detachment of whom have been assigned to the case, and state police all along this coast have been directed to be of any assistance possible.

Neighbors representing themselves as speaking for the family of Florence Benson, 15 years old, the oldest of the missing canoeists agitated the shore front all across the state, with their assertion that a message had been received from her from New London stating that she was safe. John Benson, father of the girl, later was aroused from a peaceful sleep, to repudiate the assertion.

The homes of the children, which are all near to one another on the shore of the Black Rock section, comprised the center of sympathizing crowds that numbered thousands, since the finding of the overturned canoe became known.

None of the children could swim. Besides the Benson girl, the missing ones are Alva and Clinton Nodrquist, 13 and 13; Ethel and Walter Berquist, 14 and 12; Alva Anderson, 14, and Ernest Peterson, 8.

GOVERNOR REVIEWED TROOPS AT NIANTIC CAMP

Niantic, Conn., July 18.—Governor Charles A. Templeton and Major General Brewster, commander of the First corps area, Boston, and Adjutant General George M. Cole of Connecticut and Governor Templeton's staff reviewed the 85th infantry brigade and attached units late this afternoon in the presence of several thousand persons who had come from all over the state by auto and other ways.

The review was the first formal event of its kind in which the brigade had participated. Brigadier General Morris B. Payne led the brigade in review.

The 102d regiment had the right of line through the seniority of its colonel, James A. Haggerty, of New Haven. Then came the 169th infantry, led by Major Clarence C. Scarborough of Hartford, and the 118th medical regiment, led by Colonel Charles B. Comfort of New Haven.

Other units were the 43d division signal corps of Providence, R. I.; the 115th motorcycle brigade headquarters company, the 43d division headquarters company of Putnam assumed the guard duty for the day and did not parade.

DINNER IN LONDON FOR AMERICAN FLIERS

London, July 18.—(By The A. P.)—Tribute was paid to the American round-the-world aviators at a dinner given in their honor tonight by the Royal Aero club. It was a notable gathering of all those prominent in British aviation circles, including the Right Honorable Lord Thompson, the air minister; Sir Hugh Trenchard, chief of the air staff; Major General Sir W. S. Brancker, director of civil aviation and many leading British pilots.

Ambassador Kellogg was there, together with Commander John H. Towers, assistant naval attache; and Major Howard C. Davidson, assistant military attache of the American embassy.

Only three of the American aviators —Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, Lieutenant Leigh Wade and Lieutenant Leslie P. Arnold, Smith's mechanician —were able to attend the dinner, the other three men being obliged to return to Brough to complete preparations for the next leg of the flight.

COOLIDGE MODEST IN POLITICAL PREDICTIONS

Washington, July 18. — President Coolidge on being asked today for an expression of opinion on republican prospects in the forthcoming campaign said he regarded the situation as hopeful.

Political advisers of the president declared his statement to be an illustration of the caution often attributed to him but the statement stood as his own estimate of the present situation.

First hand reports of the political situation in about a dozen states have been laid before Mr. Coolidge this week, all predicting large majorities for the republican national ticket on the basis of present indications. Mr. Coolidge is inclined to discount the predictions somewhat, especially at his stage of preliminaries to the campaign and is said to believe no campaign can be listed definitely as won or lost three and a half months before election.

AVIATORS INJURED IN FLIGHT AT NIANTIC CAMP

Niantic, Conn., July 18.—Lieutenant Arnold Rasmusses of Waterbury and Lieutenant Burton Stanhope of Niantic were injured when their airplane was wrecked during an exhibition flight at the state military camp here this afternoon. Both were taken to the Lawrence Memorial hospital at New London, Lieutenant Rasmusses with cuts and bruisse and Lieutenant Stanhope with a broken leg. Lieutenant Rasmusses was not seriously hurt and was released from the hospital later.

The accident occurred in view of many thousands of persons who were at the camp for Governor's day of the 85th infantry brigade, which has been encamped here for nearly wto weeks.

Air conditions were bad for flying and Lieutenant Rasmusses, who was the pilot in the machine, attempted to land on the parade ground. A shift in the wind forced him to ascend again. He just missed a row of tents along one end of the grounds but could not get up high enough to escape a house. The plane hit the top of the building and then fell to the ground. Lieutenant Stanhope, who was the observer in the machine, was pinned under the wreckage and his leg was broken. The plane before falling ripped off the chimney and a part of the roof of the house.

The house is occupied by Lewis Hall, and the family was at dinner at the time.

KLAN HELD MEETING ON HILL NEAR WATERTOWN

Waterbury, July 18.—Approximately forty cars carrying about 299 men attended what is believed to be a Ku Klux Klan meeting on Birdsall's Hill off Thomaston road in Watertown tonight. Newspapermen were forbidden by four guards at the entrance to the lot, to enter. The ceremony of the flaming cross was presented at the meeting and could be seen through the trees at the entrance to the locality where the meeting took place.

Most of the automobiles, which attended the meeting had their markers covered with cloths and papers. The numbers of 21 cars were taken however, by reporters.

Constable William E. Allen and Edward A. Sprano, of Oakville, were two of the guards that prevented reporters from entering. Both officers admitted they were inside but would give no inkling of what went on nor did they give any explanation as to why they allowed automobiles to proceed on the state highway with their markers covered despite the fact that they directed traffic.

SHAKE-UP OF POLICE INSPECTORS IN NEW YORK

New York, July 18.—The police map of the city was charges today by Police Commissioner Enright in a general shakeup of the city force after nine of twelve inspectors tried on charges of violation of duty with regard to the prohibition law had been found guilty.

Shaver to Manage Dem. Nat'l Campaign

Announcement Made By John W. Davis, Democratic Presidential Nominee.

New York, July 18.—Clem L. Shaver of West Virginia, will manage the campaign of John W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate, which will be formally launched at Clarksburg, W. Va., on the night of August 11 with the official notification of Mr. Davis of his nomination.

This announcement was made late today by Mr. Davis before he departed for Iselboro, Maine, where he will spend ten days.

Selection of Mr. Shaver had been determined upon some days ago, but the official announcement was withheld until Mr. Davis could complete a series of conference with party leaders. The last of these was held today at the home of Frank L. Polk, those present including Thomas Taggart, of Indiana; George E. Brennan, of Illinois, and Norman H. Davis, of New York.

Mr. Shaver himself made public Mr. Davis' statement and supplemented it with the announcement that plans for the campaign still were in the making and that nothing could be said at this time regarding the personnel of the organization which is to be set up and which is to cover the entire country.

From other authentic sources it was learned, however, that there will be organized an advisory committee or "board of strategy" to conduct the campaign under the personal direction of Mr. Shaver. The new chairman will have around him all of the present former chairman of the national committee, including Cordell Hull, of Tennessee; Vance McCormick of Pennsylvania; George White, of Ohio, and Homer S. Cummings, of Connecticut.

Through the form of organization, Mr. Shaver will have available at all times the information and counsel of men who have been actively at the head of campaign organizations in the past. This committee will be supplemented, of course, by district managers in the east, west, north and south and serving under these will be sub-district committees.

Mr. Shaver left tonight for Washington to examine the plant there of the democratic national committee. After this inspection he will determine whether national headquarters will be maintained at the national capital or in New York. Many leaders are known to favor New York, especially since Mr. Davis probably will establish his own headquarters in or near this city.

Non-Union Miners Driven From Mines

By Armed Union Miners Who Had Overpowered the Guards.

McAlester, Okla., July 18.—Descending on the little mining settlement of Cambria on the Pittsburgh-Latimer county line today, about 100 miners traveling in motor cars disarmed guards at the Kail-Inla coal mine, and with apparently no disturbance, ordered approximately 175 non-union workers to leave.

The raid was executed quickly and with precision, wires into the village having been cut. After the mine had been emptied of workmen the invaders re-entered their motor cars and dispersed.

Officials of the company declined tonight to comment on the affair. They would not verify a report that they had agreed not to re-open the mine.

The raiders gathered at Hartshorne according to advices from there, and were recruited from mines in the Pittsburgh and Latimer district.

The Kail-Inla is one of four in the McAlester coal field which recently opened on a non-union basis after a protracted shut down. The wage scale was the same as that agreed upon in 1917 and was considerably less than that effected in Kansas City in May at a conference of operators and officials of the miners' union.

Workers at the mine had left the union to obtain employment and the opening of the four mines was declared to have given the open shop operators a definite entry into the field.

The demonstration today was directed only against the Kail-Inla mine but the other three, it is said, will be affected by the decision of the operators with regard to continuing their non-union status.

"Going Around Robin Hood's Barn"

Nigh on to a thousand years ago, wealthy wayfayers learned to choose some roundabout route into Nottingham, rather than the short cut that led straight through Sherwood forest. For the forest was "Robin Hood's barn"—and doughty Robin and his merry men were eager coin collectors.

People who buy without regard to advertising nowadays journey at high cost in roundabout ways, to make their purchases where values are dubious. But the shrewd buyer of anything, in our days, sends his money to market the straight, sure way, guided by advertising.

What is not advertised may, perhaps, be worth buying. But what is advertised simply must be beyond question. He would be a foolhardy merchant, or reckless manufacturer, who dared publicity for anything questionable.

All the risk these days is in going 'round Robin Hood's barn. Buying on the strength of the advertised promise is the way to buy with least risk of disappointment and greatest certainty of satisfaction.

BRIDGEPORT AMONG THE RAPIDLY GROWING CITIES

Washington, July 18.—Eleven cities have grown into the 100,000 population class during the last year. Estimates of population of the principal cities of the country as of July 1 this year show there are 79 having 100,000 or more as compared with 68 last year. The census bureau in preparing the estimates did not calculate the population of some of the rapidly growing cities, such as Detroit, Los Angeles, Seattle, Denver, Akron, Bridgeport, Houston nad Spokane. The population of the country on July 1 is estimated at 112,078,611.

The relative rank of some of the cities is changed by their newly estimated populatino. New Orleans has passed Cincinnati, Rochester has outgrown Jersey City, St. Paul has surpassed Providence, Oakland's population has grown so that it now outranks St. Paul and and Providence, and Springfield, Mass., has passed Grand Rapids.

New York has passed the six million mark, Chicago is approaching three million, and Philadelphia the two million mark, while Cleveland is somewhat short of a million. Detroit, for which no estimate was made, likely has passed the million mark, as its population was estimated at almost 996,000 a year ago.

AFFIDAVITS ON GAS BOMB IN RHODE ISLAND SENATE

Providence, July 18.—Governor William S. Flynn today said that the attorney general's department had before it for action affidavits from two men in which William C. Pelkey, chairman of the republican state committee, was named as having provided and directed the placing of the gas bomb which broke up the democratic filibuster in the state senate on June 19 by stupefying members of that body.

The affidavits, which the governor said were obtained by Assistant Attorney-General George Hurley and himself in New York yesterday, were made by Thomas Lally and Matthew J. McGovern, both of Boston. They are described in the affidavits as having been among a group hired to guard republican members of the senate; first, while the filibuster was going on, and subsequently after the republican senators left the state in a body and went to Rutland, Mass.

GERMAN DEFAULT QUESTION OBSTACLE AT CONFERENCE

British and French Hold Divergent Views on Procedure—French Delegates Are Opposing Every Move by the British to Diminish Influence of the Reparation Commission—Unofficial American Suggestions Failed to Effect a Compromise.

London, July 18.—(By The A. P.)—The first setback of the inter-allied conference came today when the unsuccessful attempt was made to thresh out the fundamental differences in the French and British views as to how to deal with possible German defaults under the Dawes reparations scheme and the method of inflicting penalties for such delinquencies. Unofficial American suggestions were laid before the experts, but they did not produce a compromise agreement.

It was carefully pointed out that the suggestions given to the committee which is dealing with defaults and sanctions were not made by the American official observer, but emanated from a source which thought that a new method for creating financial confidence for a loan to Germany had been found.

At the end of the day's deliberations the French and British were still holding their views regarding defaults and sanctions. The British are seriving to establish an agent general of reparations as a sort of grand jury for declaring defaults, while the French maintain that the authority of the reparations commission in this respect must not be impaired. Every British move to diminish the influence of the reparations commission has been met by stiff opposition from the French delegates.

Between the two positions, it is hela that there should be a middle ground upon which the allies can meet and Colonel James A. Logan, Jr., the official observer of the United States, who sat through the committee meeting today, declared tonight that there is no reason at this stage of the conference to fear that an agreement will not be reached on the disputed points.

On the second point of disagreement —application of sanctions—American opinion is that harmony is likely to be produced sooner than is generally anticipated. Although the French are insisting that the penalties to be imposed on Germany should be decided upon before the Dawes plan is put into working operation, it is stated that this position is not rigidly held, and there is every indication that the difference will disappear in give and take exchanges of the conference rooms next week.

Americans who are in the closest touch with the conference proceedings are of the opinion that the fate of the whole meeting depends upon the degree of understanding to be reached by Premiers MacDonald and Herriot, that if the premiers can devise ways and means for enforcing the Dawes plan to their own satisfaction there will be little difficulty in obtaining the approval of the expert committee.

BUTLER DOESN'T EXPECT A CAMPAIGN OF PERSONALITIES

New York, July 18.—Oil scandals will play an insignificant part in the presidential campaign, William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, declared tonight.

"Oil scandals?" Mr. Butler repeated the question of reporters. "I've heard almost nothing of them in connection with this campaign. Of course, there was a great deal in the newspapers last winter, but most of that has blown over. I don't think oil will be the shred of an issue."

Asked how he would combat oil as an issue if the Davis and La Follette forces chose to make it one, Mr. Butler said he would "meet that contingency when and if it arises."

"The chief issues will be Coolidge and Dawes," he continued. "Of course there will be other issues. But they will arise as the campaign progresses."

"A campaign of personalities," he repeated another question. "Well, hardly that. We must remember that this is a contest of parties—and that these parties have platforms."

HELD FOR CONSPIRACY TO UNLOAD CARGO OF LIQUOR

New Haven, July 18.—The nine men, on trial in the West Haven town court on two counts of conspiracy, it being alleged that they are guilty of conspiring to unload a cargo of liquor at D. C. Welch's dock on the morning of July 12, were bound over to the next term of superior court by Judge E. A. Smith today, and their bond was fixed at $5,000.

The accused, placed on the stand during the session, denied that they were at the dock for th epurpose of unloading liquor from a ship and declared that they had gathered there to start on a fishing trip for eels. Tony Bresi, offered to produce the boat in which they had expected to make the trip. He said that the boat had turned around upon the arrival of the police because of a broken rudder. They claimed that the eight men had reached the dock in an automobile and could account for the truck which was seize by the police.

The judge announced that he found it impossible to believe their story and bound them over to the superior court.

FALL RIVER COTTON MILLS TO REMOVE TO TENNESSEE

Fall River, Mass., July 18.—It was announced today that two Fall River cotton mills are to be dismantled and the machinery removed to a new mill at Kingsport, Tenn. This was said to be the first time a textile plant has been removed from this city to the south.

Mills numbers 6 and 7 of the cotton goods division of the American Printing company will be emptied of machinery, the announcement said, and the buildings will be used for the enlargement of the company's printing plant here. The company has operated seven large cotton mills and an extensive printing division in Fall River, employing more than 4,000 persons. The two mills to be dismantled normally employed about 1,000 hands.

AVIATOR FAILED IN HIS SEARCH FOR CHILDREN

Mitchel Field, N. Y., July 18.—Captain Charles Drayton, army aviator, reurned here late tonight after a fruitless three-hour search in his plane for the children thought to have been drowned near Fairfield Beach.

A message from John T. Sousa, son of the famous bandmaster, asking for a plane was received here at eight o'clock and ten minutes later Captain Drayton was on his way toward Bridgeport. He remained in the vicinity until dark but found no trace of the mission children.

BRITISH AVIATOR IN BAY ON SHORE OF JRUPPU ISLAND

Tokio, July 18 (By the A. P.)—A. Stuart Macaren, the British aviator on a flight around the world, who has been missing since he left Lake Toshimoye, Yetorofu Islands, for Paramashiru, Kurile Islands, early Wednesday morning, has been found.

MacLaren and his companions were found safe in a bay on the southwest shore of Jruppu island, the island adjoining Yetorofu Island, from which the aviators started Wednesday morning.

SHENANDOAH TO PARTICIPATE IN PACIFIC COAST MANEUVERS

Washington, July 18.—A cruise of the navy dirigible Shenandoah from Lakehurst, N. J., to the Pacific coast for maneuvers with the battleship fleet and subsequent return to its hangar in New Jersey was announced today by the navy department in a tentative schedule for the airship's operations from August 1 to next February.

The schedule calls for the return of the airship from operations with the Atlantic scouting fleet to Lakehurst November 7. The remainder of that month will be spent in overhauling the Shenandoah preparatory to the trans-continental trip and operations with the battle fleet of the Pacific during January and February next year.

Beginning August 1, the Shenandoah will start its first actual experiments with the fuel ship Patoka, which has been equipped with a mooring mast. These tests will be held with the Patoka acting as a mobile base in Narragansett bay and waters of Long Island sound, New York. From August 8 to 21 radio compass tests will be made and from August 22 to 31 the ship will operate with the scouting fleet in the Atlantic.

Other radio tests will be contained from September 1 to 7 and will be followed by additional maneuver operations with the Atlantic scout fleet during the week of September 1 to 15.

FEDERAL AID PROFFERED TO FIGHT FOREST FIRES

Washington, July 18.—Secretary Weeks at the direction of President Coolidge sent a telegram today to the commanding officer of the Ninth Corps area with headquarters at San Francisco, directing him to get in touch with Governor Richardson, of California, to ascertain if any aid could be rendered in the forest fire situation.

The president several days ago telephoned Governor Richardson, offering the assistance of the federal government, and also took up the matter of fighting the fires not only in California but in other far western states, with the war, agriculture and interior departments.

Governor Richardson in his reply said the state and federal authorities had been co-operating, and the president's telegram was sent as a means of insuring that all possible aid be afforded.

DOHENYS POST $5,000 BONDS EACH FOR APPEARANCE

Los Angeles, July 18.—Edward L. Doheny, oil magnate, and his son, Edward L. Doheny, Jr., today posted $5,000 bonds each for their appearance in Washington, D. C., to answer to recent indictments in the government oil lease cases.

The procedure before a United States commissioner occupied less than two minutes.

Former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, who also was indicted and who made his bond recently in El Paso, is visiting Doheny here, but was not present at the proceedings.

Picked from an elimination dancing contest in which over 50 couples participated at Lakeside Casino, South Coventry Wednesday evening, Albert ... of Hartford and Mrs. Crowford, formerly of this city, now of Springfield, Mass., were adjudged winners of the fox trot. The competition was strong and a careful study of at least three couples was made before Mr. Gray and Mrs. Crawford were proclaimed the winners. The prize was a ring of gold. The judges included James ... Esq., Helen Connors and Arthur ... Dubreuil of this city and two men picked from the floor. Mr. Gray is at present engaged in work in this city for the Western Electric Company. Mrs. Crawford is spending the summer with friends at South Coventry.

The funeral of James Kenney was held Friday morning from the Kilroney Brothers' undertaking parlors. Requiem high mass at St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock was sung by Rev. O. S. Beaumister. Mrs. E. R. Dunlance was at the organ. "Nearer My God to Thee was sung as the body was born into the church. O Salutaris at the offertory and Some Sweet Day as a waiting hymn. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Beaumister read the committal service. The bearers were Alfred J. Larrivee, James Rowan, Raymond B. Sullivan and John Killourey.

In the Ashford town court Friday morning two cases were heard by Justice of the Peace Edwin O. Zellar. The prosecutions was by Grand Juror Gene Hartin. James R. Curtis, 17, of Westford, was charged with driving a motor vehicle without a license which he procured by misrepresenting his age as 18. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $16.35, which he paid. Roscoe B. Lee, 38, also of Westford pleaded guilty to operating an automobile without a driver's license. Justice Zellar imposed a fine of $5 and costs amounting to $16.35 which was paid. Both arrests were made by States Policeman Henry Heinold of the Stafford Springs barracks.

More reports were being heard Friday as the result of Thursday noon's terrific rain and electric storm, which swept this city like a cloudburst. Members of the Earle family on Chaplain street were driven from the house by lightning, but were not injured. Near the American Thread mills a woman was overcome by an electric shock but was not seriously affected. Two young girls running home at noon from the thread mills slipped and fell on the Main street railroad crossing and narrowly escaped being crushed by the Boston-bound express.

Lightning struck the house occupied by Forrest Ackley, on the Coventry road and besides damaging the chimney burned a hole in the roof causing loss placed at $100, which was adjusted by insurance.

Lightning raised havoc near the home of George Howard, on the Pleasant Valley road. One bolt shattered a walnut tree in front of the house, and tore a large hole in the ground. Another bolt followed the course of the telephone wires and ripped off clapboards on the house and loosened some boards for a space of four feet. The bolt disappeared, after leaving a sod of turf on top of the roof.

The local exchange of the Southern New England Company was affected to an extent by the storm Thursday that at least two days will be required before the repair crew has unsnarled all the trouble. One hundred and carrying 473 stations were put out of commission.

The town of Coventry reports that very little rain fell in that district Thursday noon while Willimantic was being flooded. Members of the Women's Relief Corps of this city, who were enjoying an outing Thursday at Crystal Lake, Ellington, state that no rain fell there.

Antoinette aged 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Judson Royal of 52 Ash street sustained painful injuries at noon Friday when run down on the street by a Chevrolet sedan owned and driven by George E. Smith, of 343 Park road, West Hartford. The child had started to cross the street in front of her home. She came to a stop and suddenly started again on the run. She struck against the fender of the car and was knocked down. She was taken into her home and a physician found that she had suffered laceration and contusion of the nose, bruises on both knees and right thigh, a contusion on the right side of the neck and an abrasion on the right shoulder. Mr. Smith called at the police station and reported the matter. He was not held as being responsible for the accident, nevertheless he notified the parents and the police that he would settle for the medical attention to the child.

At Crystal Lake, Ellington, thirty-five members of the Woman's Relief Corps of this city, held a delightful picnic Thursday. Games were played and bathing was enjoyed during the forenoon. A basket lunch was provided at noon. Mrs. Ida Chamberlain presented Mrs. Mary Dimock a potted plant in a pretty basket, the date being Mrs. Dimock's birthday. Mrs. Dimock expressed her gratitude for the gift. Others present were, Margaret MacArthur, Carrie Hall, Edith Williams, Anna Pheips, Lottie Gilman, Mrs. Adam Dutz, Ida Williams, May Webster, Alice Bentley, Mrs. Fryer, Hattie Barstow, Alice and Rose Esterbrooks, Nellie Benner, Mabel Higgins, Helen French, Mrs. Dilworth, Elizabeth Green, Lila Davoll, Mrs. Hasuchild, Mrs. Potter, Florence Lewis, Kate Woodward, Ina Cross, Grace Potter, Edna McLean, Lucy Champlin, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Elizabeth Andrews, the last named of Hartford.

T. Frank Cunningham, of San Jose council, No 14, Knights of Columbus, Willimantic, is once more deputy for the thirteenth district, having received his seventh yearly appointment from State Deputy William J. Mulligan. The thirteenth district is made up of four councils: Plainfield, Stafford Springs, Baltic and Willimantic. Deputy Cunningham has a body of friends connected with councils in all parts of Connecticut and all are looking forward to his installation as state deputy. He is believed ably fitted for this exalted office through virtue of his long sterm of service as deputy. Deputy Cunningham has had charge of twenty-four third degree sessions of the order among various councils during the past year.

The heavy traffic through this city from the west to Providence will be guided in an improved manner in the future, at the junction of Main and Ash street, in the lower end of the city. One of Sodom's land marks, a watering trough which has been located at the corner opposite the S. L. Cardinal home for many years will be dismantled and a beacon light with flashing signal will replace it. The light is an electric one similar in appearance to the one at Thread Mill square.

Automobiles for the transportation of members of the Federation of French Societies to St. Mary's Boys' choir camp at Columbia lake Sunday have been loaned by Clement Hurteau, Fred Leclair, Alexis Caisse, Florimond Bergeron, Rev. H. C. Belec, Alex Chagnon, and others.

The annual field day of Connecticut Experimental Station in connection with the American Pomological society is to be held at the Mt. Carmel Farm, Monday, August 11. A basket luncheon will be followed by a joint program of unusual interest. Members of the society will arrive at the farm about noon. The fruit industry will be the main topic of discussion this year.

Over sixty members of the W. B. A. of the Maccabees of Willimantic motored to Savin Rock, West Haven Friday for their annual outing. Five touring cars and the eighteen passenger coach of the Blue Line Company transported the picnickers.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Frank Galor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Galor of Waterbury, formerly of this city to Miss Doris May Holland. The wedding will take place in the fall. Mr. Galor attended Windham High school.

Short Paragraphs

WOMAN SO ILL COULD NOT WORK

Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Stopped her Suffering and Restored her Health

Momence, Illinois.—"I surely can recommend your medicine to other women who have female weakness, as it has helped me very much in every way possible. I was working in a dining room in town, and sometimes I could not do my work; had pains in the lower part of my body and had to stay in bed. One of my neighbors told me what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for her, and it has surely done wonders for me. I hope all women who suffer will take my advice as the Vegetable Compound has done so much to bring back my vigor and strength." — Mrs. ALBERT E. DESCHAUD, Momence, Illinois.

Over 121,000 womenshave so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent. of these replies answer "Yes."

That is 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Thursday afternoon. After business was concluded Master Edwin E. Lewis declared the grange at east, and with an audience of over 200 the following program was carried out: Salute to the flag; singing of America; piano solo, by Mrs. Harold F. Geer; dedication ceremony as prepared by the national grange; singing by a quartet of Pachaug grange, William B. Montgomery, Byron F. Kinnie, Harold F. Geer and Eino Karjala; addresses by State Master Allen B. Cook of Niantic, State Overseer Minor Ives of Meriden, State Assistant Steward Charles M. Adams of Groton, State Ceres Flora A. York, North Stonington, State Flora Mrs. Frank K. Haines, of Pomfret Center, State Deputy Frederick N. Taylor of Lebanon, Master Quinebaug Pomona, F. K. Haines, and Rev. G. F. Goodenough of Ledyard; singing of grange melodies by audience; cantata, The Garden of Singing Flowers, the parts being taken by William B. Montgomery, Frances Montgomery, Esther Frink, Mabel Frink, Mabel Kanahan, Blanche Montgomery, Byron Kinnie, Walter Hyde and Ernest Richmond.

A recess was taken from 6 to 7 and a bountiful supper consisting of cold boiled ham, salads, baked beans, pickles, rolls, cake and coffee was served, under direction of the home economics committee, Mrs. Chauncey Robie, chairman, Mrs. William A. Read and Mrs. William B. Montgomery.

At 7 in the evening the grange was called to order in the fourth degree. Again, after routine business, the grange was declared at ease and the highest officer of the national grange, Charles M. Gardner, high priest of Demeter, was escorted to the platform together with the state officers present, masters of visiting granges, and the past masters of Pachaug grange. Clark Palmer received an ovation as he ascended the stairs to the platform.

The following program was presented under the direction of the lecturer, Miss Mabel E. Kanahast music by the Guile Trio, of Norwich; address, State Master Cook; song, Byron F. Kinnie; address, Charles M. Gardner, high priest of the national grange. Frank E. Mell: music, Guile trio; sketch, Wait a Minute, Charles Campbell and Adam Medick; cantata, A Garden of Singing Flowers. (The cantata was given in the afternoon and received so much praise that by request it was repeated in the evening).

The audience of probably 400 was thrilled by the inspiring address of Mr. Gardner, his theme being We Go Forward. Everyone who heard him will carry away pleasant memories not only of the address but of the personality of the man himself.

The grange was then called to order and after remarks by Masters Arthur Avery of Norwich, William Hall of Plainfield, Milo Appley of Canterbury, Pomona Master John P. Hollowell, and others, the grange was closed and all were invited downstairs to the dining room for refreshments. The hall was beautiful with its decorations of American flags, festoons of red, white and blue, rambler roses and rhododendrons. Mrs. William Bitgood, Mrs. Herbert H. Tidt and Mrs. Victor Campbell were the committee in charge of this, the decoration material being presented the grange by Herbert H. Tidt and William McNicol. During the dedication ceremony Pachaug grange was presented a large American flag by the Connecticut state grange.

Visitors were present from over twenty granges representing the states of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. The dedication programme was in charge of the past masters, the present master and lecturer.

EAST COLCHESTER

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Sparks and Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Mahoney, of New London, spent Sunday here.

Miss Eliza Murphy of Naugatuck has been visiting at C. A. Kramer's.

C. A. Kramer has been improving and painting his house and barn. B. Rabinowitz has painted his house also.

GARDENERS, WHEN IN DOUBT, PLANT A BEAN

Here are some summer garden hints: The bean is the great garden filler. It bridges all gaps and stops all chinks. When in doubt, plant a bean. String beans come in edible maturity in 60 to 75 days. Find out what the average date of the first killing frost in your locality has been and figure from that for your last chance.

If you plant a little too late, you are not out much, and if you win neighbors are long since out of them. As a food string beans are surpassed only by the leaf crops. Like the latter, they supply iron and all the vitamins. Stringless Greenpod is the most popular bush variety.

GROWING OF NEW ZEALAND SPINACH

New Zealand spinach is not a true spinach but it has much the same flavor and is an acceptable substitute. It thrives in hot weather and is very productive, giving a supply of greens all summer. The objection is made that it loses its shape and texture when boiled but if it is boiled only 15 or 20 minutes it retains its shape. New Zealand spinach should not be planted too early. Corn time is right for it also. The seeds germinate rather slowly and should be soaked in warm water for twenty-four hours before planted. Allow plenty of space between plants, a foot or more in rich ground as it spreads widely. When wanted for use the young branches are plucked off as far back as they are tender and boiled with their leaves. Other branches quickly appear and the supply is maintained throughout the season.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Candy Soldiers

Past the pretty Bubbling Brook,
Green with ferns at every nook
Past the hill where daisies nod
From the waving emerald sod,
Hopped the little bunny boy.
With a chocolate candy toy.

"I hope it won't melt before I get home to mother," he sighed, for Mr. Merry Sun was shining brightly from the sky this hot July day.

"Dear, Oh dear," again sighed the little rabbit, as the chocolate soldier began to ooze through his fingers. "I wish I had a cake of ice to cool my chocolate soldier."

"Whatever is the matter," asked Lady Love.

By the time he reached the little gate in the white picket fence the candy toy had almost dripped away. There was nothing left but a soft ball of chocolate. "Dear and Oh dear," cried the bunny boy, opening the gate with his sticky fingers. "Mother will be so disappointed. Maybe I might just as well have eaten it at the party," and he hurried up the winding path through the bramble bushes around to the kitchen door.

"Mother, mother!" he shouted. "Come quick before the soldier runs away."

"Whatever is the matter?" asked Lady Love, the pretty bunny mother, looking anxiously out of the window. "Where is your soldier?"

"Here, right in my hand—or what's left of him," answered the little rabbit. "I brought him home from the party for you," and the bunny boy held up his right paw to show the sticky lump of chocolate, all that was left of the candy soldier.

"Don't feel badly," said the bunny mother, seeing that her little rabbit son was so disappointed, "we'll make a new soldier," and, going to the cupboard, she took out a small tin mould.

"Give him to me," she laughed. "I'll soon make him over," and placing what was left of the candy soldier in a tiny tin mould, she poured in some chocolate syrup. Then placing the tin in the oven, she closed the door. "Pretty soon we'll have a fine new soldier," she laughed, giving her bunny boy a kiss. "You are a loving little boy to think of mother. Did you have a nice time at the party?"

"Did I?" laughed the little rabbit, clasping his paws around his knee. "I should say I did. All my friends were there. Busy Beaver and the Big Brown Bear, Chippy Chipmunk and Henny Jenny, Cocky Doodles and Ducky Waddles, Timmie Meadowmouse and the Circus Elephant, the Yellow Dog Tramp and the Old Brown Horse, Peter Possum and Woody Chuck, Bobbie Redvest and Granddaddy Bullfrog. Oh, yes, everybody was there. I had a lovely time."

Pretty soon Lady Love opened the oven door and took out the tiny mould. Carefully taking out the chocolate soldier, she stood him up on the kitchen table.

"There," she exclaimed, "he looks almost strong enough to go to war."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

William A. Roy of Taftville has taken a position with the Plaut-Cadden Co., as salesman. He has formerly been with a firm having stores in Willimantic and New London and is well known to the musical trade.

The new Grand Lake Hotel at Leonard Bridge built at an expense of $35,000 is completed and now open to guests. The hotel is a three story frame building with a spacious veranda extending the entire length of the front of the building, supported by massive pillars. The hotel contains thirty-eight sleeping rooms only nine of which are single rooms. Each room is equipped with a closet, electric lights and running water and are most attractively furnished. Twelve cribs have been provided for the baby guests. Each floor has two lavatories and baths. The main office on the ground floor and the big lobby are handsomely furnished. The lawn has been graded and seeded and a broad cement walk laid, on either side of which are mounds with flowers in bloom, the work of Mr. Epstein of New York City. With the completion of the new hotel, four modern buildings all fully equipped are now available and three hundred guests can be accommodated, which is nearly twice as many as could be provided for last season. The large building used as a dance hall last season has been altered over into a dining hall, tables each accommodating four persons having been installed. To the rear of the main dining hall is a childrens dining hall and a fully equipped up-to-date kitchen department.

The second floor of the building is devoted to sleeping apartments, while, located in the basement is the hotel hall 70x90 feet has been erected this season. The building also contains bowling allies, pool and billiard tables, refreshment room and dressing room and is equipped with a stage. Public dances are held here three times a week and concerts and dancing are held each night for their guests. To the rear of the main hotel is a cement tennis court, and directly across the street is Grand Lake which furnishes fine boating and bathing privileges. Seventeen boats are available for use on the lake this summer. A new 5,000 gallon water tank has been installed with a pressure system to insure an adequate water supply. Two large sceptic tanks have been provided. A private power and light plant furnishes electricity for lighting all the buildings. The proprietors are having a large garage erected for immediate use. In connection with the hotel business Leibman Bros., and Salaut have developed a large poultry plant, having sixteen modern poultry buildings, eight of which were built last winter. Their poultry comprises 750 laying hens and 2300 White Leghorn chickens.

Leibman Bros. and Salaut have been the owners of this property since 1921 and in that time they have builded and enlarged this hotel and recreation facilities until they have one of the largest and best equipped summer resorts in Connecticut and of which Leonard Bridge may justly take pride.

New Overland Coupe

Unusual interest among feminine motorists has greeted Willys-Overland's announcement of its new two-passenger Overland coupe. Not only is it a light car embodying the manifold advantages of the entrie Overland line, but it combines with these a driving comfort and convenience almost incredible in a car of these dimensions.

Nowadays, with the male members of the family requiring the use of the car during the day, there is a definite need for a second car in a good many homes, a car that can be used for shopping and visiting by the woman folks of the home.

The new Coupe has proved itself to be ideally adapted for this purpose. Ventilating windshield, Dura window regulators, rear window curtains are little touches that appeal to feminine taste.

Coupled with these features is the ease of parking, and the unusual riding comfort due to the 136-inch spring base. Its ease of handling in congested traffic areas because of the exceptionally large steering spindles and bearings are decided factors in the new car intended for feminine use.

The new Coupe is equipped with doors that are over 35 inches wide, thus providing easy entrance. The body of exceptionally heavy metal, is sturdily reinforced. Unusual pains are taken with the painting operations, fourteen coats being applied to give the car its lasting durable finish.

The interior of the body is finished in durable, long grain Spanish leather upholstery. The seat cushion is over 45 inches wide, being ample to accommodate three medium-sized people. There are 15 inches between steering wheel and cushion, rendering it convenient for the car to be entered easily from either side.

A roomy rear deck provides ample space for packages, which is an additional convenience for milady's shopping. Its hinged cover is provided with a lock and is protected against dust and leaks.

Real Estate Changes Ownership.

Mrs. William J. Leahy of Allentown, Pa., has sold through the agency of Francis D. Donohue, her real estate located at 295 Palmer street, to Emilie Ramondi. It consists of an eight-room cottage and barn and six acres of land which will be occupied as a residence.

Irrigating Irak Desert

A scheme which has aroused great local interest in Irak, which is the subject of negotiation with the government, proposes to bring under cultivation, 1,000,000 acres of desert, by diverting the upper waters of the Euphrates into Lake Habbaniyah. The flood waters of the Euphrates are to be poured into the lake by means of an inlet canal at Remadi. A new waste canal will then have to be constructed to let off the possible discharge to a wide depression south of the lake. The waste canal is necessary, as the present lake waters used for the raising of crops and the lake will, therefore, have to be washed for two or three years.

Electricity for Havre

As typical of the electrical progress being made in France, the report of the Societe Havraise d'Energie Electrique, which supplies the city of Havre and surrounding territory, states that at the close of 1923 it had on its lines 25,464 consumers, as compared with 21,376 at the end of 1923, a net increase of 19 per cent. The gain in kilowatt hours consumed during the same period was 21 per cent.

BROADWAY THEATRE

An extra fine attraction starts tomorrow at the Broadway theatre and will continue for four days.

For a long time—in fact, almost as long as there have been motion pictures—that has been a wail from all over the country for photoplays which are different and better. In answer to this appeal every once in so often a production appears on the cinema horizon which is heralded far and wide as a film masterpiece. Occasionally this is the truth, but more often it is a frantic effort to satisfy the public by trying to persuade it that the ugly duckling is a swan.

In the case of Woman to Woman which has just been released by the Selznick Distributing Corporation, there is no need for fulsome praise or the slightest degree of exaggeration. The entire production speaks for itself in no uncertain terms.

The story, which was adapted from Michael Morton's successful stage play, is powerful in theme, quick in action and artistic in climax. It depicts the overwhelming love and supreme sacrifice of the vivid little dancer, Delorysa, who pirouettes under the night lights of Paris and London and remains as sweet and as unspotted as the lilies of her native France.

All in all, Woman to Woman is a superlative production in every detail and one which no motion picture devotee can afford to miss.

Jack Dempsey "knocked out!" Come and see it done. The winner is a girl who delivers the heart punch. It's Kit in Fight and Win.

The punches come fast, but the laughs come faster. Don't sidestep the fun. See Jack Dempsey in Fight and Win.

The most perfectly proportioned man in the world—that's what you'll see when you see Jack Dempsey in his World's Championship Series of Two-reel real life knockouts.

Lithe as a panther, quicker than lightning, punching like a pile-driver—that's Jack Dempsey in his World's Champion Series of Two-reel Dramatic Comedies.

If you think it's a snap to be Champion of the World come see what "Tiger" Jack O'Day, bumps up against. Drama and thrills and laugh on laugh all in the second of the series A Society Knockout. A Kinogram news will complete the program.

PALACE THEATRE

Last times today, continous 1:30 to 10:30, Patsy Ruth Miller and Dustin Farnum in My Man and Rudolph Valentino in A Society Sensation with Carmel Myers.

Sunday night only another big double feature program consisting of 15 big reels.

The Wolfe Fangs can justly be classed as a perfect picture. The land where the action takes place is a paradise of scenic beauty. The Oscar Apfel players braved the raging storms in the north Maine woods, enduring countless hardships, and oftimes at the risk of their lives enacted scenes in perilous locations, to give the screen a new background for pictures.

Another Walter Richard Hall story reached the screen. Partners of the Sunset, which recently appeared in a popular magazine, has been filmed by Bert Lubin, under the direction of Robin H. Townley.

Allene Ray, famous winner of the national Fame and Fortune Beauty Contest is starred in this feature drama. She is supported by an all star cast.

Partners of the Sunset is the thirtieth Walter Hall story to be made into a photoplay. This unusually successful writer has been around the world so many times that he knows every nook and cranny of it.

Partners of the Sunset concerns some of his actual adventures encountered while ranching in the great southwest. It abounds with typical Hall thrills.

Entire change of program Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Elinor Glyn's, How to Educate a Wife with Monte Blue and Marie Prevost.

AT THE BREED

A. S. M. Hutchinson's novel This Freedom adds a new note to the controversy between home and a career for women. The subject of women in business and their modern freedom has been exploited through the columns of the leading newspapers and magazines and now has found its place in the motion pictures. This Freedom has been made into a photoplay by William Fox, with the assistance of the author.

Hutchinson in his story takes the position that it is not possible for a married woman to have a career and to successfully manage her home at the same time.

Families similar to the one described in This Freedom may be seen all about us. Rosalie, the woman banker, who neglected her home for a career in the financial world, has her counterpart in the business and professional world. Hutchinson has taken a specific case of the business woman whose home life was wrecked by the modern freedom and her consuming ambition that sacrificed home and family.

William Fox is presenting the screen version of This Freedom at the Breed theatre, starting Sunday. Denison Clift made the production in England on the sites described by the author in his book. Fay Compton, one of the best known actresses of the English stage has the leading feminine part.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The Bulletin is rather proud of the fact that it had no part whatsoever in the dissemination of "news" stories grossly exaggerating the unfortunate fact that a few cases of smallpox made their appearance in Danielson in the early part of July. So injurious have these exaggerated despatches been to Danielson's people and its business interests that a formal statement giving the real facts has been issued by the Danielson Chamber of Commerce and endorsed by Dr. W. H. Judson and E. C. Babson, health officers, respectively, of the towns of Killingly and Brooklyn, and sent broadcast to editors of New England papers that carried the damaging stories, with a request that corrected statements in accord with the truth be published. Few outside of circles in close touch with the facts realize the damage caused to Danielson's interests by the press despatches referred to. By them Danielson was libeled in practically every section of New England, and even in more distant points. And the entire happening was inexcusable.

Happily, the situation that gave rise to the unfortunate occurrence is apparently nearing its end. Dr. W. H. Judson said Friday afternoon that no new cases have been reported since last Sunday. Of the 17 persons who have been ill in Killingly, some are about ready for release from the strict quarantine that has been maintained. It was anticipated that the situation will be entirely cleared up within a period of two weeks. Danielson goes about its business as usual and where it is not inclined to be irritated by the unjust publicity to which it was subjected, smiles at the fear spread through New England relative to the town in a penny-grabbing enterprise.

Theodore Saucier, resident in the Mashentuck district of the town, went to jail Friday morning, in default of a bond of $500, to await a hearing Monday morning of a charge that he stole 178 chickens from the coops of Henry Smith, also a resident in the Mashentuck district, during Wednesday night or in the early hours of Thursday morning.

When Saucier was presented before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court Friday morning he pleaded not guilty. He was without counsel, and in view of the seriousness of the charge against him, was advised by the court to obtain a legal adviser. That he might do this, his case was continued until Monday, his bond being fixed at $300. He was unable to do this, so was taken over to Brooklyn to await a hearing.

State Officer Merrill Keith, who had been working on the case, brought Saucier into court. It develops that such of the 178 chickens that disappeared from the coops at the Smith they were placed in bags have been place as escaped suffocation when located and will be returned to Mr. Smith. About a hundred of the chickens died of suffocation. Those that lived were brought to the home of an entirely innocent party resident in East Brooklyn and left there pending a plan to dispose of them in Providence.

Capt. F. O. Armington of the Service battery has received definite instructions relative to the movement of the command to Camp Eustis, Va., for the 15 days' tour of duty beginning in August. The company will leave here in cars attached to the boat train on the evening of Wednesday, Aug. 20. At New London their cars will be attached to the Federal express and hauled to Washington, D. C. From Washington the command will proceed to some point on the Potomac, going thence by boat to Camp Eustis. This will be something of a variation of the trips south in other recent years, and the plan appeals to officers and enlisted men.

Of interest is the fact that Danielson has become the center of a wholesale fruit and vegetable distribution organization that is making this section sit up and take notice. When announcements relative to shipments in carload lots began to be made a few weeks ago, Danielson was skeptical and rather waited to be shown, but it has learned that this is the fact. Friday there was standing on a side track in the local yards five carloads of fruit and vegetables consigned to one concern. Other cars were due to arrive during the day and still more cars will be in this (Saturday) morning. The shipments, including this week end, for a period of seven or eight days will total about fourteen cars. Distribution of the shipments will cover about every point in eastern Connecticut.

From now on carload of peaches a day will be sold through Danielson to the surrounding territory. Wholesale business enterprises in this corner of the county are so few as to attract special attention. But there is, no good reason why Danielson should not prove a good wholesale center, and this is now being demonstrated.

Like his predecessor in office, Tax Collector James R. Walsh finds that some persons who are liable to pay taxes in Killingly are very slow about meeting their obligations. No amount of ordinary procedure proves effective in getting collections. This is a matter of concern to each and every taxpayer who make it a point to pay the assessment the town levies against him, or her. There is a possibility that a group of citizens may urge through petition to town officials that any such legal procedure as may be required be instituted to collect taxes long past due. The money belongs to the town. There are ways and means of getting it, and the petitioners likely will ask that it be done.

Following its skip-week schedule, the big plant of the Quinebaug company will again be in operation next week, although the condition of the cotton goods market hardly warrants the accumulation of further stocks of manufactured goods.

Miss Jennie Williams of the operating force of the Danielson central office of the S. N. E. T. company remains ill at her home in Moosup.

Miss Mabel C. Benson fo Fall River is spending the week end with Danielson friends.

The Missionary Fathers of LaSalette, whose American headquarters are located on New Park avenue, Hartford, are to open a house of philosophy and theology at Altamont, near Albany, N. Y., in September. The institution will receive candidates for LaSalette Order and will serve to abolish the practice of sending students to Rome to complete their studies. The new site, recently acquired, was formerly a modern hotel, comprising two hundred rooms. It is situated on an eminence overlooking the valley of the Hudson, making an ideal spot for a college. The property was originally purchased from the owners by the Bishop of Albany as a home for the nuns of his diocese. When Very Rev. Simon Forrestier, M. S., provincial of the American branch of LaSalette Order, went to Albany seeking a place for a proposed seminary, Bishop Gibbons suggested Altamont as more suited to the needs of a college than that for which it was originally intended. Inspection of the property proved that it would be ideal and LaSalette Fathers agreed to take it over. Renovation of the building has proceeded so far that all will be ready for the opening in September. The superior of the new house has not yet been named, but three priests formerly connected with the preparatory school on New Park avenue, Hartford, have been selected to become professors at Albany; Rev. Charles Kirby, M. S., recently of Danielson, Rev. Alfred Jalbert, M. S., formerly of Baltic, and Rev. Michael Siebold, M. S., have already left for Albany and will assume their duties with the opening of the new seminary.

Sensational auction sale of peaches, watermelons and other fruit at Foster's Fruit Market tonight, 6.30 to 9.30. See display adv. this page.—adv.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney H. Perry, Riverview, this afternoon at 3 o'clock, their daughter, Miss Marion E. Perry, and Donald J. Field of Dayville will be united in marriage.

Danielson was very much interested Friday morning in The Bulletin's account of the remarkably efficient work of state police officers from the Danielson barracks in capturing two rum-running cars on the Jewett City-Taftville road.

Capt. F. O. Armington of the Service battery, stationed here, was at Camp Templeton, Niantic, Thursday, visiting with brother officers and inspecting the organizations in camp there.

After all, Danielson may see a circus before the summer is over. There is talk about it, but nothing is definitely settled as yet. Danielson appears to be circus-hungry just at present.

A number from this town were at Sterling Friday as spectators of the outing that brought several thousand operatives of the United States Finishing company from various plants and the town's people together for such an outing as probably Sterling has never before been the center of—yet splendidly entertained.

Hunters will be pleased at reports that rabbits promise to be more plentiful in territory hereabouts when the hunting season opens than has been the case for several years.

PUTNAM

With the formation of a Putnam Woman's Coolidge Club, most of the 28th district has now been organized by the women of the G. O. P. The Putnam club was formed at a dinner given by Miss Katherine Byrne, a member of the state central committee of the 26th district, who has been a factor of the formation of most all of the Coolidge clubs in this district. The few remaining towns in the district not yet organized will be taken care of before long.

Miss Byrne invited a number of representative republican women to be her guest at the Putnam Inn, on Thursday evening, and during the dinner she aroused much enthusiasm by outlining the plan of the campaign to be waged by the women of the 28th district. The campaign will be an intensive one and a house to house canvass for members of the club is among the plans. It will also be a part of the campaign to see that every woman eligible to vote has her name on the voting list, also on the republican caucus list. From now until and including election day the women of the district will be busy campaigning for the republican national and state tickets. Officers of the new Putnam Women's Coolidge club were elected as follows: President, Miss Clara Larned; vice president, Miss Ellen Wheelock; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Walter Rich.

Committees have been appointed as follows: Advisory committee: Miss Katherine Byrne, Mrs. E. M. Warner, Mrs. J. J. Dupre, Mrs. J. B. Tatem, Mrs. T. H. DeCoudres, Mrs. J. A. P. Gagne, Mrs. E. C. Morse.

Caucus committee: Mrs. Chester E. Child, Mrs. A. A. Brodeur, Mrs. David Flagg, Miss Josie Grosvenor, Mrs W. R. Barber, Miss Mary Wheaton, Mrs. Jacob Alpert.

Program committee: Miss Anna Leavitt, Mrs. S. Nikoloff, Mrs. E. H. Burt, Mrs. Archibald Macdonald, Jr., Mrs. H. J. Thayer, Mrs. G. T. Lamarche.

The club is to hold a meeting, Thursday evening, August 14th, in Odd Fellows' hall. The officers and members of the club may be sought at any time for advice as to how to be made voters, how to register on the caucus lists or as to anything pertaining in politics and the campaign. Every woman who believes in the principles of the republican party is eligible to membership.

Dust is gathering on the desk of Hizhonor, the seat in the prisoner's pen is being used as a swinning ground for spiders, no Scotch plaid is seen in the chair occupied by the clerk and the table of the prosecuting attorney in the little court across the river is bare. No bottles with an unknown content; no cans from which arise the fumes of alcohol; no bleary-eyed human recovering from the night before; none of these things have appeared an exhibits A, B and C, during the week, for the court has not been called in session. Owing to the past few months of activity the lull in court business is worthy of passing notice. This little city is orderly and well behaved. Whether it portends the lull before the storm or whether it has entered a period backed by resolutions to be law-abiding, the future alone can tell.

Misses Ruth and Dorcas Bartlett, talented daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bartlett, will leave Putnam about the first of August for Swarthmore, Pa., to become members of the Festival Quintette and will go on tour with winter Chautauqua next season. This quintette is a musical organization of high standing in Chautauqua circles and will comprise the first day's program on the American-Canadian winter circuit of the Swarthmore association. The quintette will spend three weeks of rehearsal at Swarthmore preparatory to opening at Stockton Springs, Me., August 22nd. From there the tour will take them through Nova Scotia and the province of Quebec and back through the New England states, filling 150 engagements up to an including March 5th, 1925. The Misses Bartlett are well known as entertainers in Putnam. Always ready to appear for any worthy cause, their work has added to many an entertainment program in this city. Miss Dorcas Bartlett has a contralto voice, while her sister is a mezzo-soprano.

The young ladies are graduates of the schools of Putnam. During their attendance at schools they studied music and recently finished at the Boston Conservatory of Music. Since the coming of the first Chautauqua to Putnam they have been interested in this form of entertainment and were hard workers in the ranks to make the Putnam Chautauqua season a success. Their aim for some years has been to find a place on a Chautauqua program and their ambition is to be fulfilled at an early date.

Not only are the Misses Bartlett possessed of voices of excellence but they are proficient on the banjo, ukelele and Irish harp.

Mrs. Edward Mullan and children are spending the summer at Oakland beach. Mr. Mullan joins them for the week-ends.

Mrs. Ernest Richards and children are occupying a cottage at Lord's Point.

Miss Hazel Gifford is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Clarence Webster, in Willimantic.

Miss Alice Potter of Reading, Mass., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Newton A. Ballard.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Tucker of Southbridge, formerly of Putnam, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vandale.

Mrs. William Weitz and two children of Philadelphia are guests of Mrs. Weitz's father, Justin Greene, of Center street.

GALES FERRY

A silver tea was given in the Gales Ferry Public Library, Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 5. The decorations were oxeye daisies and ferns. Those receiving and assisting were Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, Mrs. Edward H. Latimer, Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt, Mrs. Stephen Norman and the Misses Povey of Gales Ferry, with Mrs. E. W. Jones of Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Mrs. Everett Noyes poured tea. Mrs. Billings F. S. Crandall, assisted by Miss Hettie Way of Brooklyn, N. Y., served iced tea. Sandwiches, little cakes and candy were served. The waitresses were Misses Em-Beth Bennett, Mystice Coman and Dorothy Birch. Among those present were residents and summer people, with motor parties from Norwich and New London.

Dr. and Mrs. Albert S. Bolles of Williamstown, Mass., who were at the Hotel Mohican, New London, for a few days, were guests for the day Monday, of Dr. Bolles' sisters, Mrs Harriet F. Crandall and Mrs. Harlan A. Pierce.

Floyd Coman, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Coman, was taken critically ill Saturday evening. A physician was summoned and pronounced the symptoms spinal meningitis. The boy had been bathing in the Thames river here, with members of the family, and to the pollution of the river water was ascribed the infection taken into his system. The child responded to treatment, however, and is considered out of danger.

Rev. and Mrs. George H. Wright of Sterling, a former pastor, and his wife of the M. E. church of the place were among the guests at the library tea Wednesday.

Mrs. Avery Main and daughter Elizabeth, had as their guests on an automobile trip, Wednesday, Mrs. Carroll S. Hurlbutt, Mrs. Nelson Parker and daughter Margaret, with Miss Mabel Smith. They went to Rhode Island. Mrs. Hurlbutt stopping at Wakefield, the remainder of the party going to Peace Dale to visit Mrs. Main's sister, Mrs. Frank Ennis.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Baxter of the Lester district and Mr. and Mrs. Harold McGuire of Mystic motored to Portsmouth, R. I., and spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Baxter, and were callers on Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hall of Bristol Ferry.

Mrs. Charles H. Winchester and Mrs. J. Otis Winchester of Laurel Hill, Norwich, spent Wednesday at the summer home of the latter at Perkins place. Mrs. Charles H. Winchester left that evening to visit Mrs. Eugene LaFontaine in the Stoddard district for several days.

Mrs. A. O. Faford with a party of friends in Mystic motored to Onset, Mass., Wednesday, to visit Mrs. Faford's sister, Mrs. Tweedley.

Mrs. F. W. Fogel of East Orange, N. J., is the guest for a few weeks of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Norman. Other guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman for the week end were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Flanmer of Belleville, N. J.

Rev. Truman H. Woodward and Miss Mae Congdon of Wapping motored to the M. E. parsonage Tuesday afternoon to call on the former's parents, Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Woodward.

Mrs. Robert S. Clapp of Clark's Corners, is a guest of Mrs. S. M. Dean and family of Norwich, who are occupying the residence of Nathan A. Gibbs during the absence of the family on a trip to Cape Cod.

VOLUNTOWN

Thursday evening, July 10th, Court Liberty, No. 132, F. of A., held one of the pleasantest social evenings ever held in Union hall in celebration of the 25th anniversary of the institution of the court. There were assembled about 250 people, consisting of Foresters representing Court City of Norwich, Court Griswold of Jewett City, Court Wequonnoc of Taftville and Court Sprague of Baltic, members of Court Liberty and their families and members of Unity circle, Compnalons of the Forest of America, and Companions from Jewett City and Norwich. Among the guests were representatives of the grand court of Connecticut, Grand Recording Secretary Henry Congdon of Norwich and Grand Senior Beadle William Smith of Taftville. Chief Ranger Alfred T. Dupont in a brief speech extended a cordial welcome to all and then called on Financial Secretary McDonald, who has held office in the court since its institution, to preside. Brother McDonald in accepting the duties in a few brief remarks outlined the work of the court since its organization and then introduced as speakers Grand Recording Secretary Henry Congdon Grand Senior Beadle William Smith and Brother Joseph H. McCarthy of Jewett City, one of the applicants for the charter and first deputy grand chief ranger of the court. All the addresses were of a congratulatory order and contained many compliments for the good work which the court has done during the past 25 years, with all good wishes for the future. Vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. Christina Briggs Murphy, accompanied by Miss Ethel Popple, and Wilfrid Marshall, accompanied by Mrs. Christina Briggs Murphy. These numbers were very pleasing as proved by the volume of applause. Following the exercises Morey's four-piece orchestra played dance music. Refreshments were served during the evening. The committee in charge were Financial Secretary T. McDonald, chairman; Chief Ranger A. T. Dupont, Treasurer L. H. Ritchotte, Recording Secretary J. F. Hall and Trustee M. D. Downing.

Wednesday evening an entertainment given for the benefit of the Baptist church on the lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Peckham was attended by a large crowd who very generously patronized the varied attractions. The grounds were decorated with Japanese lanterns and electric lights. There were many stands containing flowers, home made candies and other good things. Ice cream and lemonade were on sale. There was a gypsy tent where fortunes were told. The pleasing entertainment consisted of solos by Mrs. Christina Briggs Murphy, songs by a quartet—Mrs. W. H. Kaufmann, Mrs. John O. Peckham, Henry Young and John O. Peckham; a Maypole dance and speaking by the children. The affair proved a great success.

A large number of fans accompanied the local team to Jewett City Sunday to root for the boys. The rooting seemed to be effective, as the Voluntown team brought down the haughty Ashland boys and brought home the bacon. Jewett City boys who were at the game did not like the result, as several cars containing Voluntown players were stoned on leaving the grounds.

NOANK

Mrs. Marcia Hadley, who is 93, was honored by a picnic Thursday by her niece of Groton, Mrs. John Cooke. Groton people who attended were Mrs. Carrie Marcy, Mrs. Louis Anderlot and son Bradford, Miss Emma Hall and Morris Hall of Putnam.

Mrs. Packer is having her house at Groton Long Point renovated and painted.

Freeman Rogers was a caller in Westbrook recently.

Miss E. Ross is spending a few days at her home. She attended Yale summer school.

Miss Agnes Wilson and the Misses McClare of Mystic were in Noank Friday.

Mrs. Frank Wilcox of Providence, who is visiting in the village, was a recent caller on Mrs. Frank Goodwin at Mystic.

Many old and young enjoyed the annual Baptist church picnic Thursday, held at Rossie's grove, Mystic. A ball game was enjoyed and a good dinner was served. About 200 were present.

Alex Lerassor of France has arrived in the village for the remaining summer months.

Mrs. Howard Hunter was a recent caller in New London.

CLARK'S FALLS

John Watson is recovering from illness and is able to work in his garden. Mr. Watson is sawyer for Frank Shippee and the work has been held up at the sawmill.

Miss Sarah Palmer and Mrs. Nellie Palmer were at Weekapaug Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Maine entertained a wedding party at their home Saturday evening. The bride is a granddaughter, Evelyn Arline Maine, and the bridegroom Peter Patrick King, both of Westerly, where they will reside. Many relatives and friends were present to wish them success and happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Frank Palmer and Mrs. Nellie Palmer were in Westerly Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Ralph Rathbone had a number of young people gather at her house Wednesday evening to form a new society, "The Jolly Workers." Mrs. Rathbone is their music teacher.

PLAINFIELD

Two years ago, signs were posted on the Main street forbidding automobiles to park on the left hand side of the road coming into town. These signs were posted to keep at least two-thirds of the road open for moving traffic. For the first few weeks the orders were carried out; but since the patrolman was beaten in court by violators of this ruling the signs have been utterly disregarded.

Although Plainfield is not a thickly populated village, on a Saturday night cars are parked on both sides of the road all along the business section by people attending the theatre. When this occurs it leaves only room for one car to pass at a time. As there are no traffic officers the road becomes blocked many times during the evening. In the village of Moosup the parking laws are rigidly enforced as they are in other towns; but the courts do not seem to uphold the Plainfield traffic rules.

Although it is not compulsory the auto drivers could remedy this congestion of traffic every Saturday night, some times Sunday, by respecting the parking rules.

It is rumored around town that Plainfield will have a circus this year, after a lapse of five or six years.

Mrs. William Le Clair and family and Mrs. Long are spending two weeks at Oakland Beach.

Harold Bateson and Henry Adams went on a fishing trip to Podunk lake Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Greenier of Boston, Mass., formerly of Plainfield were entertained by friends here this week.

Miss Alice Ainsworth of Hartford is spending a few weeks with her mother, Mrs. G. Watson.

BOZRAH

Mrs. S. H. Bishop, Miss Olive Bishop, Miss Rose Matassa and Miss Etta Walker, of Norwich Town, spent Thursday with Mrs. O. A. Bishop.

The grange met Wednesday evening. The lecturer's hour was in charge of Mrs. E. E. Lathrop. Mosquitoes was the subject for discussion.

Rev. N. E. Webb and family are in New York for a few days.

C. A. Parker has returned, after several weeks stay in Hoosac Falls, N. Y., with her brother, David Avery.

Several from here attended the dedication of the new grange hall in Pachaug, Thursday. Charles N. Gardners of Massachusetts was the speaker.

THE FUEL PROBLEM.

No one is doing much worrying as yet over the possibilities of a fuel famine next winter. It isn't the season when most people give thought to such a thing, and unfortunately it isn't the time of year when enough people make provision against such a possibility.

The announced increase in the price of coal in some places brings to mind the fact, nevertheless, that even though there portends no stoppage of production through a general strike and no shortage of fuel is indicated there has been no relief from the high price of coal which goes with such conditions.

The American Engineering council has been making a study of the fuel problem over a period of a year. Its committee has gone into the question as regards bituminous as well as anthracite and it comes forward with the suggested remedy that "The storage of coal is essentially necessary as an aid to the solution of the national coal problem, and it is an economical and practical means of insuring an adequate supply of coal as needed."

That may be regarded as no new device. Certainly it has been heard many times before, but when it comes as the result of the latest exhaustive investigation of the subject there is an added emphasis which cannot be wisely disregarded.

It is unfortunate that there is such a disposition to procrastinate in connection with the laying in of a supply of coal for the winter. It is when the fuel is most needed that there is the loudest demand for it and the price is the highest. There is no good reason why there cannot be a gradual stocking up of those households where there is adequate cellar capacity during the spring, summer and fall months, if in fact it isn't preferable to fill the bins at one time. There is everything to commend such a course of action. Repeatedly has it been shown that it overcomes the disadvantages of a shortage, and those who have practiced it know that it relieves the pocketbook as well as eliminates the worry.

Such action may not furnish the entire solution for the fuel problem but it will do much to help the consumer's predicament.

WHEELER BALKS.

Senator James Watson of Indiana has voiced his judgment of the democratic nominees for president and vice president, and has termed the ticket a mesalliance. Let that be regarded as the opinion of a republican, if you will, or even of a republican senator who was turned down as a candidate for vice president in his own party's convention, and it will have to be admitted that he expresses an opinion that coincides with many others.

If Senator Watson's assertion is to be discounted because he happens to be a republican, that certainly does not apply to all the criticism that is being voiced over the candidates. It isn't to be supposed that Senator Watson and Senator Wheeler look at things political in the same light. They are members of different parties, but even Senator Wheeler, a democrat, is even more disturbed than Senator Watson for not only does he disapprove of the choice made but he has announced that he will not support the ticket. That is a democratic expression, and it is an expression that is not confined to one man.

Perhaps Senator Wheeler represents a sentiment in the democratic party that could be expected to take such a view. He is numbered among those who can be listed among the radical forces, and for that reason it may be that he could not be expected to accept majority or, in this case, two-thirds action, bury his minority views and stand with the party. It is not improbable that the party is glad to know at this early date where the senator from Montana actually stands. No one knows but what there may be satisfaction at the chance to read him out of the party.

But be that as it may, it is evident that there is a feeling of dissatisfaction within the lines that is not going to strengthen the party showing at the polls in November. The convention antics furnished the excuse for it. Endeavors to get the democrats together will not be overlooked but it has already become evident that there is a ground swell of dissatisfaction, a split, that is already giving evidence of what is to be expected.

THE MISSISSIPPI EXPLOSION.

The investigation of the turret tragedy on the Mississippi by the naval court has resulted in establishing the cause of the explosions and brought to light other conditions which, while not contributing to the cause of the trouble, were nevertheless factors, which doubtless contributed to the number of deaths.

The court finds that the explosion was due to the improper cleaning of the gun after being fired. This left it foul and prompted the premature firing of the next charge. The compressed air mechanism which is used for the cleaning of the guns was not working properly. When a previous salvo was about to be fired there was a premature explosion due to the same cause, but happily in that case the breech of the gun had been locked and the discharge did no harm. In the fifth salvo following the breech block had not been gotten into place so as to prevent a back fire and death filled the turret.

The inquiry disclosed that the number of deaths might not have been so large had it not been so that the safety doors were open at a time when they should have been closed, and had there not been a crowding of the passageways by unofficial observers.

The board found that one of the turret crew had diagnosed the trouble and announced that he would remedy the trouble with the compressed air. Why this was not done or why it was not effective does not appear in the report. That it failed to meet the requirements is evidenced by the explosion.

This is a case where the naval court has made no recommendations. It has confined itself to getting the facts and reporting them to the navy department, where they will be digested and such action as is believed consistent therewith can be expected to follow. There is nevertheless revealed conditions which cannot be regarded as characteristic of our navy and therefore calling for action that will prevent their occurrence in the future. As to punishment it is possible that death has intervened.

WORLD CHAMPIONS.

It isn't often that there is a contest for the world's championship among eight-oared crews, but in view of the outcome of the racing in the Olympic contest that honor must be accorded to the Yale crew this year. It is true that the Yale varsity did not meet all the American crews in a tryout, but it was victorious in the classic on the Thames, after previous victories, and it was picked to represent this country because of the showing that it had made and because it won on the Thames in the race with Harvard.

Yale had a fine crew this year and it carried the confidence of the people of this country with it when it went abroad. There it has meet all comers, under somewhat different conditions than prevail in the races in this country, for the distance is much shorter, but in each instance they won without unduly exercising themselves. There was evidence of the training, the characteristic Yale spirit and a crew that was well equipped to match the best that other countries could produce. Yale did what it was expected to do.

It thus becomes quite evident that America is able to maintain its leadership in eight-oared shell rowing quite as well as it is in field athletics, and such contests always cause regret that there are not more similar races between crews during the yearly regattas in this country. The Olympic rowing contests have furnished many interesting short matches over a period of several days instead of being limited to a 20-minute struggle of which only a few can see it all.

TEST FOR COASTWISE LAW.

Had the owners of the British steamer Voltaire, which carried a party of several hundred from Philadelphia to Boston, paid the fine of $110,000 which was imposed upon it for violation of the coastwise laws of this country there would have been an end of it. The company has not paid but has made application for relief from the penalty imposed, which means that the matter will go to higher authority than the customs officials at Boston and may find its way into the courts before there is a final determination of the matter.

Foreign vessels are permitted to touch at ports in this country to leave passengers or freight and to take on passengers and freight for foreign ports, but they are not permitted to carry such from one American port and deliver it to another American port.

That is what it appears was done in the case of the Voltaire. Starting from Philadelphia it took its crowd to Boston. There is no denying that, but it claims not to have violated our laws because it cleared for a Canadian port which made it a foreign voyage. It is a case, however, where its party was carried between American ports, taken from one and delivered in another, even though it did in the course of its operation touch a foreign port. There seems to be justification for the claim that the inclusion of Canadian ports was simply a subterfuge, an effort to circumvent our laws, which American officials were quick to spot and penalize. If the steamship company has found a way of beating our laws it is certainly time it was known, that the needed strengthening of it may be undertaken at the first opportunity. The appeal permits a thorough test.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Everyone is happy as long as his team is headed for the pennant.

Those "didn't know it was loaded" guns continue to do just about as much execution as ever.

Does the success of the Americans in the Olympic contest whet your ambition to enter the competition next time?

Even wheen all trunk roads become 100 feet wide, the width will be insufficient for those who insist on cutting in.

What would you do if you owned the gas and electric plant and received the offers from the Eastern Power company that have been made to the city?

La Follette is not to be formally notified. To have put through such a ceremony consistently it would have been necessary for the candidate to have notified himself.

Though C. W. Bryan once threatened to campaign for La Follette, he is now throwing cold water in that direction. He was struck by political lightning unexpectedly.

In pronouncing his name La Follette says the emphasis should be on the Foll. That has already been discovered by most people who have also added the Y to it.

Senator Robinson ousted from the Chevy Chase club for fighting probably forgot himself and figured that he was for the time being on the floor of the upper house of congress.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

In our general conversation we make no distinction between satisfaction and gratification. To gratify is to please or sense perception. When any want, real or supposed, is answered we are gratified. It means simply to humor or to please. It is not at all strange that we often use the word satisfy when gratify would be more correct, and, of course, visa versa. When a hungry man comes home to dinner and catches the rich odor of cooking steak, it appeals powerfully to his internal anatomy, and after he has made havoc with said steak he is very apt to remark that "the steak was very satisfying," probably because he has indulged almost to the bursting point. Along some other lines his over-indulgence, while it may for the time being gratify, it is a long way from that permanent satisfaction that he would like. Contentment with the bigger things of life should be expressed by the word "satisfaction."

A man one day was overheard explaining his knowledge of operating a car by saying that he had no trouble in placing the spark lever or the throttle lever. He never forgot to turn down the ignition switch or press the starter button. In other words he found it easy to get the engine running, but he was a little weak with the control lever. He is not the only man who is weak that way. Lots of men can get this human engine running, perhaps in many cases a bit too fast, but the trouble is with the control lever; to manage the speed when the car gets under way. Most of the accidents on the road come from weak handling of the lever control. So they do elsewhere. Many a man when in a flaring passion uses his fists so freely that he gets into the lockup simply because he doesn't use the lever control. For the same reason a certain minister hurt his influence by preaching long after he had finished his sermon.

Is it not possible for both individuals and nations to get into that condition of smugness as to feel no need of protection? It is a permonition of a downfall when an individual or a nation says, "I am it" and ceases to struggle for combined existence. Is it not much better to be dissatisfied with what one is and has attained than to settle down in the dead hollow of complacency. When we get into that attitude of mental self satisfaction the impulse to continued activity ceases, and then the downward road begins. There is no such thing in nature as a standstill; everything is advancing or retreating, is growing or it is decaying. Precisely the same thing is true with individuals and nations. The self complacency of the Roman empire paved the way for conquest on the part of the Vandals and Goths. "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall."

Well, what are we going to do about it? There it is all exposed and dried up! I don't mean your conscience, which may be perfectly true, but your garden, which you have tended with such paternal care, and which you have watered with the sweat of your brow! When these lines were written most of the gardens in this section were a very sight. Most of the vines were thin, yellow and withered. Even the weeds seemed to cry out from their immortal souls "O for a drink!" Well, suppose the drought should last a month longer and small gardens become an utter loss, what then? Of course this is hardly a supposable proposition, but not impossible. In that extreme case would there be no gain whatever? How about the exercise we have had in spading and planting? It is possible to put forth honest effort anywhere without corresponding reward? Is there any field of labor in which the law of compensation does not work?

The rambler rose is having its day, and it is some day, too. All people feel and most people say: "Why can't such beautiful things last longer?" In such an expression we touch a great fundamental note in human nature. All people have been saying it in all ages of the world, and they have applied it to the things of which they are very fond. Little Johnny says: "Why can't this lollypop last?" Of course we know why. It is because the lollypop has the tendency to stretch Johnny's once little mouth from ear to ear, and if the lollypop lasted he would be decapitated. Cannibals, sitting around a low fire, devouring the last morsel of delicious human stew, have been known to say: "Why can't these juicy Englishmen last?" Because it would be against a wise provision of nature. The English race must be protected against extermination, and cannibals against acute indigestion. Quantity and quality are not apt to be wrapped up in the same bundle.

Don't forget that this is the picnic season! No matter what you think of picnics, but remember the kiddies; how much it means to them. Bear in mind how far a picnic entered into your life when you were young. You may say that it is quite a job to get up a basket lunch for five or six—and you are entirely right there—and that it is still harder to sit on the settees in the pavilion at Ocean beach and nibble away at pop corn and peanuts for six or eight hours, but just remember what it means to the kiddies playing in the sand, running, jumping, yelling, sunning in bathing suits wet and dry for most of the day! Think of what compliments they pay to your cooking as represented by that huge lunch basket to which they resort every fifteen minutes. This day of primitive pleasure is almost as shortlived as their lollypops. Let them live it to the full as you did years ago.

Long before the era of great railroad construction and ship subsidies, Poor Richard wrote: "What learning is to the studious riches are to the careful." If living now would he express himself in the same way? The first part of this expression is doubtless as true today as when it was uttered in the 18th century that learning is the reward of the studious. Let any person early in life develop a desire for learning and devote himself earnestly to its acquirement, with all the literature at his disposal in these days he can become a learned man. But if the object is to be realized, as Poor Richard says, he must be studious. But is it always the careful who get rich? But may not carefulness be carried so far as to obscure one's vision of opportunity? If you run over the list of the pre-eminently rich men of this country you will find they have not been so much careful men as bold, daring, audacious, energetic men who have made the most of existing conditions and created new ones.

Long, long ago, Galileo, far in advance of his age, had the boldness to say, as a result of long scientific study, that the earth moved. But the bigoted controlling power of the day made him recant, threatening him with dire punishment for refusal. But in private he was known to remark, "It does move." Bigotry has always been a great foe to human progress, and will have much to answer for in the season of final judgment. No longer ago than July 19, 1848—just 76 years ago today—the first woman's rights convention was held. With few exceptions the idea was either ridiculed or ignored by the public press. Many pulpits hurled against it the thunderbolts of its righteous indignation, although it was sponsored by some of the greatest women that this or any other country has produced, as Harriet Beecher Stowe, Susan B. Anthony, Mary A Livermore, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Lucy Stone, and Julia Ward Howe. With the 19th amendment in full swing, Galileo still has a right to say, "It does move."

MUNICIPAL vs. PRIVATELY OWNED PUBLIC UTILITIES

It is impossible to give a positive answer of universal application to the questions of the success or failure of municipal ownership. Each municipality is a separate problem, and each utility plant involves a careful analysis of its own complexities.

A study of the profession of business, however, discloses certain definite principles which are present in all successful business enterprises writes Deane W. Malott, assistant dean of Harvard business school in the Boston Transcript. It seems desirable, therefore, to consider the broad principles underlying any utility plant if it is to be of real service, and then to inquire whether municipal or private ownership best develops these basic fundamentals of business success.

The success of a utility company is seemingly predicated upon its ability to answer five more or less interdependent questions: (1) Is there an adequate field for its service? (2) Can it successfully finance its operations? (3) Is it in a position to attain low cost of production? (4) Is its management efficient and sound? (5) Can it give satisfactory service at a reasonable rate? The answer to these questions both by the municipal and private companies should determine the relative fitness of each to serve the community.

The Field of Service

The potential field of service is larger for the privately owned company, inasmuch as municipal plants seldom extend their service beyond the city limits. Rural electrical development is usually impossible under municipal ownership because communities as a rule, are without authority to conduct any business or any activities outside of their corporate limits. Even when so authorized, taxpayers of a community do not relish bonding that community or paying taxes to meet payments on bonds for capital to be spent in giving service outside of the community, particularly rural and farm electric service.

While municipal plants operate in one community only, with rare exceptions, the welfare and prosperity of any community are dependent upon the welfare and prosperity of surrounding territory tributary to it. Thus private companies frequently find it desirable to expand into the surrounding country. Business economy and commercial development, furthermore, are requiring the construction of large centralized electric plants and long-distance transmission lines that will serve a wide spread of territory.

Ability to Secure Capital

A well-managed company should find little difficulty in financing itself regardless of ownership. Municipal utilities, however, finance through municipal bonds bearing a lower rate of interest, the marketing of which is made comparatively easy by the fact that the bond is backed by the city and is tax exempt. On the other hand, the issuance of municipal bonds is dependent upon the vote of the citizens. The management of municipal utility companies, therefore, are faced with the necessity of going before the people and convincing them of the necessity of spending the desired money. These contemplated outlays are often the subjects of prolonged discussions, usually with the violent opposition of a considerable part of the community. This opposition is directed toward keeping down the public outlays without much regard either to the needs of the business enterprise, or to the ultimate public benefits.

The privately owned corporation, on the other hand, is in a position to secure funds to develop its business as the community's need increases, without the consent of the taxpayers. The privately owned plant is sometimes willing to take a loss or make an investment in machinery for future expansion which the municipally owned plant may not always be in a position to do. Furthermore, in municipal operations, there is always competition between the various departments of municipal activity for the appropriations, and this competition rather than the absolute need determines the amount allowed for any particular function. Thus the advantage of more readily securing desired capital seems to lie with the private companies.

Low Production Cost

The municipal plant in general can undoubtedly obtain capital at a lower cost than private companies, inasmuch as municipal securities, being locally tax exempt and with the credit of the municipality back of them, sell at a lower rate of interest. Of course a poorly managed plant or one in a shaky financial condition might find its financial burdens greater under private control, because all of its capital might be derived from bonds the interest on which must necessarily be met. On the other hand a private company with a portion of its capital obtained through sale of stocks, can pass its dividends when necessary. It is scarcely just, however, to argue from the point of view of the weak company. A private company is expected in normal times to pay a rate of return on its stock greater than the interest which would be paid by a municipal company on its bonds.

Municipal plants have an advantage in that they are exempt. While this fact may react favorably on the rates charged to consumers, it is not relly a saving to the community as a whole. The taxes not paid by a municipal plant are simply an added burden on all taxpaying citizens, in meeting the expenses of the city, regardless of whether or not they are users of electricity. In other words, the man who doesn't use electricity helps pay the people's light bills under municipal ownership.

Economic necessity will theoretically cause private companies to be more economical in an effort to increase their profits. Thus they will usually have more careful accounting, and careful accounting usually causes economies of operation and production. The accounts of municipal companies, however, often are not completely segregated from other municipal activities and confusion and irresponsibility results.

There are certain other dangers arising from political causes usually inherent in municipal ownership. Wages are likely to be determined by consideration. Occasionally this results in too low a wage scale, but more often such a condition may be unfair to the public because of the burden of unnecessary high wages paid to municipal employees. Another result of political management is frequently found in the tendency toward needless and wasteful increases in the number of employees in the case of public utilities under municipal operation. According to the United States, census municipal plants hired 10.3 per cent of all the electric light and power employees in the United States, but produced only 4 per cent of the electricity sold in the country.

Thus opportunities for low production arise in both types of operation. Those opposed to municipal ownership argue that according to the United States census the average rates charged by municipally owned electric light plants are twice as high as the rates charged by private companies. These people, however, do not allow for the fact that practically every municipal plant is in a small town, where economies of production cannot be effected as in the larger city plants.

Efficient Management

The service of any plant depends in very large degree upon the ability and skill, the zeal and energy, and the soundness of judgment of the human agents employed therein. Ability and skill in a particular field are the products of special and prolonged training, and an intimate knowledge developed from experience. Having secured these qualities a business seeks to retain and expand them by making the self-interest and ambition of officials and employees a dominant motive for the loyal devotion to the welfare of the business.

These requisites are more likely to be lacking in an organization created by political methods to perform an economic function, than in a company organized entirely for economic motives. No business, whether public or private, can be operated efficiently and without great waste, under the constant injection at the top of new, untried, and often unfit executives and managers. Frequent change, with possible resulting unfitness in the upper ranks and lack of opportunity and zeal in the lower ranks, is more often a condition of municipal than of private ownership, because political expediency is nearly always the determining consideration to appointments to the executive positions in municipal enterprises. Such positions are frequently rewards of political service; and the appointees may not be proficient business executives.

Too frequently, therefore, municipal plants are operated by temporary and frequently changed managing officials with an imperfect knowledge of their duties and often without the training necessary to efficient management frequent disorganization of the machinery results from these changes; and at the bottom there is a group of minor employees, without the opportunity for advancement which supplies the principal motive for zeal and energy.

In the private company, however, the management in charge does not depend upon political favors for support, and, inasmuch as the officers are usually stockholders, they have a real desire to give the best of their energies to the prosecution of the business. In a private corporation each man is responsible to someone and for certain duties, which is not always the case in municipally owned properties. Furthermore, the tendency in private companies is towards consolidation into large holding companies. This condition makes possible the employment of experts in the various technical and executive phases of operation, which is obviously out of the question in the small municipal plants.

It is apparent, therefore, that the private company normally has a better opportunity for efficient management than the municipal plant. At least it should be a part of the scheme of any municipal plant to have managers holding a permanent tenure of office removed from any system of spoils arising from municipal politics.

Satisfactory Service at Reasonable Rate

In answering this final question testing municipal and private operation, it will be well to consider the experience of various plants. Inasmuch as the McGraw Electrical Directory shows that 92.8 per cent of the population of the United States served with electricity receive service from privately owned plants, it does not seem necessary to go into any individual consideration of the private companies. The great majority of them undoubtedly are giving a reasonably satisfactory service and yielding a return to the investors.

Examples of satisfactory municipal ownership re found here and there among the small towns utilising municipal plants. A study of the plant at Troy, Ohio, for the twenty years

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

The Rising Sun.

And he shall be as the light of the morning, when the sun riseth, even a morning without clouds; as the tender grass bringing out of the earth by clear shining after rain. 2 Sam. 2, 3, 4.

The sea turns its emeral bosom toward the skies, the veil of night hides the glories of the deep. From horizon to horizon its placid surface swells without a trace of foam. Presently, the earth is rosy with a purple glow. Shafts of orange, blue and yellow fashion themselves into a vast rosette, and proclaims the royal approach of day. The morning breeze curls the green waves with silvery foam, which turns to gold under the torch of dawn. A cloudless sky is suffused with a soft flush of color. Suddenly above the ocean's edge appears a curved disk. The scintillations of light increase, and with a burst of glory unparalleled in nature elsewhere, the dawn is ushered in. The jeweled rain of the rising sun has fallen upon the sea. Upon the ocean's shore lies a little hamlet slumbering in labor's refreshing sleep. The first gleams of the morning fall on the narrow panes of the fisherman's hut and kindle the home into activity. The smoke creeps from the chimney, the door opens and man comes forth to the toil of net and boat. Beyond the hamlet by the seas lies a mountain range and a vast barrier stretches away, for miles, between the prairie and the sea. Beyond this mountain range lie thousands of farm houses, numberless cities, ready to spring into life at the touch of the orb of day. Seaward the slope is bathed in light, landward it lies in shadow. The highest peaks first reflect a silvery halo. Then long streaks of light brighten the upper air. Far below, in depths of darkness, men await the signal of the sun. The mountain hamlet is first aroused, then the upland farm, last of all the city on the plain. The city swarms with life as the day begins. The deserted streets are filled with hastening humanity. Homes pour forth a stream of workers. The world awaits the sun were it not to rise, confusion would ensue. We can imagine the surprised world sleeping at first, in the unaccustomed luxury of a double rest; then the rising alarm the world under candle light wondering, working at its accustomed task; the flowers drooping, the grass withering, the trees dying, the cattle perishing in fields of gloom, the earth growing cold and barren as the source of light and warmth and life was withheld. When the last man had died in the darkness, the world would have seen what sunrise means to the world. Even back in Samuel, the meaning of the coming of Christ is perceived. It is of Jesus Christ that David speaks, when, with dying breath, he says: "He shall be as the light of the morning, when the sun riseth, even as a morning without clouds." As the jeweled rain of the rising sun brings life to the world, so Christ sustains the soul. He is the glory of the inner world. He dawns like the rising sun. First, the soft glow of His approach, then the splendor of His presence in the soul. We accept the sunlight; why not accept the Son of the giver of light? Christ does for the soul what the sun does for the world.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Americanism

Mr. Editor: The writer is a Protestant and comes from the so-called "Old American Stock." Ordinarily he takes no interest in politics or factions outside of performing his duties as an American citizen in regards to voting, etc.

Your issue of Tuesday contained reference to a meeting of the Ku Klux Klan in which the speaker attempts to define what constitutes an American citizen. If this analysis is correct Protestantism is but a synonym for Americanism. This gentleman has but to brush up on American history and he will find that not all the outstanding figures of the Revolution were native born Protestants or Klansmen. When he says "we" made this country what it is, what does he mean? Does the names of Montgomery, General Sullivan, General Lafayette, Kosciuszko, DeKalb, Muhlenberg, Pulaski and Steuben and many others sound like the so called one hundred per cent. American?

What a sorry time these gentlemen would have trying to gain admittance to the Klan were they living. They would have nothing to recommend them except the fact that they suffered the reverses of war, endured its privations, fought and some of them bled that the U. S. might gain their independence, but not being Protestant and American born they would be "out of luck."

The aims of the Klan for fostering Americanism are fine but why be so select. Is it possible to judge any class of people as a whole?

What about the old saying:

There is so much bad in the best of U. S.

And so much good in the worst of U. S.

That it hardly behooves any of U. S. To talk about the rest of U. S.

The Klan speaker made reference to Washington as putting only Americans on guard. The afore named gentlemen certainly held positions of trust and responsibility under Washington who considered them as much American as himself.

The Trinity

Mr Editor: Readers of The Bulletin can readily see that A. E. S. has the best of the argument.

The brevity and directness of his two letters as compared with the complex and profuse use of words and quotations by his opponents, in itself, gives him the advantage.

Summarizing, Mr. Rice, a professional Biblical student and lecturers gives out to his audience that there is only one scripture text and that a spurious one which affirms the doctrine of the Trinity. Mr. A. E. S. possibly only an intelligent reader of the Bible, at once gives several quotations and other statements from both Old and New Testaments, that connectionally express the doctrine as clearly as language can express it.

Now among others comes one M. B. Miller with an excuse for Mr. Rice, because it would be impossible for him or any one (hence including herself) to go into detail in one short lecture"

It is always difficult not to use her stronger word "impossible" to prove anything that requires to be accomplished by mere words, and this accounts for the greater space used by all the opponents of A E. S.

We suppose it is not at all material to the point whether Messrs. Rice, Abbott and M B. Miller disbelieve the Trinity. The sun will likely rise tomorrow the same if they do, or do not, but this writer would name a more important personage who did express his belief in the Trinity.

If Jesus Christ would be considered authority by these unbelievers, it is recorded of Him that He did direct His apostles to "Go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost."

No fuller expression of the composition of the Godhead can be given than this.

In this commission Jesus asserts Himself as "The Son" and elsewhere states that heaven and earth might pass away, but not His word. His gospel is not hid. It does not need a long vocabulary of words to make it plain to every creature. Even the Irish pagans could understand St. Patrick's explanation of the Trinity, when he stopped down and showed them their own three-leaved shamrock. And they believed and were baptized. Our modern pagans are surely more obtuse.

JOHN TROLAND.

Protest Against Conduct

Mr. Editor: Kindly allow me space to remark of the vandalism of the children from Lake street playgrounds at Poquetanuck Cove July 15. These children were supposed to be in charge of competent teachers. After having free use of the grounds they showed their appreciation of the privileges extended by trying to enter one of the cottages and when stopped by people nearby took refuge on the upper bank and amused themselves by throwing stones at the cottage, large rocks, some of which still remain on the verandas as silent witnesses. If the names of the boys whose ages range from twelve to sixteen years are learned they will be punished and if the teachers have no control over their charges, it would be better to charge admission to the grounds. Then there would be funds to provide an officer to protect the property of people who have leased the ground and would like a little peace and quiet without having their lives endangered. If this is a sample of the way the playgrounds are conducted they would be better off without them or place the authority with some one who would see that such "innocent" fun was restricted

Peaceful Assembly.

Mr. Editor: If you will permit me to say it, I would like to state that Corning Road is in the United States of America; and I ask your permission to add other brief statements which relate to the first one. The Constitution of the United States of America assures the right of peaceful assembly. On the evening of July 15th Knights of the Ku Klux Klan held a meeting just off of Corning road on private property. It was a peaceful assembly. Other citizens of Norwich and of other towns gathered in numbers with the evident intention of disturbing the peaceful assembly of the Klan. But for the calming presence of Sergeant Casey and Officer Allen of the local police force the disturbers of peaceful assembly would have undoubtedly accomplished more than they did. The officers did good work. They could not control all of the peace-breakers at all times; for one Klansman was struck with a stone. Another stone—a one-pounder—whistled by the head of another Klan guard stationed within the lines. Epithets not good to hear were freely thrown by the disturbers of peaceful assembly. I, myself heard one man, a Main street business man, shout toward the homegoing Klansmen: "Them is rotten citizens!" This offender of the peace was not born in the United States, but has been enjoying the freedom of the United States for quite a number of years.

When citizens of Norwich attend the theatres of Norwich they go in and out of the theatres freely; they go with no thought of being met with bad words, or with flying missiles to endanger their lives or bodies, they go in and out of all of the churches with no thought of molestation. I think no person now living in Norwich can recall a time when attendance on church service, or attendance at theatres, was accompanied with danger. If the Klan elect to hold another peaceful assembly on Corning road, or anywhere in the United States of America, they should be allowed to do so, even if it takes all of the police and militia of the state where held to defend their right to so peacefully assemble. No one who acknowledges the Constitution of the United States as the supreme and legitimate power of the land will undertake to question the fairness of that position, so it seems. Thank you, Mr. Editor, for the space you afford for this note.

Gene Stratton Porter's Sad Girlhood

Gene Stratton Porter has been a lover of nature almost from birth, but her girlhood was overcast by shadows that kept her from the great out-of-doors.

Youngest of eleven children, Gene Stratton was born on a farm near Wabash, Ind., the daughter of an ordained minister. She loved to watch the birds, to gather flowers and wade in the brooks when not busy in school or helping with the housework. Her home was struck by lightning and it was feared for some time that her mother and sister would die from the effects.

The girl nursed an elder brother who had been kicked by a colt. He suffered for months and became a cripple for life. Then she cared for a sister, who was injured in a railroad wreck and who died after three years of terrific pain. A brother was attacked by typhoid fever, was brought home by the mother, had a relapse and nearly died. Two other children and the mother, contracted the fever and Gene's duties were heavy. A brother was drowned and soon afterward her mother died.

She was sent to a public school at the country seat nearby. Teachers tried to force her into a straight jacket of routine lessons and condemned her preference for nature.

Married at 18, she cared for the home and studied natural history, keeping on the work even after the baby was born. She contributed to magazines, then wrote her first book, The Song of the Cardinal, a story of birds as she had seen them from a blind in the woods. Its reception was luke warm.

She wrote another woodlore story with a sad ending and included a romance, the publishers said, the title was too much like the titles of similar books recently issued and that there should be the conventional happy ending. She had an alternative and after two days of thought she consented to the changes.

The book was named Freckles. Today its sale is over the 2,000,000 mark. She wrote other woodcraft books and romances, and her works have had a greater sale than those of any other living woman.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

In picking Representative John M. Nelson as his campaign manager, Senator La Follette has selected the man who is generally believed to be the ablest of the Wisconsin senator's lieutenants in Congress. Mr. Nelson hails from the small town of Burke, Wis., and is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin in the year 1892. His first public office was that of superintendent of schools of Dane County. Later he became bookkeeper in the office of the Secretary of State at Madison. He was elected to the Fifty-ninth Congress to fill a vacancy in 1906, and with a brief intermission he has served in that body ever since. He is known as a hard worker, and though nominally classed under the Republican banner, he is known, like his chief, as an independent, and in the last Congress he was a leader of the so-called Progressive group in the House.

MOHICAN CO. TO BUILD ON SITE OF FRANKLIN SQUARE STORE

The entrance of Frank A. Munsey of New York into the building field in Norwich, which was heralded some time ago, was given a visible manifestation Friday when the first steps were taken towards the reconstruction of the Mohican store property at 262 Main street.

W. S. Spencer, who has been awarded the contract for the work, had his men there erecting a staging over the sidewalk so that a portion of the walk can still be used for pedestrians while the building work is going on. The regular business of the store is also to be carried on while the building work is in progress.

The contract calls for the excavation of the basement and the erection of a new front and sidewall for the present building, to be two stories high, the construction to be in red tapestry brick with concrete stone trimmings. The brick wall will be sixteen inches thick, which will provide for adding more stories to the building in the future.

The main floor will be for the Mohican Co. store and the second floor for a bakery and storage. There will be plate glass windows on both floors.

It is expected that the work can be finished in five or six weeks.

WARNING SENT HERE OF COMMUNISTIC MEETINGS

The following communication has been received by Commander Herman A. Bruckner of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, from E. I. White, department Americanism officer of Connecticut, warning of meetings to be held next week by communistic organizations in this country:

I have today received from national headquarters a special bulletin informing me that the communistic organizations in this country have set aside the week of July 22d to hold country-wide gatherings professing to show the public sentiment against war. These meetings will probably be held under the auspices of the Women's League for Peace and will probably be called through churches and Sunday schools or in some way to particularly attract women and children.

The Women's League for Peace and kindred organizations are direct subsidiaries of the radicalistic and communistic organizations in this country under the control of Roger S. Baldwin, who has been mentioned before in these bulletins, and are investigated and financed by the agents of the Third Internationale in Russia. They seek to weaken our national institutions by undermining and by spreading the gospel of pacificism through such means as the slacker oath, etc.

If you hear of such a meeting in your community, take immediate steps to hold an Americanism meeting at the same time and get the co-operation of every local organization you can such as Rotary, Kiwanis, Eagles, Chamber of Commerce, etc., so that the pacifist meeting will be completely overshadowed. At the same time take pains to get glaring publicity on both meetings.

GLASGO WOMAN STRUCK BY NORWICH AUTOMOBILE

An automobile driven by George O. Stead of 157 McKinley avenue, who was accompanied by his wife, struck and knocked down two women Friday night about 6 o'clock near the flashing beacon at the Chelsea Savings bank corner, dragging them some distance as Mr. Stead brought his machine to a stop by applying his brakes so hard that he slid his rear wheels, as was shown by marks in the street.

The injured women, who were Mrs. Herbert H. Tift and her daughter, Edith I. Tift, of Glasgo, were brought to police headquarters in an automobile by Officer Charles McFadden and were attended there by Dr. Louis T. Cassidy who took them to the Backus hospital. They were taken home later by Mr. Tift.

Mrs. Tift had a contusion and laceration of the right eye and cheek, cut upper lip, bruises on the right shoulder and the forearms, lacerations on both knees and left ankle. Her daughter had a contusion of the scalp, bruises on the right shoulder blade, both arms, both knees and left hip.

It was reported that they had been standing talking to some people in a machine and as they stepped away from it they were in the path of the Stead car.

SKULL FRACTURED IN MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT

Frank Rosello of 27 Happy street, a barber, is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital with a fractured skull received in a motorcycle accident about 4 o'clock.

Rosello was learning to drive a motorcycle, being instructed by James C. Donovan, and while passing an automobile Rosello turned to the side of the road, losing control of the machine which ran up a bank and threw the two men off, Donovan receiving minor cuts and bruises, Rosello being rendered unconscious.

He was brought to the Backus hospital where the fracture at the top of the skull was reduced. Rosello remained in an unconscious state for several hours and early this (Saturday) morning he was still in a semi-conscious state, his condition being considered serious.

Mr. Donovan was also brought to the hospital but after receiving treatment returned home. The motorcycle was considerably damaged.

RELIEF CORPS PICNIC HELD AT NORWICH TOWN

Over 40 members of the Woman's Relief corps enjoyed a picnic Friday at the home of Mrs. M. Florence Dean of Town street. The party left Franklin square on the 10 o'clock trolley and, after arriving at the home of Mrs. Dean, gathered at the riverbank, where the picnic was held.

A general good time was enjoyed throughout the day, the feature being the frankfurter roast at noon about the camp fire. During the afternoon there was group singing and a number of members entertained with recitations. Later in the afternoon a number departed for their homes, but several remained into the evening, eating their supper in the grove.

The corps later gave Mrs. Dean a vote of thanks for her hospitality. As chairman of the executive committee she was assisted in making the day pleasant for all by other members of the committee.

NORWICH U. S. FINISHING WINS BEAUTY CONTEST

The great picnic day of the United States Finishing Co. branches was held with an attendance of between 5,000 and 6,000 at Sterling Friday, special trains from this city and Providence conveying the employes and their families to Sterling. Over 2,000 went from this city and the returning hosts Friday night reported a completely successful and enjoyable day.

The Norwich and Sterling plants that made up the Connecticut Yankees baseball team lost to the Rhode Island Reds by the score of 10 to 4, but Norwich obtained rich satisfaction in furnishing the winner of the beauty contest, Miss Anna Nevins, and in taking the centipede race from four rival teams.

NORWICH BOYS ENJOYING LIFE AT CAMP HAZEN

The first period of Camp Hazen, at Cedar lake, in the town of Lyme, opened on July 2d with 180 boys enrolled. Fifteen of that number were from Norwich and were as follows: Robert Otis, Theo. Montgomery, Robert Graham, Dwight Richardson, Shepard Palmer, Jr., Courtney Pitt, Robert Storms, Edwin Harris, Jr., Charles Sage, Arnold Smith, Richard Holden, Alfred Storms, Ralph Parker and E. H. Davis.

Mr. Stanley, the camp director, was assisted during the first two weeks by the following departmental men: Religious department and educational department, Tracy Redding, city boys' work secretary, of New Haven. The religious work consisted of Bible study classes for all campers, Sunday meetings, chapel talks, personal interviews. The educational work consisted of nature study, educational talks, leather work, wood work basketry and phyroxalin work.

The social department was in charge of E. S. Tandy, boys' work secretary, Greenwich.

The Camp Hazen honor system was under the direction of Mr. Ives of Princeton university.

The physical department was under the direction of Emery H. Davis, boys' acretary of the Norwich association. The work in this department included setting-up drill, swimming instruction, life saving instruction, supervision of swimming periods, junior and senior baseball, volleyball, tennis, mass and group games, hikes, track meets, use of boats and canoes.

During this first period a large number of Norwich people visited the camp and were very much pleased with the appearance and the wholesome spirit that prevailed throughout the camp. Not a single boy out of this large number found it necessary to go home on account of homesickness, but a large number (nat went to camp expecting to stay only one period found that they would like to stay longer, so signed up for another period.

All of the Norwich boys upheld the honor of their city, and Theodore Montgomery did especially well in the track meet, capturing two firsts, two seconds and one third in the senior division.

The outstanding social events were the snipe hunt, the leaders' stunt night and the closing night banquet.

The three tennis courts proved to be the greatest attraction and were in constant use from morning till night. A new pier has been installed with a fine diving tower and also a splendid diving board.

A new infirmary has been added to the permanent equipment and it has already proven its need and help in restoring boys to health because of colds, etc.

July 26th is Governor's day and a special day's program will be arranged that will be of interest to all of the boys' parents and friends. Visitors will be welcome at camp on this day, and any other day during the summer.

JEWETT CITY THRILLED OVER GUN PLAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Jewett City, July 18.—Main street is recovering slowly from an attack of acute nervous prostration, and pinching itself to find out whether it is shot, or run over, or pulverized. A movie artist lost a fortune by not being present at as thrilling an act as was ever thrown on a screen. A wild west show was not in it. Hairbreadth escapes were reported all day Friday. Why no one was killed, including the rum-runners themselves, is a miracle. Certainly the lives of two hundred people were endangered by the reckless speeding through a town and on a state road. To say nothing of the shots of the state policemen on upper North Main street, which is as thickly settled as Main street. A freight train went over the Main street crossing not five minutes after the wild procession had passed. An automobile going north was just about to cross Lisbon bridge as the speeding twin-six came from the north. Quick work on the part of the northbound car averted a terrible smash. Stop, Look and Listen is being most strenuously observed in this burg about this time. The most popular walk has been to the garage where the "tireless" and battle-scarred car is taking a much needed rest.

Joseph Doyon, who has a broken finger, caused by being shot by one of the state policemen, is in Jewett City at present. He and his employer, Adam Rojeske, were towing in the disabled car, and the latter stated that the policeman mistook their car for the one he was looking for, as the number corresponded with the registration he was after. Although a policeman may not shoot at a rum runner, but is expected to disable the car, it was the opinion expressed by many, that any man who would recklessly endanger the lives of other people, and is a law-breaker anyway, deserves to be shot. He did not care how many people he killed if he could make his own getaway. It was an unfortunate mistake that the shot hit the innocent party.

Licenses Suspended

The Norwich police department was notified this week of the suspension of the following motor vehicle operators' licenses, Francis J. Brennan, Central fire station Allen H. White, 70 Prospect street, and Edward J. Gilchrist, 17 Boswell avenue.

CORPORATIONS WILL PAY $2,542,635.66 STATE TAX

The total taxable earnings of Connecticut corporations, exclusive of public utility corporations, was $127,131,782.91 during the past calendar year, an increase of $41,253,865.14 over 1922 earnings, it was shown by a certification of taxable incomes of corporations made to the state treasurer this week by Tax Commissioner William Blodgett.

The taxes due the state on these earnings amount to $2,542,635.66, plus a minimum tax of $10 on incomes of $500 or less and penalties imposed for failure to file returns on the date due amounting to $25,580, making a total of $2,577,715.66. This is an increase of $823,597.10, over the amount paid in 1923 and is the largest tax corporations have been required to pay since 1917.

1,918 Corporations

The number of corporations having taxable incomes in excess of $500 was 1,918. There were 3,208 corporations having taxable incomes of less than $500 or which sustained losses during 1923. Returns were filed by 1,024 corporations which did not operate during the year and consequently were not taxable. Corporations which were required to pay penalties for failure to file returns on the date due number 606. There are 183 corporations which have not yet reported and are now subject to a $200 penalty. A total of 6,936 corporations is listed in the department.

Gain in Number

There has been a steady increase in the number of corporations authorized to operate in Connecticut during the period since 1917. The records of the department indicate that 1,183 concerns have received authority from the secretary of the state to operate since that year. The number listed each year has been as follows: 1917, 5,753; 1918, 5,799; 1919, 5,183; 1920, 5,893; 1921, 6,059; 1922, 6,426; 1923, 6,936.

The amount of tax levied each year on these corporations is as follows: 1917, $4,191,141.65; 1918, $3,437,48.91; 1919, $1,713,302.19; 1920, $2,386,409.39; 1921, $1,812,081.39; 1922, $775,730.57; 1923, $1,719,038.56; 1924, $2,542,635.66.

REBEKAH PICNIC HELD WITH YANTIC MEMBER

Hope Rebekah Lodge No. 21, held its regular meeting Wednesday night in Odd Fellows hall with Mrs. Mary Adams, noble grand, in the chair. Routine business was transacted. On Thursday, July 17th, the annual picnic was held at Mrs. Mabel Wheeler's in Yantic, about 75 members going by trolley and automobile. At noon a delicious dinner was served out on the lawn, consisting of clam chowder, sandwiches, pie, watermelon, lemonade and coffee. Just as the dinner was finished the shower came, but cleared in time to have our outdoor sports, which had been planned by Mrs. Ora Spencer, Miss Grace Shutt and Mrs. Ella Stapleton. In the chair game, Mrs. Mary Green won the prize. The potato race was won by Ralph Collins. The boys' running race by Earl Wheeler; boys' sack race, by Earl Wheeler; ladies' sack race by Mrs. Florence Maynard, and ladies' running race by Mrs. Alice Metcalf. The huckleberry pie contest was won by Sidney Collins.

The important game of the afternoon was the fat ladies' race which was won by Mrs. Florence Chapman. George Breen would have won the fat men's race, but previous to the run he tried to sit in a chair and down went Breen, chair and all, then he refused to race. The carpenters will be busy for the next day or two. The thin ladies' race was captured by Mrs. William Kelly from Fitchville. Supper was served at 6 o'clock, consisting of chowder, sandwiches, cake and coffee. The success of the chowder was due to Mrs. Bertha Collins and her helpers. Guests were present from Fitchville, Norwich, Preston, Montville, Norwich Town and Massachusetts. About nine o'clock all departed for their homes declaring it the end of a perfect day.

R. I. REDS AND LEGHORNS TIED IN 37TH WEEK

The hens in the laying contest at Storrs cased off only twenty eggs in the 3th week as compared with the previous week's production. This means that the total lay for all pens was 3,590 eggs or a yield of over 51 per cent. Rhide Island Reds owned by Fernside Farm at Atteboro, Mass., and White Leghorns owned by C. T. Darby, North Branch, N. J., tied for first place with 54 eggs each. The next best pen laid 52 eggs. They were Leghorns sent to Storrs by Eigenrauch and Dewinter of Red Bank, N. J. E. C. Foreman's Barred Rocks from East Lansing, Mich., H. F. Barber's pen of White Rocks from Dover, Mass., and Meadowedge Farm's pen of White Leghorns from Cedarhurst, L. I., all tied for third palace with 51 eggs each. Purdue University's pen of Barred Rocks from Lafayette, Ind., Harvey V. Byerly's pen of White Wyandottes from Sharpesville, Pa., and two pens of Leghorns owned by Roy H. Waite at College Park, Md., and Hilltop Farm at Suffield, Conn., all tied for fourth place with 49 eggs each.

Rgularly every summer it seems desirable to invite the attention of many poultrymen to the matter of ventilation. It is one of the factors ha helps o preven gg producion falling off too rapidly during the hot months of July and August. One can safely say there is practically no danger of overdoing in this respect. Ventilation is perhaps an even more important factor in the management of young stock because the chickens are apt to be more crowded in their sleeping quarters. They do not rest so well and cannot, therefore, grow so well if they are uncomfortably warm all through the night. It is a good plan to occasionally camp in the coops for a few minutes after dark. This makes it easy to know whether or not the birds are getting a sufficient amount of fresh air.

MASKED MARVELS DOWNED BY EAST ENDERS IN LAST INNING RALLY

The Masked Marvels are gone, but memories of them shall last forever, as they gave the East Ends a hard run last night and only lost after the East Side boys had staged a strong rally in the sixth and last inning, which gave them the game by a 10 to 9 score.

At 6 o'clock the people started to swarm to the Duwell field, some in autos, some in buggies, some afoot and even some in baby carriages and by 7 o'clock over 2000 had wedged their way into the park so that the groundkeeper had to cut down some of the trees and brush surrounding the field to make room for more.

At 6.30, game time, nothing was seen or heard of the Marvels and the fans were beginning to get uneasy and wild rumors began to circle the field, but as the hands on the old clock started to near the seven mark the rumble of the East Side drum corps, which was sent out to escort the Marvels, could be heard in the distance and word was quickly flashed around that the Terrors were advancing. At 7 o'clock, sharp, led by bewitching strains of music from a hardy-gurdy the Masked Marvels marched triumphantly onto the field, wearing beautiful pink masks fringed with white lace, and the crowd went into an uproar.

The East Siders, what few of them that didn't have pressing engagements, took the field and the battle was on.

As Harry Mills was amongst the missing, Bull Steinman went into the box for the East Ends and the Marvels proceeded to slap his offerings to every corner of the lot for a total of four runs and the crowd cheered wildly. It could be seen that it was a Masked Marvel crowd.

In the East Ends' half of the inning, Dynamite of the Marvels' pitching staff, had the boys doing handsprings, back springs and all kinds of cuger stunts, trying to hit his hooks and when the inning had ended the three men that faced him had wended their weary way back to the bench via the strikeout route. The Marvels still continued to sock the old apple and by the third inning had collected seven runs, much to the delight of the crowd.

Then came the logical moment when Umpire Coleman announced that the Masked Marvels would proceed to unmask. Everything was quiet and not a sound was heard from the stands or the field except for an occasional gasp from the wives or mothers in the stands such as, "My Johnny!" or "My Charlie!" as the Marvels, one by one, discarded their masks and displayed their real faces. For those who came in search of romance such as is found in the tales of Diamond Dick or Nick Carter, there was disappointment, but to the rest there was surprise and delight which gave way to more cheering. The Marvels were introduced in the following order: Dynamite, Tom Sumcox; Nitro Glycerine, Eddie Lane; Arsenic, Joe Wheeler; Diphtheria, Ween Heebner; Iodine, Harry Whitney; Carbolic Acid, Joe Smith; Small Pox, Charlie Lamphere; Asthma, "Red" Leserman; and T. N. T., Joe Paul; and the Hooded Terror, Mike Falcone.

After a few more formal proceedings the game was again resumed, but at this stage old man Fate delivered a fatal blow to the Marvels as Harry Mills, star of the East Ends and leading twirler of the twilight league, was seen approaching the field in his Sunday best. As no one loves baseball any more than Harry does it didn't take much persuasion to make him doff his coat and celluloid collar and take his place in the box. What an engine is to an automobile so is Mills to the East Ends and the game seemed to take a different turn and by the time the sixth inning dragged around the score stood 9 to 6 in the Marvels' favor and it was then that the East Siders staged their last rally which was not in vain and squeezed over enough runs to turn back the Marvels in their last stand.

Now that the East Ends won and the Masked Marvels are gone, the East Siders will live happily ever after.

ADAMS' TIMELY HITTING WINS BATTLE FOR CUBS

Chicago, July 18.—Adams timely batting today gave Chicago a 2 to 1 victory over Philadelphia in a 10 inning pitching duel. Adams drove in the first run for the locals in the sixth, and with the bases filled his single broke up the game in the tenth. Sensational fielding behind Aldridge prevented the visitors from winning. Score:

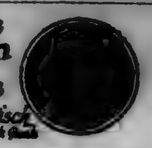
How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Fordham Star of New York Giants



What is the best plan for tipping off the third baseman when a curved or slow ball is going to be pitched to a right-handed batter, and why is it necessary for him to always know when such a ball is going to be pitched?

The shortstop is the best man to signal a pitch to the third baseman. He may either do it by some gesture or by some word or words to him. The reason that it is necessary for third baseman to be tipped off when such a pitch is to be made is that a right-handed batter usually pulls a slowly curved ball down the third base line.

RIXEY PITCHES BRILLIANT BALL AS REDS WIN

Cincinnati, O., July 18. — Rixey of Cincinnati in shutting out Brooklyn today, four to nothing, completed his thirty first consecutive inning without being scored on. He allowed only three singles, did not walk a man, and not a Brooklyn runner reached second base in the nine innings. Rixey received perfect support, Caveney's fielding being a feature. Pinelli led the Reds at bat with three clean hits and stole home in the sixth inning. The score:

AMERICAN OLYMPIC ATHLETES HAVE COMFORTABLE LEAD OVER RIVALS

Paris, July 18.—(By the A. P.)—While the American swimmers were clinching another team victory for the United States today by taking four out of five final events in the Olympic swimming pool the American tennis stars rolled up a similar percantage of victories in the outstanding contests of the day.

Meanwhile the boxers were battling for various titles, but they had their ambitions shattered in a number of events.

The breaking of three world and one Olympic record marked the aquatic events, in which the United States added sixty points to its total and got out of reach of its nearest rival Sweden. The respective standings of the two countries tonight were United States 116; Sweden 30.

Vincent Richards and Miss Helen Wills, of the American tennis team both reached the singles finals, while two American doubles teams advanced and another, Washburn and Williams, fell by the wayside. The startling defeat of the day was that of Miss Kathleen McKane, the English star by Mlle. Vlasto, of France.

The United States is leading Finland, its nearest rival for all round Olympic honors, by a more than two to one margin under the French committee's scoring system, on the completion of nine branches of the international competition.

Apply to each sport the same system of points used in the individual events, the United States has 63 points to Finland's 30. Great Britain has 23 points, Norway 20 1-4, France 20; Sweden 18 1-2, while Uruguay and Argentina each have 10 by reason respectively of their soccer and polo victories. They are the only South American nations among nineteen in the scoring column.

The United States thus far has won five championship titles—rugby, shotting, truck and field, catch-as-catch-can wrestling and rowing—with the certainty of adding swimming and probably tennis to the list.

INDIANS SHARE HONORS WITH THE YANKEES

MERRIMAN TIES MARK FOR SEASON'S RACING

Toledo, O., July 18.—Merriman, driven by Tommy Murphy, clicked off the fastest mile of the year when he came home in 3 minutes flat in the first heat of the free-for-all pace, the feature event of getaway day of the grand circuit meeting at Fort Miami park today. Sir Roch (Loomis) won the event. Margaret Dillon, the third entry, was sent into the race lame and could not hold the pace.

Colonel Bosworth, McDonald's colt, was a real surprise by winning the Sherwood stake $2,000 for three year old 2:12 class trotters in straight heats. The 2:16 pace was easy for Bessie Mcklyo (Pallin) to win in straight heats. Tulip Frisco,(White) captured the 2:20 class trot.

WALKER MUST MEET SHADE BEFORE LEONARD

New York, July 18.—Tex Rickard, promoter, Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, and his manager, Billy Gibson, will have their licenses revoked in New York state if the proposed Walker-Leonard match, scheduled for Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City on August 21 is held before Walker meets Dave Shade Pacific Coast welterweight, the New York state athletic commission ruled today. Micky Walker, of Elisabeth, N. J., world's welterweight champion, is in the bad graces of the New York commission due to his repeated refusal to meet Shade in a title match, after agreeing to meet any logical condender the state commission selected for him. Walker is not a licensed boxer in this state therefore is not eligible for suspension under this ruling but the board has decreed in his case that a license will not be issued to him until he signs a contract to meet Shade.

Rickard and Gibson were called in to a conference with the commission today and the ruling explained to them. Neither would comment upon the decree or venture a statement as to their next step but said they would have a statement ready within a few days as to their probable plans in the face of opposition of the New York solons over the proposed Walker-Leonard match.

Gibson attempted to evade the issue by claiming that Leonard signed his own contract for this match and therefore he would not be implicated in this controversy but the board ruled that in the eyes of this state Gibson as Leonard's manager, was responsible for any matches contracted for by his fighter therefore he came under the ruling.

If Walker consents to meet Shade before he meets Leonard, the New York board will not interfere with the Walker-Leonard macth.

SENATORS NOW IN TIE FOR SECOND WITH DETROIT

Washington, July 18.—Defeated 7 to 6, by St. Louis today, Washington was reduced to a second place tie with Detroit, winner over Boston. The Browns won in the ninth after Marberry relieved Ogden, who left two runners on bases with one out. Sisler fouled to Taylor, but the bases were filled when Peckinpaugh fumbled McManus' roller. Jacobson then drove in three runs with a triple to center. Score:

TIGERS TAKE 11-INNING BATTLE FROM RED SOX

Boston, July 18.—Detroit won from Boston in 11 innings today, 4 to 3. Manush made a remarkable leaping catch of flagstead's drive which was headed for an opening in the left field score board in the ninth. It was Manush's infield single off Fullerton in the 11th, followed by Cobb's sacrifice and Blue's single through the box, that scored what proved to be the winning run. The score:

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The bill for the Groton-New London ferry, fixing the rate at $1 per head for commutation tickets, per month, was passed by the legislature just a half century ago putting an end to a long argument on this score. The ferry was to run every half hour.

Other interesting bits of news picked from the columns of the Bulletin of 1874 are in part as follows:

Monday, July 13, 1874—The Circulating Library which has been transferred to a part of the store occupied by Sherman & Myers on Main street, now opens under favorable auspices. A room has been partitioned off and has been arranged in a very neat and tasteful manner, with all the conveniences of the former establishment.

Ed. Parker, the popular fruit dealer, received the first watermelons of the season, Saturday.

The attention of the city authorities has been called to three trees on Franklin Square which diffuse a disagreeable odor. They are the so-called. Trees of Heaven, and it is suggested that their removal would add to the fragrance of that portion of the town.

A cargo of 400 pounds of lobsters arrived at New London from Martha's Vineyard, Saturday, for distribution in that city.

Tuesday, July 14, 1874—At a special meeting of the common council held last evening the finance committee made a report of receipts and disbursements of the city for the year ensuing. Estimates for the street department was $32,000; fire department, $10,000; police department, $16,000; public grounds, $5,000; police court, $14,000; lighting street, $6,000; sewerage, $15,000; water works, $14,000; contingent expense, $10,000; interest, $35,000. To meet the expenses of the city a tax of ten mills on the dollar on the city list, last, was suggested. The amount of that list is $15,329,071. The report was signed by James Lloyd Greene, James S. Carew and J. Hunt Smith, committee.

A wood train of the New London Northern met with an accident at Cold Spring near the rolling mill yesterday morning. The locomotive and three platform cars were thrown from the track and smashed. The section master had been repaling the rails and two sections were taken up, no signals being posted. The engineer of the train saw the danger and calling to the fireman, jumped clear before the engine plunged down the bank landing upside down in the river.

The work of building the new bridge across the Shetucket for the Norwich & Worcester railroad will be begun the 1st of August. It will start from near the depot diagonally across the steam to the hillside. Then a tunnel will be carried through the hill to the long wharf.

Hundreds of tons of hay have been spoiled in the surrounding country because of the stormy weather.

Wednesday, July 15, 1874—A young lady in Preston, daughter of a prominent man, was thrown into convulsions last Thursday evening by the lightning. Next morning during the storm after a severe spasm, she became speechless and has since been in a very serious, although improving condition. She was paralyzed and unable to speak for three days. The young lady is not usually effected by lightning and does not stand in awe of it and the case is the more singular in consequence.

Frank Whalen is credited with making one of the largest blasts in the city yesterday, in street improvements on School street, blowing out a ton of rock at one shot.

Lewis' City band gave another of its pleasing concerts, last evening, on the Big Plain.

There will be fast trotting for the New London Agricultural association on the 22nd, a purse of $500 to be raced for by Royal George and Vixen, mile heats, best three out of five and a further race between Gray Dick and Golden Nectar for $50. Busses will run to the park to carry the crowds.

..Thursday, July 16, 1874—The East Great Plain Serenaders held a very pleasant picnic at Gardner Lake, Tuesday, with sailing and fishing and singing in the grove, the day was spent to the satisfaction of all. On their return in the evening they rejoiced the different neighbors with vocal seranades.

A Washington street man who missed a derrick yesterday morning, found it early last evening in the garden of a man on Lincoln avenue, where the owner of the garden was utilizing it for raising early beets.

The Norwich Town people are so philanthropical that they hang lanterns at their gates at night for the benefit of the traveling public.

The Giraffe baseball club played the Arctics yesterday and were victors. The game was played on Washington street.

Chapel Brothers of New London received 18,000 pounds of bluefish yesterday, brought in by the sloop Emma C. Berry.

Friday, July 17, 1874 — Norwich claims to have raised the largest red raspberry in the world. It is the largest known to the horticulturists of this country and it is believed that no berries in the old world can equal them. It is a permanent variety, a seedling, raised by Dr. L. L. Button in 1855, and fruit has been picked from these plants from July 5th to August 18th. A plant exhibited here yesterday has no less than 362 berries on it, ranging from ripe berries to blossoms, all growing on one stalk and the ripe ones of extraordinary size. Dr. Button claims that this is not a freak plant, but that many plants are capable of producing a like number of fine berries.

Mr. Beckwith, keeper of the jail, foiled two prisoners yesterday who had evidently laid plans carefully to effect an escape from the jail. Hearing a noise that caused him to be suspicious he listened outside the several rooms and, finally located the men. Searching the rooms he found a complete set of tools used to break jail.

Drivers have been complaining that the horse railroad tracks are in bad condition and it is almost impossible to cross them without a mishap.

E. G. Bidwell & Co., displayed a very fine cactus in blossom, in their show window on Main street yesterday.

The last flicker of the great comet was seen last evening and the comet has now departed for parts unknown.

Saturday, July 18, 1874—The Norwich Savings Society has listed amounts on deposit from 1835 to the present day. In 1835 the amount on deposit was $147,161 and on Jan. 1st, 1874 had reached $7,320,525. Accounts not closed number 12,744.

The schooner Millie Frank arrived yesterday at the dock under the direction of the Grampus club, who sail east Monday for their summer cruise. The club will depart at 8 o'clock with sealed orders.

Tubb's Brass Band gave a fine concert last evening on Little Plain and there was a large crowd out to hear the program.

The Norwich and New York Transportation company, after the 20th of this month will again resume their former arrangements, making New London their permanent stopping place. Allyn's Point has been tried out as a loss to the company and much inconvenience to passengers and the change to New London will be welcomed.

The Groton ferry will soon be operating daily from 6 a. m. until 10 p. m., making a round trip every half hour. Commutation tickets for residents of Groton and New London shall be one dollar per month. The ferry will begin operating in about fifteen days.

MUNICIPAL VS. PRIVATELY OWNED PUBLIC UTILITIES

of municipal service up to the end of 1919, shows a satisfactory financial condition. During the period political officials operated the plant badly without consideration for the growth of the community. In spite of this handicap, and frequent interruptions of service, the plant has saved the citizens $134,969.70 in the lighting of their streets; it has saved them also $58,000 by charging lower rates than neighboring plants were charging. On the other hand the city has lost $48,067,.64 in taxes, and the plant has burdened the city for interest on its debt to the extent of $10,735. The net saving to the citizens, however, through owning their own electric plant was $134,167.06 at the end of 1919.

Another of the more successful municipal plants is located at Longmont, Colorado. Throughout its history it has been financially successful and the rates have been satisfactory to the people of the town. Its management has been efficient. An arrangement was made whereby porch lights in the residence district were not connected with the meters, but were to be kept lighted as a part of the street lighting system of the city.

Unsatisfactory Records Common

Examples of unsatisfactory municipal plants may be cited in every part of our country. The results of municipal ownership in Massachusetts have been studied by Dr. E. E. Lincoln who found that the combined costs of manufacturing and distribution per kilowatt hour cost the municipal plants 29 per cent more than private companies. The municipal companies paid $4.46 per ton for coal, while the private concerns paid only $4.15—7.4 per cent less. Furthermore, when the municipalities of Massachusetts consume 4.69 pounds, the private companies produce an equal result by the consumption of 4 pounds, a saving of 15 per cent.

In Indiana, some startling figures were given not long ago by Paul P. Haynes, former member of the Public Service Commission of Indiana. He shows that in 1920 out of every $100 of revenue received, the private electric companies of Indiana spent $79.18 for operating expenses, while the municipal plants spent an average of $89.69, and included in the private electric plant expenditure are the taxes which the municipal plants did not have to pay. In other words, out of every $100 of revenue received the municipal light plants spent $17 more for operating expenses than did the privately owned plants. In that same year municipal water plants spent out of every $100 received approximately $26.75 more than did the privately owned plants.

In Iowa fifty-three municipal plants have been abandoned, while those municipal plants now in operation supply only 9.4 per cent of the population. A compilation made by the Oklahoma Utilities Association shows that in Oklahoma municipally-owned electric light plants are rapidly being replaced with service furnished by privately owned electric light and power companies. This is the result of rapid extension of electric transmission lines by the larger light and power companies operating in the state. Twenty-four cities and towns in Oklahoma, which previously operated municipal plants, have given up the manufacture of electricity in their own plants, within the last two years, and have given franchise to privately- owned companies for electric service, or have arranged for purchasing current at the town border.

Out in Seattle, Washington, the people wanted to own the city street car line, so they bought them about four years ago, paying $15,000,000. Within a year it was necessary to increase the fare from five cents to ten cents or three for a quarter to prevent bankruptcy. A new set of officials were elected, fares reduced to five cents and the city began to lose $5000 a day. The fares are now ten cents, and the city is under a tremendous debt.

It is thus seen that disastrous results have often accompanied municipal operation of utilities. According to the McGraw Electrical Directory 666 municipal electric light plants have been abandoned in the past few years, and of those in operation, 450—nearly 25 per cent—purchase outright all of their energy from private companies, while many others purchase a part of their needed electrical supply. Over 100 municipal plants do street lighting only.

Municipal Experience Costly

Thus in the light of experience it cannot be said that municipal experience, on the whole, has been satisfactory. When tested in the light of the questions mentioned at the beginning of this article, it is undoubtedly possible for a municipal company to give satisfactory service at a reasonable rate. Nevertheless the municipal plant has greater handicaps to overcome than does the private company.

Utilities that are privately owned must regard the service they render as a business, subject to all the laws, regulations, and ethical standards of the business world, asking for it neither special privilege nor immunity from taxation. They, in good faith, invest their capital and assume the risks and hazards incident to such enterprises. They become as much a part of the community as any of its other enterprises or activities.

The function of government, municipal or any other, is to secure the rights, liberties, and happiness of the people from which it derives its power. The only justification for public service than can be rendered privately, or to render the same service at lower rates. To date the burden of proof lies with the municipal companies.

WESTERLY

Edward O. Leary of Pawcatuck, who has been in the employ of the Shore Line Electric company for a number of years as a conductor, has entered the employ of the New Haven railroad as a trainman in the passenger service and is stationed at New London. Mr. Leary, who has been a baggageman at Wakefield, visited his home on the West Side Friday morning.

Robert L. Johnstone, president of the American Chicle Co. of Newark, N. J., and family, arrived in Westerly Friday afternoon from New York and proceeded by automobile to Mr. Johnstone's recently purchased summer home, Elihu (Ledward's) Island, near Stonington. Carpenters and painters as well as other contractors are busily engaged in putting the buildings on the island in first class order and when these are completed, one of the finest summer residences along the shore will be the result.

There will be another week of the Bible students' course at the First Hopkinton Seventh-day Baptist church at Ashaway under the supervision of Dora K. Degen of Alfred, N. Y., before the course is begun at the Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church in Westerly under Supervisor Degen. Associated teachers in the HHopkinton course have been Mrs. Paul Saunders, Mrs. Harold Collings and Miss Margaret Davis, director of music and games.

After next Sunday for three Sundays, July 27, Aug. 3 and Aug. 10th union services will be held by the Pawcatuck Congregational and Calvary Baptist church congregations at the Broad Street Christian church; the preaching will be by Rev. C. H. von Glahn, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church of Patterson, N. J. The concluding three union Sunday services will be at Calvary Baptist church and the preacher will be Rev. Ernest E. Morrill, of Pawcatuck Congregational church.

Miss Abby Wells arrived Thursday night from Hollywood, Cal., to be the guest of her sister, Mrs. Isaac Sherman in Pawcatuck.

The annual picnic of the Pawcatuck Mission Sunday school is to be held at Atlantic Beach Thursday next, in charge of Mission Superintendent Mrs. Smith and Assistant Superintendent Mrs. Clayton A. Burdick.

Norwich people registered the past week at Watch Hill visiting the Ocean House were Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Osgood, Philip S. Hall, Lloyd G. Hall; at the Pilmpton besides the members of the Lions' club, Katherine Desmond; at the Narragansett, Mrs. Isabelle A. Worthington, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Pullen, Mrs. W. B. L. Cranston; at Weekapaug at the Weekapaug Inn, Mrs. William B. Young. Miss Edith Young, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Peck, Miss Vilette M. Peck and Master George K. Peck.

The Shrine Special on the New Haven railroad, which is to carry the "nobility" of Palestine Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine from Providence to the All-New England midsummer ceremonial of Pyramid temple at Bridgeport will stop at the Westerly station this (Saturday) morning at 9.3 o'clock that Westerly members may make the pilgrimage. At Pleasant View beach during the summer season resides Noble George A. Phillips, captain of the Arab patrol of Palestine temple, who will board the special train here.

Every temple in New England, of which there are 15, has signified its intention of being present, as well as some ten or a dozen from eastern New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. It is expected there will be from 3500 to 400 uniformed Shriners in the parade in the afternoon.

The Arab Patrol will be in charge of Patrol Capt. George E. Phillips, the Legion, consisting of members who were in the World war, under Commander Thomas J. H. Pierce, and the Chanters under the leadership of Dwight W. Coultas.

MYSTIC

Mrs. Caroline P. Moser is 91 years old today and has received numerous cards and reminder of the day from her friends. Mrs. Moser resides with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Moser on High street, and his resided in Mystic about sixty years. She was born in Stonington, the daughter of the late Captain Jonathan Pendleton. Due to a fall received several years ago, Mrs. Moser is confined to her room but is of a very cheerful temperatment and is always pleased to see her friends. She has the distinction of being one of the oldest members of Mystic Bridge Congregational church.

Frank Perkins and family of Stonington have purchased the Henry Townsend farm and have taken possession.

Mrs. Donald Bridgman and son and Mrs. Stanley Smith and daughter Jane of Westfield, Mass., arrived for a visit with Mrs. H. Emeline Allyn.

Miss Hazel Dewey of New York is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Dewey.

Leslie McCuen of New York arrived Thursday to spend the week end with his family.

A great deal of dissatisfaction is being expressed in the village over the prolonged unsettled condition of Baptist Hill and surrounding territory and the inconvenience to which the public is being subjected in getting in and out of Mystic by means of the detours provided.

It is considerably over a year since this work was started and it seems as if it should be much nearer completion than at present. The cement roadway has been laid for some time and yet it is not opened to traffic while the work of finishing up is going on, as is sometimes done in other places. The force of men engaged on this work at present is comparatively small, and some of the workmen have been taken off and put on other jobs, the work recently done on Broadway being one of them. Whoever has the supervision of this work in charge, whether it is the state highway department or town officials, should push it forward to completion. To residents of the village who have been looking forward to seeing the work finished and the village in good order this summer, the present state of affairs is most discouraging and unsatisfactory.

Rev. J. Garfield Sallis, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, is having his vacation at this time and will probably not conduct any services in the local church after tomorrow (July 20) until August 24th. During his vacation, there will be special speakers each Sunday morning and in the evenings the Epworth league service will be combined with the usual evening service at 7.30, with special features of interest and profit each Sunday. Provision will also be made for the mid-week service Wednesday evenings, these to be conducted by leading lay members of the church except on the evening of August 13th, when the pastor will probably be present. Arrangements are being made for Mystic Methodists to be quartered in the Niantic house at Willimantic during Camp Meeting, August 17-24. James W. Jackson is chairman of the committee having this matter in charge.

Mrs. Christopher Morgan has been in Boston for several days this week.

Miss Harriet Main of Worcester, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Culver in Quiambaug.

Mrs. Jerome Dewey is ill at her home in Quiambaug.

WILLINGTON

Martin Bartok who underwent an operation at the Hartford hospital, Monday is doing well.

Mr. and Mrs. Truesdell of Springfield were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gardner, who are spending the summer with Miss Genevieve Gardner.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtiss Pilling of Worcester, Mass., with their daughter Marion, are spending two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dimock. Mrs. Pilling was a near neighbor and girlhood friend of Mrs. Dimock, both being born and brought up in New Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson, Jr. of South Manchester, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Skinner and son of Wethersfield were guests of the Gardner family Sunday.

Mrs. Harriet E. Pierce of Providence, R. I., has been visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dimock.

Mrs. Lipps and daughter Miss Marie Lipps of West Hartford, also spent the week end here.

Dwight Gardner recently entertained Mr. Spelman of Suffield.

Nine of the Boy Scouts and Rev. Edwin Sundt went to Hartford Saturday afternoon to buy Scout uniforms. They went in Mr. Sundt's and Mason Parker's cars. The boys will go camping in August.

Mrs. Stout and grandchildren who have been visiting Mrs. Ida Brown, have returned to their home in Asburr Park, N. J.

Miss Pauline Chalker of Bristol has been visiting Mrs. G. V. Smith.

The child of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson, of Eagleville, which was born dead, was buried in the family lot in the Willington cemetery Monday afternoon. Mrs. Johnson is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Converse, formerly of Willington.

Miss Ethel Wraight has returned from a visit with relatives in Windsor and West Hartland.

Miss Marie Schmidt went to Boston Tuesday to visit friends.

Mrs. H. E. Adt and Miss Ruth Adt, of New Haven, have been guests of Mrs. G. V. Smith.

Mrs. Norris Hayes is spending the summer with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Converse.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vonassek spent Sunday at Elizabeth Park, Hartford.

Hans Hansen played golf at Putnam Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Luchart have at guests, Mr. and Mrs. William Nemecek and children, and Mrs. Koudcetar.

Saturday afternoon a number of people attended a picnic at Amidon's lake, Westford.

A trip over the Mohawk Trail was enjoyed Sunday by Dr. and Mrs. F. B. Converse, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cobb, Mrs. Norris Hayes, Allen Bennett, George Bennett, Miss Jessie Bennett, Miss Jessie Converse and Miss Marie Schmidt.

GOSHEN

Monday is coming to be a day for regular trips for the airships as two were seen early in the forenoon passing over this place going in opposite directions. Both birdmen had high powered machines with double planes and traveled very swiftly, the one going west was half a mile high and his new machine looked like aluminum as it glistened in the sunlight. The haymakers waved their hats at the sky pilot.

While working in the meadow at Maple Hill, a large snake as a rattlesnake, was seen to disappear in a bog. With the aid of a pitch fork it was dislodged and killed. It proved to be a flat-head adder and it hissed like a goose.

W. C. Thomas is laid up with a dislocated shoulder, while cranking a Ford automobile the engine backfired.

Peter Shida met with a painful accident Saturday while unloading hay with his horses. The one left hitched to the wagon became frightened and started to fun. In trying to stop it Mr. Shida was thrown down, the team wagon wheels passing over him. He was badly bruised.

Mr. Fishbone is expecting to build a new house at Maplelawn farm, to replace the one destroyed by fire a few years ago.

There was a good attendance at the meeting of Goshen Community club, Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Jones were the program committee. It was roll call night, each one present responding. Games were played.

There was a very enjoyable time at the Social Corner picnic held in Academy Hall and on the shady lawn on Goshen Hill, Thursday. Mrs. James A. Thomas was the hostess.

..Misses Josephine and Helen Marson of Waterford and Mrs. C. H. McCall of Colchester were guests of friends here Thursday.

Thursday July 24th is the date set for the Community Sunday school picnic to be held at Mohegan park, Norwich. The Sunday schools comprise the Liberty Hill, the Lebanon Baptist, Lebanon Center, and Goshen. It will seem like Lebanon Old Home day judging from the pleasant gathering last year.

A summer boarder, a child, had its foot badly cut by coming in contact with the knives of the mowing machine Wednesday. The child was taken to the Backus hospital, Norwich, for treatment.

Those who tried out the temperature of the water at the old swimming hole Wednesday said it was fine.

Walter P. Chrysler Says

The sweeping success of the good Maxwell is squarely due to the fact that it affords the most advanced engineering, at a price within reach of every one who can afford a car at all.

As in the Chrysler Six, scientific engineering has now produced such revolutionary results that unless a man at least tests them himself, he cannot be sure of securing the highest motoring satisfaction.

Maxwell's most recent development has to do with notable improvement in every phase of riding, driving and performance, economy and long life, and the reduction of vibration to a degree never before thought possible in a four.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

FAITH IS THE CONTINUATION OF REASON

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
DO YOU VOTE?

You say that taxes are too high
But do you vote?
About extravagance you sigh.
But do you vote?
"How long," you wail, 'must we endure
This state of things that keeps us poor?"
How long? I do not know I'm sure!
But do you vote?

The lights are bad, the streets a mess.
But do you vote?
Your indignation you express,
But do you vote?
You say that bosses rule the show,
That graft is reaching high and low
And, doubtless, all you say is so,
But do you vote?

You growl at rotten politics
But do you vote?
You howl at bosses and their tricks,
But do you vote?
You say, O Decent Citizen,
We've heard you time and time again,
We want things run by business men,
But do you vote?
Unless you do, (I wonder, do you?)
You've got just what is coming to you.

THE OTHER FELLOW'S JOB

When you think the other fellow
Has the job you'd like to do—
Don't feel discontented,
He may think the same of you.

He may look with eyes of longing
At this job you'd fain disown—
For every job looks good to someone,
If the job is not his own.

His may look an easy pathway;
He may not even seem to try—
But depend, he's had his heartaches,
Just the same as you or I.

Your road may have its furrows,
Its ruts and hard spots, too;
But don't always blame the job, man
Perhaps the trouble lies with you.

Every man who'd reach Life's hilltop
Must be prepared to plot his way—
For not magic wand nor airplane
Can land you there in just a day.

Be your job a biz or small one,
In Life's game it plays a part
In service to your fellow-men;
So plug with all your heart.

There's advancement for the plugger—
For the man who plays the man;
Who worries not what others do,
But does the best he can do.

OLA ANTICIPATES ROLL CALL

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Thought I would write before my name was called on the roll, then I would be sure of it, as I see lately there seems to be plenty of room on the page, everybody taking auto rides I suppose.

Sister Barbara: In your letter of July 1st in passing through Andover, you wrote about the little church. I think you must mean what used to be the Baptist church, but has not been used for a long time.

What you took to be the school house is the town hall. You would not go by the school house as it is on the Hebron road after passing the station and crossing the railroad tracks, you would see a Congregational church nestled among the trees at your right but you was probably looking at the cars, and did not notice it. There is a paper mill about 50 rods beyond the church.

Rural Delivery write quite often now, but not a word about California.

Why will he not tell us what there is about it that people don't like. One woman says she would not live there, if they would give her the whole state.

I heard a man talking in a convention this spring who said he spent six weeks there and he got enough of it and was glad to get back to Connecticut. I should like to know the drawbacks, for the papers laud it so highly.

OLA.

GREETINGS FROM MARY 'GUSTA

Dear Editor and Corner Friends: Although I have not written a letter to the Corner for some time I still enjoy reading the letters and trying to guess who is who.

Lilac Lady: Was glad to read a letter from you. I have waited quite a while for it. I do not remember of picking and eating green huckleberries but doubtless I did a number of years ago. There are other things that I remember better than that. I hope on the 23rd you will have a chance to meet a number of the sisters and perhaps they will give you a chance to ride the goat.

Happy Go Lucky: I hope you read last Saturday's Bulletin very carefully. If not you should read Twice Twenty's letter. It looks as if the instructions for making new things for the baby were intended for you. Are you going to make them for the Social Corner Baby

Esmaralda: I do not remember seeing a letter from you in answer to the roll call. Doubtless you have been too busy to write. If I am not mistaken as to your identity you live about a ten minutes walk from my home and nearer than that to a couple of other sisters. Were two members of your family home for the week end, and did you spend Saturday evening at the home of a neighbor? If the answer is yes, I think I know who is who. I would like to have you join us on the 23rd and attend the picnic of Club No. 4. I think you would meet many of the members of that club, and perhaps some of the sisters you are acquainted with from the other clubs. If Mr. Esmaralda plans to attend doubtless you will drive over, and if such is the case will look for you in the crowd. I will give you a chance to guess who is who before the picnic day.

Kingston Brown: I was somewhat surprised when I read the description of yourself in last week's paper. It did not compare at all with the picture I had formed of you. I had made up my mind from some of the letters you have written during the past year that you had been married fifteen or twenty years, but when you said you had only been married a year I really thought it was a misprint. If you attend the picnic of Club No. 4 please make yourself known, as you surely do not want the sisters to think you are older than what you really are.

Rural Delivery: We are going to look for you at the picnic or will you have some good excuse for not attending?

1492: Where do dates come in the roll call? I think from what the date signifies it would be a good place for you. Do you agree with me?

Will close with best wishes to the Social Corner.

MARY 'GUSTA.

TELEPHONE CAKE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: My brothers and families were going to Westerly to see a cousin we had not seen in eight years. One brother's wife asked me to go with them in their auto and we sure had a lovely trip. The day was pleasant and warm and we enjoyed the country roads, the roses all in bloom and the big fields of potatoes all in bloom.

I love the farms. Best of all I love the old horse and colts and a dog. Those are my pets on a farm and I had both when I lived there. Our aunt, a lady in her seventh year went with us. She visits all her nieces and nephews once a year and we all look forward for auntie to come. We reached home just before dark. Very thankful for our lovely trip. We also called on my oldest son, found them all well and surprised to see us.

If any of the shut-ins that are lovers of roses will send me their addresses I will gladly send them a vase full.

True Blue has some. Ask her and she will give you my address.

I attended the picnic at Central Village and I enjoyed it very much and hope to go again in September as this is my first letter I wont take up the whole page for I will want to write again. I will sent a cake recipe.

Telephone Cake: 1 cup sugar, 1-2 cup of lard, 1 cup of raisins, 1 cup of water or coffee, 1 teaspoon each of all kinds of spices.

Put on stove and boil three or four minutes and then let cool. Then add 1 teaspoon soda, 1-2 teaspoon salt and flour to make quite thick.

CARRIE.

KILLJOYS

Dear Social Corner Friends: I was too busy last week to find time to answer to my name in the roll call.

I was much interested in an article in one of the local papers entitled Killjoys of Various Kinds, and will pass on the thought to others. Are you a killjoy? The ordinary killjoy is out to spoil all innocent fun and gayety. But there are other killjoys who take the joy out of individuals just the same, but who do it without malice or deliberate intent. But the effect is just as bad as if they did intend to do it. Today without knowing or meaning it you may have acted as a killjoy. If you snubbed anyone, or discouraged the enthusiasm of the young and joyous, or laughed in superior fashion at some eager idea, you have been a killjoy.

We often cause needless unhappiness because we fail to consider the viewpoint of others, fail to think what we would like done if we were in their situation.

We needlessly add to the labor or care of others. As parents and teachers we should know that the only way to be happy is to learn how to reason and change and adapt ourselves to the changing conditions of life and to the different kinds of people we come in contact with.

The reason for the great wave of crime is that so many children were given no moral training. Every child requires moral care just as much as he does physical care.

What an awful thing for the child from lack of the proper teaching in home and school and church to grow up a criminal and lose the chance for happiness for self-respect and the respect of others.

Are we killjoys or joymakers.

JEREMY.

MEMORIES OF OTHER DAYS

Dear Sisters: I am a little late in answering present, to the roll call. I planned to write last week but as we all know "the best laid plans of mice and men (also women) gang aft agley." Our Sister Kingston Brown remarked some time ago that we had exhausted about all the subjects to write about but I can think of a few more, perhaps nothing wonderful or instructive, only memories of past days one is of the times when as a little girl I used to watch my old aunt in her soft soap making. When it became apparent that spring had got here to stay she would remark, 'Well, I guess it is about time to be thinking of making soap," and then she would proceed to set up a "lye leach" which was a barrel without heads set on a large flat stone, raised up from the ground by supports of other stones and with a groove chipped out in it just the size of the barrel and another down to the front for the lye to drip off through into an old kettle, then she would proceed to fill this with wood ashes, packed hard and dampened, till it was nearly full, and then pails of water were poured on at intervals till after a while the lye began to drip out slowly about the color of strong tea. More ashes were added as it settles away. Then some fine day, when enough had been collected to start with, it was turned into the caldron set kettle, a fire built under it and a quantity of rough grease, tried out from ham and pork rinds and scraps and odds and ends of fat generally were dumped in. I don't think there was any definite rule. I imagine that she went by guess work and judgment and by long boiling and stirring the grease and lye finally agreed together and turned into a golden brown jelly like mass which, put into hot water as we use soap powder, made a fine suds for washing and cleansing floors, etc. It sometimes happened that the lye wasn't strong enough to dissolve the fat and then some potash had to be added and if it was too strong and they didn't mix properly, sundry pails of cold water were poured in and the mixture obediently grew thick. Then when cool, it was dipped out into a right barrel kept for the purpose and the job was over for that year. Now there are so many different kinds of soap and soap powders that you only have to pick and choose. Still the old fashioned soft soap wasn't to be despised and the things washed with it were clean and white.

Another harginger of spring, as good as wild geese, was the old red cart of the tin peddler, full of rattling tinware and having hung outside brooms and articles too large to be accommodated within. There were huge sacks for rags at the back. All the housekeepers had a "rag bag" hung behind the sink room door, or in the wood shed, where all the rags not available for patches, or cleaning were stuffed away, and they proceeded to bring them forth and trade them off for needed articles. The white rags were usually worth more than the colored ones so they either had to be sorted on the kitchen floor, and in a hurry, or kept separate. But the ten peddler and the selling of rags are relegated to the past and the only way to get rid of old rags that are not usable is to burn them up. Then there were other peddlers, who would appear once in a month or two, after spring opened and the roads got settled, carrying almost everything wearable from shoes to shade hats, calicoes, dress goods and notions in general and they were a real blessing to the housewives in the far back country places who didn't get to a city more than three or four times a year and maybe only twice, in the spring and fall.

Also with the spring, or summer, would come the clock fixer to see how the family timepieces had fared through the winter. Now I fancy some of the young sisters are saying, "I wish she would stop. Who cares about all those old times anyway? Still I think there are some who, like myself, find it pleasant to think over the days of long ago, though not always because we think they are better than these. All things must change. To something new to something strange. The mist and cloud will turn to rain. The rain to mist and cloud again. Tomorrow be today.

Hinkey: You have my sympathy which I know doesn't do any real good, but I know how it is to be down on your luck, or to have your luck down on you would sound more fitting. I think, and in times of trouble and affliction, people often say too much. You can quote scripture and give advice and remarks meant to be consoling, by the yard and they fall flat but let us hope things will turn for the better soon.

And now I think I have said plenty for this time and will close with best wishes to all.

IOLA.

FINE TIME AT WINDHAM PICNIC

Friends of the Corner: I attended the picnic given by the Windham Social Corner club on last Wednesday and enjoyed meeting several members whom I have not seen for some time. The spot chosen for the picnic was ideal and I'm sure everyone had a happy time.

I was very glad to see Theoda, Maine Lover, Eliza Jane, Biddy, (though she said she didn't recognize me,) and many others. I missed Married and Happy, with her cherry smile.

Spring Chicken was there also and brought to mind the lines "and still the wonder grew, how one small head could hold, all she knew." Mother Maine Lover has reason to be proud of her chicks.

Faith: Why didn't you and Rufus Rastus attend? I would have enjoyed seeing you. Is it cool by the shore, there days?

The summer is fairly flying and one accomplishes only a little of what one plans to do but if able to keep well and fairly comfortable we should be most thankful.

Another Normalite: I'm glad to know that you are still able to send on a word. Someday I'm going to climb over the hill to your place.

Lady of the Alphabet: Where is the Social Corner letter you promised to write? Better write during your present vacation.

Best wishes for all.

POLLY P. PEPPERMINT.

ANSWERING THE CALL

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Some weeks have passed since my name appeared in the roll call. Did not know what it was for till Cretia told me. Will now say present, so that you may know I am still among the living. Potlatch's mother died June 14. You must have read Potlatch's letter telling of her mother's fall and the breaking of her hip and being in a hospital. She was 85 years old and was a relative of my husband. Among the many different things that have been written about no one has said anything about sterizol. I have found the solution beneficial in a number of ways such as a mouth wash, and treatment for the scalp. Have an irritable scalp and cannot use much soap on it. Wetting the scalp with the solution and massaging it had stopped hair from falling out and made it grow thicker and longer. The treatment has to be kept up, but does not have to be done every day. If after getting past 70 years one can find something to keep hair from falling out and getting thin one should not grumble if one has to keep on with the treatment. I know of others who have tried the treatment with good success. It is also inexpensive.

ARIMLE.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I wish to thank you for the very pleasant time I had at your picnic at Versailles, if not too late. I certainly enjoyed it very much. I have been reading your letters in my daughter's paper for several months and feel I would like to become one of you. Although I may not be able to attend many of your gatherings, I enjoy reading the letters and want to be one of you. As some of you wished the address of the party who makes and sells the necklaces my daughter and I wore at the picnic at Versailles will send it at this time. Mrs. John Collier, 3342 Fairfield avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio.

I will take for my pennsame
FOXGLOVE'S MOTHER.

ANSWERING ROLL CALL

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Friends: I answered the roll call as soon as it was published, but have not seen it in print. I have been out of town three weeks and have had the Courier every week but it has not appeared in the Corner page. So I will answer present a second time.

Balsam Fir: I have missed hearing from you so thing you must be in Connecticut and hope you will look me up. You know you promised to give me a call when you came to Connecticut.

Best wishes for the good of the Corner from

DOM PEDRO.

MIGRATIONS.

Dear Social Corner: The Wanderlust that is in every creature begins to manifest itself in early spring and summer. There is a longing to get away from cramped surroundings, to leave the narrow prospective of dust choked streets for wide reaches and broad fields.

The call of the ocean is insistent, and the mountains cry "come up hither," and man's heart is torn between and betwixt desire and duty; for the wisdom undertone of nature in summer is "shirk" and the still, small voice of conscience is work—and between the two there is no peace.

Migration is a primeval instinct. The longing to migrate anywhere out of town is as much a part of inherited nature as it is of a bird, the first cold snap drives to the south and the first hint of green coaxes back to the north again.

True, one hears now and then of an isolated case of humanity rusting out for years on the same plot of land which gave him birth, apparently taking pride in never wandering beyond a ten mile circuit of its birthplace, but to the average man or woman change is a necessary feature of life and monotony is slow poison that saps all mental and physical vitality. As some people need more sleep than others so there are those to whom frequent change of scenery is an absolute necessity. It isn't quiet that the tired woman needs so much as a change of interests. To be bored by monotony of any kind is the most diresome thing in the world.

The country woman comes to the city for a rest. Her rest consists of doing every thing that makes a city woman so tired, and for the same reason a city woman goes into the country.

One city woman made the shrewd remark that when the shop windows of her native town appeared to her to be the highest ideal of what shop windows ought to be she knew she needed a change.

The wife and daughter of a New England farmer had all their lives pinched and scrimped and worked and saved till the death of the husband and father discovered them the heirs of several thousand dollars. There wasn't a moment's hesitation in either woman's mind as to how she would spend the money. They were both determined on "one good time," and they had it. They went to New York, and put up at the best hotel, gave a certain sum to the hotel clerk with instructions to "give them notice when they had come to an end of their board and lodging" and proceeded to spend the rest in riotous shopping. Such an abandon of shopping as man's wildest dream could not conceive of. The danger of satisfaction with one's surroundings, she said, was that satiety invariably followed satisfaction and after that came a monotony so hideous that life seemed not worth living. We are all very apt to look upon an occasional jaunt as a questionable treat to ourselves. But it isn't a treat; it's a duty we owe to our minds no less than to our bodies.

ETHELYN.

THE ROUND ROBIN

Dear Editor Social Corner: In answer to the roll call, I will write a bit this morning, even if it is hard to think of something of interest to all Social Corner members. While trying to think of something beside work and trouble, it came to me that I should like to tell you of our family letter. We call it the round robin.

It has been on the wing for thirty-six years with only two interruptions, when the fat letter disappeared from the mail, and we had to send out a tracer to find it and start another.

Our home in Urbana, Ohio, held four daughters and one son, father and mother, in 1886.

As soon as three of the daughters were married and left the home in 1888, the letter was started, going from Minnesota, to New York state, then to Ohio then to Minnesota, carrying seven letters each trip, as we add a new letters when it reaches each one thus keeping seven letters going the rounds of the separated family.

Now that the dear father and mother have been called to their heavenly home, we have five, with an occasional letter from the nieces or any letter we have that we think will be of interest to all.

Then too, we add clippings, as well as snap shots of many places and people, and even the pets, which are appreciated most wonderfully.

Seems to me it is quite a record for a round robin to keep on the wing. It has been a great pleasure, and it seems to me would mean a lot of happiness if one was sent from friend to friend. At least it is the most welcome letter that comes to me. Now that does not mean that all letters are not pleasure. They are! But when this one arrives, it almost seems like a visit from the loved ones.

Of course those of you who are not so widely separated from the dear ones, would not care to subscribe to our one hard and fast rule i. e., to write a letter and mail the R. R. letter within twenty four hours after it's arrival. We seem to feel it a loving obligation.

This kind of a letter has kept us in close touch, one with the other, although visits (personal) have been all too few.

Best wishes to all the Corner members, and to our good editor kindly greeting from

LILLIS.

ANSWERING BEE'S INQUIRY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: The inquiry by Bee of Mrs. James Thompson prompts me to answer at once. There may be others who will be able to tell you of her present location but at the time she wrote to the Corner she was one of my best neighbors, her children went to school with mine and we were together a great deal. She went with my husband and myself to the 250 anniversary celebration of Norwich.

She had two pen names Nother of North Stonington and Sunshine. After a few years she moved to some distance from her until her son had grown to be a young man. He came to my home and made himself known. He told me his mother was nursing his sister had married. They were living near Boston. That was two years ago. Who knows but that she may see this and answer for herself.

I am spending my summer at the Wigwan, Pleasant View. I do not go in swimming or boating. I like Kingston Brown I am afraid of these breakers. I can hear them swash up on the beach so you see I now sport with the best. Regards to you all.

STRANGER IN THE CITY.

WRITING THE CORNER.

Dear Social Corner Editor: My name I see in the spot-light. I am ever sending a letter for the Corner, not that I imagine my place cannot be filled, no, sir. I used to think I was the only pebble on the wonderful beach of time, but my! how many beautiful pebbles have rolled by me! Each a treasure in itself and filling places I thought no one but I could fill. As some one has said, when we think we are indespensable we are riding for a fall. Substitution is as old as Adam. There are two types. "The most successful man or woman is not the man who keeps eternally in the spot light," said Mr. H. yesterday. Some man are never happy if not always before the public. They seem to think that increases their popularity and adds dollars to cents. Not so, brother. The man the public seeks out is the man who sticks to his post and sits right steady at the wheel. He has confidence in his ability to bring him to the shore. But the feeling toward the other man is different. The grand stand player hardly gets any farther than the base.

I find my letters are not worth mentioning compared to Jennie's, Little Spinster and several others. They can write all around me, but I am writing just the same and will send this right along. Good luck to the Corner, also best wishes.

KITTY LOU.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: My name has not been in the roll call so I though I had better 'get busy' and write a letter or you might think that I had answered the last roll call. I have been especially interested in reading the letters from the older writers for my first letter was written when the Corner was only a few months old. I have forgotten the exact date but perhaps Theoda can tell just when as she has saved nearly all, if not all, of the papers. The past year has been a very hard one for me. I have been called upon to bear much trouble, sickness and the loss of dear ones. I remember when I was a little girl an old lady told me that there were two kinds of trouble. She said that living trouble was much the hardest to bear for she had had both kinds and she knew. I did not understand, or realize then, just what she meant but now looking back over my long life I know that she was right for it is much easier to give up our dear ones, when death calls them, than it is to bear the burdens, sorrows and heartaches that fill the lives of many almost from the cradle to the grave.

Now I would like to talk just a bit with the young housekeepers. Anyone who has an idea that it is fun or play to keep house will be ready to change their minds at the end of one summer after the continual battle with flies, ants, dust, heat, cobwebs, etc., is over. Good housekeeping and a well ordered house are only to be had at the price of much hard work. When I read some of the articles written for the benefit of young housekeepers, I wonder if they are alive after following it all up.

One thing that I would like to impress upon all young wives is this: When you start your home make up your mind that the ordering of the house is your part of the contract. No man wants to hear how many times you've scrubbed the steps, or how many potatoes you've peeled for dinner, or how many steps you have taken. Try to have something else to talk about than what you have been doing and you will do more toward making it a pleasant home than in any other way. Above all don't be governed by your relatives or the neighbors. I wish that every young married couple might be separated by many miles from both her people and his people, for I believe that nine out of ten divorce cases can be traced either directly or indirectly to relatives either on his side or her side. Hope the sisters will all be able to attend at least one of the many picnics and will write a full account of them all for the Corner, so the stay-at-homes will get a glimpse of the good times.

My sympathy to all those in trouble and best wishes to you all.

GRANDMA.

KEEPING UP THE CORNER LETTERS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I know you have had a long rest from Ma's letters and as the Corner page was not near full last week will try and write a little. Pretty soon my name will be in the roll call and I will feel as if I must write again. I have not felt well for some time and I've been through lots of trouble since I wrote before. My daughter lost her husband the 17th of June. They have lived at home here for a year and a half until three weeks before his death when they went to our Shore cottage where he passed away after dreadful suffering. Her father and I were with them until the last. My nerves were pretty well unstrung for we all thought very much of him. But he is at rest now.

Things are looking fine now. It had been awfully dry but a nice shower today seemed to save all flowers and vegetables. My roses are looking grand and we have a field of potatoes all in full bloom that would do you all good to look at. We have lots of peas and beans and beets and lettuce to eat out of our garden and we all enjoy them very much. A good garden is a great help to anyone's table and healthy too.

Bug said to me, "Let's try and go to a picnic soon." I said, "All right. I'll be with you," so you may see us any time.

I always enjoy those gatherings so much for every one is so social. How rightly named is our Corner. I felt sorry not to be able to meet you all at Central Village as that is so near my home. May be able to do so next time. Here is a bit of a verse that comes to my mind as I sit here.

Let a kind little though run through our minds,
As we travel along every day,
Let's guard our tongues, say nothing unkind.
To friends we meet on our way.

Yours as ever
MA OF GREENE GABLES.

PLANNING ON THE 23RD.

Dear Sisters and Brothers: I am encouraged by Twice Twenty's Thank you to write again, this time to say I am planning to take a day off and keep Mr. Twice Twenty company the 23rd. Shall expect to see Keziah Doolittle there with all her children and the circle will not be complete without Rural Delivery. Then there's Uncle Henry who has just "joined the gang." Hope he is not so far away but what he can attend.

You know, we can fool some of the people all the time and all of the people some of the time; but we can't fool all the people all the time.

HAPPY GO LUCKY.

ENJOYS CORNER MEMBERSHIP

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Present. I have enjoyed being a member of the Social Corner ever since the day I joined it. Many dear friends and acquaintences have been made and I hope to make many more. The Social Corner is rightly named. May it always continue to do the good work it is now doing.

A friend of mine whose relatives were buried so far away she couldn't visit their graves very often, said she kept flowers near their pictures in loving remembrance of them.

There are so many waiting for the line that they may say present to their names I will ring off.

KEZIAH DOOLITTLE.

QUAINT HOUSEHOLD SUPERSTITIONS

Dear Corner Folks: Many thanks to the editor for the yellow slip received several weeks ago. I used the dollar to go to Rural Aunty's picnic at Central Village. It gave me a nice ride and a good dinner; a chance to visit with old friends and to meet for the first time a number of Social Corner members and their guests.

There are probably but few people today who believe in the quaint household superstitions of yesterday but a list of them is always interesting. Here are a few:

For instance, if you sharpen the bread knife on something other than a whetstone, it is said there will soon be strife in the house.

Never carry away a plate from a table on which are two knives nor a saucer with two spoons.

Drop a dish-cloth, company will come.

Should you not wish for company, shake the dish-cloth and so shake the visitors off.

If a glass of any kind falls and does not break, great success awaits you.

Never drink out of a glass that has a spoon in it or you are doomed to be an old maid.

To get your sheets on the bed wrong side out is a sign of a change of residence.

If scissors are dropped and stick up in the floor, gossipy visitors are coming.

It is good luck to find a knife, no matter how useless and old it may be.

If you drop a fork a man visitor will come.

If you drop a knife a woman visitor will appear.

If you drop a large spoon a widow will come to see you.

If a teaspoon a baby will be an early visitor.

To change your luck you break a dish, buy something even though it costs but a penny.

If a knife is thrown off a table and lights on the blade, it is a sign of a wedding.

It is bad luck to scour bread knives on Sunday.

To play with a knife is a sign of poverty.

PRIMROSE (July 28).

MUCH INTERESTED IN TOURS

Dear People of the Social Corner: In responding to my name which recently appeared, will say that I am still interested in the life of the Corner even though my letters are somewhat infrequent. No topic which appealed to me to be interesting has revealed itself so I have been on the waiting list for inspiration. I have been hoping that before my turn came to write I might be fortunate enough to have been on one of the occasional fine motor trips which do come my way almost every summer. Perhaps later I may be able to furnish something in that line. You can readily surmise from the above that I find letters describing tours of the country intensely interesting and they are certainly instructive in many cases as not every one has the good fortune to travel great distances.

I wonder if any one saw the picture of Kent Falls in our own Connecticut. Also if some one can inform me as to the distance from Hartford, condition of road there, etc.

If Jennie is interested in such beauty spots, I think she may know about this one. I always have a waiting list of such pretty places to be seen when the proper time arrives, and it has always arrived sooner or later for many that I've had in mind previously.

How many of our Cornerites are going to vote for president in November?

I wish all of them would read (if in doubt) an article on P. 25 Literary Digest for July 5. If there are some who do not understand the party issues, there is no more concise information than can be found in the Digest, so far as my experience has been. Some do not have access to a good daily paper and at the end of the week the Digest sums up information in an interesting and instructive manner. No doubt most of you are well read on the above subjects, but I frequently meet a friend who says she is not going to vote because she doesn't know enough about the national issues. First we must want to know and then make an effort to find out.

I read on the editorial page of a nearby paper that a critic, in speaking unfavorably of John W. Davis, democratic nominee for president, said, "Davis is another Coolidge." Mr. Davis received a compliment in my estimation. I am pleased to know something of his character as I had read more about the others who were seeking to be candidates than about Mr. Davis. I am most favorably impressed with the career of President Coolidge since he entered the White House.

Just a few personal messages and I am through for this time.

Diana: I am glad to read your letters which appear occasionally. You probably know that Aunt Mehitable moved to New Jersey in the spring. I miss her.

Delia Deal: I intended to call to see you when in J. C. but a bad cold prevented me from doing many things I planned. Am far from being over it yet. Hope next time I can see you.

Aunt Mehitable: Will write soon. Have not been feeling well.

Best wishes for Corner.

LUCILLE.

GREETINGS FROM LUCILLE DREW

Dear Social Corner: I had wondered if my pseudonym would appear in the roll call. I doubted it, even though long ago it had two or three times found a place in the Corner. But there was the name in last week's issue and I rise to answer, present.

I am a regular and faithful reader of the Social Corner page—all about the picnics and trips, and I frequently try out the recipes, adopting for my use many of them.

I shall think of the picnic at Elizabeth park and wonder "What must it be to be there." I have never seen that famed beauty spot. How charming is the ride from the Rose of New England to the Capital city, with the comfortable buses and courteous drivers, I can testify from a recent experience.

With best wishes for all and hoping all are enjoying the good old summer time as much as I am.

LUCILLE DREW.

GETS MUCH FROM RADIO

Dear Social Corner Friends: Uncle Henry you have made a good move by joining the Social Corner. If you are single it is a grand place to find a good wife and if you are married it is a good place to take your wife. When you attend a Social Corner picnic you will say out loud, "Wish I had joined before." If the Corner sisters were not, the best in the land they would not allow men folks to join the department anymore then they would expect them to join the Ladies Aid Society. This I know by experience as I have been a member of Club No. 2 for a long time.

Kingston Brown: Not for a long time have I read of a Corner sister who can dance any set from fox trot to eight hands around, teeth all sound, do not wear glasses and the only sign of the years gone by are six white hairs mingled with a fine head of black hair which is neither dyed or bobbed. Why not remove the white hair and look young as ever and as you say in your letter, "What a dumpling."

I cannot agree with you on the radio question as we have a good one in the house, and it is a great pleasure to listen to the many things that the waves bring us from many points of the country, and we have received a good lecture from Cuba. We do not have to go to church to hear a good sermon as every Sunday at 11 o'clock at one of the largest churches in Boston, which is over 50 miles from here, we can hear the organ playing, the choir singing and enjoy a good sermon.

We also got all the latest news of the little picnics they had in New York trying to nominate a man for president which lasted several days and some nights.

All who will attend the Corner picnic at Dayville four corners are sure of one grand time, good roads easy to find and a large number will be present. Begin today to lay your plans to be there.

Judge K: It will be very pleasant to our patient editor to know that you have dropped two pen names and will use only one in the future. It would be well if others who have more than one name would do the same, perhaps I am taking too much space and will close with all kinds of good wishes to the Corner family.

RURAL DELIVERY.

A TRIP TO BLOCK ISLAND

Social Corner Friends: We have had a delightful shower, for which we are all very thankful, as it was greatly needed. Our garden hasn't suffered from the dry spell, but everything looks refreshed, it has been so dry and dusty.

Last Wednesday I was invited to spend the day at Elizabeth park, with some cousins I hadn't seen in over 20 years. We had lunch on the recreation grounds, and the afternoon was spent among the roses. The ramblers were simply magnificent, in fact the park is a wonderful place to spend the day and rest.

We had a delightful trip on the Fourth to Block Island and a rather unexpected one. We took the first trolley to meet the boat at Norwich that leaves at 8 a. m.

We went on the top of the boat where we could see all around. At New London it seemed to get colder, so I went down on the main deck near the cabin. Two ladies from Waterbury came aboard and as they found seats near me, we visited the rest of the way. It was a little rough, and several were seasick. When we reached the island, we asked the captain how long a time we would have. He told us and we decided we had plenty of time to go to the beach, take a dip in the ocean, and be back in time for the return trip to Norwich. When we returned we had twenty minutes to spare, but the boat had gone. Others that had gone about the island were left the same as we.

As we wanted to get home that night there was nothing to do but take the boat to Providence. It was a beautiful trip, much more so than the one going. It was lovely at Newport with the beautiful country homes of the wealthy people. We saw the hospital ship anchored out that was used during the war.

The officers homes looked very pretty from the boat, also the many government buildings. We saw the fort where a nephew was stationed, before going across. From Providence we took an express train for New London reaching home about midnight tired, but ready to take the trip again, as I thoroughly enjoyed it.

My currants are picked and today I am canning, spicing and making jelly. I've canned strawberries and the syrup that was left I used with rhubarb. Cherries are now ready to pick. Have canned some and had some for pie.

WILTWYCK.

GREETINGS FROM PEGGY ANNE

Dear Social Corner Sisers: As there have been some inquiries for me lately, will try to let those inquiring for me know that I am still in South Manchester, Conn., and very much alive.

Interested Reader: It is rather late to thank you for the pretty calender that you were so kind as to send me, but I do thank you just the same. It is much admired by all who see it.

I also wish to thank the sisters who so kindly sent me cards on my birthday (May 2) Anna Mell, Aunty No. 1, Foxglove, H. H. L., Whirlwind and Necia.

I did not realize that there were so many Social Corner sisters living so near Hartford. I think it would be nice if we could get together and form another club. Samantha, Persis, Keturah and myself all live within a short distance of each other.

Whirlwind and Foxglove: Will surely try to go to Elizabeth park if it is decided to hold a picnic there.

Tiny: Am looking forward to the promised visit.

Aunt Sarah: G. M. P. is O. K. once more. She started working again July 14.

Lebanon Brownie and Dorinda: Where did you spend June 2nd?

L. H. K.: It will soon be time to pick huckleberries. I hope to pick as many or more than I did last year. They are very plentiful around here.

Dom Pedro: How are you this hot weather?

Fringed Gentian: How is Anna Bell? Chef's Sister: Am sorry that I can't attend your picnic. I live too far away. Hope you have a good crowd and a pleasant day.

Best wishes to all.

PEGGY ANNE.

CUTICURA HEALS HARD PIMPLES

Face Terribly Disfigured. Lasted About a Year.

"My brother was troubled with pimples that broke out in blotches on his face. The pimples at first were small and scattered but later they grew larger and were hard and red. It was impossible for him to shave without irritating them and making them bleed. They grew steadily worse, and his face was terribly disfigured. The trouble lasted about a year.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. It helped him so we purchased more, which completely healed him." (Signed) Miss Lenora M. Calusha, Clinton, Me., April 14, 1924.

Use Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum for daily toilet purposes.

Samples Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. X, Malden 48, Mass." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Try our new Shaving Stick.

FLINT, MICH. WOMAN SUSPICIOUS ABOUT BROTHER'S DEATH IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 18.—Harry J. Gault, prosecuting attorney of Flint, Mich., has communicated with the New London police in the interest of Mrs. Joseph Swiatkowski, Flint, Mich., who believes that her brother, Adolf Tkaczynsky, who died at the home of Mrs. Swiatkowski's brother-in-law, Michael Pawlicki, Spring street, March 6th, 1924, was a victim of foul play. Tkaczynsky's death was sudden, but an investigation by the authorities at the time attributed death to natural causes.

The truckload of beer, about 100 cases, seized in this city several days ago, contained an alcoholic strength of 3.10 per cent., it has been determined by an analysis at the state laboratory, Hartford. A quantity of the seized beer was taken to the laboratory yesterday afternoon by Prohibition Enforcement Agent Joseph Fitzpatrick and Sergt. John Cavanaugh of the local department.

Whether Sergeant Cavanaugh and his officers acted within their rights in seizing the beer without first obtaining a warrant to search the truck to determine its contents will probably be threshed out when Maurice Eskoff, New Haven, driver of the truck, appears in the police court next Tuesday morning. Counsel for Eskoff declares that the United States court has ruled on more than one occasion that officers seeking to learn the nature of the cargo of an automobile must first obtain a warrant whereby a search of the truck can be made.

One of six airplanes from Mitchel field on its way to Camp Templeton, Niantic, this morning came to grief when the plane crashed to the ground but a few hundred feet from the camp ground. The two occupants of the plane, Lieut. Burton Stanhope, Niantic, and Lieut. Arnold Rasmussen, Waterbury, were injured, Stanhope sustaining a probable fracture of the leg and Rasmussen receiving numerous bruises about the head. Both are patients at Home Memorial hospital, New London.

Andrew F. Burns, formerly of Cambridge, Mass., was taken into custody here late this afternoon on a warrant issued by the Cambridge authorities charging him with non-support of his wife, Eleanor McCarthy Burns, and three minor children. Burns, who was arrested by State Policeman Bernard Kennerson of the Groton barracks, was locked up at the New London police station to await the arrival of an officer from Cambridge to take him back to that place for trial.

Mrs. Philip Rosen and infant son, 107 Squire street, Mrs. Joseph Zukoss, Montville, Mrs. Louis Somerfeldt and infant daughter, Waterford, Dr. Creighton Barker, New Haven, and Mrs. Louis Erksine of Waterford, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were able to go to their respective homes today.

The body of Miss Katherine Trott, daughter of the late Stanley Trott, whose death occurred at Washington the 2nd inst., was brought to New London this afternoon for burial in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery. The committal service was by Rev. C. S. M. Stewart.

Lucy Avery, wife of F. Waldo Lathrop of St. Paul, Minn., where Mr. Lathrop is instructor at the University of Minnesota, died last night at the residence of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Daniel Sullivan, 58 Huntington street, after a short illness. Besides her husband, Mrs. Lathrop is survived by her mother, Mrs. Lucy Avery, of Groton, a daughter, Mary Avery Lathrop, three sisters, Mrs. Herbert Holsworth of Newark, N. J., Mrs. Hugh Prentice and Miss Mildred Avery, both of Groton.

The police have arrested two youths whom they believe have been implicated in the numerous bathing house thefts at Ocean Beach of late. The lads were turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield and this afternoon were presented before Judge Victor Prince of the juvenile court.

Patrolman Braxton Hill is confined to his home on Ocean avenue as a result of a severe cold.

Following an order of the city council, the Schwartz company, which recently caused a concrete brow to be constructed on Pearl street to permit vehicles driving to the rear entrance of their store for purposes of loading and unloading, caused the brow to be removed today. The company will now have the curbing cut away so as to permit vehicles passing to and from the yard. The order of the city council was the result of the action of the Schwartz company in causing to be erected the brow, through which an iron pipe was passed to permit drainage water to flow, without first securing permission to do so from the city council.

Miss Hazel Davis of New York has concluded a visit with Miss Lillian Liljenstein of Crocker street and is now being entertained by relatives in Mystic.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Abell left today for Baltimore, where they will remain several days.

Two out of town barbers are contemplating the opening of a non-union shop in New London. The prospective barber shop proprietors have inspected a store just off State street with a view to leasing it. If the place is secured, the barber shop will reduce the cost of shaves from 20 to 15 cents and will reduce the cost of haircuts from 50 cents to 25 or 30 cents.

Harold Plympton, 20, was fined $200 on each of two counts in the police court this morning for selling liquor on the 19th and the 23d of June last in the Lawrence Shea building on Bank street. Plympton was the occupant of a room in the building with Dave Palitz and George La Brizzi, it is claimed and in that room the sale of liquor is declared to have taken place. Van Jellatin and William Butler the former a stranger in the city, but the latter a resident here, went to the Ideal rooming house and there engaged apartments. They had the opportunity to make the acquaintance of the men referred to and they made use of their chance. Of course, the men being strangers to the room occupants they desired to get a drink and then to buy a bottle. The strangers testified that they got both the drink and the bottle of liquor. Once, it is claimed, they bought from Palitz and then they purchased from Plympton. Palitz, who in court, denied that he ever saw his accusers, but they held to their testimony and accused him in positive terms. He was found guilty and heavily fined, but he appealed and is yet to have a contest in the courts. At that time Plympton disappeared. He was not found until yesterday, when Special Constable Lewis, at work for the state's attorney, located him at Westerly and brought him to New London. Today Plympton admitted his guilt and told of his connection with the sale of the liquor. He said he had no money, so he took the chance to make some easy cash without working for it. He had been a chaufeur and had been in the employ of a wealthy woman, who, this summer, is in Europe. He landed in Syracuse, broke, and came here, for his father is a section boss on the New Haven railroad. His mother has been dead four years. In his plight Plympton engaged in the liquor business long enough to get the cash to get away from here. He was represented by an attorney today. The latter made a plea for leniency for the youth, but all he got was the suspension of a jail sentence of 10 days on each count. This was granted with the understanding that he should remain away from New London in the future.

James Whiting, straggler, came into town on the front end of a freight car on the New Haven train from Boston early this morning. Caleb Green, a special officer of the railroad whose duty it is to see that this sort of transportation is not allowed greeted Whiting when he left the train and then arrested him. The police court allowed him to get out of town but cautioned him that the safest way for him to leave was over the turnpike.

Mike Moone, concerned in a fight in which Bob Odgers, a farm hand was beaten some weeks ago, was in the court for breach of the peace. There was no evidence to connect Moone directly with the fight so the complaint was nolled.

Mrs. Ray Geer and infant daughter, of Broad street, Mrs. Jennie Ferazi, Shaw street, Mrs. Albert Smith and infant son, Westerly, Mrs. Ellis Mello and infant daughter, of Westerly and Mrs. Hattie Leditite, Oswegatchie, were patients discharged at Lawrence hospital today.

David M. Regan, James F. Regan, Thomas P. Regan, Nellie Regan, Catherine Reagan and Cornelius Reagan, have sold a dwelling on Walbach street to Attilio Palverari.

F. Lorenzo, a member of the crew of U. S. S. Savannah, has communicated with the New London police requesting that the authorities provide for his wife, who resides at 24 Fraser street, with police protection as a sailor stationed at the submarine base persists in annoying her. Motorcycle Officer William Babcock learned after an interview with Mrs. Lorenzo that she had taken up the matter with the naval authorities and the latter had assured Mrs. Lorenzo that she would not be subjected to further annoyance.

L. Eugene Conway, 17 Main street, complained to the police this forenoon that a pocketbook containing $20 that had been carelessly left in his bathroom had been stolen. Later Conway informed the police that the money had been found among a quantity of clothing that was intended to be sent to the laundry.

The fire department was called out last night to quell a blaze that threatened to cause serious damage to the three story Armstrong block on Bank street. Shortly before midnight Raymond Hurley, proprietor of a lunch wagon, located on Bank street, south of Lane A, observed flames in that part of the block the third floor occupied by the Marvel Underwear Co. An alarm was rung in from Box 32, in front of the quarters of the Allen Hook and Ladder company. The firemen upon forcing entrance to the building found a large table where ironing is performed with gas-heated flats afire. A quantity of chemicals was poured on the flames, which were subdued before damage of more than $200 had been caused. The fire originated, it is believed from one of the burners attached to a flat not having been extinguished when work was concluded, earlier in the day.

Shortly after 1.30 o'clock this afternoon a still alarm was received at headquarters for a fire at the Paquette bakery, 686 Bank street. The Niagara Engine company and Allen Hook and Ladder company were dispatched to the fire and upon the arrival of the firemen the blaze was discovered beneath the building. An automobile tire had been ignited by boys and had been thrown beneath the structure, causing a volume of smoke to issue from under the building. The removal of the tire removed the cause of the blaze.

THE FAMILY TREE OF THE MIGHTY PEN

"Bebe Norris of New York, N. Y., is a stenographer, A. D. 1924. She doesn't trace her blood lineage to ancient Babylon. But Bebe had what might be called a professional grandmother, a hundred or so times removed—Bibea Narem, by name—who did precisely the same sort of work as Bebe's for a prominent merchant in Mesopotamia's greatest city more than two hundred thousand years before Christ.

"When Bibea's boss clapped his hands or made whatever signal Babylonian bosses made in place of pressing a buzzer button, Bibea grabbed her stenographic pad, picked up a stylus and hurried in to take dictation.

"Murashu, Sons, Murashu Building, Nippur: Honored Gentlemen,' probably began the dictator, addressing the historic banking firm which held the place in Babylonia that the Rothschilds have held in Europe.

"As her employer dictated Bibea rapidly jabbed her stylus into the soft clay of her little pad. For like all her stenographic sisters of 4,000 years ago, Bibe was literally a 'pencil pusher.' The stylus was a little rod of bone about six inches long, triangular in cross-section, cut off sharply at one end so that when this end was pressed into damp clay it left wedge-shaped impressions.

"Such a bone stylus, described in dispatches from Bagdad as 'the oldest known pen' has just been dug up on the site of the ancient city of Kish, and gives archaeologists one of their best specimens of the tool with which the priceless cuneiform tablets of Babylonia and Assyria were made. The discovery of this stylus led the National Geographic Society, in the bulletin quoted above, to reconstruct with actual names and facts gleaned from other recent discoveries, a scene in a typical business office of forty centuries ago.

"After the dictation was finished," continues the bulletin, "the dictator might very well have issued such familiar instructions as these: 'Please make a copy of that, Miss Narem; sign it for me, and get it off. Have an engagement that will keep me out until after the Nippur mail leaves.' For Babylonian business firms kept copies of letters in their files; almost everyone of any prominence had a personal seal used by himself or his employes in signing documents; and regular postal routes were maintained between Babylon and the other principal cities of the empire."

The discovery of the bone stylus at Kish, the bulletin points out, discloses a class of implements that has been more important to the development of civilization than perhaps any other group of tools.

"Man is even more truly distinguished as a 'writing animal' than as a 'speaking animal'", continues the bulletin, "for it is the growing fund of knowledge set down on various surfaces by various impiements, and so passed on to generation after generation that has made possible development in the arts, sciences and industries. Back of the Kish stylus are more primitive members of the pen family: chisels to cut into stone and wooden tablets, thorns to scratch on hides, flint splinters with which to furrow cave walls, bones and sticks with which to make probably the first rude marks of all in sand or dirt. In a parallel line, stretch back the fewer ancestors of the pencil: bits of lead, lumps of chalk and soft earth, and the ends of charred sticks.

"The descendants of the Babylonian stylus and the scratching tools that preceded it present a startling array of implements and mechanisms. In China and Egypt paper and papyrus were invented to supersede the cruder and heavier writing surfaces and the great forward step was made of applying a third substance, ink, by means of a brush or pen. The Egyptian reed pen made of a hollow tubular stem may be looked upon as the direct ancestor of the modern pen. It had practically the form of its present-day descendant, being pointed and slit to make it pliable.

"The early Greeks and Romans, however, did not use any material comparable to paper. They first scribbled with chalk on broken bits of pottery, or scratched with pointed metal rods on wooden blocks. Their next step was to cover the blocks with wax and scratch their messages in that material. This style had knobs on one end used to smooth out erroneous marks. New wax could be applied and the tablets used over and over. The metal styli were truly as mighty as swords, serving as daggers when desired. Julius Caesar is said to have been stabbed to death with such pens.

"When papyrus reached Greece and Italy the reed pen and use of ink went with it. This combination was also used in writing on sheepskin parchment and vellum, and in the hands of slave, and later monkish copyists, went into the making of the world's most highly prized illuminated manuscripts and hand-wrought books.

"Quills, chiefly from goose feathers, furnished the next source for improved pens. Not until the nineteenth century did detachable metal pen points come into general use and shoulder quills out. Now something like three million gross of them are made yearly in the United States alone.

"The steel and gold pens and even the latest models of fountain pens do not complete the pen genealogy. The far-off bit of bone or flint used by less dumb savage who recorded an unimportant event many thousand years ago was truly the original ancestor of our typewriters, our etching needles, the light rays and acids we have harnessed to make our half-tones, and the gigantic, thunderous printing presses that grind out their millions of newspapers, magazines and books."

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS.

General John J. Pershing has accepted the invitation to come to Atlantic City on Sept. 14, his birthday, and review the Veterans of Foreign Wars, all members of which have seen service in America's foreign campaigns and expeditions, and whom it is estimated will be gathered there some 25,000 strong as delegates from all states of the Union, the Philippines, Canal Zone, China, France and other foreign countries in celebration of the silver jubilee of the organization. Organized 25 years ago, the military order, embracing only these veterans of America entitled to campaign medals for foreign service in wartime, still includes within its ranks four veterans of the Mexican war of 1846, who will hold the place of honor in the Atlantic City ceremonies, extending over a period, September 8-12. General Pershing is an early member of the order and eligible through service in the Spanish-American war, Philippines insurgention and the war with Germany. An appropriation of $25,000, in addition to a fund being raised by the Chamber of Commerce and city council, has been given by the state to aid in the entertainment of the veterans.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

The dedication of Pachaug grange's new hall with exercises Thursday afternoon and evening was carried out with complete success and an attendance of between 200 and 300 which included visitors from many neighboring granges. Charles M. Gardner of Springfield, high priest of demeter of the national grange, and the following officers of the state grange; Worthy Master Allen B. Cook, Niantic; Overseer Miner Ives, South Meriden; Assistant Steward Charles M. Adams, Groton; Ceres Flora A. York, Westerly; Flora, Mrs. Frank K. Haynes, Pomfret Center; and Deputy Fred N. Taylor of Lebanon.

State Master Cook conducted the dedication exercises in the afternoon and there was work in the fourth degree. Following this a pretty operetta, The Singing Flowers, was given by a double quartett, making such a fine impression that it was repeated at the evening programme.

A bountiful supper was admirably served in cafeteria style by the Pachaug grange committee.

The feature of the evening programme was the address of High Priest Gardner, who spoke eloquently of the part the grange has played in big events of the past fifteen years. He pointed out that the grange had been a pioneer in three big movements, the growth of democracy, the enfranchisement of woman, and the outlawing of the liquor traffic.

In the musical part of the evening programme there were selections by the Guile trio of Norwich and a piano solo by Mrs. Geer of Pachaug.

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

Plans for the outing of the Catholic Ladies of Columbus, to be held at Atlantic Beach on August 3rd are progressing rapidly and from all accounts the outing will be one of the best ever held by the council. The arrangements are in charge of Mrs. O'Neil and committee and members are to be notified of time and other plans prior to the day of the outing.

ODD FELLOWS

The regular meeting of Shetucket lodge, No. 27, was held Tuesday evening in Odd Fellows hall, Main street with Noble Grand Louis Waters in the chair. Considerable routine business was transacted and officers, newly elected, not present at the meeting for installation, were installed by Acting District Deputy Grand Master Edward F. Kinney. The entertainment committee announced plans for the future but withheld the nature of what is to come.

The chairman of the finance committee announced that the committee would meet Sunday morning at 10 o'clock at Odd Fellows' hall for the purpose of going through the books.

Following the meeting a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

A love-lorn youth of Junction City, Kas., paid $18 for the privilege of singing a lullaby over the telephone to his fiancee who was visiting in a western city.

Wife Of Candidate For Vice-President

Mrs. Charles W. Bryan, wife of the Governor of Nebraska, nominee for Vice-President on the Democratic ticket.

SPECIAL NOTICE

We beg to inform the public that we are now ready to pack ice cream in the

NEW "FREEZOCRAT" CONTAINERS

This system of packing would keep ice cream for four hours, as hard as it would be at the time of purchase—if kept in a cool place. It will keep it hard longer if the container is placed in the refrigerator on reaching its destination.

It costs 15c for packing each quart in a "FREEZOCRAT" and the size so small that a child can carry it.

It ordinarily takes three minutes to put a quart up, but those who do not care to wait, may telephone their orders few minutes before they call for them.

Orders of ice cream in these containers could be sent by Western Union messenger service at the expense of the purchaser.

DID NOT HAVE STRENGTH TO COMB HER HAIR

"Since taking Tanlac I look and feel like a different person," recently asserted Mrs. Lewis Herbolzheimer, 40 Portland St., Worcester, Mass.

"Two years of stomach trouble brought on a complication of ills that were fast shattering my health. Indigestion kept me in constant pain and misery and I actually did not have strength to comb my hair. My nerves were so excited that I would wake up all hours of the night and loss of sleep was just wearing me out.

"As badly run-down as I was it has only taken six bottles of Tanlac to make me feel like my normal self. My troubles are not only gone, but I eat and sleep like a child and have gained twenty pounds. My gratitude to Tanlac is unbounded."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation.

POETRY

THUNDER SHOWER.

Up from the sun-baked ground, through wind a-hour,
The heat-waves floated through the listless grass;
I wished that clouds might cool the scoured day—
That even the most leisuring breeze might pass.

Worn on the day; the trees breathed heavily;
The sumachs panted 'neath the hollow sky;
Great black clouds marched across the sun—
A streak of yellow lightning, daggered by!

The angry thunder storm clouds rumbled—rolled;
Higher they piled, with crash on echoing crash!
Rain fell in blinding torrents; and the while
Forked lightning pierced the gloom with flash on flash.

The shower passed; night brushed the clouds aside,
And here and there her giant star-worlds flung;
Among the rain-washed gardens of the sky
The moon, a dead-white flower petal hung.

—Agnes Choate Wonson, in Boston Globe.

"IN GREEN OLD GARDENS."

In green old gardens, hidden away
From sight of revel and sound of strife
Where the bird may sing out his soul ere he die,
Nor fears for the night, so he lives his day;

Where the high red walls which are growing gray
With their lichen and moss embroideries,
Seem sadly and sternly to shut out life,
Because it is often as red as they;

Where even the bee has time to glide
(Gathering gayly his honey's store)
Right to the heart of the old-world flowers—
China-asters and purple stocks,
Dahlias and tall red hollyhocks,
Laburnums raining their golden showers,
Columbines prim of the folded core,
And lupins and larkspure, and "London pride;"

Where the heron is waiting amongst the reeds,
Grown tame in the silence that reigns around,
Broken only, now and then,
By shy woodpecker or noisy jay,
By the far-off watch-dog's muffled bay;
But where never the purposeless laughter of men,
Or the seething city's murmurous sound
Will float up over the river-weeds.

Here may I live what life I please,
Married and buried out of sight,—
Married to pleasure, and buried to pain,—
Hidden away amongst scenes like these,
Under the fans of the chestnut trees;
Living my child-life over again,
With the further hope of a fallen delight,
Blithe as the birds had wise as the bees.

In green old gardens, hidden away
From sight of revel and sound of strife,—
Here have I leisure to breathe and move,
And to do my work in a nobler way;
To sing my songs, and to say my say;
To dream my dreams, and to love my love;
To hold my faith, and to live my life,
Making the most of its shadowy day.

—Violet Fane.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Never hold a nail for your wife to strike at.—Good Hardware.

Offender (pleading guilty)—Here I stand without a leg to stand on.—London Tit-Bits.

Terrible times.

Yes, you can't order glycerine at the drug store now without getting a nail.

He—I notice you're not eating candy nowadays.

Fiancee—No, I've pretty nearly gotten out of the habit since I've been going with you.—Holmes Store News.

Hodge—Queer thing you're making there, mate. Whose idea is it?

Carpenter—Well, it's like this: If it does work all right, it's the manager's idea and if it don't, then it's mine.—Exchange.

Father—You must know, sir, that my daughter will get nothing from me until my death.

Suitor—Oh that's all right, that's all right! I have enough to live on for that length of time.—Boston Transcript.

"We may as well give up trying to get into society," said Newrich in discouragement. "The barrier is insurmountable."

"Nonsense!" returned Mrs. Newrich. "We'll get over it in time."

"What! Have we wings?" he expostulated.

"No, but our money has," said his wife.—Western Christian Advocate.

All his life the old Scotsman had been henpecked, and as he was about to die his wife thought she ought to offer him some consolation.

"Jamie," she said, "ye are about to go, but I will soon follow ye."

"I suppose so, Jean," he answered, weakly, "but so far as I am concerned ye need-be in no hurry about it."—London Tit-Bits.

Anybody in Crimson Gulch play Mah Jong?

"No," answered Cactus Joe. "We ought to like it but we can't finance the layouts. Anybody with money enought to buy a Mah Jong set would rather buy a few stacks of poker chips."—Washington Star.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Weaving was practiced in China more than a thousand years before it was known in Europe.

Pearls consist of layers of delicate material inclosing some foreign particle, usually a parasite.

Forest fires in this country destroy each year timber sufficient to build five-room wooden homes every hundred feet on both sides of a boulevard extending from New York City to Chicago.

For the first time a valuable breeding horse has been shipped by airplane. The animal was placed in a crate to be flown from Paris to Amsterdam, it was found, however, that the crate was too large to go in the airplane, so the floor of the plane was reinforced and the horse carried off into the sky uncrated.

Human hair exports from Hongkong during 1921 amounted to approximately ninety nine tons. This decrease of 164 tons as compared with 1922 was due to the difficulties experienced in obtaining supplies. Japan, including Chosen and Formosa, was the most important market considering the value of the product taken, France ranks second, and the United States third.

Edgar Leving of Paris, Mo., wishing to get his plowing finished quickly, adopted an ingenious plan: First setting his tractor on its course and getting its bunch of plows to the right depth, he would let it go ahead under its own power. Then, jumping upon the gang plow, he would set his four mules in motion and keep them stepping so lively that they would reach the other end of the field in time for him to board the tractor, turn it around and start it in the other direction.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

RAILS FEATURED MARKET.

New York, July 18.—Wall street today witnessed an old-fashioned railroad market during which 34 carrier stocks advanced to new high prices for the year on buying inspired by the interstate commerce commission's refusal to reduce the freight rates on grain. Total transactions approximated two and one-quarter million shares, making it one of the most active sessions this year.

The buying movement in the rails embraced both the high grade and non-dividend paying shares. Among the issues to break through their previous high levels were New York Central, Atchison, Illinois Central, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Great Northern Preferred, Chicago & Northwestern, all three Rock Island issues; Atlantic Coast Line and "Big Four," the last named jumping 6 1-3 points on a few sales.

Copper shares also gave a good demonstration of group strength, seven issues in that group attaining new peak prices although in the net gains were as a rule small. Buying of these issues were stimulated by reports that several European countries were planning the extensive coinage of silver, which has steadily been appreciating in value for weeks.

Outside the rail and copper groups, there was largely a specialty market with the best gains below recorded by such issues as General Electric, American Car and Foundry, Adams Express, Advance Rumely Pfd., Cuyamel Fruit, Davison Chemical, Goodyear Tire Pfd., Lima Locomotive, Savage Arms, Texas Gulf and Sulphur and United Fruit, all up 2 to 5 points and many at new top prices for the year.

Pool operations were vigorously conducted in several sections of the list, being aided by the unusually large sums of money available for investment and speculative purposes. Considerable significance attached to the fact that loans up to seven months were available at 3 1-2 per cent., prior loans at that rate being limited to six months' maturities.

Call money ruled at 3 per cent. Although large loans were reported to be available on the "outside market," as low as 3 1-2. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange trading continued quiet, pending further developments at the reparations conference in London. Demand sterling and French francs ruled slightly higher at $4.37 1-8 and 5.11 cents, respectively.

BOND MARKET.

New York, July 18.—Railroad and traction issues led an early advance in today's bond market which later gave way to profit-taking, with a strong underlying demand, however, various liens established new high prices for the year, gains of the half dozen most active issues in the speculative rail and public utility class ranging from 1 to almost 4 points.

Refusal of the interstate commerce commission to lower freight rates on grain promoted active buying of the grangers' securities, bonds sharing in the advance with stocks. Statements by officials of the St. Paul and Rock Island railroads that the decision would be reflected in the results of 1924 operations, centered attention on these issues which advanced 1 to 1 3-4 points.

Ready oversubscription of the $15,000,000 Japanese Daido Electric Power bond issue offered today testified to the improvement wrought in current market conditions by the recent lull in new financing. Twenty per cent of the applications came from the Pacific coast.

Bankers have been notified by the Chinese government that full payment of interest on the Hukuang railway loan sold here in 1911 would be resumed after October 1.

CURB MARKET

New York, July 18.—Stock prices pointed upward in today's curb market after an early period of irregularity in the oil group due to further announcements of reductions in gasoline and crude prices.

Prairie Oil and Gas closed 1 1-2 points lower than 204 but net gains of 1 to 4 points were recorded by Prairie Pipe and Standard Oils of Kentucky, Nebraska and Ohio. Revival of activity in Lago Petroleum was based on reports that J. Cosden would become associated with that company.

Speculative interest in the industrial group was divided between the radio stocks, Dubilier climbing more than two points to a new high record at 50, and the Hudson and Manhattan issues were in demand on reports that both stocks of the tube company would be listed on the "big board" when the Hudson company was dissolved. Durant Motors dropped about a point to 22.

Trading in the mining group was devoted almost entirely to the penny stocks with Independent Lead and Jib Consolidated as the most active features.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, July 18.—Wheat underwent a decided setback in price today, owing largely to reports of drenching rains over part of the Canadian Northwest and also as a result of big deliveries on July contracts at Winnipeg. Closing prices here for wheat were unsettled, 4c to 4 5-8c net lower. September 1.24 5-8 to 1.24 7-8 and December 1.27 1-2 to 1.27 3-4, with corn 1 5-8c to 2 1-4c down, oats 1 1-8 to 1 3-4c off, and provisions varying from unchanged figures to 17 cents decline.

General selling took place in the wheat market right from the outset. A prevalent opinion was that such portions of the Canadian crop as had been planted late would receive benefit from the rainfall, even though a great deal of other wheat was beyond aid. Additional selling was influenced by lower quotations at Liverpool and by assertions that purchasing had been overdone and that a reaction was due. Besides, the heavy profit-taking sales during a three-day continuous advance had apparently filled up demand for at least the time being.

Lowest prices of the day in the wheat market were reached just before trading ended, and were hand-in-hand with news that deliveries at Winnipeg totaled 1,562,000 bushels. Furthermore crop estimates from Canadian sources were construed as bearish in relation to recent estimates from Chicago experts. The fact that southwestern domestic markets were receiving good amounts of wheat on consignment acted, too, as something of a weight on values.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat weakness, despite unfavorable weather for corn growth. Oats were steadied somewhat through support given by an elevator interest here.

Provisions went lower with grain notwithstanding an upturn in hog values.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE

Whereas, lawfully constituted authority of the Town of Lebanon, did on the first day of April, A. D. 1924, deliver into my hands a Rate Bill with tax warrant attached for the collection of a tax of twenty-six mills on the dollar on the Grand List as last perfected, said tax warrant being signed by Clifford C. King, a Justice of the Peace in and for the County of New London, and

Whereas, the estate of Francis Brown has not paid its portion of said tax, and the representatives of said estate have, after proper demand, neglected and refused to pay said tax, amounting to twenty-eight dollars and sixty cents ($28.60), and

Whereas, other taxes assessed against the property of said estate on previous rate bills, amounting to fifty dollars or more, remain unpaid,

Now, therefore, I, George E. Briggs, Collector of Taxes for the said Town of Lebanon, do hereby give notice that I will sell at public auction on the 20th day of September, A. D. 1924, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, on the premises hereinafter described, all of the real estate of said estate which may be situated in said Town of Lebanon, or enough of said real estate to satisfy the claim of said Town of Lebanon for taxes, together with legal fees and lawful interest.

Said real estate consists of three (3) tracts or parcels of land, aggregating one hundred (100) acres, more or less, all situated in Goshen Society of said Town of Lebanon.

FIRST TRACT: Bounded northerly by Harbor road (so-called), easterly by lands of the estate of J. J. Sullivan, southerly by lands of said Sullivan estate, westerly by highway, and however otherwise bounded.

SECOND TRACT: Bounded northerly by brook from Williams' pond, easterly by Harbor road, southerly by highway, westerly by Burnstein land, and however otherwise bounded.

THIRD TRACT: Bounded northerly by brook from Williams' pond, easterly by lands of Mrs. Springis, southerly by Fowler road, westerly by Harbor road, and however otherwise bounded.

Dated at Lebanon, Conn., this 17th day of July, 1924.

(Signed) GEORGE E. BRIGGS, jy19s Collector of Taxes.

LEGAL NOTICES

City Ordinances and Rules Governing Garbage and Ashes

Sec. 8. It shall be the duty of the Street Commissioner to remove said ashes, store sweepings and rubbish so put and deposited free of expense to parties so depositing them, whenever it shall be necessary and proper for the same to be removed.

Sec. 13. No refuse building material of any kind shall be removed and disposed of by the Street Commissioner. Nor shall any such be mixed with the garbage and other matter to be removed by said Commissioner.

Sec. 13. No garbage or waste material of any kind shall be removed by the Street Commissioner unless the foregoing provisions in regard to the same shall be observed.

Sec. 14. The Street Commissioner shall have power to determine the kind and size of receptacles to be used by any person for the deposit of ashes, garbage or other material to be removed by the Street Commissioner, and the place where the same shall be placed for removal, and, subject to the provisions of Section 12th of this chapter, the kind of material which will be removed, and may refuse to remove any material for any person violating his order in any of said matters. This section shall not be construed, however, as repealing Section 7th of this chapter, providing that no ashes, store sweepings, or rubbish shall be put in any public street in the City of Norwich.

All barrels must be placed in yard level nearest street level.

Street Department shall take garbage and ashes in barrels and papers in bundles.

Only sized receptacles allowable will be cracker barrel, flour barrel or galvanized iron barrel as sold at hardware stores for said purpose.

On and after Aug. 1st the above rules under said City ordinances will go into effect.
JOHN C. DONOVAN,
jy18d Street Commissioner.

TAFTVILLE

The members of the Taftville Field Day association held a meeting on Thursday evening at the Army & Navy Club to listen to the reading of the final reports on the Fourth of July celebration, which the association staged this year. It was shown by the report that the total expense for the celebrating of the Glorious Fourth was $405.58, leaving a balance of $5 in the treasury. Another meeting is to be held in two weeks for the purpose of electing officers for the next year, and deciding whether a field day is to be held this summer. Last year the field day was a big event in the town, and was the means of raising considerable money to be spent on the Fourth of July celebration. President John B. Benoit presided at the meeting.

The Aowakiva Camp Fire Girls held a picnic Friday at the Drawbridge, making the trip by motor bus. After enjoying various sports and games, the girls sat down to a basket lunch. The group was accompanied by Mrs. E. Tracy Clark, the guardian and Mrs. Adam Leopold.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carter and Raymond Carter of Newmarket, N. H., are the guests of the Misses Louise and Mary Stubbs of North B street.

The Pages of Castle Perilous, K. O. R. A. held a conclave in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church Friday evening. The conclave was followed by various forms of drills and exercises in the recreation rooms in the basement.

Mr. and Mrs. William Whitehead and William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue motored to Savin Rock, New Haven, Friday.

Many of the local employees of the U. S. Finishing company attended the field day given by the company at Sterling, on Friday.

Mrs. Lydia Dubinetzky was a visitor in Hartford, Friday.

Huckleberries have become so plentiful that many people not working at present, spend the entire day in the woods picking them. Big families welcome this manner in cutting down the grocery bill and it is a common sight to see the head of the house going into the woods with a water pail, accompanied by several children with smaller pails. Blackberries will also be plentiful this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Yarreau and family of North B street are moving to a house on Terrace avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bailey and Miss Mabel Hodgkinson of North Second avenue and Miss Natalie J. Ferris of Detroit, Mich., were visitors at Ocean Beach, Conn.

Miss Lillian Laramie of North B street is spending this week with relatives in Baltonville.

Miss Mary Bergeron of North B street is the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bergeron, of Bristol, Conn.

An item in Friday's issue of The Bulletin about the carelessness of children running into the way of automobiles had the endorsement of the automobile owners of the village. A story about a foolish person (not a child) who recently nearly caused himself a severe injury, is told by one of the local automobile owners. The local man was proceeding from Jewett City to Taftville when an automobile behind sounded the horn and passed. Evidently the stranger had been blowing his horn for some time, although the local man did not hear it, for as he passed, one of the occupants of the car leaned far out over the door and inserted his finger in his ear shouting to the local man at the same time that he better get rid of the ear bubbles. About that time the door of the car flew open, and the stranger who was going through the demonstration fell into the road directly in the path of the local man's car, which swerved aside into the bank to keep from running over him. It is very probable that from the bruises and shaking up the stranger received, he will not be hanging out of his car shouting to other cars on the road, after this.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY, A. O. H. PERFECTS PICNIC PLANS

The regular meeting of Division No. 54, Ladies Auxiliary, A. O. H., was held this week in the auxiliary rooms on Main street, a large number of members being present.

Miss Anna Connell, chairman of the third annual outing committee, reported that the outing will be held Sunday at Watch Hill, the members to leave Norwich on the bus leaving the station on Main street at 10 o'clock in the morning. The return will be made at 7 o'clock. She also announced that there would be bathing, rowing and games for the pleasure of the members. It is expected that a large delegation will go on the picnic which promises to be one of the best ever held by the auxiliary.

RUM-RUNNERS IN BROOKLYN JAIL TO AWAIT HEARING IN LISBON COURT

With Justice of the Peace Walter Drew holding court in Lisbon Friday noon at the home of Grand Juror George F. Helmboldt the five New Haven men caught in two rum-runnings automobiles Friday night by the state policemen on the river road to Jewett City were presented on the charge of violation of the liquor law. The state police officers brought them from the Norwich lock up to the grand juror's home about noon, by which time the grand juror's yard was well filled with a curious crowd that had come to get a glimpse of the men who had given the officers a chase while the bullets flew after them.

The court session was quickly over as the five men asked a continuance, which was granted to this (Saturday) morning at 10 o'clock, (standard time.) Bonds were set at $3,000 each for Edward Chieppo and Thomas Clancy, drivers of the two cars. Bonds for the other three men, Frank Imparelli, Douglass McLaman and Albert Abrams, were placed at $1,000 each, and as none of the five could furnish bonds they were taken to Brooklyn jail, Windham county, to await their hearing today (Saturday) at Lisbon.

Not Comstock's Bullets

Joseph Dayon, an employer of a Plainfield garage, who was shot in the hand by a bullet from a state policeman's gun while the officers were pursuing the rum-running cars Thursday night, was discharged from the Backus hospital here Friday morning. Although Dayon charged Officer Comstock with being the man who shot him, it has developed this could not have been the case as Dayon was shot when Officer Comstock was not present. The Plainfield man, who was towing the first captured automobile, was somehow brought into the line of fire from the state policeman's guns and a bullet from somebody's revolver hit him in the hand.

THIRD RUM-RUNNING CAR MADE ITS ESCAPE

The dark shadows of the velvet mill yard at Taftville made a safe hiding place for another rum-running car Thursday night immediately after two others had been caught by the state police nearby on the river road to Jewett City.

This car was a Locomobile, according to the report circulated by those in Taftville, who claimed to have talked with the driver. It was stated that the third car was following close after the second on its way down from Plainfield and Jewett City and that the driver of course saw that something had happened to his comrades when he came along and saw the first car by the side of the road on Tunnel hill. He drove on past the crowd that was gathered around this car and very quickly came upon the crowd that was gathered around the second captured machine. Catching sight of a side road he turned in to this and found that it took him down back of the velvet mill where he put out his lights, left his car and came up and mingled with the crowd around the second captured machine.

About 3 o'clock Friday morning he drove out of the yard, it is reported, and got away clear.

NORWICH MAN'S PORTRAIT FOR CHICAGO INSTITUTE

The Art Institute of Chicago, in its bulletin noting recent accessions says: "A portrait of William Brown, merchant of Norwich, Ct., by John Trumbull, has been presented the Art Institute, thus enriching the collection of early American portraits. The son of Jonathan Trumbull, of Lebanon, first governor of Connecticut, young Trumbull chose art as his profession against the wishes of his father, who wrote, in reply to a tutor's favorable report of his son's artistic progress: "I am sensible of his natural genius and inclination for limning; an art I have frequently told him that will be of no use to him."

One reason for John Trumbull's choice may be gathered from Washington Allston's description of Trumbull's visit to Copley in Boston: Young Trumbull's first visit to the distinguished artist happened to be made at a time when he (Copley), was entertaining his friends, shortly after his marriage. He was dressed on the occasion in a suit of crimson velvet and gold buttons; and the elegance of his style and his high repute impressed the future artist with grand ideas of the life of a painter."

His artistic career was postponed, however, by the outbreak of the Revolutionary war, when his skill in making a drawing of the British works in Boston led to his appointment as aide-de-camp to General Washington. At the age of twenty he was made a colonel, but resigned from the army in a burst of pique.

The war over, he embarked for England, following in the footsteps of Benjamin West, and, in fact, entering the studio of that respected painter. The execution of Major Andre in America led to his incarceration in an English prison for eight months, but he apparently suffered no great hardships, for the kindly West obtained the king's word that his protege's life was in no danger and himself sent the young artist materials and pictures to copy. Dunlap, who knew Trumbull personally and bore him no strong affection, writes in his "History of the Arts of Design" that in 1794 he "found Mr. Trumbull the established success of Gilbert Stuart in West's apartment." His historical paintings, of which "The Battle of Bunker Hill" was the first, gave Trumbull a substantial reputation, although they are not as successful as his less pretentious portraits, that of William Brown, for example. Not unlike other artists of his day, Trumbull was swayed more by patriotic than by artistic fervor in his historical works.

Innovation at Y. M. C. A. Sunday

GIRLS' FIELD HOCKEY FOR PLAYGROUND TEAMS

A trophy cup has been presented to the recreation commission for the inter-playground field hockey league for girls by the George P. Madden Co. Field hockey is a big game with the girls of the playgrounds and considerable rivalry is noticed between the different playground teams. Two of the playgrounds, East Side and Thamesville, will have volley ball instead of the field hockey.

The schedule for the girls field hockey is as follows:

Section A—Laurel Hill, Greeneville, Elizabeth St

Section B—Lake St., Hobart Ave., Falls.

Wednesday, July 23, 2 o'clock—Laurel Hill vs Greeneville at Laurel Hill; Lake St. vs Hobart Ave. at Hobart Ave.

Wednesday, July 30, 7 o'clock—Elizabeth St. vs Greeneville at Elizabeth St.; Falls Ave vs Hobart Ave. at Hobart Ave, 2 o'clock.

Wednesday, Aug. 6, 2 o'clock—Laurel Hill vs Elizabeth St. at Laurel Hill; Lake St. vs Falls at Falls.

Wednesday, Aug. 13.—Leader in Section A vs leader in Section B.

The teams in this league will compete for the George P. Madden trophy.

Volley Ball

Wednesday, Aug. 6—East Side vs Thamesville.

The young gentleman who seeks a situation isn't likely to succeed as the young man who hustles for a job.

FLETCHER POST AIDING WITH BONUS APPLICATIONS

At the meeting of Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, American Legion held Friday night at their rooms on Main street, Webster D. Copp, chairman of the compensation committee, reported that since the committee began meeting at the legion rooms on Monday Wednesday and Friday evenings, over 125 ex-service men had been assisted in filling out their blanks for adjusted compensation.

In mentioning the work, Chairman Copp stated that ex-service men should be warned that the committee could not assist them unless their discharge papers are brought to the room, as there is a mass of information required on the blanks that can only be obtained from the records on the discharge papers.

The meeting was in charge of Commander Herman A. Bruckner and opened at 9 o'clock after some 20 ex-service men had appeared to have their bonus blanks filled out. Notice was given that the Legion County organization would meet Sunday, July 27th, at 3:30 o'clock, daylight time, at the state armory in New London.

Several members signed up for the venture, handing their names to chairman Percy Chapman. It is expected that over 25 Norwich men will go to New London in August when the initiation ceremonial will take place, members of the Voiture to come to New London from many cities in the state, bringing their tanks, engines and machine guns to New London for the parade.

Several committee reports were made and the members were informed that a report of the service committee would be made at the next meeting by Chairman Charles W. Cassidy, which will show considerable work done for disabled veterans in Norwich and others at the several institutions.

ANOTHER PAYS FOR BREAKING TRAFFIC RULE

The number of motorists who enjoy taking the $3 automobile ride around the left side of the flashing beacon on Market street, was increased by one Thursday, this man paying his $3 to Clerk Bailey in police court Friday morning. Thus far the beacon has brought in a revenue of nearly $70 to the court and it is likely that the price of the ride to the left of the beacon will be advanced if people continue to disregard the law plainly written on the side of the beacon, reading, "Keep to the Right."

HEARD ARGUMENTS IN COLCHESTER INJUNCTION SUIT

Judge C. B. Waller in the common pleas court here Friday heard the arguments in the injunction case of Walter Sawchuk against Dwight H. Marvin, both of Colchester. The court took the papers and adjourned without day.

Sawchuk wants to restrain Marvin from erecting a garage, claiming it encroaches on his property and will be a hazard to persons residing in this vicinity.

PLACING FLASHING BEACON AT NORWICH TOWN

Following the removal this week of a pole at Norwich Town by the telephone company, which had long been blocking the installation of a flashing beacon at the northerly end of the Norwich Town green, Selectman William S. Murray has been able to proceed with the erection of the beacon and the concrete base has been set. Next week the top with the light will be put on and motorists will have a modern guide at this point. For a long time a barrel with a red lantern on top of it has been doing duty, useful but decidedly unornamental.

New Incorporations

A certificate of incorporation of the Manchester Theatre company, Inc., of South Manchester has been filed at the office of the secretary of the state. Authorized capital is $75,000 and the company will begin an amusement and theatre business with $50,000. Incorporators are Samuel Campner and Daniel Pouzsner of New Haven and Morris Pouzzner of New London.

A certificate of incorporation has also been filed of the Frances Knitting Mills, Inc., of New London. Authorized capital is $20,000. To begin a manufacturing, exporting and distributing business in knitted fabrics with $16,000. Incorporators are Thomas C. Dillon, Russell H. Corcoran and Hilda K. Hazler, all of New London.

Broke Arm in Fall

Mrs. Carl W. Brown of this city had an unfortunate fall early this week at her summer home at Gales Ferry in which her arm was broken near the elbow and she is now in a hospital at Hartford for treatment for the injury which is severe. She is reported to be doing as well as can be expected.

Unclaimed Letters

Unclaimed letters in the Norwich, Conn., post office for the week ending July 19, 1924: Harold Wait Carpenter, Miss Clara Cleaves, Supt. Francis Grant, Samuel R. Ward, Miss A. Idella Young.

California was once a famous salmon state, but now the fish of the only river that has a run of salmon are threatened by the erection of a dam.

FIRE IN WASTE PILE AT ARMORY GARAGE

Box 25, corner of Franklin street near Chestnut avenue, was pulled in at 8.56 o'clock Friday night for a fire in a pile of waste, beneath the platform of the Armory garage, 319 Franklin street. The business is owned by Frank G. Pieper and the oil soaked waste had been shored by the garagemen, beneath a platform outside the garage.

The usual autoists followed the apparatus and succeeded in getting in the way during the fire. This practice by drivers, it is claimed, will lead in time to fines for hindering fire apparatus on the way to a fire, similar rules being enforced in many other cities.

MORE THAN 20 BOY SCOUTS INJURED IN AUTO MISHAP

Large Motor Truck Crashed into a Store On Death Curve, West Orange, N. J.—A Passenger Train Demolished an Automobile in Bristol—There Were Fatal Accidents in New Haven and Other Places.

West Orange, N. J., July 20.—More than twenty Boy Scouts were injured tonight, several seriously, when a large motor truck bringing them home from a days' outing, crashed into a store on Death curve here.

WOMAN FATALLY INJURED WHEN AUTO STRUCK POLE

New Haven, July 20—Mrs. Charles Collins, 31 years old, was fatally injured this afternoon when the machine in which she was riding crashed into a telegraph pole on Whitney avenue, near Collett street, Hamden. Her husband and seven year old daughter, Dorothy, were in the machine but neither was injured. The light truck in which the three were riding was proceeding nort in Whitney avenue when the [illegible] and fell forward her body striking the steering wheel. Collins lost control of the machine and it left the road and hit the telegraph pole. Mrs. Collins was thrown out, her head hitting the pavement. She was rushed to Grace hospital where it was found that her skull was fractured. She died a half hour after reaching the hospital. Medical Examiner Dr. George H. Joslin, made an investigation and stated that death was accidental.

AUTOMOBILE DEMOLISHED BY PASSENGER TRAIN

Bristol, Conn., July 20.—Joseph Del Prince, 32 years old, of 25 School street, a well known Bristol market man, was seriously injured and Angelo Giantola 42, of 12 Second avenue was hurt, when their automobile was hit and demolished by a passenger train here today.

The men were returning from Shady Dell, where they had been attending an outing and reached Tracy's Crossing just as the train emerged from a rock cut. The automobile was thrown several feet from the highway and the two men were thrown out. They were rushed to the Bristol hospital where it was found that Del Prince was suffering from a fractured skull, possible internal injuries and body bruises. Giantola suffered from shock and bruises and was badly shaken up. Del Prince is not expected to live.

AUTOMOBILE RAN DOWN AND KILLED TWO PERSONS

South Portland, Me., July 20.—Two persons were killed and one probably fatally injured when an automobile ran down two young women and two children on the street near their homes here today. The dead are Celia Connor, 24 years of age, and Margaret McLaughlin, 7.

Elizabeth McLaughlin, Margaret's twin sister, was believed to be dying at the hospital tonight. Miss Connor's twin sister, Florence, was slightly hurt. Joseph Van Tour, driver of the car, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter.

TWO PERSONS INJURED IN COLLISION OF AUTOS

Bridgeport, July 20.—Mrs. Malvina Charest, of Fort Chester, Mass., was seriously injured and Gertrude Dinsmore, 8 years old, suffered minor hurts, when their car, operated by Alfred Ainbanture of this city was struck by a machine operated by Patrick McLoughlin, of New Britain today. Mrs. Charest sustained a compound fracture of the right leg and other injuries and is in a hospital here.

McLoughlin was arrested for operating a car while under the influence of liquor and is held in $500 bail for a court hearing tomorrow morning. It is alleged by the police that he drove his automobile in a zig-zag fashion, making it impossible for Ainbanture to get out of his way.

DEM. PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE RESTING ON 700 ACRE ISLAND

Dark Harbor, Islesboro, Me., July 20.—Coming to Ilesboro from his haven of rest on Seven Hundred Acre island, John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee, attended services today at the Church of Christ Episcopal. Almost immediately after the services, the nominee returned by boat to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, where he remained in seclusion the rest of the day.

Tommorow Mr. Davis will again visit Islesboro to have lunch with Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Polk and to play a round of golf.

It was not until today that Mr. Davis learned that Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, democratic prosecutor of the Daugherty investigating committee, had accepted the invitation to become the vice presidential candidate on the ticket with Senator Robert M. LaFollett. It apparently proved no surprise to the democratic nominee.

The church services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. R. A. Parrock, of Hamilton, N. Y. The visiting rector made no reference in his sermon to the nominee or to matters political but he did touch upon the world reconstruction program, declaring that the only reconstruction that could be permanent nad real would be that which came from an application of the teachings of Christ and the golden rule.

MAJOR GENERAL HUTCHESON HAS BEEN RETIRED

New York, July 20.—After serving only one day as a major general so that he might receive the pay due to that grade, Major General Hutcheson, one of the most distinguished officers of the United States army, was retired today on the completion of 44 years of active service. During the World war he organized and built the port of embarkation at Newport News and Norfolk, Va., from which most of the A. E. F., supplies and ammunition were sent overseas.

EXTENDING BUILDING SEASON INTO WINTER

New York, July 20.—Lengthening of the building season in the United States to include the winter months was advocated today by Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover in commenting on the report of the committee on seasonal operations in construction industries, appointed by him as an outgrowth of the president's conference on unemployment of 1921. The secretary said such a move would both stabilize employment and lower the costs of construction.

GIRL ACCIDENTALLY SHOT DEAD BY HER COUSIN

Newport, R. I., July 20.—Ten-year-old Florence Geary of Somerville, Mass., was accidentally shot and killed today by her cousin, Ralph E. Carter, Jr., 8 years old. While the children were playing in a garage where the girl's uncle, whom she was visiting keeps his car, the boy found a rifle. In examining it he pulled the trigger and the bullet entered the girl's temple.

GREEK GOV'T GOT ONLY 131 VOTES OUT OF 309

GIRL BABY IN WATERBURY WAS KILLED BY FALL

Waterbury, July 20.—Dorothy Marie Ney, 16 months old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ney, of 68 Jewdry street, fell to her death today by pushing off a picket on the second floor. Death was instantaneous.

TWO MORE DROWNINGS IN WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS

Springfield, Mass., July 20.—Two more drownings in western Massachusetts were reported today, making the total 34 since June 12, Felix Giroux, 19, whose parents live in Lacolle, Canada, but who has worked here as a laborer for the past eight months, was drowned this afternoon when a canoe capsized in Watershops pond, in this city. Giroux attempted to stand up in the frail craft when it overturned. He fell, striking his head against the canoe and went down before spectators could get to his assistance. The body was recovered.

Wallace Bemis, 21, was drowned in a pond at Rowe, Mass., while bathing this afternon. He was a native of Rowe and leaves a mother and one brother. The body was recovered by a Pittsfield man who was fishing at the pond.

James Gordon, 23, of Pittsfield, was rescued from drowning in Pontoosuc lake this afternoon by William MacDonald, caretaker of the city bath houses who saw the young man was beyond his depth and swam to his aid. Gordon was unconscious when brought to shore but was resuscitated by a pulmotor operated by the Pittsfield police.

400 AMERICAN LAWYERS AT WESTMINSTER ABBEY SERVICE

London, July 20 (By the A. P.)—Charles E. Hughes, American secretary of state, and George Sutherland and Edward T. Sanford, associated justices of the United States supreme court, were among the 400 American lawyers attending special services at Westminster Abbey this morning. They heard the Rev. Henry D. A. Major, principal of Bipon Hall, Oxford, preach a sermon, in which he touched upon the religious controversy between the fundamentalists and modernists in America.

Visiting lawyers were also numerous among the congregation at St. Paul's Cathedral, where the bishop of Norwich preached on "Law." He referred to the gathering in London of lawyers from both sides of the Atlantic and declared that international peace would come about from universal recognition of law and good will.

Lawyers from the United States and Canada are rapidly replacing the departing advertising delegates. More than 200 from the steamer Laconia reached London this morning, swelling the contingent that came by the Berengaria yesterday.

Teheran, Persia, is Under Martial Law

Several Suspects Have Been Arrested For Fatally Beating American Vice Consul Imbrie.

Teheran, Persia.—(By the A. P.)—Martial law has been declared here. Several persons suspected of complicity in the killing of the American vice-consul, Robert Imbrie, who died Friday from injuries sustained when he was beaten by a fanatical mob while he was photographing a sacred fountain, have been arrested.

NO MERCY WILL BE SHOWN ASSAILANTS OF IMBRIE

Morristown, N. J., July 20. — No mercy will be shown those responsible for the fatal beating of Vice Consul Robert Imbrie by a fanatical mob at Teheran, Persia, M. H. Topakyonan, acting consul-general of the Persian government in the United States, said today at his summer home located near Morris Plains.

"They will be promptly executed at the place of their crime and this may be witnessed by the American minister and his staff," the Persian representative added.

Mr. Tapakon declared arrests have already be nemade ni the case and trial by court martial will take place immediately.

"It was most unfortunate that Vice Consul Imbrie was wearing a Persian cap at the time he approached the fountain," he continued, explaining that the mob "undoubtedly took him for a member of a sect or religious order now creating a great deal of feeling against the Mohammedans."

Describing the case as a horrible tragedy, Mr. Topakyon expressed sorrow "for what has occurred and I am more deeply distressed for the reason that the relations between the United States and Persia have been most friendly for more than a century."

In conclusion, the envoy said: "I can assure your people that the people of my country extend their sympathy and that everything possible will be done to offer redress and give the United States complete satisfaction.

PRESIDENTIAL PARTY VISSITED BIRTHPLACE OF WASHINGTON

Washington, July 20.—Tribute to the memory of Washington was paid today by President Coolidge who interrupted his week-end cruise on the Mayflower to visit Wakefield, the birthplace of the first president.

The president, accompanied only by Mrs. Coolidge, his father, Col. John Coolidge, and his son, John, left the ship shortly after 8 o'clock this morning about 35 miles below Colonial Beach, Va., and in a White House automobile, which had been sent down from Washington, drove to Wakefield, a now deserted and isolated spot, where only a marble shaft marks the birthplace of Washinkton.

Nearly an hour was spent by the president in the vicinity of the monument, which was erected some years ago by patriotic citizens. Mr. Coolidge after the reading the inscription on the simple shaft stood uncovered for some time and then drove back to the little wharf a mile and a half distant to board the Mayflower.

Returning to the river, which is nearly eight miles wide at that point a series of incidents began which had not been arranged. An outgoing tide had made it impossible for any of the Mayflower's small boats to approach shore sufficiently to take the party aboard and the president of the United States was left "high and dry."

The nearest landing that could be used was at Colonial Beach a summer resort and there the president and his family went by automobile while the Mayflower steamed up the river. The visit to the beach town was unexpected and it was not until the yacht anchored and a lauch put out that those ashore realized that a solitary automobile standing near the entrance to the bathing pier contained the president.

As soon as the news was flashed about however, Mr. Coolidge's car was surrounded and nearly a thousand persons managed to reach the pier before the party could get board the launch. The president received quite an ovation and stood in the small boat waving his hat as it sped out to the Mayflower.

WEST HARTFORD FIRE CAUSED DAMAGE OF $10,000

Hartford, July 20.—Fire did damage estimated at $10,000 in destroying the garage and storehouse, three trucks and several automobiles owned by A. C. Peterson, a milk distributor, in West Hartford this morning. The fire is believed to have started from an overheated automobile truck left near inflammable material. All the fire apparatus in West Hartford was called out and nearby householders used garden hose to assist in fighting the fire.

FAVORS THE RENOMINATION OF GOVERNOR SMITH

Albany, N. Y., July 20.—"I heartily favor the renomination of Governor Smith," Lieutenant Governor George R. Lunn told the Albany Knickerbocker Press today, when asked if he would be a candidate for governor should Governor Smith seek renomination, and if he had any statement to make in reply to an editorial in the New York American this morning endorsing Mr. Lunn for governor.

ACQUITTED ON CHARGE OF 5-MONTHS' OLD BABY

Atlantic City, N. J., July 20.—After a five day trial in which two precedents were set in the jurisprudence of Atlantic county, that of placing in evidence a murdered body, and the continuance of a trial until nearly midnight on a Saturday, the jury deliberated but two hours in finding a verdict of acquittal for Mrs. Pearl Willard and John J. Gillies, charged with the murder of Mrs. Willard's five months' old baby.

Committees Work on Reparations Problem

British and French Remain Deadlocked on Arrangement Regarding German Railways.

London, July 20—(By the A. P.)—The delegations participating in the inter-allied conference to launch the Dawes report sacrificed the Sunday holiday in order to advance the work, so as to make possible a plenary session Tuesday.

Premier Macdonald had unofficial talks with several of the chief delegates. During the course fo the day M. Herriot found time to visit the French hospital.

The task of arriving at an understanding for economic evacuation of the Ruhr has proved complex and although there are divergent views between the British and French and Belgian delegations, it is asserted that their differences are not unsurmountable.

This committee probably has the most difficult problem yet awaiting solution and must review several highly controversial matters involving the Ruhr railways and economic evacuation of the occupied territory.

The sub-committee dealing with the question of the economic entity of Germany made substantial progress. Another sub-committee dealing with the railway question has encountered an obstacle in the Franco-Belgian claim to be allowed to maintain some form of communication between the Ruhr and the Rhineland and France and Belgium. It was decided to report its failure to agree to the full committee tomorrow.

It is learned that the French want to dilute the German railway personnel with a large number of French and Belgian railwaymen, and thus assure themselves that the railways will be more or less under French supervision in case of a strike of the German workers, or in other emergencies.

The British contend that if this is done in conjunction with the Dawes report it might easily give rise to difficulties and conflicts; to which the French counter-claim is that if Germany adheres strictly to the Dawes principles it will never be necessary to invoke the extraordinary guarantees which France feels her safety demands that she should exact.

When the sub-committee ended the day's discussions in a deadlock on the question, the British were insisting on a return to the old arrangement regarding the railways, in force for the occupied part of the Rhineland before the Ruhr occupation, the key of which was the power conferred on the inter-allied railways commission to utilize troops in case of a strike or other difficulty.

After a plenary session has approved the committee work the drafting committee of the experts will set up a draft agreement, and it will probably be at this stage that Germany will be acquainted with the work.

STATEMENT BY CHAIRMAN OF R. I. REP. STATE COMMITTEE

Rutland, Mass., July 20—Chairman William C. Pelkey, of the Rhode Island republican state committee in a lengthy statement issued here tonight reiterated his denial of the charges made by Thomas Lally, who in an affidavit last week said that Pelkey had instigated the placing of a bromine gas bomb in the Rhode Island senate chamber on June 19, and asserted that Lally previous had made threats against him These threats, he said, followed the dismissal of Lally and Matthew J. McGovern, who made a similar affidavit, as guards for the republican senators now staying here.

Pelkey asserted further that his investigations had "furnished enough data to account definitely for the meeting in New York last week" of Lally and McGovern with Governor Flynn, Assistant Attorney General Hurley, of Rhode Island, Secretary Hamilton of the Rhode Island democratic state committee and a Providence newspaper reporter and for the fact that the affidavits had been obtained, "maintaining the fake charges as to the gas bomb."

"I brand as absolutely false," Chairman Pelkey continued, "every statement made by Lally and McGovern inconsistent with the statements herein, and particularly the statement purporting to connect me with the placing of the gas bomb, so called, in the senate chamber."

BARON VON SEIDLITZ WOUNDED IN DUEL

Berlin, July 20 (By the A. P.)—Baron Von Seidlitz is lying in a Berlin hospital with a bullet in his knee, and the German capital's old set is busy discussing a duel which Von Seidlitz is alleged to have fought in reactionary Mecklenburg with Baron Von Elsen, who is a Russian from Latvia.

The duel is said to have grown out of quarrel which developed in a Berlin cafe. The combatants did not risk fighting in Prussia because of the strict anti-duelling law, but went with their seconds to a wooded estate in Mecklenburg. The pistol of Von Seidlitz is alleged to have failed to go off when the signal to fire was given, and there is much speculation as to whether there was foul play in the duel.

Von Seidlitz, who is about 50 years old, comes from a military family. He was in the United States for some years and returned to Germany to serve in the World war, in which he fought with distinction. He is a social favorite in the Berlin diplomatic circles in which former Crown Prince Frederick William moves.

COOLIDGE TO ADDRESS CENTRAL TRADES COUNCIL

New York, July 20.—President Coolidge has accepted tentatively the invitation of the Central Trades and Labor Council to attend the Labor Day celebration at Fort Hamilton and deliver an address, it was announced today by John J. Coughlin, secretary of the council.

PARENTS WERE INSTANTLY KILLED BY THEIR ONLY SON

Monticello, Ark., July 20.—P. S. Pifin, 60, and his wife, 55, were shot and killed instantly near their home six miles east of Monticello late today. Their only son, W. M. Pifin, is said to have admitted that he slew his parents but claims self-defense.

LAFOLLETTE AND WHEELER ARE ARRANGING CAMPAIGN

Have Decided to Postpone Speech Making Until After President Coolidge and John W. Davis Have Been Officially Notified of Their Nominations.

Washington, July 20. — Plans for waging a vigorous campaign for votes in every state were discussed today at a conference attended by Senator Lafollette, of Wisconsin, independent candidate for president; Senator Wheeler, Montana, his running mate; Representative Nelson, of Wisconsin, their campaign manager, and several of their political advisers.

The national committee of the conference for progressive political action at its meeting yesterday, after consultation with Senator Lafollette and Mr. Nelson, decided on the appointment of a campaign committee to be headed by Nelson. Of the other members five will be selected by Senators Lafolette and Wheeer and the remaining five by officials of the conference.

The opinion is understood to have prevailed at today's conference that it would be good strategy to let the republicans and democrats show their handes before launching an active campaign. For this reason it was said to be probable that neither LaFollette nor Wheeler would do any speech-making until after both President Coolidge and John W. Davis have been officially notified of their nominations.

NO TRACE OF MISSING BRIDGEPORT CHILDREN

Bridgeport, July 20. — With the fourth day since the disappearance of seven Bridgeport children in the canoe "Roll-In" that they had rented without permission, and no trace of them being found excepting the canoe that was found drifting off the Middle Ground lighthouse, about 12 miles from their starting point, a renewed investigation is being made into the theory advanced on the first night of their absence, when three residents in the vicinity of Ash Creek, from the mouth of which the children set out, heard shrill cries coming from the woods across from Thornes Point, where an abandoned house is located. Search is being made for an unknown stranger who is known to have made him home in a deserted house for a few days previous to the disappearance of the children. In the absence of further evidence of the drowning or the possible rescue of the children on the water, authorities are now giving more attention to the theory that the children might have been kidnapped. While this report had at first been ridiculed, it is now being thoroughly tested, so that no trail may be left uncovered.

SUSPECTED OF MURDER OF EIGHT-YEAR-OLD BOY

New York, July 20.—A laborer and a paroled convict today entered the long list of those under the suspicion of the police investigating the murder of eight-year-old Francis McDonell in the woods near Fort Richmond, Staten Island, last Monday, according to Captain Ernest Van Wagner, in charge of Staten Iseland detectives. He said the laborer is known to have been working near the scene of the crime.

Captain Van Wagner said that an early arrest was expected, although he said there are no definite clues.

Mrs. Albert McDonell, mother of the slain boy, tomorrow will confront one of two men held on a statutory charge to decide whether he is the man whom she saw her son approaching in the woods on the day of the murder. The prisoner is Slyde Patterson, arrested with Jacob Gottlieb, both employes of the Sea View hospital, whose patients and employes have been under police investigation.

BRAZILIAN REBELS PREPARED FOR DEFENSE

Buenos Aires, July 20—(By the A. P.)—The officially heralded decisive action by which Brazilian government expects to put an end to the Sao Paulo rebellion will find the rebels well prepared, according to uncensored despatches reaching Buenos Aires from near the scene of the struggle.

With approximately 20,000 well armed and munitioned men, the rebels are said to be awaiting with confidence an attack by the federal forces. It is asserted that the rebels hold alf the strategic points in and about the city of Sao Paulo and also have artillery placed on what are known as the English Bluffs, which command the roads leading to the city.

While batches of wounded men have been arriving in Santos, advices corroborate the indications contained in the official communications that there was not general fighting last week, the rebels having been busily engaged in preparing defenses while awaiting the federals to begin their promised major action.

STATEMENT ISSUED BY NEW ENGLOND MILK PRODUCERS

Boston, July 20.—The directors of the New England dairy system, the newly organized co-operative organization of New England milk producers, in a statement tonight said that the extension services of the Massachusetts and Vermont agricultural colleges had made misleading statements in a recent criticism of the system.

"The specialists' statement," the statement said, "is predicated upon the assumption that this movement is aimed at price control."

They added that this assumption was unwarranted, as the committee on organization in its reportm had expressly disavowed any such intention and had given the fundamental purpose of the system as the establishment of the most efficient an diest expensive method of marketing milk.

PLAYWRIGHT MILLER SHOT AND KILLED HIMSELF

New York, July 20.—K. Alexander Miller, 26 years old, a playwright, shot and killed himself in his home today. He was the son of Louis E. Miller, editor of a Jewish newspaper, and of Dr. Helen A. Miller, a prominent woman physician. Miller was associated with Shamus O'Brien in his play writing.

He had telephoned to his collaborator and requested him to call at his apartment, saying that he would find the key under a doormat. Standing at the window as O'Brien entered the house, Miller shouted: "Hello and au revoir."

O'Brien entered and found his associate on the floor with a revolver clasped in his hand. Beside him was a note which read:

"I'm no use to the world and the world is no use to me."

REGULATIONS ANNOUNCED BY BOARD OF TAX EXPERTS

Washington, July 20.—The newly formed board of tax appeals today announced its regulations governing cases which the treasury has been unable to settle with taxpayers. The regulations include a rigid code of rules for persons admitted to practive before the board.

Under the rules any taxpayer, dissatisfied with the determination of tax liability of the bureau of internal revenue may initiate an appeal by filing with the board a petition of his claims. It must include the following general information:

"Clear and concise assignments of error, alleged by the taxpayer to have been committed by the commissioner of internal revenue in determining the tax liability of the petitioner.

"A clear and concise statement of the facts upon which the taxpayer relies as constituting the basis of his appeal.

"The petitioner shall as far as possible be complete in itself so as t otfully but briefly inform the board of the issues to be presented.

"Five clear copies, either typewritten or printed, shall be filed. The original shall be signed and duly verified by the taxpayer.

"The appeal is filed automatically upon receipt of the petition by the board which will serve one copy of the commissioner of internal revenue."

Members of the board are confident they will be able to begin consideration of the first cases within two weeks.

SUICIDE FOLLOWED A SHOOTING AFFRAY

Hartford, July 20—Jesse Humick is dead, a suicide, the police say, and Daniel Lane, of Lawrence, Mass., is at St. Francis hospital with serious gun shot wounds in his side as the result of a shooting affray which started in a Chestnut street place where liquor was sold today.

Humick's death was reported to the police and it was at first believed that he had committed suicide because of his suffering from an incurable disease. Later, when James R. Burke reported that his roomer, Daniel Lane, was shot and described the shooting, believed at the time to have been a joke, police said that one of the wto empty chambers in Humick's revolver represents the shot fired at Lane and the other the one with which he took his life.

Burke and Lane went to a colored man and bought a pint of liquor. In some manner, not yet explained, a man the police say, was Humick, pressed a gun against Lane's ribs, but none of the others seemed to have realized that the gun was fired. Several hours later when Mrs. Burke said "the drink got out of him," Lane complained of being shot.

TO ANNOUNCE PROCEDURE OF TRIAL OF LEOPOLD AND LOEB

Chicago, July 20.—Motions covering the procedure in the trial of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, for the kidnapping and slaying of young Robert Franks, will be presented and argued tomorrow before Chief Justice John R. Caverly.

A majority of the motions expected to be made by Clarence Darrow, chief counsel for the defense, will be matters of routine although the defense may ask for a change of venue as a delay in opening the trial which is scheduled for August 4.

The Chicago Herald and Examiner printed a story today saying that the two wealthy university students had confessed to the murder of Freeman L. Tracy, 24, whose body, shot and beate, was found on a street near the homes of Leopold and Loeb. The story also says that the boys admitted having mutilated Charles Ream, a taxicab chauffeur.

INCREASE OF CANCER BLAMED ON CIVILIZATION

Copenhagen, July 20.—Civilization is blamed for the increase of cancer by Dr. Hikkel Hindhede, Danish nutrition expert, in a report on the disease which he has just made public. He points out that the non cultured races and aborigines do not contract cancer of the digestive organs until they became acquainted with civilization's fleshpots.

Dr. Hindhede believes that cancer is due chiefly to over-eating of rich fod, and claims that the higher standard of living everywhere during the last fifty years has been responsible for the higher death rate.

Providence, R. I., July 20.—Edward P. Metcalf, formerly prominent in banking and business circles in this city, died suddenly in his automobile in Greenwood, R. I. early this evening while returning to his home here after spending the week-end with his daughter, Mrs. Elmer S Horton, at Charlestown beach. Death was due to natural causes. He was in his 65th year. Mr. Metcalf, at one time, was national bank examiner for Connecticut nd Rhode Island and was also head of the Old National bank and the Atlantic National bank during his business career.

WILLIMANTIC

William Spokesfield, eight year old son of William L. Spokesfield of the Jerusalem district, Windham, sustained painful bruises Sunday morning when knocked down opposite St. Joseph's church by a Reo truck, owned by the B. C. Hallock ice cream factory. The attendants at the 8.30 o'clock mass were just leaving the edifice. Toupng Spokesfield after leaving the church started to run across the highway to the hospital side of the street when the truck struck him. He was rushed into the hospital where he was treated by Dr. C. A. Jenkins and Dr. M. D. Riordan, who found the boy was suffering only from bruises.

Russell Whitehouse was driving the vehicle and according to his version of the affair the boy appeared suddenly in the road, coming out from between two automobile which were parked on the easterly side of the street. The truck was proceeding in a northerly direction. Whitehouse applied his brakes and stopped his car inside of two feet after it had struck he boy. A large crowd of people had gathered and there was excitement for a short time. Officer Roderick Larvisre conducted an investigation.

With cars lined on both sides of the street, Sunday mornings, there have been a number of near accidents at this point when the several masses are over, people crossing the street without regard for crosswalks in the midst of heavy traffic.

MOTHER OF EIGHTEEN DIES AT WINDHAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, July 20.—Mrs. Nellie Barrett Tompkins, 59, died at her home in the Jerusalem district, Windham, early Saturday morning. Mrs. Tompkins was born in Kent cliffs, town of Carmel, Putnam county, New York, July 6, 1865, a daughter of Solomon and Sarah Knox Barrett. She is survived by her husband, Briggs Tompkins of Windham. She was the mother of eighteen children, fourteen of whom are living, John of Grant Springs, N. Y., Mrs. Ida Light of Windham, Truman of Newark Valley, N. Y., Leonard of Windham, Wesley of Baltimore, Briggs of Berkshire, N. Y., Samuel of Windham, Louis of Berkshire, Bufus of Candor, N. Y., Joseph of Windham, Mrs. Fannie Smalley of Pine Plains, N. Y., Jennie of Speedville, N. Y., and Louella and Velma of Windham. She leaves a brother, three sisters and 22 children.

MORMONS AT NORTH WINDHAM TAKEN FOR TRAIN ROBBERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, July 20.—North Windham is usually devoid of excitement, but there was some early Saturday morning when two state police officers appeared in the village. Two young men in ministerial garb who said that they were Mormon minissionaries arrived in the small community and stayed overnight in several homes in North Windham and Chaplin. Coincidentally a large lithograph came to Postmaster Anthony Hansen from Chicago, bearing the announdement of a reward for the capture of the men who robbed the mail train at Chicago recently. The reward totaled $14,400. Pictures of several of the robbers adorned the lithograph. A semblance was noted between the pictures and the self-styled missionaries. Suspicion increased and the postmaster btought it high time for an investigation so he notified Chief of Police Allan MacArthur of the local police department and the latter upon arriving in the village, was acquainted with existing conditions. That was Thursday. The chief discerned no suspicious characters and the affair was considered one of imagination until Saturday when the two state officers, Harrison, Hulburt and John Hardisty, paid North Windham a visit. After interviewing Postmaster Hansen, they headed west and it was rumored that they were going to Pleasant Valley, Mansfield, where it was said that the two missionaries were seen.

No developments resulted.

JEWETT CITY

C. F. Miller has been registered at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, and at the Chateau de Frontenac, Quebec.

Misses Phyllis and Hilda Blake of Coventry have returned home after visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Lindell the past month.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lindell, Herbert Lindell and son Arthur, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Blake at Coventry, R. I. From there they with Mr. and Mrs. Blake and family, visited the shore.

At Reliance Lodge, No. 29, I. O. O. F., the following officers will be installed this evening, July 21st, 1924 by District Deputy Grand Master Fred L. Avery of Willimantic, Irving Thornton, noble grand; Ralph Willcox, vice grand; recording secretary, David A. Bothwell; financial secretary, William J. Robertson, Jr.; treasurer, William McClugage; janitor, Thomas Grey. An invitation was accepted to attend the dedication of the new hall of Protection Lodge No. 19, of Central Village on the evening of August 7th. Grand Master James Cooper of Mystic will be present and a banquet will follow.

The fine new chestnut poles being erected here by the telephone company, were all affected by chestnut blight, which has in the last few years devastated hundreds of acres of forest land around about the borough. Not many years ago, all through this section, in the corners of the farm lots tall, great chestnuts used to grow, and in the fall after a frost or two, it was nothing out of the ordinary for a nutting party to pick up a half bushel and more of a Saturday afternoon. Some trees bore great big ones, that when cut across the shell and roasted on the top of the kitchen stove, furnished a delicacy with a peculiar flavor unsurpassed.

Miss Verna Tarbox and Miss Christine Burdick were in fine accord in the solo and its accompaniment, at the Baptist church Sunday morning.

Joseph Dayon of this place had his hair parted in the middle by a 44-cal. revolver bullet during the thrilling rum-running chase which was pulled off here last Thursday evening. Another bullet carried away a part of his left hand, from the effects of which he will be maimed for life. In Dr. J. H. McLaughlin's office in Jewett City, while Dayon was receiving surgical attendance, and in the presence of three witnesses, State Police Officer Stevens acknowledged firing the shots and said that he, and he alone was the man to blame. It was a sad and horrible mistake, but he made it, and, like the every inch man he is, he acknowledged it, not trying to dodge any of the responsibilities of the issue. The statement was made in Saturday's Bulletin that "Dayon charged Officer Comstock with being the man who shot him. It has developed this could not have been the case as Dayon was shot when Officer Comstock was not present. The Plainfield man, who was towing the first captured automobile, was somehow brought into the line of fire from the state policeman's guns and a bullet from somebody's revolver hit him in the hand."

The men towing the car were Joseph Dayon and Adam Rojeski of Jewett City. Mr. Dayon, asked the writers of this column to set the matter right by stating the facts.

REPORT ON SALE IN FORECLOSURE SUIT

Sale by judgment of foreclosure having been granted June 6, 1924, by Judge John R. Booth, a report of sale was filed with Clerk George E. Parsons of the superior court, by James R. May, of New London, who was authorized to make the sale, in the case of Mariners Savings Bank against Ellen A. Burke.

Certain property in the suit was sold at the public auction July 7 by Mr. May to John K. Foran of New London, the highest bidder, for the sum of $15,350. The real estate sold consisted of land and buildings located on Blackhall street, between President street and West Colt street.

STONE CRUSHING PLANT IN HIGHWOOD BURNED

New Haven, Conn., July 20.—Fire breaking out early Sunday morning almost completely destroyed the stone crushing plant of A. M. Farnham at Pine Rock, in Highwood. After four hour work by the Highwood and Humphrey firemen, the blaze was declared under control. The damage is estimated at $20,000. The firement were forced to lay hose 2400 feet to get water. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Repeated explosions of dynamite caps caused the spectators to keep at a distance but Mr. Farnham assured the firemen there was no danger as the caps were stored in an old boiler in the center of the blaze. The collapse of a water tank and heavy steel and pipe work made it difficult for the firemen to reach the blaze.

Republican organization leaders in Manhattan admitted that they were considering the selection of Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, daughter of Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia college, as an opponent for Representative Sol Bloom at the election this fall.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

While patrolling from West Stafford to Stafford Springs Wednesday night, State Policemen Hardesty and Hulburt were overtaken and passed by an automobile going at a greater speed than the officers thought the law allowed. They followed the machine, and when it stopped on West Main street to discharge a passenger, they ordered the driver to appear in court Thursday morning. The car was a public service vehicle and was operated by Stephen A. Foley of Jewett City. In court Thursday morning Officer Hardisty testified that at one time during the spurt Foley was exceeding 60 miles an hour and that he passed eleven cars between West Stafford and Stafford Springs. Judge Heald imposed a fine of $15 and costs of $11.21 which was paid.

Several cases of speeding have been brought into the borough court recently and Judge Heald says that if fines will not make the drivers respect the law and the rights of others on the highway he will try the effect of jail sentences soon.

ARRESTS MADE BECAUSE OF MISTAKEN IDENTITY

Lancaster, Mass., July 20—Captain George A. Parker of the state police patrol said at his home here tonight that no further action would be taken against the seven men from Rhode Island, including two assistant attorney generals, who were detained by the state police last night and taken to the Worcester police station.

"It was purely a case of mistaken identity," said Captain Parker. "One of the men in the party closely resembled a man for whom the state police were looking. I shall make no complaint against any of the men."

Archaeologists excavating on the site of ancient Carthage have found, among other things, a pair of spectacles of the third century, B. C., and in a Punic tomb a terra cotta figurine of an organ, pots of rouge and face powder, bronze razors and milk bottles.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Louis R. Porteous Sells Sachem St. Residence

Through the real estate agency of Archa W. Colt, Louis R. Porteous has sold his beautiful Sachem street residence to Dr. Harry E. Higgins of this city. The house was built by the late J. Hunt Smith, who was for many years president of the Dime Savings Bank and it is considered one of the most attractive homes in Norwich. It contains fourteen rooms and three baths. The grounds are picturesque and extensive and there is a stable and garage. The doctor buys the property for his own occupancy.

Broadway Theatre

It is not often that a cinema audience is swept out of its placidity, but last night the vast assemblage at the Broadway theatre pulsated to the tense moment of Graham Cutts' photo-drama, Woman to Woman.

The story which was adapted from Michael Morton's powerful play of the same name, deals with the sacrifices a dainty little French girl makes for the man of her heart and their son. She gives freely with no thought of self nor the hardships she will have to endure, her one idea being that her loved ones shall have the best that life can offer.

Clive Brooks as the man in the case wins instant sympathy. He is no dashing villain who kisses and runs away. Outy calls him on the eve of their wedding from the woman he adores. A wound on the head deprives him of his memory and prevents him from returning to her. When they finally meet, he is married to another woman (played by Josephine Earle.)

Woman to Woman is no lurid sex melodrama; it is a gripping story of a great love and a great renunciation. Those discriminating persons who enjoy the best in everything cannot fail to be completely satisfied with Woman to Woman. It is indeed a film masterpiece.

The second of the now famous Fight and Win pictures with Jack Dempsey is on the same program.

A punch to the heart is dangerous except when the punch is leavened with romance, tempered by the most delightful of humor, the most gripping of drama and pathos! That is what you will find in these pictures—with the punch delivered by none other than the master of punchers, Jack Dempsey!

AT THE BREED

"Can a wife win freedom and happiness and disregard her home duties?" is the question asked in the photoplay version of A. S. M. Hutchinson's newest novel, This Freedom, which was shown for the first time last night at the Breed theatre. It would seem from the dramatic story presented in this picture that the author is right and that only the exceptional woman can be successful both in a job and in her home life.

This book was the most discussed novel of the year and has been transferred to the screen in a manner that makes the characters seemingly step right out of the book. In presenting this picture William Fox has given us another classic of the screen to rank with his production of If Winter Comes. Hutchinson's other best seller.

The photoplay seems to be perfect in every detail and includes some unusually fine photography. Denison Clift, an American director, filmed the picture in England on the exact locations selected by the author who also titled the picture. Fay Compton, the leading screen actress who is well known to American audiences gives a wonderful characterization of the woman banker.

This Freedom is a picture well worth seeing. It strikes a popular chord and appeals to all classes. The picture will be shown at the Breed theatre until Tuesday.

PALACE THEATRE

Marie Prevost and Monte Blue are supported by a corking cast of Claude Gillingwater, Vera Lewis, Betty Francisco, Creighton Hale, Edward Earle and Nellie Bly Baker in the latest Warner Brothers screen adaption of Elinor Glyn's How to Educate a Wife, now playing at the Palace theatre.

This story does not solve any of the perplexing problems that continually rise in every married home. It provides a merry, mirthful evening's entertainment interspersed with the sound philosophy from a woman whose name has become a household word throughout the world. Elinor Glyn's pungent satire and shrewd discernment have been visualized in this photoplay in such a manner that will appeal to men and women of all ages and stations.

Monte Bell, who won his spurs directing Broadway After Dark so successfully, directed this Warner Brothers Classic of the Screen.

Added attractions. Latest two reel Mack Bennett comedy Skylarking, Pathe News and Palace Supreme orchestra complete the program.

Coming Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Elaine Hammerstein in Drums of Jeopardy with Jack Mulhall and Wallace Beery.

The oldest inhabitant never boasts of how fast he was when a boy.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Miss Marion E. Perry and Donald Joslyn Field of Dayville were married Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney H. Perry, at Riverview. Relatives and friends in number from Danielson and surrounding communities were in attendance for the ceremony, performed by Rev. H. H. Conklin, pastor of the Methodist church, and there were many visitors from more distant points.

On the lawn under a pretty columned arch decorated with asparagus ferns, other greens and blooms of the season, the bride and groom stood as Rev. Mr. Conklin performed the marriage ceremony. Meanwhile a trio, Henry H. Flagg, 'cellist, Miss Lucile Caron, pianist, and Miss Esther Rouse, violinist, played the wedding music—a beautiful program that included the accustomed processional and recessional wedding marches.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was white canton crepe with pearl trimming and she wore a veil caught at the sides with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was a showed arrangement of white roses.

Miss Irma Perry, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Her gown was of white crepe de chine with pale green figures. She wore a bandeau. J. Stanley Keech was best man. Miss Lois Barber, Pittsburgh, Pa., niece of the bride, was flower girl.

Following the marriage there was a reception. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Field will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Perry.

The bride, who is very well known in Danielson, received many beautiful gifts. Mrs. Field, who has been in the office of the General Supply company for several years, following her graduation from Killingly High school in the class of 1919, is president of the Queen Esther Circle of the Methodist church and treasurer of the Treble Clef club, Danielson's best known musical organization.

Mr. Field, a graduate of Killingly High school in the class of 1915, is with the Assawaga Woolen company of Dayville, and one of the prominent young men of that community.

The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a string of amber beads; the best man received green gold cuff links.

"The Romance of the Crows." That might make a good title for a story based on what is going on in the campaign now underway to exterminate them in this territory. On second thought, it isn't a good title. It will be amended to "The Tragedy of the Crows." And maybe that isn't fitting, either.

A crow, it appears, after one listens to all that people who know something about their practices and habits, have to say is what the old timers used to call a wise gink.

If one may believe them, he knows more than the average human being. This appears to have some foundation in truth in view of the fact that crows are now more scarce—at least when hunters are out after them—than hens' teeth in a Chinese restaurant. The campaign against them has been under way in this territory for about a fortnight. About every flock has been shot in to by the point hunters. That has made them gun-shy. They are plentiful if you can find them—but try and find them.

A species of bird that is accredited with posting sentinels when a flock feeds, that they may be guarded against surprise attacks; a species of bird that knows that a scarecrow is a scarecrow the second time he sees it; a specie of bird that can't be followed by a crow "call" more than a few times; a species of bird that knows intuitively that mankind is his enemy is not either to bamboozle or exterminate.

If you think so, just get your little gun and go and try to get a few. All kinds of schemes are being worked out to fool the raven frequenters of fields and woods hereabouts. One party has a white owl—to be used as a decoy. How he is used is not for publication. But he is a perfectly good owl and may help to fool a few of the crows. He will not fool them all. The King of Wise Men, it appears, cannot do that, at least not more than a few hours at any time.

Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock, funeral services for Mrs. Ellen M. Aldrich, wife of Phineas Aldrich, was held at their home on North Main street, Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church officiating. During the service Mrs. Esther Brown sang Beautiful Land on High, and Nearer, My God, to Thee. There were beautiful floral pieces. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were six brothers of Mrs. Aldrich—John, Frank, Joseph, William, Walter and James Owens. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Danielson gets a carnival this week. That's something. It would like to have a circus in town for a day, but that is only a prospect at present. Taking what it gets, Danielson will ride the wooden horses this week, buy popcorn and peanuts, indulge in a few other diversions the carnivals offers and look pleasant. There isn't anything else to be done, if Danielson stays at home.

There is some talk about political candidates for the fall, in Killingly. Just now, Town officers will be elected the first Monday in October. The state and national elections will come later. While the people are talking about candidates, there are no candidates in sight. Some people who might have nominations say they are not interested in getting them. Others who want them, evidently cannot get them. There's a situation. It looks like a field for dark horse—not too dark, but just dark enough to get by.

More rain for the crops is a matter of greater interest just now than what may happen to political candidates and their fortunes during the coming fall. People must eat of all the candidates starve to death.

A quartet of Danielson public service car operators, deciding that the parking rules are here to stay, have leased from the New Haven road parking space at the railroad station.

Miss Susie Collins nd Miss Mae Collins leave today (Monday) for Crescent beach, where they will remain for two weeks.

Miss Alice Monohan has returned from a visit with relatives in Hartford.

No arrests by the borough police over the week end. This community is making a good record this summer.

PUTNAM

Putnam people have read with interest and more or less astonishment a story recently printed in several Boston newspapers in which Putnam is laid as the scene of a heroic act that has just brought to the hero $100,000 from a Putnam woman who has died. It sets forth in the story that the act was performed so quietly that only three people—the hero, his mother and the woman whose life was saved—knew of it. So much for that, but what the citizens of this little town would like to know is, who the woman is that has just died leaving a hundred thousand dollars certainly do not live on every street in Putnam, in fact, if there are any such they are keeping their secret well. They certainly could not continue to put it over on the populace if they should pass on, especially if they left their all to the hero.

It is not meant to imply that Putnam people will begrudge this Boston young man his $100,000. Local citizens certainly hope he gets it. The Boston papers call him by name and one prints a likeness of him, therefore he must exist, but before the citizens can believe that the hundred thousand will be sent to him from Putnam there are several things that they wish explained to them.

The story is that on a day some four years ago the hero was a fireman on a railroad locomotive out of Boston. The freight train of which he was a member of the crew, pulled onto a siding in the Putnam railroad yard to let an express go by.

As the fireman was looking up and down the track he heard the rumble of the oncoming express. At the same moment he looked in horror to see a woman struggling to free her foot from between the rails forming a switch. Realizing that there was no time to lose the hero rushes down the track, throws the switch, releases the woman's foot and replaces the switch just in time to save derailing the train as it rushes by.

The woman whose life is saved asks the fireman for his name. He gives it. She says: "You will hear from me again." After her death, which is the present time, the fireman is made sole beneficiary under her will. Her estate is $25,000 and $75,000 in cash.

The story goes on to tell how this fireman is now selling papers on a passenger train and that he lives with his widowed mother of whom he is the sole support; of his statements regarding his good fortune, adding the fact that he will not receive the $100,000 until he takes unto himself a wife. Three-quarters of a column is devoted to the tale.

How a woman, especially a rich one, could wander on to the railroad track in this city and find herself in the situation described in a problem that those familiar with the local railroad yard are trying to solve. Why the engineer and fireman of the oncoming express did not see the rescue and report it, is another point that might be cleared up. But the most mysterious part of the tale from a Putnamite's point of view is how a woman worth $100,000 could pass on and citizens not know of it, most of all the local judge of probate, through whose hands her will would have to pass.

An alarm for a fire outside the city limits was rung in at 3.50 Saturday afternoon and No. 1 truck responded. The men were directed to Roseland Park where it was said the boathouse was on fire. Arriving at the park all was quiet and peaceful and there was no evidence of fire anywhere and the family that lives in the park said no call had been sent from there.

The truck then started back and down the Seuexit road to Camp Utopia where it was learned that one of the tents had caught fire and someone, getting excited, had summoned the firemen. The company returned to fire headquarters at 4.30.

F. M. Messenger of Chicago occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church, Sunday morning. He was greeted by a large audience as he is well known in Putnam. Mr. Messenger was formerly agent of the Grosvenordale company, North Grosvenordale, and was considered authority on the manufacture of cotton cloth. He became interested in religion and was for a time leader of the Holy Jumpers, a religious sect in this county. He resigned as mill agent to devote his whole time to religious matters and moved with his family to Chicago.

Mrs. Thomas Welch and son Robert have gone to Canada to spend two months with Mrs. Welch's mother.

Members of Hose Company No. 2 were called out Sunday morning, and remained out all day. The company was on duty around a fire on the shores of Keach's pond. They did not fight the fire, in fact a number of hosemen kept it going. After the fire had died down somewhat from the red embers were salvaged steamed clams and other sea food that makes up a Rhode Island clambake. Sunday was set apart on the calendar of the company in the north end of the city for its annual outing. A few guests, including city officials, went along. Kamp Kumfort was the location of the day's festivities which included sports and much eating. Chowder and eels early in the day were followed by the big bake. The return to headquarters was made early in the evening.

A persistent rumor has gained currency the past week that there had been a change of ownership of the Putnam Manufacturing company's plant on Providence street. A man closely connected with the concern state Saturday htat there was nothing to the rumor. This company shut down its plant some weeks ago, for it finds itself in the same position as do other New England cotton mills, that it is unable to operate its plant at a profit.

Invitations to nearly a thousand people in the counties of Hartford, Tolland and Windham, to attend Governor's Day, have been sent out and it is expected that next Thursday at Camp Woodstock, Black Pond, there will assemble the largest crowd that the camp has ever seen. The program will include aquatic sports, speaking and camp fire services. Ribbon prizes will be awarded winners of the field and track meet for the youngsters in the morning. Following the reception to Governor Charles A. Temrleton there will be a clambake, after which the speaking will take place. Besides making an address the governor will be called upon to award a number of prizes, as the day will bring to a close the second camp period.

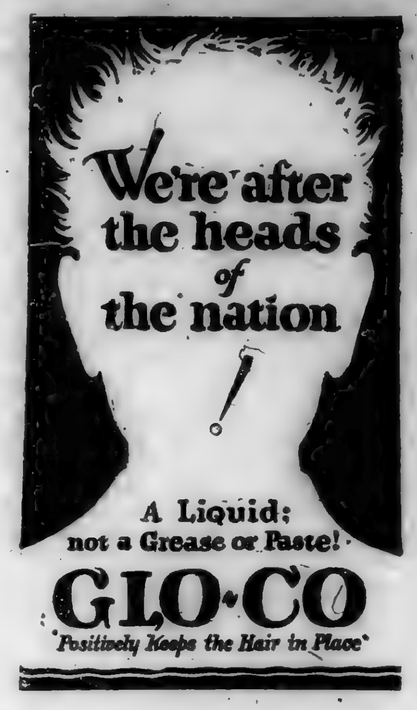
Captain John J. McGarry and his headquarters company of the 43rd division, arrived home from camp at Niantic, Saturday afternoon, after two weeks' instruction. There was a large gathering of relatives and friends of the boys to welcome them home and admire their soldierly appearance as they marched from the train to the armory on Livery street.

The 3.15 train was forty minutes late but those gathered at the station remained, for they had come for the purpose of seeing the soldiers and intended to see them. The pale faces and white hands of two weeks ago had changed to brown; the uncertainty in the swing of the marchers had disappeared; there was every appearance of self-confidence in the men who, two weeks ago, marched away almost raw recruits. The Putnam company was formed but two months ago.

Burglars entered the store of James Byrne, Pomfret, some time between Saturday night and Sunday morning. A small sum of money less than $15 was stolen; also some cigars, cigarettes and candy. It could not be discovered how the burglars gained entrance, as all the windows and doors in the store were found locked. It is thought that the lock on the front door was picked as it showed signs of being tampered with.

A large touring car with eight men in it overturned at Clark's Corner, on Killingly avenue, shortly after midnight Saturday night. The car came to a stop, resting partly on its side and party held up by the top. The eight men in the car escaped without a scratch. The wrecking car from a garage righted the machine and it was able to proceed under its own power. The automobile was owned in North Grosvenordale but the name of the owner was not disclosed.

A light touring car owned and operated by Albert R. Underwood, of Providence was in collision with a motorcycle driven by Henry LeBonte of Putnam on the curve just west of the Windham County Temporary Home. None of the six occupants of the automobile were injured but LeBonte was badly cut about the face and legs and lost considerable blood. He was taken to his home on Providence street in Putnam. The side of the automobile was damaged and the motorcycle was wrecked.



CHAS. RAMAGE, UNCASVILLE, BREAKS ARM IN MOTOR CRASH AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 20.—The automobile, owned and operated by Charles Ramage of Uncasville and a machine, owned and driven by Adrian Murray, Jefferson avenue were in collision on Williams street, between Mohegan avenue and Gallows Lane last midnight. Both cars were completely wrecked and Ramage is now a patient at Lawrence hospital suffering from a fractured left elbow and lacerations of the forearm. Murray sustained cuts and bruises, which were dressed at the office of a physician.

Ramage left for home about 12 o'clock, driving his Essex coach. Just after the car passed Mohegan avenue, the car operated by Murray, a Ford, and being driven in the opposite direction, was observed approaching. As Murray's car was about to pass Ramage's machine a third car, the identity of the owner of which was not obtained and which was following Murray's automobile attempted to pass between Murray's car and that of Ramage. In doing so Murray's car was sideswiped and the collision caused Murray's car to divert its course, the machine heading across the highway and crashed almost head-on into Ramage's car. The bump caused the front of Ramage's car to be crushed, while Murray's machine was badly damaged. Ramage was caught at the steering wheel and when he extricated himself it was discovered that his arm was broken. The windshield of Murray's car was shattered and the flying glass showered the head of the driver, inflicting numerous gashes. The state police investigated the accident and are endeavoring to ascertain the identity of the driver of the machine who was responsible for the collision.

George F. Risher, a sailor stationed at the submarine base, had an appointment with a dentist Friday. He had to rush to keep it. So he borrowed the automobile of a friend and with it hurried over the road. But he encountered a state policeman, Pobuda, and as Risher did not display the skill in the operation of the machine that an old driver would, the officer asked for the operating license of George that he might inspect it. But George didn't have any such paper to show. He was ordered to court and Saturday when he appeared he acknowledged that he was an offender against the motor vehicle operating laws of the state. That cost him $18.70. He paid it without a murmur.

Patrick Hanley, a section hand on the New Haven road employed at Midway, was found drunk and down here Friday night. He was fined $5 and paid.

The electric equipment on a pole at Howard and Bank street which provides illumination to all that section became disarranged Saturday evening at 8 o'clock and gave a display of fireworks that attracted a throng of people during the half hour that was required to get a lineman there to correct the disarrangement of wires.

The New Haven railroad company operated an excursion train from New London to New York today, reducing the fare to about one-half the usual rate to attract patronage. From New London and Norwich there were thirteen carloads of people to fill the train which left here at 7 o'clock. The excursionists were allowed eight hours in New York and vicinity, the train arriving here this evening at 9 o'clock.

Gabriel Fabzio, of East Lyme, was before Justice of the Peace Marion R. Davis in the East Lyme town court Friday night charged with violation of the liquor law. He was prosecuted under the reputation clause, upon information supplied by State Policeman Fred Caron of the Groton barracks. Fabzio pleaded not guilty, but was found guilty and was fined $200 and costs. He took an appeal, furnishing a surety on his bond of $1000 for his appearance before the next term of the court of common pleas. When Officer Caron searched Fabzio's house 150 gallons of wine was found, but the accused declared that he had made the wine for his own consumption and that of his family.

Bennie Rendo, also of East Lyme who was also arrested charged with violation of the liquor law and at whose place about a gallon of wine was found, pleaded not guilty. His case was nolled upon the payment of costs.

Five violators of the automobile laws were before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in the Waterford town court Friday night.

Francis M. Carlon, 41 Henry street, Everett, Mass., charged with reckless driving was fined $25 and costs. Carlon was arrested by State Policeman Stephen Stanton on the 16th inst., when the officer detected Carlon operating a truck on Durfee Hill at a speed of 40 miles an hour.

Carlon's employer, Alfred G. Hutchings, 37 Charles street, Boston, was arrested for operating a car under a Massachusetts license of the issue of 1923. His case was disposed of upon the payment of costs, $13.

R. Stoddard, 216 Pequot avenue, was fined $5 and costs, the latter amounting to $13.25 on a charge of passing an intersecting highway without giving a signal.

James Glynn, 3 Sterling street, Hartford was fined $5 and costs, the latter amounting to $13.25 charged with passing an intersecting highway without giving a signal or reducing the speed of his car. Glynn passed the dangerous intersection at Broad street and Jefferson avenue, where numerous accidents have occurred, at a high rate of speed.

Thaddeus Kosesski, 44 Ward street Hartford, was fined $25 on a charge of reckless driving. Kosesski was arrested the 16th inst., when his car crashed against the automobile owned and driven by Otto H. Schroeter, 8 Faire Harbour place, on Durfee Hill, Waterford. Schroeter's car was damaged.

A barn owned by Reuben Parker, located near Factory Hill, Flanders, was entirely destroyed by fire of an unknown origin early Saturday morning. When the fire was discovered the flames had gained considerable headway, but an automobile that was stored in the structure was saved.

The automobile owned and operated by George Hancock, superintendent of the Robert Gair company's plant at Montville, overturned in Waterford, early Saturday morning when the car skidded on the wet concrete highway. Timothy Kelley, 16, of Uncasville, a passenger employed at the Gair plant, was thrown out and sustained a fractured leg and head injuries. He is now a patient at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, where it is believed no serious results will develop.

Hancock and Kelley had been to Noank where they had been at work on a pleasure craft owned by Hancock and were returning to their work when the accident occurred. When the car had reached a point a short distance north of Gallows Lane it left the concrete surface and when the wheels were gotten back on the highway the machine skidded and overturned, throwing both Hancock and Kelley to the highway.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Mosher, 30 Darrow street, left Saturday on a two weeks' automobile trip, their objective points being Niagara Falls and Canada.

Frank H. Berger, 6919 Nineteenth street, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Harold C. Alvord, 569 East Center street, Manchester Greene, this state, were arrested late Saturday afternoon by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock charged with violation of the automobile law in failing to reduce the speed of their cars when passing intersecting streets.

James Murphy, 40 Vineyard avenue, Yonkers, N. Y., and James Coyne, 20 Richardson street, Wakefield, Mass., were arrested late Saturday afternoon by Sergeant Frank Howard and Patrolmen William Corcoran and Patrick Sheehan and Sergeant Marin Kane, of the special agents of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, charged with train riding. Murphy and Coyne were part of a gang detected stealing a ride on a freight train.

A trolley car of the one-man type in passing through Bank street, late yesterday afternoon, smashed the traffic signal, located between the two tracks at the corner of Bank and Howard streets. The door of the car was allowed to remain open and in doing so the step was lowered, causing the step to strike the signal.

Rev. Edward Gabler, of Cams St. George Blackhall, reported to the police last night that while motoring between Blackhall and Giant's Neck, a bag had dropped from the machine. The bag contained personal effects of the clergyman, a check book, bank book, jewelry and cash estimated at between $40 and $50.

Mrs. James King Kelley and infant daughter of Westerly, William Pace, Waterbury, Ernest Picken, Shaw St., Edward Richardson, Plainfield, Mrs. Edward Riley and infant daughter, Connecticut avenue, Miss Agnes Scott, Westerly, Louis Pacelli, New Haven, Miss Pauline Tulin, Hartford, Misses Marjorie and Louis Nobie, Lyme, Philip Gray, North Stonington and Miss Marion Barretti Montauk avenue, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

The funeral of Charles L. Ockford, former fire chief and business man, was held Saturday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock at his home, 35 Alger place and was attended by a large gathering including delegations of members of the several fire companies and Brainard lodge of masons, of which order Mr. Ockford had been a member for many years. The services were conducted by Rev. Myron E. Genter pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Members of Brainard lodge acted as bearers and the committal service in Cedar Grave cemetery was according to the Masonic ritual.

Mose Allard 825 Main street, was taken into custody Saturday night by Patrolmen George McCaskey and Dennis Murphy, charged by Allard's wife with breach of the peace. The accused furnished a surety on his bond of $50 for his appearance in the police court Monday morning.

An automobile operated by Mrs. E. J. Grandin, of Quaker Hill, was damaged, at the corner of Connecticut and Lincoln avenues, Saturday afternoon when according to Mrs. Grandin the car was operated against the curb to avoid collision with a machine owned and driven by George H. Kuehne, 904 Bank street. The steering gear of the latter's car was disabled. Mrs. Grandin was operating her machine on Connecticut avenue and in a northerly direction. At the corner of Lincoln avenue Kuehne's car, headed westerly, was encountered. Mrs. Grandin stated that Kuehne did not sound his horn and to prevent a crash she was compelled to drive to the side of the highway and against the curb.

The fire department was called out Saturday noon by an alarm from Box 44, corner of Hamilton and Howard streets. The fire was located on the city dumping ground, which runs parellel with the highway bridge over Shaw's Cove. A quantity of chemicals sufficed to extinguish the flames, but not before the bridge had been charred.

In operating his automobile from the path of the Konomoc Hose company on Hamilton street, Gordon Mahan of Broad street, operated his machine, against the Nameaug Engine company's apparatus, the ladders of the apparatus ripping way a section of the top of the pleasure car.

Mrs. Stevens, 44 Twelfth street, has lodged complaint with the police that her neighbors apply names to complainant that are annoying. An investigation of the complaint has been made and has resulted in counter-charges being made by the neighbors complained of.

The fire department was called out about 3 o'clock this afternoon when a blaze of unknown origin was discovered in one of the garages owned by St. Mary's Star of the Sea church at the rear of that place of worship. The structure was practically destroyed, but because of the size of the building, together with the nature of its construction, the loss will not be great.

When the fire was discovered clouds of smoke were observed issuing from the roof of the building. An alarm was rung in from Box 33, corner of Truman and Hempstead streets, but almost at the same time another alarm was sent in from Box 42, corner of Bank and Howard streets. The two alarms being sounded at the same time, confusion resulted for the first alarm only partially registered and the department was sent to the location of the other box, a considerable distance from the site of the blaze. The firemen finally arrived at the fire and extinguished the flames with chemicals.

Stanley Faulkner was arrested by State Policeman Bernard Kenerson on Saturday evening charged with violation of his parole. Faulkner is being held a prisoner at the police station until Monday, when his case will be disposed of.

Carl Moline, an instructor at Camp Templeton, and a companion, were slightly injured Saturday morning when an automobile in which they were riding overturned on Logger Hill, Waterford. Moline and his companion sustained minor cuts and bruises, while the automobile was badly damaged.

Moline and his companion left Camp Templeton, Niantic, shortly after midnight for Maine, where Moline was to be further engaged as an instructor. As the car descended the dangerous hill, which is but about three miles from the camp ground, it struck a rock beside the highway, causing the machine to overturn. The occupants were hurled to the highway. State Policeman Walter Shea of the Groton barracks, is investigating the accident.

CHAS. W. HARVEY FOUND DEAD IN HIS HOUSEBOAT SUNDAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, July 20. Charles W. Harvey, aged about 55, was found dead in a bunk aboard his houseboat in Shaw's Cove this morning by his brother, Frederick W. Harvey, postmaster at Niantic. The man had undoubtedly been stricken with an attack of heart trouble, while he slept, for Harvey had been about as usual Saturday, although he had been complaining of not feeling well. Besides his brother, Harvey is survived by a sister, Mrs. Booth of Bank street, New London.

Harvey, who was a marine engineer had not been employed for some time. Of late he had lived aboard the houseboat and had frequently been treated for a chronic case of heart trouble. His condition appeared to become worse the past few days and Saturday he wrote his brother telling the latter of his condition. This morning Frederick Harvey went to the rear of 58 Howard street, where the boat was moored and boarding the craft saw his brother in bed. When an endeavor was made to arouse the boatman it was found that he was dead. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman, after he had conducted an investigation gave permission for the removal of the body to an undertaking establishment.

The automobile owned and driven by Leo Barr, Montville and a machine owned and operated by Louis G. Winkel, Springfield, Mass., were in collision this evening on Main street, both cars were damaged.

Use of First Fork.

In 1633 the first fork was brought to this country. It was in a leather case, with a bodkin and knife. The owner was Gov. John Winthrop.

The First Car in America to Standardize on Balloon Tires and 4-Wheel Brakes
Introducing the combination of Balloon Tires and 4-wheel brakes and the first American car to be designed with these features embodied—the Rollin created a style that has swept the country in less than a year.
This foresight on the part of Rollin H. White, designer of the Rollin, his knowledge of motorists' desires and his eagerness to incorporate every known advancement is also shown in numerous other features of this most advanced car of the year.
These features are:—European type, high compression motor; free from vibration because of precise static and dynamic balance of 4-bearing crankshaft and the aluminum alloy pistons and connecting rods.
4 bearing crankshaft; operation smoothed and maintenance minimized by a perfected system of force-feed lubrication; carburetor and manifold refinements that make possible 25 to 30 miles on a gallon of gasoline; and a transverse rear spring that eliminates sideway and keeps the car on an even keel.
A ride in this remarkable car is yours for the asking.

SINGLY AND IN GROUPS.

Attention cannot fail to be halted by the loss of seven children by the capsizing of a canoe in Long Island sound.

Three things are emphasized by it, the importance of knowing how to swim, of keeping out of canoes unless one can swim and of greater parental responsibility.

In this particular instance it is the latter which comes to the front. The children had been forbidden to go out in the canoe and yet they went. They may have heard their parents say, "Why, I can do anything with them!" or they may have learned through experience that it requires "No" a half dozen times before there is any need of paying attention to it, and then only so much as is necessary to do what is desired and escape punishment. Those who forbade them to use the canoe knew what they were doing, and what safety called for, but it doesn't appear that they were in the habit of minding.

Had they been in something other than a canoe there is a possibility that they would not have been upset. Most anything would have afforded more protection against a sudden gale than a cockleshell. Under most circumstances much protection would be afforded when thrown into the water if they knew how to swim. Out in the sound it might not have been possible for the children to have gotten to shore but in knowing how to swim and keeping out of a canoe would have been valuable life insurance for those youngsters.

Had they been brought up to respect parental advice they would have entirely avoided the very danger which they headed into unknowingly but through disobedience. The Bridgeport case simply grouped the lessons that are to be noted every few days in many directions. And it is to be noted that the same penalty is not only exacted singly as well as in groups, but that it falls upon those who are supposed to have mature judgment quite the same as upon the disobedient children of tender years.

CHANGING THE RULES.

Every four years just about this time for the presidential campaign there is a howl made over the two-thirds rule of the democratic national convention, claims that it is unjust and that it unnecessarily prolongs the convention. It is a claim that is put forth by and in behalf of the candidates and at a time when it is likely to get the least attention, because action then would result in favoring the prospects of one against the others.

When any change is made in such a rule, or in the much objected to unit rule, the time for action is when there is no convention decisions pending. It is no time to change horses while crossing the stream.

Now that the democratic convention is over, and there will be no other for four years, whatever agitation in behalf of a modification of the rules governing the next and subsequent conventions is made must be regarded as timely. The democratic national committee has in fact the convention of this year to point to as something that should be guarded against in the future, and it is in a position to maintain that changes in the two-thirds and unit rules would serve as a preventive.

Because it is the time for any move of this kind does not mean that it will be pushed with the same interest as if there was a candidacy pending. Because it is claimed that a fourth of the national committee favor changing to majority rule and permitting every delegate to vote as he wishes does not mean that sufficient support is assured in the committee even. There was in fact reason enough for the convention itself to have gotten rid of these handicaps while it was in session and after its candidates had been chosen. No better argument in behalf of alterations could be asked than was furnished by the convention itself. Early advocacy of a long delayed need is well received. It is a matter which should be disposed of if possible before it comes time for other candidates to throw their hats into the ring and call for such improvements in the rules.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

Special interest is aroused at this time over the decision of the interstate commerce commission against the lowering of railroad rates for the benefit of the farming communities of the northwest. While relief has been sought for that region it has been maintained that the situation was one which rested with the farmers themselves. The contention has been that the farmer could if he would work out of and stay out of the predicament in which he found himself.

The interstate commerce commission has been looking carefully into the question of cutting the freight charges on grain and other farm products. It has obtained all possible facts, viewed it from all angles and balanced the arguments for against those in opposition with the result that it has been found that the cutting of the railroad rates would not bring the farmer the relief sought, that the rates which prevail are just and reasonable and that there is no ground for cutting the revenue of the railroads in an effort to produce something for the farmers, that even if the products were carried for nothing there would be no appreciable relief experienced by the farmers and that railroad rates have not caused the trouble the farmers have experienced.

The law of supply and demand is what seems to have been persistently disregarded by that region which has been seeking to have the railroads penalized because conditions have not favored them. Perhaps there would be as much ground for asking for a reduction in railroad rates in the east because there has been so much inactivity among the industries.

Attention cannot fail to be directed to the fact that within the past week there has been a marked improvement in the prices of the commodities raised and sold by the farmers. Poor prospects in some sections has boosted the price of wheat. The law of supply and demand is getting into operation and the wheat of the American farmer is not only going to be needed but it is going to be paid for, and it will be noted that it all comes about without penalizing the railroads.

COAST GUARD SERVICE.

Highly valuable is the service that is performed by the coast guard cutters. They are ready to answer the call of distress at all hours and at all seasons. The service makes no distinction between fair weather and foul, but it is during the latter that some of their hardest problems are naturally encountered. Nevertheless the service is of a character that calls for the staunchest craft and the best possible equipment. Those who are ready to take all reasonable risks for the relief of those in trouble should be properly fitted out with seaworthy vessels and modern means of rendering service.

This is perhaps well set forth by the experience of the cutter Bear, about which so much anxiety has recently been manifested and which has within the week been heard from as getting out of the ice pack and heading for Nome, Alaska. This is one of the old vessels of the fleet of cutters. It has been in the Alaskan service for years and is now on its 50th trip into the frozen north, where stauncher vessels are needed than at many other points because of the fight with the ice which can always be relied upon.

The service which the cutter renders in this particular region is surrounded with grave uncertainties. Taking food supplies and mail to little frequented points along the Alaskan coast and into the arctic is fraught with hardships, but it is service that needs to be performed. This makes it evident that all possible protection should be thrown around those who are engaged in that patrol and service. There should be no chances taken of maintaining an old vessels on such a route beyond the period when it can be relied upon to successfully meet conditions. There may be years of usefulness for the Bear in other service but when it comes to withstanding the arctic ice floes the best is none too good.

STRIKING HIS LEVEL.

Apparently the attraction was too great and the resistance too weak. Senator Wheeler has yielded to the importunings of La Follette. He was the individual desired, he had the leanings that classed him with the senator from Wisconsin and he is regarded as having the inclinations that will make him satisfactory, and for that reason a sort of a magnet for those who are not only followers of the lams preached by La Follette but those who are guided by the socialistic ideas, the farmer-labor vote and probably those in that northwestern part of the country who are guided by communistic appeals.

The combination of La Follette and Wheeler ought to result in bringing a great conglomeration of radicals under the La Follette banner. It will mean the assembling of that body of discontents in that particular region where it is known to exist, and those from other states in much lesser number.

It is not to be supposed that Wheeler will be the only one to leave the party under whose banner he has been getting into office. There will be other radicals from both parties who will be drawn into this third party arrangement, which, however, in view of the demonstration which they made in the last session of congress and their efforts to replace party government with bloc government cannot make a very favorable impression upon the voter who does any thinking for himself and has a sincere regard for the welfare of the nation. As a teammate Wheeler represents all the radical view of La Follette and can be relied upon to produce a few of his own.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Cheer up, cherries are ripe and more than the robins are happy.

The man on the corner says: Fur lined bathing suits are still in demand at some beaches.

"Army doctors find President Coolidge fit." That jibes with the finding of the public.

Suicide is increasing only among the wealthy. And yet there are those who long to be rich.

States where the price of coal is the highest never read with joy that it has been boosted higher.

When reference is made to the dryness of the next 40 days it has no bearing on the bootleggers.

Those who refer to it as the LaFollette scaffold instead of platform probably haven't been impressed by it.

With only six more weeks of summer left business must speed up if the resort proprietors are going to be satisfied.

Probably the democrats are not surprised that Senator Wheeler is to bolt the democratic ticket. Of course no one else is.

The judge who is to sit in the trial of the two Chicago young men charged with murder is opposed to radiocasting the proceedings. It is to be hoped he exercises control over his court room.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Throw the soapy dishwater on the rose bushes. It will cause them to thrive.

Use a fork to thicken your gravies and you will never have trouble with lumping.

After grating cheese or lemons, a very stiff bristled brush, either dry or dampened, thoroughly cleanses the grater.

Sweeten whipped cream by adding a teaspoon of strained honey instead of sugar. It not only gives the cream a delightful flavor but causes it to stay whipped and firm all day.

In making a cake where soda is used and you find you have no sour milk, add one-quarter cup of vinegar to sweet milk and you will have the same result.

If sour cream is all you have for your morning's coffee, pour the coffee into the cream instead of the cream into the coffee and it will not curdle.

To melt chocolate, put a small lump of butter in the pan before adding the chocolate. Then the pan can be placed directly over the gas flame and the mixture will melt immediately without burning.

Before using new tin, grease well with lard and put in the oven until the lard is melted. Allow the grease to harden on the tin and wipe off. You will then have a tin pan which will wear as well as any of the expensive metals on the market.

To prevent juices from running out of the pies, take a strip of clean white cloth and bind it around the edge of the pie before putting it in the oven. When the pie is cooked the cloth is very easily removed.

When pop corn has been exposed to the air and will not pop, put it in water and let it stand for two or three hours. Let it dry thoroughly for a day or two and you will be astonished how it will pop.

To measure one-half cup of butter or lard quickly and accurately, fill the measuring cup half-full of water, then put in the shortening until the water comes up to the top of the cup. Drain off the water.

A BRIGHT AND SHINING KITCHEN

In the kitchen the painted or varnished floor is the easiest to keep clean, and cleaning a freshly painted floor requires little time. If all the cracks are filled with putty after the first coat of paint has been applied, there will be no lodging place for dust and the floor will respond quickly to cleansing.

Paint the stove heat causes cooking foods to give off a moisture that attacks and rusts unpainted metals.

The ice box is important. Sand paper the rough spots on the inside and apply a coat of enamel thinned down. When the first coat is dry, apply a second and a third. Two coats are all that are necessary on the outside of the ice box and the painting is then complete with the ice box looking spic and span.

Windows and doors should be screened and the frames painted to match the walls. If the floor is linoleum covered and the linoleum is worn, scrub it clean with soda water and when thoroughly dry paint it with ground color paint. Dark oak furnishes the final finish.

With the kitchen cabinet, sink and all pipes, draining board and chairs, painted white, complete an attractive, sanitary kitchen. Little dotted Swiss undercurtains and overcurtains of Dutch gingham are effective. A touch of blue relieves the white and is always appropriate for the kitchen. This note may be introduced in the Dutch curtains, in blue rings around the legs of the chairs, table and sink.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

If your arms are too fleshy, or if they are not plump enough, they may be brought to graceful proportions by daily exercise and massage.

If the feet perspire, powder them every day or twice a day. Use the fine sort of talcum made for babies. It's pure and soothing and any amount can be used.

If you want to keep young you must breathe through your nose and not through your mouth. You must drink sufficient water every day. A glass of water, cool or hot, 15 minutes before breakfast is an excellent thing for you.

You must eat slowly and chew your food thoroughly.

The human body constantly gives off moisture in some form. Through elimination, by perspiration, through loss of moisture in the breath, and so on, this loss goes on continually. It must be made up. Unless a person drinks sufficient water the accumulation of waste products in the system is apt to cause trouble. Digestion will be faulty and the skin will function improperly. Instead of being clear and clean, the skin will be muddy and sallow. A glass of hot or cold water the first thing in the morning is beneficial and two glasses are better still.

BABY AND THE PASTE

"Mother, baby's eating the paste!"

This announcement loses its terror if a noninjurious paste is furnished the kiddies. It is easily prepared from ingredients always on hand:

One cup boiling water, three level tablespoons sugar, two level tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, one teaspoon lemon juice, pinch of salt, cinnamon.

Put all ingredients in the boiling water in a double boiler and cook until very thick. When cool it is ready to use.

A quick glance over this recipe shows that not one ingredient will be injurious to the tiny one who insists on "eating the paste."

FAVOR SPORT STYLE

Sports for the moment hold the center of fashion's stage and the old sporting injunction, "play or pay," is bringing increased receipts to the purveyors of women's wear in consequence. For today practically every woman buys sport clothes. If she does not play herself she pays to see others play.

As a consequence the knitted frocks, tweeds and flannels are in the heyday of their glory. Many of the knitted suits in silk and wool are of the wrap-around type, the skirts opening on the side. As is both sensible and proper the costumes are designed along extremely plain straight lines, the skirts and jackets both moderately short.

STYLES EASY TO COPY

With a good pattern and a carefully chosen material it is possible to turn out frocks that are delightfully smart. One thing should always be remembered and that is that the material must be adapted to the style selected. Another point to bear in mind is that for a first venture the amateur modiste should confine her efforts to the simplest kind of a model. The smartest costumes of the season are amazingly simple and often easy to copy.

SHINY VERANDA FLOOR

When the sun is shining on your veranda wring your mop out dry and commence on the lower step and go backward so as not to leave footprints. If you do that every morning you will be surprised how beautifully shiny your veranda floor will keep.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Very fine eyelet embroidery is combined with filet lace to make very dainty brassieres.

The coat and suit of black and white shepherd's plaid is usually accompanied by pique collar and vest.

White skunk is a novelty in fur that is much liked to form a contrast with a black wool or satin.

The combination of lizard skin and suede is noticed on the smartest footgear.

White ostrich fringe that gives the effect of having been partly dipped in black dye is seen on the most modish evening gowns.

The smartest slippers have the straight, high Spanish heel. For street wear the medium Cuban heels, though there are many flat heeled models.

Yellow lingerie is seen to excellent advantage in georgette crepe and crepe de chine and is particularly lovely when combined with black lace.

The medium sized hat does not exist this year, either it is a broad brimmed model, practically untrimmed, or a small shape that is mostly crown and no brim.

Printed chiffons add a certain weight and much charm by outlining the most noticeable patterns with small glass beads.

After a season of much color it is interesting to note the growing popularity of black and white in hats, frocks, coats, parasols and shoes.

Many attractive slips are made of handkerchief linen instead of silk and are embroidered in French embroidery and lavishly trimmed with lace.

White coats for midseason wear have bands of black and red silk upon the sleeves and across the hem.

The tailored suit today has taken unto itself a new idea in blouses. This is a tunic blouse of dimity or organdie, very long and often worn without a belt.

Georgette, lace, morocain and crepe de chine are the most popular fabrics at the moment. The favorite colors are beige, brown—but not too dark—pale green and black and white.

OCCASIONAL TABLES

In every room there is a place for what the interior decorator calls "occasional" tables. Less professionally speaking, for small, light tables of various types which can be moved about at will to accomodate smoking articles, tea for two, and other transitory uses.

Due to the very nature of such tables, which precludes permanent decorations in the form of runners, lamps or books, they must in themselves provide some ornamental quality. Tops tastefully treated with painted designs are good in the informal country house. In other instances the desired ornamentation can take the form of handsomely grained wood, veneered conventional patterns or Chinese lacquer in red, black and gold.

TAILORED NEGLIGEES

For summer travel, designers have created a number of tailored negligees or dressing gowns in suitably dark colors. One of these is black, shading into a midnight blue, of messaline, it is light in weight and sheds the dust admirably.

LACE AS DECORATION

Narrow frills of lace are almost universal at present. They edge hats and the rosettes of ribbon thereon; they add a pleasant fluffiness to lingerie; and they adorn both gloves and wristbags.

COOKING HINTS

Quarter of a teaspoon of baking powder added to mashed potatoes while beating will make them light and fluffy.

Adding hot milk instead of cold to mashed potatoes makes them lighter. Mash well, add salt and butter and hot milk last. Beat for a minute with a fork.

When cooking turnips, cabbages or fish, put a dish of salt on top of the stove. It will help absorb the odor.

If you wish to keep your meringue light add one teaspoon of water after the sugar is beaten in, or add a pinch of baking powder while beating.

When bread gets too stale to use, try this: Place a pan of water on the stove and bring it to a boil, put on the steamer and in it place the stale loaf. Steam for five minutes.

If you want to utilize left-over boiled potatoes cut them up, add a slice of bread cut into dice and fry, the potatoes and bread together. This dish is delicious and helps to make a few potatoes "go around."

DECKING ALARM CLOCK

Very heavy cardboard, or a double thickness of light cardboard, ribbon-covered will transform your ungainly alarm clock into a pretty Dresden one. It is wise to use ribbon having a rosebud design to reproduce the Dresden as near as possible. Glue the ribbon to the cardboard frame, using a thin spread of liquid glue. Cut a space in the frame for the face, and glue the cut edges. The back of the clock is, of course, left uncovered. The large alarm clock may also be metamorphosed into an octagon, hexagon or pentagon shaped clock in beautiful colors and shades harmonizing with the general color scheme of your boudoir.

COMPASS OF THE COOK

The domestic science or kitchen thermometer is the compass of the modern cook, professional or otherwise. What was once termed "luck" in home cooking is now known by its proper name, temperature. No longer does the housewife "follow the recipe faithfully" on both occasions, only to register a success one time and a failure the other time. Home cooks are simply following the procedure of professional bakers, whose recipes would no more omit the temperature than the quantity of any of the ingredients.

NEW GARDEN UMBRELLA

The large garden umbrella is too well known to excite any comment, but there is something a bit unusual and something decidedly attractive about an enormous Japanese umbrella of red cotton lacquered to withstand climatic changes. The standard which runs up through a metal garden table painted black with a red edge is of thick bamboo.

MATCH SHOE, GLOVE

It is possible today to get shoes and gloves which exactly match. In a mode shade, the gloves have fully guardlets with an open-work pattern faced with white kid. The shoes, in mode suede, have a rosette of this open work combined with the white kid, beneath a small buckle.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Women pastors in the United States now aggregate more than 300.

Miss Dorothy Gee, in charge of the credit and Oriental loans department of a San Francisco bank, is said to be the only Chinese woman banker in the world.

More than 70 women are members of legislatures of the world.

Durham is now the only English county in which the women do not outnumber the men.

A bill was proposed in the New York legislature requiring railroad companies to have a club car exclusively for women in cases where one is provided for men.

Organized Turkish women are demanding that polygamy be abolished, divorce limited and a law passed to reach their majority at 17 instead of 18, at present.

BRINGS BACK THE LUSTRE

We all remember to polish the woodwork at housecleaning time, but somehow we forget the leather furniture. Leather will be greatly improved in appearance if rubbed over with the well-beaten white of an egg.

BEEF TEA FOR THE INVALID

Cut some lean steak in small bits and put in a quart jar until half full. Then fill the jar with cold water and place in a kettle of cold water and boil for three hours. Strain and season lightly.

RECIPES

Salad in Turnip Cases: Take one and one-half cups of diced young cucumbers, one cup of diced firm tomatoes, half a cup of shreaded lettuce, half a cup of grated young turnips, one-fourth cup of thinly sliced radishes, two tablespoons of thinly sliced young onions, two teaspoons of chopped watercress and one teaspoon of salt. Make a dressing as follows and when cold combine with the vegetables. Mix to a smooth paste two tablespoons of butter and two tablespoons of flour to a smooth paste. Add one cup of hot cream and stir until smooth. Place in a saucepan of hot water, and add one teaspoon of sugar, one teaspoon of salt, half a cup of lemon juice and three eggs yolks, stirring constantly. Next fold in three stiffly beaten egg whites, and whip until the mixture thickens. Cool and combine with the prepared vegetables.

Sausage and Tomato: Cook six sausages or sausage cakes. Pour off half the fat, and add to it one cupful of soft bread crumbs. Stir until slightly browned. Add enough highly seasoned stewed tomato to make as moist as wished, and salt and pepper to taste. Place the moistened crumbs in a mound in the center of a hot dish and garnish with the sausages.

Hammond Condemned to Death

Equipped with a thorough education and with memories of a happy boyhood, John Hays Hammond started out into the world—and had to face death in many guises and in many lands.

Born in San Francisco, he attended public school, Sheffield Scientific School, and later the Royal School of Mines at Freiburg, Saxony. He became an expert of the United States Geological Survey to examine California gold and soon afterward, at 25, he was married.

A consulting engineer for an iron company for a short time, he then with $500 and a young bride, decided to hunt for buried wealth. Going to Mexico he found gold and narrowly averted death several times, once being held in the cabin of an outlaw and his three sons, but escaping.

Accumulating riches in Mexico, he went to Honduras penetrated into the depths of the forests and found a productive mine. On the way back he was taken ill with fever and had to crawl several miles to a hut where a native woman nursed him back to health.

Next in Africa, he was consulting engineer for Barnato Brothers, owners of diamond mines. A year later Cecil Rhodes made him manager of the British South African Company's properties at a fabulous salary, and Hammond discovered King Solomon's mines.

Americans in the Transvaal, protested against the unfair rule of Oom Paul Kruger, president of the Boers, without effect planned a revolution, Hammond's duty being to import the arms. Dr. Leander Jameson was told to gather his followers at the border of his territory and wait—but he went ahead. Hammond and three others were arrested as leaders and thrust, in summer, into overcrowded and poorly ventilated cells ordinarily used for Kaffirs. Hammond was attacked by fever, the court condemned him to death, the United States protested and he was freed on payment of $135,000 fine.

In London next, he became interested in many enterprises. He returned to this country in 1900 and since has lived in Washington and in Gloucester, Mass. He is active in many business organizations and in politics, and is a writer and lecturer of note.

JOHNNY AND THE COMPANY

Irene Avery Judson

Company is coming. The atmosphere of Johnny's home was tense; the very shininess of woodwork and furniture, the forbidding spick-spanness of every room, even to the nursery, caused the tired eyes of Johnny's mother to glow with satisfaction and the round orbs of Johnny to overcloud with gloom.

Two busy days of preparation had brought the heavy droop to the shoulders of the mother, who little realized how many irritable words had been thoughtlessly, impatiently directed to the defenseless laddie. And now when all was ready and the guests were due, the fresh, crisp linens that gave Johnny such a smartly starched appearance merely heightened that uneasiness that filled the boy's heart.

The company arrived and there was a flood of warm embraces, the strain, alas! was very hard on Johnny.

Then the long anticipated visiting began, and who could wonder that the general relaxation caused all the pent-up steam in Johnny to burst forth, most shockingly?

The laddie's mother, near distraction, thought not of the reason for it, but remembered only how fatigued she was from much unnecessary work. Too weary to think calmly, she punished him—a little matters how—before the strange, onlooking crowd.

Terrible Humiliation bore down upon Johnny, and caused the fair young head to droop with shame. The world was black indeed, filled with harsh indifference, and the cruel people in it smiled behind their hands! O, if he had just been punished where they could not see — those eyes now so amused at his distress! Then he and his mother might have kept it all a secret. He need not have lost his boyish self-respect.

Yes, if she had but thought a moment, and given him a chance to quiet that excited little mind in the seclusion of his room, later to come forth from there rested self-controlled then he could have met their faces with frank boyish purpose to disturb no longer. That would have spelled a victory for Johnny. But as it was, in silent mortification, he slunk away from everyone, and the memory of that day was never bright.

Bruise not the fine stem of the flower, O Mother! lest it lift its face less frankly to the light.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Prominent among those who will extend greeting to the American and Canadian lawyers gathered in London today will be Lord Birkenhead, the former Lord Chancellor. In his latest book, America Revisited, Lord Birkenhead reveals himself to be not only one of Britain's greatest authorities on law, but also a distinguished man of letters. When he came to America six years ago for the purpose of war propaganda, he was received everwhere as a most distinguished guest. Despite the press of functions, he yet found time to record his impressions on the spot, and in his book he makes interesting observation on modern America. It was Lord Balfour who once remarked of Lord Birkenhead that he was the "most brilliant man of his generation," and, indeed, the latter's career has been perhaps unparalleled in the legal history of Great Britain—a career which was crowned when at the remarkably early age of 47 he became Lord High Chancellor, the supreme head of the law in England.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

THE PERSIAN GULF

"American round-the-world flyers, among the earliest epoch-making navigators of the air, might well dip a wing in salute when they sail over the Persian Gulf," says a bulletin from Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "for it is there that antiquarians believe sea navigation was born in pre-Babylonian and pre-Sumerian days."

"The reputation of the gulf does not rest alone on such ancient tradition, however," the bulletin adds. "Sinbad the Sailor and his fellow seamen of Arabian Nights fame, ploughed these waters; corsairs even more bloodthirsty than their Mediterranean and Caribbean brothers, preyed on commerce; and Arabs, Persians, Portuguese, Dutch and British fought naval battles there for commercial supremacy.

"When the flyers leave India behind and strike out over the Baluchistan and Persian coasts they will traverse in three hops one of the hottest and most monotonous sections of their journey. Sir Ross Smith, who flew from England to Australia in 1919, described this region as a 'terrible country' in which he 'scarcely observed a possible landing ground—the whole earch appeared as though some terrific convulsion had swept it and left in its wake this fantastic chaos of scarred mountains and gouged valleys. Razor-back ridges rise abruptly only a short distance from the sea. There is little vegetation, the whole country having a dun-colored, sunbaked appearance.

"Along the first half of the journey this inhospitable shore is met by the surge of the Indian ocean, but in the latter half it is bathed by the tranquil waters of the sheltered Persian Gulf. The flyers however, will have their planes equipped with wheels of pontoons and will count on using the beaches or the few near-by level tracts in case of forced landings.

"It has long been recognized in international politics that control of the Persian Gulf, and of the near-by coast of Asia between that body of water and India, means control of all the Middle East. Consequently there has been much jockeying among the Great Powers for position in this region. Chanbar, or Chahbar, the first stopping place along the Arabian Sea west of Karachi, was for many years coveted by Russia and later by Germany; but British diplomacy and the occasional opportune appearance of British men-of-war paying 'friendly' visits managed to prevent the dreams coming true.

"Portugal first dominated this coast, building a tremendously strong fort on the little island of Ormuz just off the present Bandar Abbas, a few years after Da Gama found the sea route around Africa. Shortly afterward the Dutch gained a foothold; but with the rise of the East India Company, Britain defeated and shouldered out both, and has controlled the region pretty completely since the year the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth.

"In late years Great Britain has not had formal colonial or protective rights along the Persian coast, but through a 'sphere of influence' treaty with Russia before the World war; temporary occupation during the conflict; and since through strong consuls and residents political agents, assisted by a naval coast patrol, she has managed to keep the chief ports in effect protectorates. In landing at Charbar, Bandar Abbas and Bushire, therefore, it is almost as though the American flyers were touching British soil.

"Strategically Bandar Abbas is easily the most important of the three ports. It lies on the Strait of Ormuz, the narrow 'Skagerrack of the East,' which is the doorway to the Persian gulf. It gains additional importance from the fact that from it branch out five easy routes into almost completely bar access from the sea. Port facilities, however, are not good; ships must anchor two or three miles off shore and handle cargo by means of lighters.

"Bushire, toward the head of the Persian Gulf, has grown more rapidly than its rival ports by reason of its location near the edge of Mesopotamia. It has been the chief center of British activity along the shallow water close to the shore.

"The Persian Gulf coast has a particularly unsavory reputation in the matter of climate. For six months after the end of March the heat reaches such an excessively high degree that life becomes a burden for the permanent dwellers. It becomes even too hot to work camels on the caravan routes and they must be replaced by tough little local donkeys. The story was the same in the days of Alexander the Great. Large numbers of his soldiers perished in the march through this region."

Stories That Recall Others

Being Disgraced.

She is a kind soul and runs errands for many of her friends who are less able than she to get about. She entered an office the other day with several bundles in her arms. "I brought in our things to be repaired," she said, "and almost fell at the corner. Then I would have been disgraced."

She then opened the bundles. There were some glasses to have new lens, some upper plates of false teeth to be fixed and a cork leg for some mending. "All I need," she said, "is a switch to be dyed," and laughingly shook her short locks.

Picking Them Out.

A couple of friends were discussing marriage and one of them expressed his confidence that he could pick out the married and single men in the employ of his friend, who conducted a business with nearly 100 employes. Accordingly he stationed himself at the door as they returned from dinner and mentioned all those he thought to be married. In almost every case he was right.

"How do you do it?" asked the friend.

"Oh, it's quite simple," said the visitor. "The married men wipe their feet on the mat; the single ones don't."

Her Birthday Gift

She was four and received a small parasol for a birthday gift. Her mother opened it for her and she strutted up and down the square "showing her stuff." Finally she thought she would rest. Stepping on the porch of a neighbor she sat down and tried to close the parasol but could not. Turning to a young woman on the porch she said: "Please turn it off. I can't."

STATEMENT COVERING REVOLUTION IN BRAZIL

Washington, July 20.—Now and advanced positions have been taken by Brazilian federal troops operating about Sao Paulo under command of General Potyguara, according to a communique issued here today by the Brazilian embassy.

The communique covering the situation at noon July 19 said:

"The weather in S. Paulo has become better allowing now the reconnaissance which the heavy clouds were preventing. The government troops continue their movements preparatory to the manoeuver which they are about to undertake."

The statement issued last midnight follows:

"The government aviators have flown several times over the city of Sao Paulo making the reconnaissance necessary to the operations that are being undertaken. An airplane which was used by the rebels has been destroyed. Among the prisoners taken yesterday in Ribeirao Preto in the interior of the state of Sao Paulo, who had fled from the rebels were a lieutenant and five petty officers. The troops under the command of General Potyguara took yesterday afternoon new and more advanced positions."

Not Even "Thanks."

Mr. Skirtshy—"No use trying. You can't get the last word with a woman." Mr. Longsuffer—"I did once. It was in a crowded street car. I said, 'Take my seat, madam,' and she dropped into it without a word."

Aunt Het.

"I'm glad Pa ain't addicted very much to the bath habit. Darnin' one pair o' socks a week ain't much of a chore."

Wins Shotput At Olympics

"Bud"—W. Clarence—Houser, of the University of Southern California, who won the Olympic 16-pound shotput with a distance of 14.995 meters. Another Californian, Glenn Hantranft, of Stanford University, was a close second, and Ralph G. Hills, of Princeton, was a good third. Houser became a sensation just three years ago this week when, at the age of 17, he beat Pat McDonald for the world's championship, heaving the 16-pound ball 46 feet, 11¾ inches at Pasadena. His Olympic record was 49 feet, 2½ inches (14.995 m.).

Arrangements were by Shea & Burke.

NEW ENGLANDERS NOT BUYING ANTHRACITE NOW

The New England public does not take advantage of the present prices of anthracite coal and remains indifferent to any possibilities of coal shortages of higher prices in the fall and winter, according to the reports of the department of commerce at Washington. At the close of June there were from 70 to 75 days' stocks of coal on hand for normal consumption.

"General conditions in the retail coal trade in New England as of June 30," says the statement of F. M. Shore, acting chief of the coal division of the department, "indicate a continued indifference on the part of the public. Stocks on hand in the possession of retailers, are about 1,500,000 tons anthracite. There is every indication that premium prices will once more prevail about the first of September. This condition will be brought about by the act of the public, which is refusing to buy at the present time, merely because it has no fear of a shortage period next winter.

"Bituminous, on the other hand, does not show signs of a higher price as early as September. There is a good stock in New England, but the tonnage is not so great if judged by the appearance of the storage piles. The railroads especially have reduced coal on hand."

MYSTIC SHRINERS HELD CEREMONIAL AT BRIDGEPORT

Pyramid temple of the Mystic Shrine held its mid-summer ceremonial at Bridgeport Saturday with an attendance which far exceeded any held in many years. The progrm was a varied one and the arrangements of such wide scope that the public had opportunity to participate in the merriment of the occasion. Temples from Boston, Springfield, Hartford, Newark, Trenton, New York City, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Albany, N. Y. had been invited to attend and each sent large delegations of their completed uniformed bodies.

The city's streets were brilliant with color and many bands and drum corps added to the gayety on the street. The entire forenoon was given over to receptions to incoming temples and shriners. In the early afternoon there was a parade and later the entire body went to Pleasure Beach for the ceremonial and barbecue. In the evening there was a fireworks display at the beach.

RUM RUNNERS MADE PROFITABLE DAY FOR LISBON TOWN COURT

The five New Haven men caught in two rum-running automobiles Thursday night on the river road to Jewett City, were presented in the Lisbon town court Saturday morning before Justice of the Peace Walter Drew with Grand Juror George W. Helmbold prosecuting the cases against the men and Attorney John H. Sheehan of New Haven appearing for them. Court was held at the grand juror's home to which the prisoners were brought from Brooklyn jail by State Policemen Comstock and Urquhart.

The attorney spent considerable time discussing the case with his clients before court opened and when the charges were read against them they pleaded guilty.

The two drivers, Edward Chieppo, 49 Townsend street, and Thomas Clancy, 367 Grand avenue, were each charged with transportation, possession and reputation and were each fined $200 on each of the first two counts and $100 on the first count, with costs, and a sentence of 30 days in jail suspended for one year.

Frank Imperati, 504 Ferry street, and Albert Abrams, 9 Cottage street, were each fined $200 and costs on the charge of being accessories in transportation and were given a 30 day suspended jail sentence.

Douglas Mac Laman, 936 Grand avenue, who told the police here that he was not in the rum running game but had merely taken a ride with the men for a little excitement, was fined $100 and costs and given a 30 day suspended jail sentence on the charge of being an accessory in transportation.

Clancy and Mac Laman had to go back to Brooklyn jail to spend another night there as there was no money on hand to pay their fines and costs, but the friends of the others had come from New Haven and were present at the court session to pay whatever it cost to get caught at the rum-running game.

Clancy and MacLaman secured their release from jail Sunday morning.

The total costs came to about $200 and the fines to $1,500, which made a record in receipts for one day in the Lisbon town court. As the court had earlier in the week had the Pothier liquor case in which a fine of $100 with about $60 costs was collected, it all made a very comfortable addition to the Lisbon town treasury, as the town gets half and the state gets half of the fines.

The rum-running automobiles were not confiscated, the grand juror said, but were returned to the drivers.

BURNING SUNDAY ROAST CALLED OUT FIREMEN

One Norwich family planning to enjoy a fine piece of roast, met a sad disappointment, for the meat, instead of being just well done, was burned to a crisp, and, thereby hangs a tale.

Eli Robillard, owner and occupant of the two family house at 40 Fourteenth street, smelled smoke Sunday afternoon about 2.30 o'clock and investigation showed that the apartment occupied by Merton Pechams in the same house, was filled with smoke.

A call was sent to the fire department and Engine 3 of Greeneville and Squad A went to the fire. Gaining entrance to the house, the firemen traced the fire to an automatic gas range, and opening the over door discovered the cause, of the smoke, which by that time nearly filled the house.

The Pechams family had gone away and left a piece of meat roasting in the oven, which had what was supposed to be an automatic heat regulator. When the oven failed to function properly, the meat burned, smoke filled the house, Mr. Robillard became alarmed, sent for the firemen and they pulled the mean from the oven. The only loss was the meat and the main support of a Sunday evening dinner.

THROWN THROUGH WINDSHIELD IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Bertha Martin, daughter of Arthur L. Martin, of Bradford, R. I., received a ragged cut over her right eye when she was thrown through the windshield of an automobile Sunday evening about 5 o'clock at Avery's corner on the Norwich-Westerly road above North Stonington. The Overland touring car 16-582 R. I. driven by Arthur L. Martin of Bradford was headed toward Westerly and making the sharp left hand turn as the taxi car P-640 R. I. operated by Fred D. Sisson of Westerly came out of the Old Mystic road. Control of the Overland was lost as the car turned sharply to the left and just missing the guard rail pitched down the eight foot bank to the swamp below. Beside a broken windshield the Martin car sustained only a twisted front axle and jammed fender.

Miss Martin was taken to the office of Dr. Thurman Main in North Stonington and when he was not found at home brought by Mr. Sisson to the office of Dr. Michael H. Scanlon in Westerly for treatment. State Police Officer Robinson of the Groton barracks investigated the accident.

ARRESTED SIX IN HIGH STREET RAID

Raiding an upper tenement in the house at 23 High street Sunday morning about 1:30 o'clock, the police arrested there Mabel Gurley, 36, colored, on the charge of keeping a disorderly house, and took in Catherine Harris, 29, colored, and four white men as frequenters. The men arrested gave their names as John Simmons, 32, Joseph Love, 39, John Nickols, 49, all of Norwich, and Daniel Griffin, 37, of Montville. All but two of the men gave bail for their appearance in court.

The raid was made by Sergeant Thomas Murphy with Officers J. Donovan, P. Sheehan, J. Dombrowski, Joseph Farrell and P. Murphy.

WAS DRIVING MACHINE WITHOUT OPERATOR'S LICENSE

After a collision early Sunday evening at the corner of North Main and Seventh streets between machines driven by Benjamin Shulman of Poquetanuck and Stanley Zacka of Lisbon, the latter was ordered to appear in the city court this (Monday) morning for driving without his operator's license. Officer John Dunion made the complaint against him.

Shulman's automobile, it was reported, was run into by the other and had the fender and running board broken.

MAKING RECOVERY FROM FRACTURED SKULL

Frank Rosello of 37 Happy street, a patient at the Backus hospital suffering a fractured skull, the result of a motorcycle accident on the Colchester main road Friday afternoon, continues to improve in condition. Sunday he was resting very comfortably and if he continues to improve will probably be discharged in about 10 days.

ROUND TABLE DISCUSSION AT Y. M. C. A. MEETING

The innovation at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon proved interesting to a goodly group of men. The innovation consisted of a round table discussion on the topic, The Christian's part in politics. After the singing of hymns, scripture reading and prayer, the discussion was opened, and many of those present entered into it heartily. Among the points brought out were the following: That a Christian man has no good excuse for not taking advantage of his voting privilege, in other words he is not living up to his privilege if he fails to vote at election time. While as a rule a Christian should stay with his party because of its principles, yet there may be times when he should vote for a good man of another party. It was decided that no Christian man should vote for a candidate who is known to be opposed to the 18th amendment, as he is then opposed to a part of the constitution. We should not vote for a man simply because he is good, if he has no other qualification, on the other hand no Christian man should vote for a man who is known to be immoral.

To the question, why do so many men fail to take active part in politics, some thought that some were fearful that it would hurt their business, though it was the unanimous opinion that in the long run that the man who stood four-square for things that were right and for the good of his community would not suffer any loss in business.

Every man attending expressed his satisfaction at the program and a similar one will be followed for next Sunday at 4.30, when the topic for discussion will be The Christian man's relation to the Sabbath. These meeting are open to all men. After the discussion light refreshments were served.

YOUNG SOCIETY BOOZER SAVED BY GUARD THREE TIMES

Life Guard Edwards, the big blonde at the Red Cross hut at Ocean Beach, is generally good natured, but just now he is getting out of temper. There's a reason!

A 24 year old society man who just now is residing at the Hotel Mohican, New London, is making the guard no end of trouble. The story is that the chappie does not rise till 10 o'clock, then he takes so many eye-openers that he soon forgets his own name, but the more lit up he gets the surer he is to make for the beach. Into the surf he goes—to remain so long and to show himself so absolutely limp and helpless that the guard is forced to swim to his rescue. This happened three times the past week.

The young man is step-son of a wealthy owner whose craft frequently comes to New London harbor. Too much money and nothing to do are proving his ruin. When sober, he is said to be a first class sort of a fellow. The fear of the guard is that some time when he is busy with another case the young society man may get into the sea beyond his depth and drown, before the guard can get to his rescue.

THREE MACHINES IN FRANKLIN ST. MIXUP

Minor damages to three automobiles and slight injury to a young woman were the results of three machines coming together on Franklin street near the corner of Willow street Saturday night about 9 o'clock.

Miss Doris Geer, 16, of Scotland road who was riding in the machine driven by Stanley Wildowski of Scotland road, received a cut in the chin from broken glass and was attended by a doctor who used several stitches to close the wound.

Wildowski was driving northerly on Franklin St., at a time when machines were parked on both sides. He struck the parked machine of Silas N. Sandberg of Trading Cove and drove it up on the sidewalk then grazing the left rear mudguard of the machine of William Wilcox of Torrington, who was driving southerly on the street at the time. The Torrington man and friend who was with him did not know their car had been hit and did not stop at the time but were convinced when they saw the marks on the mudguard after they had been followed and stopped by Officer Sharvan farther down the street. In reporting the accident to the police Wildowski acknowledged that the blame was on him.

Burial In Lebanon Cemtery.

The burial of the body of Edwin Lauterbach, 32, the young German who was drowned last Wednesday afternoon at Williams pond, Exeter, Lebanon, took place Saturday morning in Goshen cemetery. Lebanon. Lauterbach had no relatives in this country and the expense of the funeral and burial were borne by the proprietors of the Grand Lake hotel where he had been employed as a dish washer since July 7.

Beach Nurse Busy.

Every day, calls are made for the services of Miss Margaret Murphy, the Red Cross nurse at Ocean Beach. Last week Miss Murphy cared for three serious cases, besides the usual number of minor calls.

One bather had a bad heart attack, another appeared to suffer a slight shock and a third received first aid for an alarming chill.

NORWICH MEN ROBBED OF $122 AT BEACH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 20.—Bath house thieves continued to operate at Ocean beach today and in carrying on their work of thieving the crooks reaped their richest haul of the season for Max Levine, 16 Laurel Hill avenue, Norwich and three companions were relieved of $122. Jewelry, which had been left in the pockets of the clothing of the bathers, was not disturbed.

Levine and his friends went to the beach about 8 o'clock and hired one of the bath houses in the Rudd concession. All four had to occupy the same bath house because of the Sunday crowd. After having enjoyed the swimming for nearly two hours the bathers returned to the bath house to find that their clothing had been rifled of the money. A report of the theft was made to the police, but as in all other bath house robberies within the past five weeks where plunder was obtained, no trace of the thieves was obtained.

Entrance to the bath house was obtained by the crooks using a duplicate key, for when the bathers concluded swimming and returned to the bath house the door was locked and in the same condition as when they left it, showing that the entrance was not forced.

PLEASANT VIEW PLACE YIELDS UP "MOISTURE"

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, July 20.—It has been apparent recently at Pleasant View that there was more "moisture" there than would be accounted for by proximity to the ocean, pond, recent heavy fogs or sudden thunder showers. The presence of the moisture could be discovered and proven in but one way—a search warrant. Saturday evening about 10 o'clock Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown of the Westerly police force armed with a warrant visited the place of Rose Falcone, alias, Jane Doe, on the south side of Atlantic avenue, a dwelling on the rear of lot No. 55 and named "Sunset View." The warrant alleged that intoxicating liquors were in the dwelling, that persons of interperate habits had been seen entering and departing therefrom and that persons had been seen coming from the premises in an intoxicated condition. The chief of police had the assistance of Westerly Police Officers Curtin, Madison and Kesel. Six men and two women were caught by the officials who got nine quarts of William Penn whiskey and two quarts of Gordon dry gin made in England. The stuff was brought to the Westerly police station. And this was not all that the officers "viewed" at "Sunset View" at Pleasant View, for in the dwelling was a 45 calibre Colt automatic revolver, one 38 calibre Smith and Weston, revolver, one shot gunand one repeating rifle. Rose Falcone was summoned to come before a session of the third district court in Westerly July 25.

MONKEY ENJOYED FREEDOM AMONG TREES OF PARK

The Canal Zone monkey that was presented to Mohegan park last week by Robert Graham enjoyed a few hours of freedom Saturday among the trees of the park when he escaped from his cage while the keeper was cleaning the cage in the morning.

For a while it was not known where the monkey was but at length it was reported by a man and woman who had been walking in the park. The man apparently knew little about monkeys for he armed himself with a stick for protection against attack by the animal.

C. M. Cobeille, a Yantic Woolen mill employe who has a fondness for animals essayed the task of capturing the monkey, coaxing it with chattering talk until finally it became friendly and approached him. Moving along a few feet at a time and keeping up the chatter, Mr. Cobeille succeeded in luring the monkey as far as the rose walk but the crafty little animal was too cunning to be caught.

Park Superintendent Krohn tried for three hours to slip a leash over the monkey but the agile little creature would slip away when ever Mr. Krohn's hand was extended to seize him. At length Mr. Krohn made a hook in the end of a long piece of wire by which he was able to get hold of the collar on the monkey's neck and he was soon a captive again and back in his cage feasting on the offerings presented by visitors to his cage.

NEW YORK EXCURSION TOOK 460 FROM HERE

The popular excursion to New York over the New Haven railroad, Sunday, certainly proved a big drawing card, thirteen special cars pulling out of Norwich at 6.30 o'clock (standard time) Sunday morning.

The Norwich excursionists numbered 450 and when the train pulled in at New London another 450 people came aboard, filling the train to capacity. A quick run was made to New York the excursionists arriving shortly after 10 o'clock.

Hundreds went to the baseball game between the Yankees and Cleveland and others split up among the many beach resorts and attractions in and around the big city.

The return trip was started at 6.30 o'clock, standard time, out of New York, the train arriving in Norwich about 10.30 o'clock.

Here's Real Relief From

Mosquito Bites

"All my customers insist on taking it with them on vacation trips," says one New Jersey druggist who has been selling a lot of Moone's Emerald Oil for the plague of Mosquitoes and Black Flies. "They say a single bottle is worth more than all the Citronella and Eucalyptus I've got in my store. And I believe they're right for itching and all fear of infection and blood-poisoning ceases at once the minute Moone's Emerald Oil is applied."

HARTFORD'S POPULATION ESTIMATED AT 166,167

Hartford's population is now 166,167, according to estimates of the United States census bureau which brings out that estimates of population of the principal cities of the country as of July 1, this year, show there are seventy-nine having 500,000 inhabitants or more as compared with 68 last year. The census bureau in preparing the estimates did not calculate the population of some of the rapidly growing cities including Bridgeport. The population of the country on July 1 is estimated at 112,078,611.

The relative rank of some of the cities is changed by the new estimates. New Orleans has passed Cincinnati, Rochester has outgrown Jersey City and St. Paul has surpassed Providence. Oakland's population has grown so that it now outranks St. Paul and Providence and Springfield, Mass., have passed Grand Rapids.

New York has passed the 6,000,000 mark, Chicago is approaching 3,000,000 and Philadelphia the 2,000,000 mark.

New Haven, 175,947, Memphis 172,276, Dayton 169,236, Norfolk 164,105, Hartford 156,167, Youngstown 155,153, Springfield, Mass., 148,403, Grand Rapids 148,222.

How New Haven, Hartford and Springfield have progressed in the last twenty-five years as shown by the federal census in 1900, 1910, 1920 and the estimated returns for this year is truly amazing. Hartford and Springfield have doubled their population in the last 25 years, and New Haven has jumped 67,000 in that period.

In 1900, Hartford had, according to the government census, a population of 79,850, while in 1910 the figures were 98,915 and at the last census 138,036. The present estimate of 166,167 indicates a gain since 1900 of 86,317. This is a gain of 8,397 greater than New Haven made for the same period, but 10,027 less than Springfield advanced in the quarter century.

New Haven had a population of 108,027 in 1900, went to 133,605 in 1910 and advanced to 162,537 in 1920, the present estimate being 175,947. In 1900 Springfield had but 62,059, while in 1910 the federal enumerators located 88,926 and in 1920, 129,614. The estimate at this time is 148,400.

Fight Single-Handed.

A person who cannot succeed without being in a herd ought to organize his own herd. My advice to a young man is to learn to pitch in and fight his battles single-handed. Sheep and goats run in droves, but lions and tigers do not.—E. W. Howe.

The island of Madagascar, where radium was recently found, has hardly any roads. Crude hammocks on poles and carried on the shoulders of natives furnish the only means of conveyance in many places.

Average Potato Yield.

The Department of Agriculture says that the average yield per acre for potatoes in the United States is approximately 104 bushels, while approximately 27 bushels of corn are grown per acre.

The tanker Onanto of 250 tons, belonging to the Italian navy, has foundered in a violent storm off the Calabrian coast. The crew was rescued by a Japanese vessel.

MILLS PITCHES AIRTIGHT BALL AND RIVERVIEW SHUTS OUT HERRUPS

Harry Mills, pitching airtight ball, let the Herrups of Hartford down with three hits and Riverview shut out the Hartford team 4 to 0 at the State Hospital diamond Saturday afternoon. Mills' support was steady throughout the game and Laffey in left field saved Mills from being scored on by a wonderful running catch.

Fisher, the opposing pitcher, hurled good ball with the exception of the fourth inning when Riverview bunched hits in back of errors for four runs. Fisher allowed only five hits, four of them coming in the fourth inning, and the other in the fifth. Up to the seventh inning Mills had held the Herrups hitless and in this frame Cotter spoiled all visions of a no-hit game by dropping a Texas leaguer over short. Cotter had also made a desperate attempt to spoil the good record of Mills when he chased out a long drive to left center which Laffey pulled down near the Ward E building after a long run.

The game was one of the best that has been seen at the State Hospital this season and the umpiring by Morin, old time college ump, was as near perfect as could be. This is the second game that Morin has umpired for the hospital and he is giving the fans the best satisfaction that any umpire has given in a number of years. The score:

PHILLIES DIVIDE DOUBLE HEADERS WITH ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, July 20.—Mitchell's pitching in the second game of a doubleheader with Philadelphia today broke the Cardinals winning streak, which had reach seven straight. The Cardinals won the first game 7 to 4 and the Phillies took the second 3 to 2. Williams hit a home run in the first inning of the second game scoring Sand ahead of him. The Cardinals bunched their hits in the first game to win off Jimmy Ring. The score:

GIBSON MAKES GOOD MOVE IN INSISTING ON LONG ROUTE

New York, July 20—In insisting that the bout between his protege, Gene Tunney, and Georges Carpentier at the Polo grounds next Thursday night should go 15 rounds, the longest distance permitted in this state, Billy Gibson displayed excellent judgment, in the opinion of leading ring critics. Francois Descamps, the Frenchmen's manager, tried to persuade Gibson and Jimmy Johnston, promoter of the battle, to agree to 10 or, at most, 12 rounds.

Ring students have pointed out that Carpentier, who has knocked about the roped arena for 17 years, might weaken after the 10th round, while Tunney, a younger man, is said to be capable of absorbing a great deal of punishment over a long route. If Gene steers clear of Georges' right in the early session experts predict his chances of victory will increase as the match progresses.

YANKS WIN BOTH ENDS OF DOUBLE FROM INDIANS

New York, July 20.—The New York Americans defeated Cleveland here today in both games of a double header by scores of 4 to 1 and 10 to 4. This gives New York a lead of one and one half games over Detroit who did not play today.

Wally Pipp was responsible for three of the four New York runs in the first game.

In the second game New York hammered two Cleveland Rookie pitchers for fourteen hits and ten runs. Babe Ruth hit his twenty eighth home run of the season. Score:

RUTH GRADUALLY DRAWING AWAY FROM RIVAL HITTERS

Chicago, July 20.—Babe Ruth's drawing away from the rest of the heavy hitters in the American league and the spurts of Kelly, New York, and Hartnett, Chicago, in the National league, featured the home run race of the major circuits in the last week. Ruth pounded out more four-ply blows than any other player, getting two on Monday one Saturday and one today, making his season's total 28.

Fournier, Brooklyn still leads in the older circuit with 21 homers although he got none in the last seven days. The standing of the leaders:

American league:

Ruth, New York, 28; Williams, St. Louis, 16; Hauser, Philadelphia, 16; Jacobson, St. Louis 13; Pipp, New York, 8; Hooper, Chicago 8.

National league:

Fournier, Brooklyn 21; Kelly, New York, 14; Hartnett, Chicago, 12; Hornsby, St. Louis 11; Williams, Philadelphia 10; Young, New York, 8.

Wilson Traded For Smith

New Haven, July 20.—George Weiss, president of the New Haven club of the Eastern league announced tonight the trade of Catcher Mike Wilson to Bridgeport for Manager Joe Smith.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch

Any inning. Score 0 to 0. None out. Runner on second and third. Ball is hit to pitcher.

Where should pitcher make the play?

If the runner on third starts for home, or makes any attempt to get home at all, the pitcher should throw the ball as rapidly as possible to the catcher. Some of them make the mistake in holding on to it too long. The catcher can either make the put out or throw the ball back to third in time for a double play, either by catching the man coming to third from second or the batter going down to second.

MOOSUP WINS EASY GAME FROM VELVETMEN

The Moosup team with Lefty Harrell in the box won an easy game from the J. B. Martin team Sunday afternoon at the Martin diamond in Taftville, 13 to 8. Both Harrell and Morin, who pitched for the Velvetmen, were hit hard, Morin being touched for 17 safeties while Harrell was found for 12.

The score would indicate a slow game but it was far from that and a very interesting contest. Several bad breaks and poor baseball at critical times made it look bad for the local boys until the eighth and ninth innings when they came through with 8 hits and five runs. The lead piled up by Moosup in the previous innings was too great to be overcome. The score:

U. S. ENJOYS SUBSTANTIAL LEAD IN OLYMPICS

Paris, July 20—(By the A. P.)—The United States through its team victories in swimming and boxing, enjoyed tonight a more substantial lead in the Olympic point battle. The Americans, with twelve branches of the Olympic competition ended, have a total of 33 points.

Great Britain, which has displaced Finland in second place, has 33 points. France owing to her fencing victory has jumped into a tie with the Finns for third place, with 30 points each, while Sweden is next with 22 1-2.

The United States has captured seven championships and is certain to add an eighth to its list when the tennis tournament closes tomorrow.

Coal Heavers Win on Luck

Waterbury, July 20.—Luck played a factor in the six to four victory of Worcester over Waterbury here today, the visitors scoring practically every run on flukey infield singles that took bad hops. Burke featured for the Brassmen with a homer and three singles, two runs and three putouts.

TAFTVILLE HITS DANIELS HARD AND DUWELLS SUFFER SECOND DEFEAT

While Davis allowed the Duwell's 11 hits his team-mates went out and got 16 hits off Daniels and McInness and handed the local team its second defeat of the season, by a 12 to 9 score. The Taftville boys got to Daniels delivery in the second and third inning driving him out of the box for the first time this season. Daniels was way off of his usual form as he pitched a hard game in New London yesterday and was pretty well tired out. The boy has the makings of a wonderful pitcher but is working too often which will do him more harm than good.

The whole of the Duwell team was more or less off form with the exception of Belair, Shefflotte and Smith who played hard all through the game. While the local boys were not playing their usual game, the Taftville team hit hard when hits were needed and Davis in the box pitched good ball striking out nine men, most of them with men on bases. Davis also led the Taftville team with four hits with Donais and Dugas getting three each. Ringland and Shefflotte for the Duwells each socked out three hits apiece. Smith in left field played his usual good game making three hard catches.

Although Taftville was always considered a big drawing card the crowd was very small and Norwich will be without Sunday baseball for a while now as the Duwells are now booking games out of town. Norwich has always cried for sports but when it comes to backing them up they are not there. It has been a common occurrence all during the season for people who consider themselves red hot baseball fans to be caught sneaking in through the woods every Sunday. These are the people who take great delight in razzing the umpires, players and anyone else who tries to give sports a boost. On the other hand there are a couple of hundred who really do give baseball or any other sport their loyal support and it is for their sake that it would be bad to see Norwich without a baseball game on Sunday. SUB BASE WINS EASILY FROM NEW HAVEN TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 20.—A habit once acquired is hard to break away from: the majority of us know this old adage and it seems that the Submarine Base crew of baseball smackers are doing much to keep this adage before us. The winning habits acquired by the Base in the last five games has continued Saturday at the government reservation grounds where the navy blue sent the Lennox A. C. a product nine of the famous Elm City down to a 11 to 5 defeat under an alvalanche of hits.

Breaking out after the ball game in the very first inning, the Base found Quinn the visiting team's twirler, very much to their liking and before the regular nine innings were played, sixteen hits which including a homer by Dinty Moore and a double by Orsi were included in the total hits made. Although the visitors were playing an errorless game of ball, their fielding was very ragged in spots and allowed several outs at first go for one base slams. If Quinn the Elm City pitcher thought that he was giving a perfect emulation of the famous Jack Quinn of Boston Red Sox he was due for some disappointment. He was perfunctory in serving the ball up to the navy hitters and it was back with much more speed than when it left his hand. He was lucky that the score only reached the total that it did. POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

THE RHYME OF THE OGGLY-OOS

In the forest deep, when the winds are still,
When the owlets hoot to the whip-poor-will,
When the cat-o'-th'nine-tails wakes and wails,
Fanning the air with superfluous tails,
In the nights sublime
Of the summer's prime,
When the dogstar has such a Sirius time—

When the man in the moon wears a wicked leer
(For the moon is full that time of the year),
When shivery shakes creep up your spine
(At least I am certain they creep up mine,)
When little boys dread
To go to bed,
In the ghostly garret overhead—

On one of those nights, then, children dear,
In such a mysterious time o' the year,
There gathered beneath those forest trees
The things one reads of but never sees.
The Jabberwock and the Hoo Hoo, who Lives way off on the Kalamazoo,
Smoking the weed that the Choo-choos chew!

The Guffaw came with the Parley-voo.
The Tsingumbob and the Oogly-oo,
The sad Whangdoodle, too, was there,
Beating his breast in a dank despair,
The Alibazan,
The Catamaran,
The Hullabaloo and the Bogey-man.

But the wierdest thing of all of them
Was the forty-seventh Theorem,
Who certainly was beyond a doubt
The coldest proposition out!
His words just froze
And dropt to his toes.
So his words had weight, you may well suppose!

Oh, it made the Hoo Hoo shiver and shake
To hear the voice of his old friend break!
And the words of the Theorem froze blood
As they broke and fell with an icy thud:
While the Theorem
Explained to them
How he once loved a Boston girl—ahem!

Then a pale light touched the horizons rim,
And the firefly doused his glimmering glim,
While the wailing wind went "oo-woo-oo,"
As they often had heard the Dodo do.
It frightened the timid Hoo Hoo, who Wished he'd be back on the Kalamazoo.
And I wish he had stayed there myself, don't you?)

—By F. L. Rose.

CHILDREN OF THE CURB

Frail children by the curb, their arms so thin,
One wonders how they hold the tiny loads
Of brother, sister—tossing back and forth,
Their wrinkled foreheads bathed in beads of sweat.
With brave yet troubled eyes they search the streets,
To find a bit of shade where they may shield
Their fretful burdens from the scorching sun.
And feel less tight the clutch of small, hot hands.

Frail children by the curb, if only you could go
Down by the sea, where white capped fairies ride.
There little babes would sleep, and as they slept
You would have chance to rest, to romp and play,
To scamper on the sand cooled by the sea,
And catch up in your hands the sea tossed spray;
And in your eyes, now hollow, tired and wan,
There would come light and laughter once again.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Clean sports are the finest thing any boy or girl can enter into. They afford plenty of good, clean, wholesome exercise, and, when played fairly, teach the lesson of being square, being as good a loser as one is a winner.

I believe that every Wide Awake engaged in playing games of any kind is what is called in the sporting world, a good sport. By this, I mean, that none of you would take advantage of your playmates and win by playing unfairly, or try to slip away from the rules of the game.

The opportunity to build for yourselves a character that will cause people to respect you in later years is at hand for you now, and it is up to play square with your playmates, you will, in after years, play square with your friends and business acquaintances, because, once started on the right road, you will never want to sink back to the level of the man or woman who does not play square.

No one has any respect for a person who is not on the level, does not play fair, but the man or woman who does play the game of life open and above board is looked up to and respected by all good people.

If you are playing with a boy or girl who is not playing fair, refuse to do the underhanded thing yourself. Nine times out of ten, if you play square, your playmate, who has not been fair, will begin to see that something is wrong with his style of playing and will begin to see things in the light of fairness.

Play the game of being square with your playmates and take it into your homes with you. Nothing you could do in this world would make your parents love you more, than to play square, act fair, be truthful, and, when a disappointment comes along for you, be a cheerful loser and just go right on playing the game. If you do this you cannot lose, you'll be the winner of everything that is finest in this old world of ours.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES JETTY

Dear Uncle Jed: I'm writing you a story that I just made. It was a cool rainy day. Two men were hurrying home after their days work. In the corner of a doorway of an empty house, a little black dog shivered and howled. He was wet and cold, hungry and tired. He could not go home, for he had no home to go to any more. The man who owned him had moved out of town and left the dog behind so as not to have to pay his dog tax. One of the young men stopped and patted the dog on the head. The dog stopped howling and wagged his tail in a friendly way. "Come on," said Fred to Jack, "or you won't have a good seat in the train."

"Go on, don't wait for me," answered Jack. "I'm going to take this dog down to that restaurant and get him something to eat first."

It was a plain little restaurant and no one was at the table, when Jack walked in with the little dog under his arm.

"What do you ask for a plain steak?" he asked. "Fifteen cents," was the answer.

"Give me a raw one for this dog."

The man brought it and put it on the floor near the stove. "I'd like a dog like that," he said. "Will you sell him." "I'll give ehim to you if you take good care of him," answered Jack. Then he went whistling down the street, hurrying to catch his train.

The man of the restaurant named the dog Jetty because he was so black.

HELPED SAVE LITTLE BIRDS

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to the Wide Awake circle. I always was interested in reading the letters. I thought that I would try myself and see what you would think of my letter. I will tell you about what I saw a few days ago. Near our home we have two apple trees. In one there was a bird's nest, but we could not see it. Three tiny little birds fell from the nest. My father picked them up and put them in the tree and they were more than calling for the mother bird. They were trying to fly but they were too young. The mother bird brought them some food and she taught them to fly. Soon they were back in their cosy little nest in the tree.

OUR PICNIC AT WESTMINSTER SCHOOL

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awakes so I thought I would write about our school picnic at Westminster. We invited all the parents and friends to come at two o'clock. It began with a Mother Goose Play and ended with a folk dance which was called the Ace of Diamonds.

Later three girls served refreshments to everyone. We had cake, sandwiches, ice cream, lemonade and candy. Every child brought something. We enjoyed ourselves very much.

THE RACE

Dear Uncle Je: As I am not doing anything now, I thought I would tell you about our race every morning.

Every morning my sister and I race to the door to get The Bulletin. We do this so as to see who can get Jack Rabbit first. I have followed all of his adventures and think them very interesting. I cut it out of the Bulletin every morning and make a booklet of them.

Every other day I give my sister one, and now we have two booklets.

I hope all of the Wide Awakes enjoy my story.

MY NEW PONY

Dear Uncle Jed: Last month I went on a visit to my Uncle George in New York state. I stayed there two weeks and I had a very nice time.

On Wednesday, Rosy, one of my uncle's best horses, had a colt. My uncle said that I could have him but he would take care of him and keep him for me. I named him Prince. He is black and white and has a brown mane. He is now very frisky and he jumps around most of the time.

THE PRODIGAL SON

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about The Prodigal Son. Once a certain man had two sons. The younger of them said to his father "Father give me my share of money which you have." The father did so. Not many days after this, the younger son, left home and went to a far country. Here he wasted his fortune and lived a sinful life. After he had spent all his money, there came a famine in that country, and the young man was in great want. He did not even have enough to eat. In order not to starve, he went to work for a farmer tending swine. In doing this he thought how foolish he had been, leaving the home of his father. He said to himself, "I will arise and go to my father and say to him, 'Father I have sinned against heaven, and before thee. I am not worthy to be called thy son, make me as one of thy hired servants.'" And rising up he came to his father. His father saw him was moved with compassion, and running to his son fell upon his neck and kissed him. The son said to his father, "I have sinned against heaven and I am not worthy to be called they son."

The father said to his servants, "Bring forth quickly the first robe, and put it on him and put a ring on his hand and shoes on his feet; and bring hither the fatted calf and kill it and let us make merry: because this is my son who was dead and come to life, who was lost and is found."

And they began to make merry.

ABOUT MY FARM

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awake circle. I am going to tell you about our farm. On our farm we have many small quantities of fruit. Some of these are strawberries, blackberries, raspberries, currants, cranberries, apples, peaches, huckleberries and cherries. We raise vegetables and some of them are beans, corn, beets, potatoes, lettuce, radishes, carrots, onions and parsnips. We use the currants and some of the apples for jellies.

We have two cows now, but in the winter we had nine cows, five calves one bull, three yearlings and two horses. We have no pigs now but we had nine in the winter.

A LESSON

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you and hope to be more successful than I was before. Now I will tell you something about our flag. When any one goes to a parade and sees our flag passing by, they should salute it. I went to the parade on Fourth of July. While the flags were passing by I saluted every one.

My friends said to me, "Yetta, what are you doing?"

I said, "I am saluting the flags."

About three minutes later the parade again passed by and my friends saluted the flags.

Later I said, "These are the flags our forefathers fought for."

THE LION FAMILY

Dear Uncle Jed: The second story of Jungle stories is called, The Lion family.

Oh dear me, I forgot something, we will have to name the boy Edward. One day Edward went on a visit to father lion's family. He played with the cubs all day and slept in father lion's house that night. He liked the lions so well that mother elephant said he could stay for a month at father lions house. He liked to jump and run and skip. In the next story you will hear what happened after that.

THE BLUEBIRD

Dear Uncle Jed: What sweetness is there in the trembling notes of the bluebird! He carries the sky on his back, and the earth on his breast. If one studied the bluebirds, he would see many interesting and amusing things. The male is first to arrive at the nest site and does practically nothing until the arrival of the female, when the courtship begins without delay and the delicate notes are heard echoing through the orchard. Next to the breeding impulse, the instinct for immigration seems to be the strongest factor in bird-life. When the life of the home is over, Mother Nature whispers, "To wing, up and on!" and our dear friends depart to their winter homes.

THE BLUEBIRD

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written once before and thought I would write again. This time I am going to tell you and the Wide Awakes about the bluebird.

Early in March we hear the soft notes of this little blue coated messenger of spring. Even though cold winds may blow and snowstorms whiten the fields the bluebird tells us spring is here. The bluebird is the first of the smaller birds to take up the care of housekeeping in spring. Early in April he, with his mate will be busy house hunting. Holes in the old tree trunks will be looked at, until a site to their liking is found. Here the nest will be built and the pale blue eggs will be laid. The nest is made of weed stalks, bits of bark and grass, and lined with fine grass.

The bluebird is somewhat larger than the English sparrow. His back is bright blue. His sides, breast and throat are dull, cinnamon brown, and he is white underneath.

HOW THE BLUEBIRD GOT HIS COLOR

Dear Uncle Jed: One day an old gray bird was sitting on a branch of a tree. Suddenly he said, "I hate my ugly old color, I wish I was blue, with an orange breast." Very soon a great wind came and blew him away. We never saw him for two days, on the third day he returned and sat on the same branch. He was all blue with his orange breast. They all said what shall we name him. One said lets name him the orange breast. Another said lets name him the bluebird. So he was always called the blue bird after that and was very proud of his color.

PAPER MONEY

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write and tell how paper money is made. I thought it might be an interesting subject for the Wide Awake circle.

The materials that go to make up our paper money are gathered together from all parts of the world. Part of the paper fiber is linen rag from the Orient. The silk comes from China or Italy. The blue ink is made from German or Canadian cobalt.

The black ink is made from Niagara Falls acetylene gas smoke, and most of the green ink is green color, mixed in white zinc sulphite, made in Germany. The red color in the seal is obtained from a pigment imported from Central America.

I will write again soon.

THE ROBINS NEST

Dear Uncle Jed: Last week I went to the farm to visit my aunt. While I was there I went into the woods every day with my cousin, Lena. One day as we were going through the woods, I saw a robin, carrying a worm. I followed it. The robin had a nest with four little robins in it. She was busy, feeding them so she did not see us. We hid in the bushes and waited to see what the mother would do. She carried many worms. Every day Lena and I went to see them. The nest was built on a low tree but the leaves hid the nest. I hope that the Wide Awakes and the rest will enjoy the story of the robin.

WESTERLY

Police Officer Michael Curtin, No. 2 of the Westerly police forced placed under arrest George Wucusick, 30, of Boston, Saturday afternoon, the complaint being that he was selling pencils without first having obtained a town license. Complaint was made to Officer Curtin that the Boston man entered a house on Pleasant street without the formality of asking permission and demanded money. The officer found the peddler at 50 1-2 Pierce street, and caught him in the act. Wucusick alleged that his left hand was paralyzed. Following his arrest he was presented before Clerk M. Walter Flynn, Jr., and fined $5 and costs of $3.80, amounting to $8.80 in all, which he paid. Defendant was then ordered out of town.

In Colonial days, when visit of state were made, it was customary to call the coach and four with postillion and outriders and with the addition of band box and trunk to depart on cross country journeys in which a comparatively small number of miles were travelled before an over night's stop was made at a convenient tavern. But this was not the case Saturday, when the annual joint outing or pilgrimage of the Westerly Historical Society and Phoebe Green Ward Chapter D. A. R., was made to historic Lebanon. The trip was not begun until afternoon and the return to Westerly was accomplished early in the evening. Joe Stedman was the "outrider" for the pilgrim train of thirty-five automobiles and bus which conveyed a party of from 90 to 100 Westerly people including a number of Stonington. On their return to Westerly Saturday evening the Lebanon pilgrims spoke of the warmth of their reception and the cordiality extended.

Arriving in Lebanon the hospitality of Jonathan Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., was evidenced for at the War Office, a memorial museuf, the Westerly party was welcomed by Miss Ellen Huntington, a descendant of the war governor. The party followed the itinerary in last week's Bulletin, Redwood, the birthplace of two war governors, with its priceless painting by George Innis (and if a lapse into present day commerciality were permitted) the home of the first tin-canned peach, was viewed through the courtesy of Mrs. Annie Perry and daughter, Miss Bertha Perry and was followed by a visit to the Welles House with its panelled room.

A meeting was held at the Lyman Memorial High school, by the courtesy of Fred N. Taylor, when an address was made by Mrs. David Pitcher on Old Houses of Lebanon, and there were remarks by Miss Laura McCall, secretary, and Mrs. Otto Pultz. Responses were made for the Westerly visitors by Mrs. Allan L. Thompson, regent of Phebe Green Ward chapter, D. A. R., of Westerly and Col and Town Clerk Everett E. Whipple, president of the Westerly Historical society. Mrs. Thompson presented Trumbull chapter a bouquet of roses. Supper was served, with elegant tea brewed by the Trumbull daughters. The common was circled and the graves of revolutionary patriots were visited. A fitting tribute was paid by Miss Julia Smith of Westerly, when she placed on the French soldier's grave a boxwood wreath fashioned from boxwood, which flourished before the mansion of Joshua Babcock in Westerly now occupied by Miss Smith, at the time of the visits of George Washington with that Rhode Island Colonial governor.

A compound fracture of the left leg, with lacerations about the head was the result of an accident Saturday afternoon, when Arthur Boyd, 4, son of William Boyd of 141 Main street, was hit by an automobile mud guard. The accident happened when the boy came from the rear of an ice wagon at the junction of Cross and Main street, directly in the path of the delivery truck of William D. Dolan. The boy after receiving medical treatment, was taken in the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary Corps to Lawrence hospital, New London.

Charles Sandusky, 35, of Providence, and Charles Gabrielle of the same city were involved in an automobile mishap Sunday morning about two oclock near the General Stanton monument on the Post road. The men were bound from New Haven to Providence in a Ford touring car when it turned over. Sanduski was brought to Westerly where he received medcial treatment from Dr. Michael H. Scanlon before he continued on his way to Providence. Grover King passing the location of the accident, gave the men assistance and Police Officer Fred T. Mitchell also assisted.

A New Haven freight train, "NBE" in charge of Conductor Murphy, of Boston, came near being wrecked near the Westerly station Saturday afternoon about 4.30 o'clock. The east bound freight with numerous coal cars of which one a Philadelphia & Reading gondola car loaded with stove coal sustained a broken frame, which supports the journal box bearing. When this broke the box swung over and the loaded car went down on that corner until the body rested on the car wheel. As the broken end passed over the wooden planking of the crossovers the woodwork was ripped up. The wooden ones at both gates opposite the Westerly station were torn from their fastening and badly splintered and broken. Crossing Tender Irving Champlin, at Palmer street, saw the damaged car which threatened to jump from the rails in time to get the attention of the engineer and the train was brought to a standstill, near the east end of the station platform. The train was broken and the damaged car was placed on the siding near the Coduri Granite Works. In doing so two switch points on the main line were broken so that the switches could not be closed. Section Foreman Plympton and Electrician Frechette were called to repair the damage done. The nuts holding the fish plates to the rails were cut and broken as the damaged car passed over them, but was placed on the siding without a "spill."

So badly was one of the switch points damaged that the switch had to be spiked, it being the most recently installed one under the High street dry bridge. Northbound expresses were crossed over to the south-bound track to pass the stalled train and the north-bound Merchants' Limited was brought to a full stop at the Westerly tower. This was not the only mishap on the Shore Line, for at the same time the south bound Boston to New Haven freight train had a broken wheel on a freight car near Shannock. The Midway wrecker and crew were sent in Shannock to care for the disabled car and later came to Westerly to place a new truck under the coal car. The crew of the wrecker became outlawed, and a new train crew had to be secured before the wrecker could return to Midway about 4 o'clock Sunday morning.

Guiseppe Liquori, alias John Doe, had troubles Saturday afternoon, which sounded very much like his name. About 3 o'clock Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown accompanied by Police Officers Curtin, Champlin and Kessel visited the premises at No. 18 Pond street, a tenement on the south side of the dwelling, next north of No. 6 1-2 Pond street. The warrant alleged that intoxicating liquors had been taken into said place and dwelling and sold there. A crowd gathered while the officers were making their visit and samples of cider secured were taken to the police station for analysis later. The proprietor was summoned to appear in the Third district court on Friday, July 25th.

Sunday morning about 1 o'clock, Dixon House square presented the appearance of the sawdust ring under the "big top". It all happened when Motorcycle Traffic Officer Robert Kesel, with Police Officer George H. Champlin "up behind" leaned too far over, in attempting to pass an automobile which suddenly got in the way. The result was that the officers were sent spinning, Officer Champlin pirouetting on his abdomen with arms outstretched and the traffic officer skidded on his knee and elbow, his uniform being somewhat torn in both places on the hard surface of the square. In front of the Rhode Island hotel was a young woman who promptly fainted, it being the second fainting case that Officer Champlin had to deal with on his tour of duty.

Saturday afternoon at funeral parlors on Granite street, was held the funeral of Martha B. Pierce, 89, who died in Shirley, Mass., on Friday, July 18. Miss Pierce passed her life in Westerly up to six or seven years ago when she moved to Pawtucket, R. I., and made her summer home in Shirley, Mass. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Arnt L. Schoning, pastor of the Broad Street Christian church. Burial was in River Bend cemetery, the bearers being Raymond W. Pierce, Fred Chapman, Stanley Ferno and James Holt. There were many relatives and friends in attendance, including Ernest Chesebro and family of Willimantic and others from Boston, Wollaston, Gardiner and Providence. Miss Pierce is survived by a brother, Charles A. Pierce, who resides in Judge Michael J. Turano performed a wedding ceremony Saturday evening at his office on Canal street, when he united in marriage August Ilaks of Westerly and Miss Eva Madaline Helms of Bradford, using a single ring service. Present as witnesses were David Fitkanen and Annie Solmela.

Helen Gardiner and Mary Taylor of South Manchester returned home on Sunday, after a week's visit with the family of Frank Cella, of the West Side. The trip was made by automobile and on the return a stop was made at the scout camp at Gardiner Lake to visit Raymond Cella, who went into camp there last Friday to remain for a week.

An ambulance train passed through Pawcatuck and Westerly, east bound, Friday forenoon and moving at a rapid rate of speed. It was made up of a touring car followed by five or six ambulance trucks loaded with soldiers and a motorcycle side-car brought up the rear.

Pawcatuck Patrolman Charles W. Connors of the Stonington police force returned to his home on the West Side, Saturday, after a minor operation at a New London hospital.

The large truck of "Camp WaWog," R. F. D. No. 5, Norwich, made a business visit to Westerly Saturday.

William Mitchell, Jr., 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell of Westerly, underwent a minor operation on Friday at a hospital in New London.

Charles E. Redford of New London was the guest on Sunday of Pawcatuck relatives and friends.

Captain Walter H. Davis was a Boston visitor Sunday, returning by automobile.

Joseph T. Crowley of the West Side, a conductor in the employ of the Pullman company on the New Haven railroad was the week-end guest of Pawcatuck relatives and friends.

Harry E. Langworthy was in Boston Sunday, making the return trip by automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Johnson were automobile visitors in West Kingston Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. William F. Burnie and daughter Kate of New Haven, formerly of Westerly, are spending their vacation at Atlantic Beach.

Elder Daniel Seketer of Westerly was the officiating clergyman Sunday at the old Indian church, Charlestown, R. I.

Miss Frances Farnham of Westerly was an entrant Friday evening in the talking competition at Camp Hoffman, the girl scout camp, Kingston, R. I.

SPECIAL NOTICE

We beg to inform the public that we are now ready to pack ice cream in the

NEW "FREEZOCRAT" CONTAINERS

This system of packing would keep ice cream for four hours, as hard as it would be at the time of purchase—if kept in a cool place. It will keep it hard longer if the container is placed in the refrigerator on reaching its destination.

It costs 15c for packing each quart in a "FREEZOCRAT" and the size so small that a child can carry it.

It ordinarily takes three minutes to put a quart up, but those who do not care to wait, may telephone their orders few minutes before they call for them.

Orders of ice cream in these containers could be sent by Western Union messenger service at the expense of the purchaser.

DELHI, MOST HISTORIC SPOT IN ALL INDIA

"If one spot were singled out in history-steeped India as most historic of all, probably it would be the city of Delhi, for both written records and oral traditions extending back for ages tell of power wielded from Delhi's site," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society, in regard to one of the stopping places of the American Army flyers in India.

"It is because of this rich incrustation of history and tradition that Delhi was chosen as the coronation place for India's modern imperial rulers: Queen Victoria, King Edward VII, and the present Emperor of India, King George V of Great Britain. For the same reason Delhi was chosen, a few years ago, to be the permanent capital of the Indian Empire. Government staffs were moved to temporary quarters in the city while just south of the town is rising one of the most imposing made-to-order capitals ever built, where the viceroy and his co-rulers will have their permanent quarters.

"Delhi is situated in about the latitude of San Antonio, Texas, on the very center-line of India. It is a city of the plains, in the broad belt of lowland that sweeps entirely across the northern part of the peninsula and composes India's most fertile and most densely populated region.

"All about Delhi, well preserved and in various stages of ruin, are monuments to India's and Delhi's greatness—victory towers, temples, mosques, tombs, and palaces.

"Delhi is most famous to Westerners as the former seat of the Great Moguls and their powerful empire which flourished in the sixteenth, seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries. The court of the Mogul Emperors far surpassed in magnificence any other court of its day. Probably no regal splendor in any era has matched that of the Moguls. The emperors sat on the famous Peacock Throne (later captured by the Shah of Persia) in a throne room whose walls were of exquisitely decorated marble hung with sumptuous brocades. Diamonds and other precious stones worth hundreds of millions of dollars studded the throne and ornamented the robes of the sovereigns. The city fell into the hands of the British in 1857 during the Indian Mutiny."

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Starting for Play

Over the meadow, bright and clear,
The Meadow Lark whistles a note of cheer.
From early morn to evening time
You hear the musical whistling rhyme.

Out of bed hopped Little Jack Rabbit
Meadow Lark's whistle was calling to him.
Don't you often feel, little reader, like answering a bird's whistle?

The Bunny boy brought in the wood.

Your Uncle Dave has often whistled to a pretty canary bird to make him feel that perhaps another bird was calling from the Shady Forest.

Quickly slipping on his khaki suit, the bunny boy parted his hair down the middle of his back and hopped down to the kitchen. Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother, was bustling about, preparing a nice breakfast of Clover Cereal, Lettuce Leaf Marmalade and Carrot tea.

"Eat your Clover Cereal," she said as the bunny boy tucked his napkin under his chin.

"All right, Mother dear," answered the little rabbit. He knew that cereal made him strong and without it he would never grow up to be a big man rabbit. Oh, yes, indeedy. He never worried Lady Love by not eating his cereal. Neither do you, little reader, of course you don't.

After finishing his breakfast, the bunny boy fed the pretty canary bird, polished the front doorknob and brought in the kindling wood because he always did these three little duties for Mother every morning before going out to play. He liked to do something for Mother because Mother was always doing something for him. It made a happy feeling in his heart. You know, don't you, little reader, how happy Mother looks when you do something for her. I guess her smile goes right into your heart and makes you happy, too.

Then, kissing Lady Love goodbye, Little Jack Rabbit hopped down the winding path through the bramble bushes out to the Sunny Meadow. Mr. Merry Sun was shining from the sky and Billy Breeze was whispering among the treetops:

"Lovely, lovely, lovely day.
Some must work and some may play,
But never, never, never skirk
If you are asked to do some work."

"I've done mine," answered the bunny boy with a laugh. "Now I'm going to find Meadow Lark. He woke me with his whistle."

"Well, you won't have to look very long, for here I am," answered a voice, and there, right on the ground, close by, stood a little bird, larger than Bobbie Redvest, his feather coat streaked and spotted with black, brown and gray, the sides and under parts whitish and spotted with black.

"Hello!" cried the bunny boy. "You have a black feathered bib below your neck, just above your yellow vest."

"Yes, I have," answered Meadow Lark. "Come, I'll show you something." And in the next story you'll learn what it is.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEW

New York, July 20—Stock, bond, cotton and grain prices all pointed upward this week with vocalled public participation increasing in each market.

Revival of speculative interest in the railroad shares, more than two score of which bettered their previous high prices for the year, was the outstanding feature of the stock market. Buying of these issues was given impetus by the interstate commerce commission refusal to reduce freight rates on grain.

Domestic bonds moved to new high levels for the year as large sums of Wall street's surplus funds were invested in high grade issues. Foreign bonds showed some irregularity.

Wheat and corn prices continued to soar on further indications of a shortage in both the domestic and world crops.

Money rates continued easy with call funds being obtainable in large quantities in the "outside market" as low as 1 1-2 per cent and seven months time loans being available for the first time this year at 3 1-2 per cent.

Foreign exchange rates held fairly steady with trading restricted pending further developments in the reparations conference now in session in London. Demand sterling ruled around $4.37 and French francs fluctuated around 5.10 cents.

RAILROADS STRONG IN LAST WEEK'S TRADING

New York, July 20.—(By The A. P.)—With a background of continued easy money, bond prices last week pressed firmly ahead, the attainment of new hiich levels by domestic issues offsetting moderate reaction in the foreign list.

Although the advance was lacking in vigor, the entire market registered definite progress during the week, even foreign obligations making irregular recovery after their early period of unsettlement. Extension of the 3 1-2 per cent. rate on time loans to seven months paper and predictions of a drop from 3 to 1 1-2 per cent. in the official call money rate reflected the surplus funds here, which provided the background for the market's movement.

Coupled with the strong underlying demands for listed issues was a quickened response to bond offerings, attesting to the improvement wrought in current market conditions by the recent lull in new financing. The drop in the value of new issues to about $60,000,000 helped to relieve congestion, paving the way for oversubscription of various blocks marketed later in the week.

Railroad obligations furnished the chief bulwark of strength in the week's trading. Refusal of the interstate commerce commission to lower freight rates on grain promoted active buying of the western carriers' securities, bonds sharing in the advance with stocks.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Connell, Mrs. Maurice King and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Foy and Miss Ella Oates motored to Narragansett Pier Sunday.

Oliva Brown, who has had a hen house of the Plainfield state road for the past year, was surprised to find that some one had been to the coop before him and had taken his chickens. The lock on the coop was broken with a hammer or a stone. The thieves were not satisfied with taking the chickens but went to the trouble of breaking up the place as badly as possible. As there are no dwellings within a hundred yards of the house, no one heard any disturbance when the hens were taken. Probably some one familiar with the times some one went to the coop or when nobody was around, committed the theft.

Paul Peltier motored to Boston with relatives Sunday.

George P. O'Neil and Norman Whipple spent the week end in New Haven with friends.

Samuel Connell aroused the town Saturday evening when he reported that he saw a man lying on the side of the road near Tadpole bridge on the state highway. Five touring cars filled with young men went back to the place but the man was nowhere around. After looking around a few minutes the fellows thought Connell was playing a joke on them. When they got back to Plainfield they found out that it was two young fellows going toward Plainfield who wanted to ride. When asked why they did that stunt the older of the two replied that it was impossible to hail anyone in that lonely spot, so it was easier to have them stop, thinking the some one was hurt and then ask for a ride.

Miss Marion Lee is spending the summer with her aunt, Mrs. Cahoun, of New Haven.

Mrs. John Mercer and son, Harold, of Moosup, and Mrs. Arthur Holmes motored to Worcester, Saturday to meet relatives from Holyoke, Mass.

Rev. R. F. Morrissey announced at the masses Sunday morning that the Sunday school picnic is to be to Beach pond, instead of to Rocky Point.

A large delegation of Plainfield visitors were at the carnival in Canterbury Saturday evening.

George Bradbury with his family motored to New Bedford, Mass., Saturday. He will spend the week end at his home where his wife has been resting after being operated on two two weeks ago in a New Bedford hospital. Mrs. Bradbury will return to her home in Plainfield Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Frink and William Hiscox of Jewett City were at Mrs. Martin Chapman's Sunday.

Mrs. Cary E. Maine who has not been able to be on her feet for several weeks, is much improved.

STONINGTON

A large wooden cross was burned across the harbor Friday night between eleven and twelve o'clock. Sevpeople from the borough went over and examined it and afterwards pulled it down. The spot was abandoned when they got there so that the perpetrators of the deed are unknown.

A shipment of heavy curbing has been received from the Smith Granite Works. Several additions have been made to the force employed to keep the borough streets in condition and they are engaged in lining up the curbs on Water street in preparation for the new cement road. It has been definitely decided that the construction of the road will begin about August first. Between two and three weeks will be required for its completion.

POETRY

The Cross of Jesus

Beneath the Cross of Jesus
I fain would take my stand
The shadow of a mighty Rock,
Within a weary land.
A home within the wilderness,
A rest upon the way,
From the burning of the noon-tide heat
And the burden of the day.

O safe and happy shelter,
O refuge tried and sweet,
O trysting-place where Heaven's love
And Heaven's justice meet!
As to the Holy Patriarch
That wondrous dream was given,
So seems my Saviour's Cross to me,
A ladder up to heaven.

There lies beneath its shadow,
But on the further side,
The darkness of an early grave
That gapes both deep and wide:
And there between us stands the Cross,
Two arms outstretched to save,
Like a watchman set to guard the way
From that eternal grave.

Upon that Cross of Jesus
Mine eye at times can see
The very dying form of One,
Who suffered there for me;
And from my smitten heart with tears,
Two wonders I confess—
The wonders of His glorious love,
And my own worthlessness.

I take, O Cross, Thy shadow,
For my abiding place;
I ask no other sunshine
Than the sunshine of His face
Content to let the world go by,
To know no gain nor loss—
My sinful self, my one shame,
My glory all the Cross.
—By Elizabeth C. Clephane.

Venus

Is that star dumb, or am I deaf?
Hour after hour I listen here
To catch the lovely music played
By Venus down the evening air.

Before the other stars come out.
Before the Moons is in her place—
I sit and watch those fingers move.
And mark that twitching of her face.

Hour after hour I strain my ears
For lovely notes that will not come.
Is it my mortal flesh that's deaf,
Or that long-fingered star that's dumb!
—W. H. Davis in London Spectator.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Wife—I never thought he was bright enough to work in a bank.

Husband—He isn't, but he's a crack shot. — Life.

Wife (pouting)—You never kiss me goodby any more.

Hub—Well, I can assure you, my dear, it isn't because I don't want to. —Exchange.

Mrs. Elijah—Well, Mrs. Elisha, I hear your husband has become a prophet, too.

Mrs. Elisha—He has not. As far as I'm concerned he's a total loss.—Harvard Lampoon.

Miss Passe—How is the weather, Marie?

The Maid—Fresh and windy, madam,

Very well. Put a healthy flush on my cheeks this morning. I'm going out.—Punch Bowl.

Why did you dismiss your French maid?

"I couldn't understand her when she talked fast," answered Miss Cayenne. "I was afraid she was saying impertinent things to my face that I couldn't understand."—Washington Star.

"A man is never older than he feels," declared the ancient beau bravely. "Now I feel as a two-year-old."

"Horse or ass?" asked the sweet young thing brightly.—Tit-Bits.

An motorist was giving a lift to an elderly woman. After speeding along for some time he turned to her and asked: "Where did you say you were going?"

"As a matter of fact I was going the other way, but I didn't want to hurt your feelings," came the reply. London Daily News.

Daily Paper Editor—Did you interview the eminent statesman?

Yes.

What did he have to say?

Nothing.

I know that; but how many columns will it make?—Exchange.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Japan holds first place among world countries in the value of its fishing products.

The average wage of common laborers in the United States at present is 68 3-4 cents an hour.

Norwegian whaling companies produced 437,000 barrels of whale oil in 1923. The industry is thriving and a prosperous future is predicted for it.

A goldfish whose origin has not been accounted for was found in an abandoned quarry hole south of Martinsburg, W. Va. The fish is fourteen inches long.

To enable the largest ocean steamships to reach Glasgow more than sixty million cubic yards of material has been dredged out of the Clyde river at a cost of more than $35,000,000.

A redwood tree cut recently in northern California scaled about 250,000 feet of lumber. It was seventy feet in circumference and 300 feet high, and two men worked seven days to fell it.

Archimedes was the first to employ 'death rays' in time of war. He burned the Roman galleys in the siege of Syracuse by the concentration of rays projected by sun mirrors in the third century, B. C.

Live fish and shellfish, similar to those inhabiting the lakes of Palestine, have been found by artesian well borers at depths of 200 feet and 300 feet beneath the burning sands of the Sahara desert.

A gas-filled toy balloon made an extraordinary flight when, released in a contest from Keswick, Cumberland, England, it was mailed back from Konigsberg, Germany, a distance of about 1,000 miles.

Every week the factories of the great English industrial city of Birmingham turn out 14,000,000 pens, ten tons of pins, 6,000 metal bedsteads, 7,000 tons of rifles, and other articles too numerous to mention.

Germany is buying American mules to replace oxen in agricultural work, reports the United States department of agriculture. A shipment of 64 Missouri mules from five to six years old and of good conformation was recently sent to Hamburg on contract. This was the second shipment of the kind this year.

Boot and shoe making is one of the most important manufacturing industries of Chile, which now imports less than 5 per cent of the machine-made shoes sold in that country. The average annual production of the 75 factories which are equipped with power machinery is estimated at 6,500,000 pairs.

It has been computed that the cost to the United States of making a $1 bill is about as great as to make a $20 or a $10,000 bill. The expense is 1.8 cents each. The length of service varies in direct ratio to the value of the note. The $1 bill lasts little more than a year, it is estimated, a $10 bill lasts about four years, while a $10,000 bill obviously, seldom wears out.
